INJUNCTION AGAINST MERGER SUSPENDED

Roads May Pay Interest to Securities Company.

Other Provisions of Decree Remain In Force.

St. Paul, April 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—At noon today Circuit Court Judge Sanborn handed down the following decision granting the request of the attorneys for the Northern Securities company to be permitted to pay Great Northern and Northern Pacific dividends to the Northern Securities company:

The defendants in this case have the right under the acts of congress to appeal from the decree of the circuit court to the supreme court. They have claimed that right. Ordinarily those who have the right to review a judgment or decree of the circuit court also have the right upon giving a proper bond to supersede the effect of the judgment or decree during the pendency of the appeal. But where, as in the case at bar, the decree awards an injunction, the ordinary supersedeas stays proceedings, but does not raise the injunction. To enable the courts to prevent unnecessary loss or injury to the parties to litigation in such cases, the supreme court provided, by rule 35, that when an appeal is allowed from the final decree granting an injunction, a judge who took part in the decision may make an order suspending the injunction during the pendency of the appeal upon such terms as to bond or otherwise as he may consider proper for the security of the opposite party. It is the customary practice for the courts to exercise this power whenever their action will not affect the rights of the party who has secured the injunction. In this case that party is the United States. The main purpose and effect of the decree is to prevent the Northern Securities company from controlling and operating the Great Northern and Northern Pacific railroads, and to accomplish this it enjoins that company from exercising any control over their operation and from acquiring or involving any of the stock of the companies, and it also enjoins the railroad companies from paying to the Northern Securities company any dividends on their stock. This is not an application to suspend this injunction. The defendants ask only that the part of the injunction which forbids the payment of dividends be suspended during the pendency of the appeal.

These dividends do not belong, and cannot in any event, be paid to the United States. It does not claim to have, and it has not any pecuniary interest in them. Its purposes in prosecuting this suit and its interest in this connection are only thereby to enforce the law against illegal combinations in restraint of trade and to prevent the Northern Securities company from controlling, directing, owning, operating or interfering with the competing railroads. This interest, it will be noticed, is protected by that portion of the injunction which forbids the management or control of these railroads by the Northern Securities company, and forbids it from voting or acquiring any stock of these railroad companies. This portion of the injunction, indeed every part of the decree and of the injunctions, is in force and will continue in force until the pendency of this appeal in any event. During this time the United States has, and will have, under this portion of the decree, which will not be modified or suspended, a complete remedy for any violation of the Sherman anti-trust act, should it occur, both by proceedings for contempt under this injunction and by proceedings under the penal clause of the Sherman anti-trust act.

The appeal in this case will probably be determined by the supreme court about November, 1903. It is not perceived how the payment or the retention of these dividends during the pendency of this appeal can injudiciously affect any right of the United States in this litigation, and the only question here is whether these dividends shall be piled up in the treasuries of the railway companies or paid to the stockholders, to whom they legally belong, and who must ultimately receive them which ever the final decision is. this case may be.

These dividends will ultimately go to the stockholders of the Northern Securities company whether paid as they are earned or after the final decision. If the railroad companies are permitted to pay their dividends to the Securities company that company will pay them

THE LAST BUSINESS DAY OF THE LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Osteopathy Bill Through Both Branches----Deadlock on Tax Amendments Continues.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—This the last business day of the legislative session and the bars were let down in both houses so that some of the more important measures could receive consideration. The senate passed the osteopathy bill, which had already passed the house, by a vote of 34 to 16. Dr. A. B. Cole, of Fergus Falls, offered an amendment prohibiting osteopaths from treating acute or contagious diseases, but it was voted down.

The deadlock on the tax amendments continues and there was rather a warm time over them in the house this morning. The conference committee, appointed last Friday to meet with a similar committee from the senate, made its report, recommending that the house abandon its position for wide open amendments and accede to the changes made by the senate, substituting a restricted set of amendments. Strong opposition to the report developed and it was turned down, the committee discharged and a new one appointed.

George W. Armstrong, of the house conference committee, said that the only way to get any amendments through at all was to accede to the senate amendments as there was not a senator who would stand for the wide open amendments.

George R. Smith, of Minneapolis, said the committee had been overcome by the sophistry of the senate committee. There was no use in doing anything, he said, because two years from now the senate will be the same as it is today, and it will stand in the way of any advancement in matters of taxation.

Ambrose Tighe, of St. Paul, said this was correct, and that he believed in putting the responsibility of the ill results of the session on the shoulders of the senators as conspicuously as possible. The house has not passed a constructive measure at this session that the senate has not either killed or emasculated so it was worthless. The enate tax amendments are worse than the present provisions, and it was better for the house to go down with flying colors than to consent to a compromise that means nothing.

J. D. Shearer, of Minneapolis, said he was of the same opinion. The senate has showed its leaning by keeping the bill in committee six weeks and then just passing it at the close of the session.

On motion of J. O. Haughland the old committee, consisting of Messrs. Armstrong, Stevenson and Wells was discharged, and a new one consisting of Messrs. Hinton, Wilson and Clague was appointed. The senate also appointed a new one, consisting of Senators Horton, Putnam and Hawkins.

The house, under the leadership of Frank Clague, of Redwood county, this morning, arranged a schedule for the most important bills, and suspended the rules so as to pass them.

The game and fish code was passed with amendments by J. A. Anderegg, none of which were important. One provided that game wardens can seize nothing but illegally killed game and fish and fish nets illegally used, and the other opens the pickerel season May 1.

The bill appropriating $5000 for a state house in the Itasca state park was passed. The attorney general's substitute for the anti-trading stamp bill was passed by a vote of 93 to 7. The bill provides that trading stamps concerns must stamp a value on each check, and redeem them in goods or cash at the option of the holders. It becomes effective Aug. 1, 1903.

The house this morning adopted a resolution by D. F. Kelley authorizing the governor to return to the state of Mississippi the two Confederate flags now on exhibition in the capitol. They were captured by the Fourteenth Minnesota regiment from the Thirty-Fifth and the Thirty-Seventh Mississippi. The survivors of the Minnesota regiments have given their consent to the restoration and so has President Roosevelt.

The senate passed Senator Pugh's bill appropriating $97 for the relief of Walter S. Cutter, a militiaman injured at camp by the explosion of a defective cartridge which he was trying to extract from his rifle.

Senator Schaller's bill making the state school library board consist of the state superintendent, a normal school president and a city and county superintendent instead of being composed of normal school presidents, was passed.

REBELLION IN CHINA LIKELY IMPERIAL AUTHORITY DEFIED

May Be Another Attack on "Foreign Devils."

Rebels Are Active and Armed Riots Frequent.

Shanghai, China, March 21.—(Per Canadian Pacific Steamer to The Herald.)—To judge from present indications it certainly looks as if the whole empire is going to rise in rebelion. Kwang Si is a hotbed, where the imperial authority is openly defied. Kwang Tugn, the turbulent province, whose capital we have Westernized as Canton, is more than usually restless, and foreigners residing there cannot move about the native city alone and unarmed. Yunnan, the province west of it, is also taking a hand in raising rebels, and even far Szechuen, China's wealthiest province, with a population of 60,000,00—it resembles Montana in size, altitude and climate—is indulging in armed riots. What is coming over China? It seems as if there will be another attempt to get rid of us "foreign devils," as we are called. Unless indications are very deceitful we shall have this time the whole of China on our back, with the exception of the two northern provinces, Shan Tung and Chihli, who had their fun when the Boxers ran riot, and who are not anxious for another experience.

It really does look as if foreign armies and navies will be again called upon to come to the rescue. The whole of the Yang Tez' valley, with its 150,000,000 people, is agitated, and isolated attacks upon foreigners are growing unpleasantly frequent. Here are most of the open ports, some of greater, others of less importance, but all having foreign residents. Chung King, in Szechnen, is 1400 miles up the river; Ichang, at the foot of the rapids, is 1100 miles Then come Wuhu, Han-Kow, Kiukiang, and last of all Shanghai. This flourishing settlement has between 6000 and 7000 foreigners, men, women and children. They live in the limited area known as the International Settlement, because it is composed of the American and British concessions. According to the land regulations of the settlement, no Chines are permitted to reside within its limits. Yet by the census of two years ago, there were 333,000 Chinese, and that number does not include the tens of thousands residing in the Walled City, close to the settlement. What on earth is this handful of foreigners going to do if the Chinese are in earnest to expel us?

American citizens here feel fairly safe, because they understand that the administration keeps well informed, and is prepared to act in an emergency. The Philippine islands are not far dis-

SEVERAL PASSENGERS ON THE ERIE ROAD BURNED TO DEATH

Fast Passenger Train Crashes Into Freight, Wrecking Both Trains, Which Were Consumed.

Jamestown, N. Y., April 20.—A coupling broke on a west-bound freight train on the Erie road at Red House at 4 o'clock this morning just as the train was leaving the main track to take a siding for the east-bound New York and Chicago limited express to pass. The delay occasioned by the mishap was the cause of a fatal accident of a most distressing nature. Almost immediately after the freight broke in two the passenger train came along at the rate of fifty miles an hour. The passenger engine, a combination baggage and passenger car, a day coach and two sleepers left the track, running nearly 100 feet beside the rails, crashing into a small schoolhouse, which was completely wrecked.

The wreck caught fire immediately and all the cars which left the track were quickly burned up. Baggageman Hotchkiss was killed. His body was recovered. After the fire the bodies of two women and a child, who are said to have boarded the train at Youngstown, Ohio, bound for Olean, N. Y., were taken from the ruins, burned so badly as to make it impossible to identify them. It is believed that other bodies are still in the weckage.

Six more or less seriously injured passengers and members of the crew were taken to the hospital at Salamanca. The private cars attached to the passenger train did not leave the track.

New York, April 20.—A report was received early today at the offices of the Erie road that the vestibuled limited express, which left Chicago for New York at 10:30 a. m. yesterday, was wrecked about 3 o'clock this morning at Red House, N. Y., eight miles west of Salamanca and three passengers burned to death in flames which destroyed two coaches and three sleepers. The report says all the other passengers escaped unhurt, but that Fireman Bell and Express Messenger Gabriel were seriously injured. The three passengers burned were two women and a child who got on the train at Youngstown, O., and were going to Olean, N. Y. Their names were not given in the report. This train was due in New York about 3 o'clock this afternoon. At Red House it was to pass a freight train, but before the freight had got onto the siding and cleared the main track, the express appeared and the collision occurred. An investigation was ordered to locate the blame for the accident.

A new train was made up to bring the surviving passengers to New York and it is expected they will arrive late this afternoon. Traffic on the Erie between Salamanca and Jamestown was delayed several hours and trains were sent around by way of a branch line via Dayton, N. Y.

A second official report received at the Erie offices said that a brakeman of the freight train was killed. His name was not given.

Cleveland, April 20.—Advices received at the headquarters of the Erie road here show that in addition to the death of two women and a child in the wreck near Salamanca, the bodies of two men, burned to a crisp, have been taken from the day coach. Nothing was found by which they could be identified. A brakeman on the freight train, named Hotchkiss, was also killed.

Investigation shows that the two women and child killed were not from Youngstown but came in over the Pittsburg & Lake Erie road to the latter city, where they boarded the Erie train for Olean, N. Y. It is believed they came from Pittsburg, or some point near that city.

The fire department from Salamanca reached the scene of the wreck on a special train at 9 o'clock and soon had several streams playing on the burning cars. Five of the cars in the passenger train were completely destroyed. They were the sleepers Leon, Rubens, Cloverdale, a combination car and a ladies' day coach. The freight train was made up largely of cars loaded with hard coal, many of them being entirely consumed. The wreck occurred during a dense fog, the passenger train "Side swiping" the freight while the latter was pulling on a siding.

Salamanca, N. Y., April 20.—According to meager reports here from the wreck at Redhouse, on the Erie road, three women, said to be from Cleveland, were burned to death, and a brakeman on the freight train was killed. It is said seven or eight persons were killed. A relief train left here shortly after 9 o'clock.

WYOMING SHEEPMEN DECLARE WAR UPON THE CATTLEMEN

Serious Clash Is Imminent In the Sweetwater Country Unless the Opposing Factions Can Be Brought Together on Division of Ranges.

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 20.—The sheepmen of the Sweetwater country have declared open war upon the cattlemen, and a clash is imminent unless steps are at once taken to get the warring factions together on the proposition of a satisfactory division of ranges of the section.

Sheriff Charles Stough of Lander has gone to the range country to investigate, and if he finds the condition of affairs as alarming as has been reported, he will immediately make a formal request of the governor for at least one company of the state militia to patrol the ranges. Recently the sheepmen of the Sweetwater country have received copies of a circular notifying them that the sheep would not be permitted to graze within certain boundaries.

The Fremont County Wool Growers' association has adopted resolutions holding accountable to any member of the association whose personal and property rights shall be violated, the person and property of the "deadliners," and pledging full financial and moral support to the defense of the lives and property and members of the association. The resolutions characterize the drawing of "dead lines" as a violation of federal and state statutes, and call upon both federal and state officials, other wool growers' associations and all persons interested for assistance.

JILTED SUITOR SHOOTS GIRL'S MOTHER AND KILLS HIMSELF

Houghton Young Man Goes to Home of Mrs. Bridget Mahar at Hurontown, Mich., and Seriously Wounds Her In Hip, Then Kills Himself.

Houghton, Mich., April 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Determined to kill his sweetheart, Miss Eliza Mahar, who spurned him, and her family, John B. Molesworth, a baker, aged 34 years, went to their home in Hurontown, near Houghton, Saturday night. After firing three shots at Mrs. Bridget Mahar, the girl's mother, Molesworth turned the weapon on himself and sent two bullets into his brain, dying instantly. Mrs. Mahar, who is 60 years, was seriously though not fatally wounded in the left hip. Molesworth met and became infatuated with Miss Mahar, who is aged 24 and good looking, in Lee Bros.' bakery and confectionery store at Hancock, where both were employed. Afterwards the attention of Molesworth was spurned for being drunk last Christmas. Later he went to Chicago and sent letters threatening to kill the family unless Eliza married him. He blamed the mother and brother for interfering. He arrived in Houghton on an early Chicago train Saturday night and went to the girl's home, where he found Mrs. Mahar alone. He was friendly and inquired for Eliza and her brother, James, cordially shaking hands with Mrs. Michael Shea, a neighbor, who called. Having asked for and received a drink, Molesworth turned on Mrs. Mahar and said he intended to kill her for ruining his life. At the first shot Mrs. Mahar fell to the floor with a wound in her left hip and begging for mercy. Mrs. Shea went screaming for help. As Mrs. Mahar crawled on her hands and knees toward the kitchen door and went down into the cellar, Molesworth sent two shots after her which went wild. Thinking he had killed her, he shot himself twice behind the left ear. Absence from home saved the girl's life, for Molesworth showed he would have killed her. Molesworth's parents are said to live in Baltimore, Md., and a divorced wife in Chicago. Barring possible blood poisoning and the severe shock owing to her advanced age, Mrs. Mahar's condition is not critical.

NEW UNIONS VICTORIOUS

Defeat Plan of Conservatives to Head Off Strikes.

Chicago, April 20.—An attempt was made last night by the conservative leaders of the city to head off the epidemic of strikes that is threatening Chicago. The proposition was that the Federation of Labor should refuse strike aid to all unions less than a year old. The proposal was advocated by practically every experienced leader, who attended the meeting, held in Bricklayers' hall and they fought vallantly for its adoption. Against them was an array of men representing the so-called "mushroom" organizations who jeered and finally defeated the measure. Had the resolution been adopted, it would have prevented more than a dozen strikes that are now in contemplation and would have placed control of the situation in the hands of the old and tried unions. The far-reaching effect of the resolution was recognized by all and its defeat was hailed with cries of exuberance by members of the new unions.

AMERICAN WARSHIPS

Will Receive a Warm Welcome at Kiel.

Kiel, Prussia, April 20.—The warships of the United States European squadron will be welcomed here during the yatching week and the members of the executive committee of the Imperial Yacht club have already discussed informally how to entertain the American visitors. The crews will be asked to take part in the boat races to which one of the days will be given up. The German men of war boats are modeled exactly after the American specifications supplied by the navy department at Washington to Germany several years ago. Therefore the contest between the German and American sailors will be on equal terms.

THE GARDEN HOSE SAVED HIS LIFE

St. Paul, April 20.—A special to the Dispatch from La Crosse, Wis., says: H. Straitz, of this city was buried at the bottom of a well for four hours today and when dug out was smiling and unhurt. He was at the bottom repairing the pump when the curbing caved in and dirt surrounded him up to the shoulders. J. Wolf secured a garden hose which he let down to Straitz, who got it to his mouth just as the second cave-in occurred, covering him with six feet of sand over his head. On account of the peculiar condition of the soil, it took four hours to get him out with the aid of the fire department. The hose saved his life.

READING COAL MINERS LOCKED OUT

Shenandoah, Pa., April 20.—The Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company forced a lockout at every one of their collieries in this district today. The men were notified on Saturday that if they did not work the full nine hour day they could consider themselves discharged. When they reported for work today they were told there was no work for them. The idle collieries in this vicinity are Maple Hill, Kohinoor, Knickerbocker, Indian Ridge, Shenandoah City, West Shenandoah, Suffolk, Turkey Run and Plank Ridge of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company, and the Cambridge, an individual operation.

CRAMPS SAVED FROM A RECEIVER

New York, April 20.—Through the successful negotiation of $5,000,000 on terms which involve practical reorganization under new management, the William Cramp & Sons Ship and Engine Building company, of this city, has been saved from the imminent danger of having to pass into the hands of a receiver, says the Herald's representative in Philadelphia. With a plant which, according to a recent estimate, is conservatively valued at $12,500,000, the Cramp concern has, it is said, been in sore need for several years of an increase in its available working capital. It has outstanding notes to meet amounting to $2,000,000 or $3,000,000.

NOW FOR THE COAL ROAD MERGER

New York, April 20.—Acting upon the advice of Attorney General Knox, the interstate commerce commission will meet in this city tomorrow and begin an inquiry into the merger of the coal roads. The report is confirmed that President Baer of the Reading company, who is also of the Temple Iron company, has been served with a subpoena and will be called upon to tell of the operations by which the Temple Iron company controls the coal-carrying roads. It is understood that the subpoenas have been issued, and it is the purpose of the commission to learn definitely what violation there is now of the interstate commerce laws, and particularly what violation under the recent amendments passed by congress.

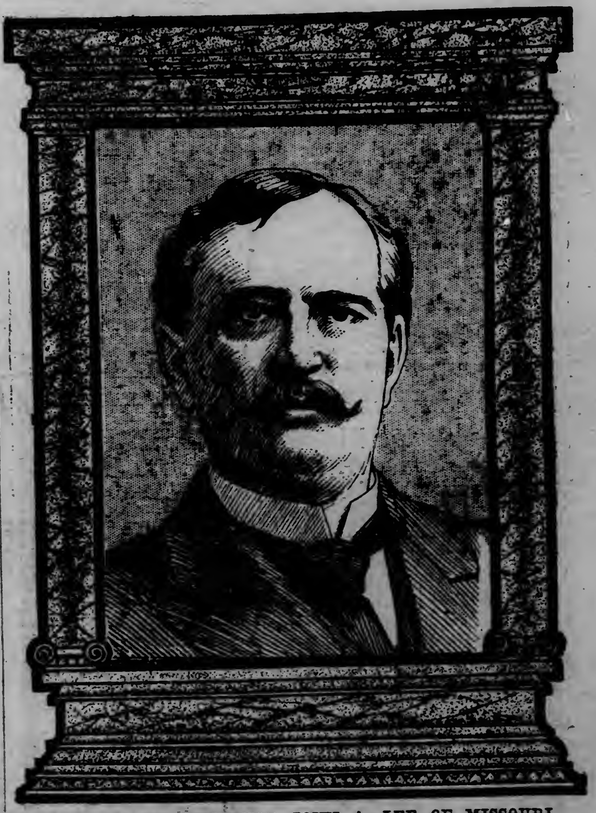
MANY SENATORS WILL BE INDICTED

St. Louis, April 20.—Attorney General Crow was present today during the session of the St. Louis grand jury and assisted Circuit Attorney Folk with the investigation of this end of the legislative boodle deal. The Cole county grand jury has taken a recess until April 27, and this leaves the attorney general free to come here for a time. It is hinted that at least ten state senators will be indicted for either perjury or bribery before the inquiry is concluded here and in Jefferson City. The most important witness summoned before the jury today is Cashier Webb of the bank at Steelville, who was ordered to bring the check books and records of the concern, to show the deposits made by Senator Farris (who has been indicted in Jefferson City) and the checks issued by him. Attorney General Crow stated today he had found no trace of Lieutenant Governor Lee, nor has he any idea of the whereabouts of Daniel J. Kelly, of New York. Requisition papers for Kelly have been sent to Detective Tracy and should reach him not later than tomorrow.

FOOTMAN MARRIED THE COUNTESS

London, April 20.—C. W. Brown, a footman, was remanded today at Portsmouth, on the charge of making a false entry at the registry office there in the middle of December last when under the name of "Prince Arthobald Stuart Demona" he married Countess Russell, who obtained a divorce from her husband, Earl Russell on the ground of the earl's bigamy in marrying Mrs. Somerville in the United States.

Countess Russell was the first wife of Earl Russell. On March 28, 1901, she obtained a decree of divorce against the earl on the ground of his bigamy in marrying Mrs. Mollie Somerville, at Reno, Nev., the earl having previously obtained a divorce from the countess in the United States on the ground of desertion. The earl subsequently was arrested in England on the charge of bigamy, was tried at the bar of the house of lords July 15, 1901, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to three months imprisonment as a first-class misdemeanant. The earl later again married Mrs. Somerville in October, 1901. Countess Russell's maiden name was Mabel Edith Scott. She is the youngest daughter of the late Sir Claude Edward Scott.



LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR JOHN A. LEE OF MISSOURI.

Lee is the Missouri official whose testimony before the grand jury in the Missouri legislative boodle cases is urgently desired by Attorney General Crow and Circuit Attorney Folk.

over to its stockholders. The decree permits the stockholders of the Securities company to exchange their stock for the stock of the railroad companies for which it was issued. If the supreme court affirms this decree, the stockholders of the Northern Securities company can exchange their stock for the stock of the railroad companies and can draw these dividends upon the latter. If the supreme court reverses the decree, the same parties can draw these dividends upon their Northern Securities stock. The retention of the dividends byb the railroad companies while the appeal is pending would not enhance or speed the enforcement of any legal right of the United States, while it might inflict unnecessary loss and injury upon the stockholders who are justly entitled to receive these dividends as soon as they are earned.

The order of the court will accordingly be that the operation of that portion of the decree which enjoins the railway companies from paying the dividends upon their stock, which is held by the Northern Securities company be suspended during the pendency of the appeal upon the giving of an approved bond in the sum of $50,000 by or on behalf of the defendants conditioned that they will prosecute their appeal with effect and will pay all damages that shall result to the United States by reason of the order.

It is ordered, that upon the giving of an approved bond to the United States by or on behalf of the defendants in the sum of fifty thousand dollars conditioned to prosecute their appeal with effect and to pay all damages which may result to the United States from their order, that portion of the injunction contained in the final decree herein which forbids the Northern Pacific railroad and the Great Northern railroad, their officers, directors, servants and agents from paying dividends to the Northern Securities company on account of stock in either of the railroad companies, which the Securities company claims to own and hold is suspended during the pendency of the appeal allowed herein this day. All other portions of the decree and of the injunction it contains remain in force and are unaffected by this order.

After the reading of the decision the appeal was perfected and the bond was filed this afternoon.

St. Paul, April 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—Beore United States Circuit Judge W. H. Sanborn today, appeared attorneys for the Northern Securities company and the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railroad companies to present their request that the recent decree against the Northern Securities company be so far suspended as to permit the payment by the railroads of the regular May dividends to the Securities company. They maintain that the money would ultimately reach the same individuals, whether paid to them direct or through the medium of the Northern Securities company. On all other points of the decree no modification was asked.

The attorneys presented this petition to Judge Sanborn on Friday, but United States District Attorney Haupt, under instructions from Attorney General Knox, objected and the case was set for argument today. A little over $4,000,000 will be released for he May dividends if the petition is granted, and nearly $14,000,000 would be paid out before a decision can be secured from the supreme court of the United States. Further instructions from Attorney General Knox, received this morning, were to the effect that he should continue to oppose the petition and not to agree to any suspension of the decree.

Judge George B. Young appeared for the Northern Securities company, M. D. Grover for the Great Northern railway, and C. W. Bunn for the Northern Pacific railway. District Attorney Haupt appeared for the government, and at once opened the argument against the petition presented on Friday by the attorneys for the securities and railway companies. Under the provisions of the act for expediting such matters, all the judges should sit, and he thought the action not one which could properly (even in part) be set aside. The government had sought to prevent the violation of law, and that was what the decree enjoined. The defendants were, he maintained, asking the court to nullify the decree, to permit a violation of law. The decree was in accordance with public policy and really enjoined a nuisance. He cited cases to sustain his contention that such a suspension was not permissible except in a case where the damages could be estimated dollars and cents, whereas this was purely a request to permit a violation of a statute. The fact of losses to stockholders was, he admitted, unfortunate, but since the corporation was violating law there was nothing for the court to do but to see to the enforcement of the law. The petition was in reality a request to suspend a statute and not to suspend a decree.

Judge Young, for the Northern Securities company, contended that the fact of an appeal to a higher court was of itself a form of suspension of the decree, and maintained that the requested payment of the dividends would not in any way affect the general terms of the decree. This suspension of a small part of the decree would not be straint of trade. The injunction, being a violation of the law to prevent a reobeyed, would be just as effective whether the dividend paying be permitted or not. He maintained that the dividend injunction was practically auxillary and did not come under the main injunction, which referred to the running of the railroads. No harm could result if the Northern Securities was permitted to distribute the dividends, instead of having the money accumulate in the banks of New York. He insisted that the money would reach the same people ultimately, and that to give it to them now would benefit them and harm no one else.

C. W. Bunn, general counsel for the Northern Pacific railway, maintained that the petition was not for a suspension of a decree against a violation of law, but that this was clearly a case in equity under the provisions of common law. He considered the request perfectly fair and just, but that the action in opposing it was unfair.

Mr. Haupt repeated his contentions as to the violation of the statutes, arguing against the points presented by Judge Young and Mr. Bunn.

YOUNG WOMAN IS DEMENTED

Mrs. Lizzie Biernat Violently Insane and Raves Constantly.

The weird fancies and fierce activity of Mrs. Lizzie Biernat, a pretty but demented woman, age 27, have been keeping Sheriff Baetnat's force of deputies at the county jail busy since yesterday afternoon.

Insanity has been coming over the young woman for the last two or three weeks. Yesterday she became violent and it tok four men to remove her from her home at 28 Twenty-eighth avenue west and Fourth street, in Walbank's addition, to the county jail. An attempt was made to place her in one of the hospitals, but because of her violence none would receive her.

She believes that her home is haunted, and that some one is trying to steal her clock. At times she prays incessantly and wants a clergyman with her. For three days she refused to touch a bite of food.

She seemed to quiet down considerably when she was comfortably housed in the county jail yesterday, and she ate some oranges and toast which Sheriff Butchart brought her. After that she declared that she liked the jail and the people in it better than her own home, because they treated her better.

All last night she kept up a disturbance. She wanted the faucet running, and it was impossible for the deputies to keep her from flooding her cell.

"I know you," she said tragically to one of the jail employes. Your are my husband."

"No I'm not either. I tell you I'm not your husband," but in spite of his remonstrance he had to beat a hasty retreat through the cell door to get away from the terrible assault she made on him.

"You stole my wedding clothes, my pretty white wedding dress," was the accusation which she made against another of the deputies in her broken English.

Yesterday she wanted to see a priest and her children, of whom there are three, ranging from 7 to 11½ years. Today her religious fervor had abated and she cursed the minister dreadfully.

By telling her that she should have her children with her today if she were quiet, it was possible for her custodians to keep her still until she forgot about it.

"Come, I'll tell you all about my trouble," she said confidentially to a deputy early this morning. "A black bottle with a cork in it!—a cork in it!—is at the bottom of it all——" And then, before she could tell anything more about the bottle with a cork in it, she went off into another rage. She refuses to drink out of a cup, but pours water into her hand and then drinks from that as best she can.

She will be examined by Probate Judge Middlecoff this afternoon, and as her case is so violent, will doubtless be sent to Fergus Falls.

NEW TRIAL IS DENIED

Hudson Court Not Moved By Mrs. Baker's Plea.

To pay a fine of $300 or be subject to six months hard labor in a county jail, was the sentence of Mrs. J. S. Baker, head promoter of the notorious Baker orphanage, formerly of this city.

At Hudson, Wis., recently, Mrs. Baker was convicted on the charge of having obtained money under false pretenses. On Saturday she applied for a new trial and that was denied.

It is claimed that Mrs. Baker and the fake "orphanage" made a killing of something like $20,000 during the past year and yet she was convicted and sentenced for having misrepresented facts in securing a donation of 25 cents from a Hudson attorney.

It is claimed that she had a great deal of money deposited in a bank at Alma, Wis., where she moved the "orphanage" after the police and publicity had forced her first to desert Duluth and then West Superior. It is not likely that she will serve the six months if the rumored condition of her financial standing is correct.

Mrs. Baker's method of securing money did not involve any great amount of inventive genius. She established what she called an "orphanage" in this city. This "orphanage" was very shy of orphans, but Mrs. Baker engaged solicitors with good imaginations and that made up for the deficiency. The people throughout Minnesota were informed of the conditions of these imaginary "orphans" in Duluth and contributed liberaly.

There were several children kept in the institution, but their mothers and relatives usually paid for their keeping and the jury at Hudson concluded that Mrs. Baker was really keeping a juvenile boarding house with but three or four boarders instead of conducting a charitable institution.

GERMANY WILL RETALIATE

If the Canadian Tariff Proposals Become Law.

New York, April 20.—It is presumed in Berlin, says a London dispatch to the Tribune, that if the Canadian tariff proposals become law the German government will at once obtain authority from the reichstag to apply a special prohibitory tariff on all imports from Canada. The agrarian organs of the German press declare that the British government is the real author of Canada's behavior toward Germany, and they advise retallatory measures against Great Britain.

THE FERRY SERVICE

One of Important Matters That Comes Before Council.

Strong Efforts to Have a Landing at Fifth Avenue.

The letting of the annual Park Point ferry service contract is one of the most important questions that the council will deal with tonight.

The alderman will be confronted with a formidable array of signatures asking that the ferryboat make stops at the Fifth avenue west dock during certain hours in the morning and evening.

This petition is likely to cause a recurrence of the trouble of other days. The aldermen generally seem perfectly willing that the Fifth avenue stop should be made if it will be of any great convenience to the patrons of the service, but they are legally advised that the city has no right to operate a ferry except between Park Point and Lake avenue.

The city is responsible for the isolation of people living across the ship canal, because that canal was created by the citizens, and it has been held by the council's legal advisers in the past that the city is morally bound to give all trans-canal citizens a free transportation service.

The city did not create the strip of water separating Fifth avenue and Park Point, and is therefore not permitted to furnish a free service, according to those learned in law.

The matter promises to be urged more strongly than ever this year, however, and it would not be surprising if the stops at Fifth avenue would be included in the contract, providing it does not cost the city any more than the service across the canal direct.

GAS HEATING OF HOUSES

Supt. Case Urges the Public to Await Developments.

To the Editor of The Herald:

I am led to believe by communications received from some of our citizens, that the interview with me, as published in your paper of Friday last, is somewhat misleading.

I would say to those, who are already contemplating connecting up and equipping their furnaces for the use of gas, to wait. They have plenty of time to ascertain definitely if, under the rate the company has agreed should be first established for heating, viz: 75 cents, their premises can be heated as economically as with coal. I tried to impress upon your reporter that I knew absolutely nothing of the heating qualities of the gas to be supplied except that which I had received from the representatives of the company, and this was that it had about 25 per cent more heat units than water gas.

The experiment tried by one of our citizens with our present gas corroborated experiments made by me in Detroit with natural gas in generating steam at the pumping works in that city. This citizen paid $30 for the gas used in heating his house for one month, with gas at $1 and which he said he could have done with two tons of coal.

I do not think, from the impression received from the representations of the company, that they intend at first at least, to supply gas at a rate that will be sufficiently low in price to enable householders to heat their premises with it continuously through the winter months, but that their first efforts will be, that by means of appliances attached to heating plants, to enable us to heat our homes economically during early fall, late springs or temporarily in summer as our comfort may require.

The number of heat units in water gas is variously estimated at from 650 to 700 in one cubic foot, which as is now being supplied the city, and the number of heat units in natural gas is 1000. I am informed that gas generated by this new process has heat units very closely half way between the two.

Let us await the developments of the future. In the meantime we can, by increasing the consumption of gas for lighting and cooking, furnish the only means by which the price for said gas can be reduced.

The city is going to pay the company for gas for these two purposes, practically what it would cost to make it. This expense during the last four years has slightly increased and, it is only because of the fact, that in the distribution of gas, the rate of cost per 1000 feet for such distribution, and for interest charges on the plant, grows less and less as the consumption increases.

The reduction of the price of gas from $1.90 to $1 in four years has been produced entirely by the increase in the consumption. Any future reduction in the price of gas for these purposes will depend upon this cause and no other.

"Will you help make it 90 cents?"

ALL MINES START

Everything Going at Full Blast on the Ranges.

Steel Shot Drill Test Arranged For—Other Mining Matters.

Orders were issued by the mining companies yesterday afternoon that all the mines of the Steel corporation, on both ranges, be started at full blast this morning.

The two range roads sent out instructions for the full force of men to report for duty, and the ore-carrying season was practically opened today.

"Every mine of the Steel corporation on the Vermilion and the Mesaba ranges are working in full blast today, and the ore will be taken out as fast as it can be handled, beginning today," said one of the official in charge at the Steel corporation offices this morning.

"Up to this time we have been working two mines at Ely and six on the Mesaba range, but the whole list of mines have been ordered to work today and the range will be hustling from now until the close of navigation.

"The season has been delayed noticeably and the various hampering circumstances which have militated against an early season of navigation, has been disappointing to the steel interests.

"It was expected that by the first week in April the boats would be running, but the weather and the labor troubles caused a setback that was practically three weeks. There have been but nineteen boats leave the Missabe docks and fifteen or sixteen leave the Two Harbors docks.

"There should have been six or eight boats a day from each dock ever since the ice was cleared out of Mud lake, or before. The season so far is about 250,000 tons of ore lower than was expected of shipments by this time. It is reasonable to believe that if it hadn't been for the obstructions that arose there would have been between eighty and ninety boats out by this time."

President W. J. Olcott, of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, is expected home to morrow from New York, where he was in attendance at the meeting of the heads of sub-companies in the Steel corporation. President F. E. House, of the Iron Range, is expected back in a day or two also.

President T. F. Cole, of the Minnesota Iron company, is in Florida and will remain on his vacation for about three weeks.

TO TEST NEW DRILL.

Arrangements For Trying It on Three Properties.

The three steel rock and ore drills which will be put in for work in the Duluth territory on trial will arrive here in about two weeks.

The steel shot, instead of diamond drills, will be tested by making explorations for the steel corporation, the Boulder Mountain Iron company and Cuyler Adams.

All the drills will go into hard ore, as the principal skepticism is in regard to what will happen to the steel shot when it hits some of the slack rock and hard ore that is found in the Vermilion range.

The three machines, Mr. Hammond, the agent of the company here, says, will be placed on the ground and the hole will be sunk as far as is desired, the object of the company being to completely explore a particularly difficult piece of property to show that the steel shot is as good as the diamond carbons, which are costly and can do no more. It is averred, than the steel shot, excepting in isolated cases of extreme hard substances.

The drill company will not announce where the machines are to be taken, as there may be some desire on the part of the companies taking them to keep the explorations a secret, as the Section 30 company does.

VISITING GEOLOGISTS.

Party of Eminent Men to Visit Ranges.

A party of geologists from Wisconsin, Canada and Illinois arrived in Duluth this noon, accompanying a party of geological students, and left for a trip over the range late this afternoon.

The party is in charge of C. K. Leith, an assistant under Professor Van Hise of the University of Wisconsin, in the instruction of geology.

Mr. Leith said this noon that the company would not go over the Highland range, but would confine its observations to the Vermilion and Mesaba ranges.

The members of the visiting company have in their number some eminent geologists, who are bent on personal investigation into the formations and geology of the Lake Superior iron districts. Mr. Leith has worked in that part of the country on the federal government's geological survey, and another member of the party, J. Morgan Clements, was also employed on that work.

A. P. Low and A. E. Barlow, two of the party, are members of the Canadian geological survey. U. S. Grant, of the Northwestern University of Evanston, Ill., has also been employed on geological surveys in this country, and helped to get up the charts that the state of Minnesota used, and participated in the research for that purpose.

Besides these is W. H. Hobbs, of the geological department of the University of Wisconsin. Mr. Clements being from the same department; Samuel Weidman, of the Wisconsin geological survey, and a Mr. Colwell, a mining man from Montreal.

The students of the graduating class in geology of the Wisconsin university who are on the trip are: Hotchkiss, A. F. Smith, W. N. Smith, W. D. Smith, Hancock, Warner, Newman, Ellis and Buehler.

A number of mining engineers from Duluth will accompany the geologists on the trip.

"We will leave this afternoon for Ely and Tower," said Mr. Leith, "and from there will go over the Mesaba range and over to the west end of the ranges and return by way of the Great Northern road. Our observations will be confined to the surface formations, mostly, though in some cases visits will be made to the underground mines. We can't waste much time on the visit.

"We will return to Duluth Thursday and then the party will proceed to the copper and iron districts of Michigan. The whole trip will occupy about ten days, we expect."

WELL KNOWN HERE.

Fred. S. Osgood, Drill Man, Dies In California.

Word was received at the offices of the Rand Drill company this morning of the death of the company's general sales agent, Fred S. Osgood, at San Francisco on April 16.

T. A. Hammond, the representative of the company in Duluth, received a brief note to that effect this morning, containing no details nor any announcement as to what would be done regarding the funeral.

Mr. Osgood is probably the most widely known of the drill or carbon men in the Lake Superior district. For twenty-five years he has been working through this country and in Michigan, and was on terms of personal intimacy with nearly all the mining men who amount to anything in this section of the country.

The announcement of his death at the offices of the steel corporation's mining companies this morning caused expressions of sincere sorrow from that quarter.

Mr. Osgood was a particular friend of Capt. Harry Roberts, of this city, but he was popular and well liked by all the old-time miners and explorers.

He was a Michigan man and started into the drilling business a quarter of a century ago, when the Michigan mines were beginning to appear in large numbers. He remained with the company from that day until his death, and besides being a good business man, he was such a whole-souled, jovial companion that he became the personal friend of nearly all the mining men he had business with.

He acted as the general sales agent for the company, and his territory was from New York city to the Pacific coast, though the greater part of his time was spent in this part of the country. He spent a great deal of time in Duluth, especially in the past three or four years.

Last fall Mr. Hammond was with him in Butte, and Mr. Osgood was taken ill with heart trouble. He was removed to Salt Lake City, and later in the winter he was taken to the Pacific coast in an attempt to regain his health.

But it was all in vain. He died at San Francisco.

INJUNCTION DENIED

In Case of Kansas Against Insurance Companies.

Topeka, April 20.—An important decision was rendered by the district court here today, denying an injunction against fifty-six insurance companies doing business in Kansas, on the ground that they were violating the anti-trust act. Recently the state brought action under the anti-trust law against these companies charging that they had combined and were parties to a trust to control the cost or rates of insurance.

The Opening Sale of Rich and Rare Oriental Rugs Happens Tomorrow—

Lovers of the Beautiful and Fine in Floor Coverings will appreciate what this announcement means—What it has meant in the Past—but we've gathered better than ever for this Spring—Richer and Finer in beauty and texture—and less to pay wherever possible. There is a decided tendency towards higher prices on Oriental Rugs especially in the higher grades—notwithstanding our purchases are to be sold at smaller comparative prices than heretofore—the greatest part of our collection consists of Persian Rugs, which as everyone knows, are like Diamonds, and have an established market value, which fluctuates but slightly. It sometimes happens, however, that in the exigencies of business, dealers are compelled to realize an these wares at prices considerably below their market value, (for this reason we often clean out our remaining stocks of Rugs at very little prices to enable us to go into the market and make heavy purchases, if at advantageous prices.)

Such an opportunity was presented to us recently in New York, when we were able to acquire—besides a very fine collection of medium sizes—averaging from 3 feet by 6 feet up to some very odd and beautiful Rugs in sizes running 4x8, 5x10, 6x12 and 7x15—quite unusual in sizes, and splendid for the center of living rooms, libraries, large reception halls, dens, or wherever one would wish to use some of the smaller Rugs in connection with the large—these fine Persian Rugs will be put on sale tomorrow—we shall not try to name any prices here for that only confuses—but invite lovers of the Beautiful in Rich and Rare Rugs to step in and see them.

We have in addition to the regular sizes, a very fine collection of Hall Runners—Small Mats for Landings, and some very beautiful room Rugs in Afghans, Cashmeres, Tebriz and Sarooks, that run in price from $85 to $250—and are considered exceptionally good values.

No matter what your taste may be, whether you want a Fine Silk Rug or Mat. Rugs for Decoration or hard use—Drapes such as Kis Kilems, Bagdad Curtains—Saddle Bags, or anything of an Oriental Nature—you can fine it here.

We invite you to our Third Floor tomorrow—the invitation is a broad one—You may come and just look or buy as pleases you.

Everybody who has bought Rugs here in the past knows full well how choice and rich our Rugs have been—and as everything else throughout the store—we have been moving onward and upward—and the Oriental Rug section is but one of the examples of better conditions. We can say truthfully that no other such stock of rich Oriental Rugs can be found anywhere in this part of the country. We have made it a special study and have made an effort to gather only choice pieces—not only that—but we have been very careful that prices are tipped to a moderate point. The tendency has been for higher prices on all Oriental floor coverings, but in our present stock we can truthfully say that prices are more reasonable than they have been in some time past. This is possibly due to some extraordinary buying advantages which we have had. One of the particular features of our stock this season is the vast assortment of large size Persians, sizes averaging from 5 feet wide to 10 feet long, to about 7 feet wide by 12 and 15 feet long—one particularly fine antique Persian running even as large as 7 feet 6 inches wide by 19 feet long. We open this annual sale tomorrow morning with wider true art interests for every rug lover, than ever before—and with merchandising advantages that no Rug connoisseur can afford to overlook—in so much as art pervades it to such an extent as almost to the commercial side, and yet the commercial side is so well handled as to subordinate the art. We have never billed it so well for you—the gathering is a unique one—purchased in the weeks past for this event. Among the lot will be found many very rich and unique Persians, Mosouls, Royal Bokaras, Kehiva Kokaras, Silky Shirvans, beautiful Cashmeres, unique Kazaks, dark and rich Beloochistmans, fine Irans, silky Kermanshaws, and various other grades that are so well known to rug lovers. We also have some especially fine specimens in room size Oriental Rugs in Afghans, Cashmeres, Persians and Serooks.

HEAVY SNOW IN GERMANY

Great Damage Has Been Done In Many Localities.

Berlin, April 20.—The thirty-six hours' snow storm over middle Europe ceased today at daylight. The snow is two inches deep in Berlin, increasing to a yard deep in the Hartz highlands. Snow lies deep in East Prussia and Poland, where the wires are down and trains are delayed. The temperature in most parts of Germany is barely at freezing point, so that the damage to the fruit crops may not be so serious as at first supposed. The snow is melting rapidly and the streams are already flooding. The government has issued notices that telegraphic communication with Russia is interrupted, and that the lines communicating with Pomerania, Silesia and eastward of Berlin are also down.

The snow lies from eighteen inches to three feet deep on the Polish plains. At noon no trains had arrived at Posen for twelve hours. Trains are snowed in on the lines all over Silesia and the province of Posen. Telegrams from many cities read alike. Street cars are immovable. Telephone and telegraph wires are down and the trains are either not venturing to leave the terminals, are stalled in the country, or are arriving at their destinations after great difficulty and hours late, with their passengers wretched with the cold and hunger. Minor accidents have been numerous. The turret over the Paradise door of the Magdeburg cathedral was blown down.

Forty large trees in the Thirgarten here were uprooted.

Part of the roof of the opera house was blown off and workmen, at the risk of their lives, sought to repair it so as to prevent damage to the richly decorated interior, but they were unable to continue at work. The snow, however, did little damage to the interior. Falling chimneys and tiles made the Berlin thoroughfares perilous last night. Twenty-one injured persons were taken to the hospitals. Count Von Ballestrom, president of the reichstag, who is on his way to attend the opening of parliament, is snowed in between here and Eilesia.

Some shipping disasters are reported from the Baltic and the North sea. The German schooner Sport was stranded near Dantzig and the Danish cutter Irene was wrecked off Sinemunde.

The crews of both vessels were saved.

BRICKLAYERS RETURN.

Sharon, Pa., April 20.—The bricklayers at the United Coke & Gas Works of the United States Steel corporation, who struck April 1, returned to work today. The company granted their demand for an eight hour day at 55 cents and hour.

AT PLEASANTON.

Large Number of Horses Are Being Trained.

Pleasanton, Cal., April 20.—A large number of harness horses, representing some of the best known stables in America, are being trained on the Pleasanton track. Many of them are being prepared either for the Fasig-Tipton sale at Cleveland next month, or to race through the grand circuit the coming season. Within a few days the following owners will ship a choice lot of speedy trotters and pacers to Cleveland:

Santa Rosa Stock farm, James Thompson, Mills & Sanders, George A. Davis, C. L. Griffith and the Meek estate. During May the stables of Monroe Salisbury, W. A. Clark, Jr., Dr. Boucher and John Galligo will leave for the Eastern circuit.

THREATEN TO STRIKE.

St. Louis Transit Company May Be Tied Up.

St. Louis, April 20.—It is stated that unless the St. Louis Transit company grants the demands of the Amalgamated Association of Street Railway Employes, which are already formulated for submission immediately after the World's fair dedicatory exercises, a strike will be ordered on the system.

It has been reported that a strike would be ordered April 30 unless the demands were granted, but A. W. Morrison, organizer of the Amalgamated union, said that nothing would be done until after the dedicatory ceremonies. The transit company controls all the street car lines in St. Louis except those of the urban system.

Dealers are especially invited to visit our establishment and inspect as complete a stock of high-grade mats as is shown in the Northwest.

CLUB FIGHT GETS HOTTER

Corbin's Friends In Metropolitan Club Start a Petition.

Washington, April 20.—The anti-Corbin fight has broken out in the exclusive Metropolitan club with increased fierceness. The cause for the new outbreak is the circulation by friends of the adjutant general of a petition addressed to the board of governors of the club asking that favorable action be taken upon the application of the general's admission to membership. The petition is being circulated by the high army officials who proposed Gen. Corbin for membership, and they are trying to secure the signatures of a majority of the members. The unusual procedure has caused a storm of protest from his enemies in the club, and the lines are drawn tighter than ever before. Anti-Corbin members of the club declare that the movement to have the army and navy officers resign in a body was started by a no less influential person than Elihu Root, secretary of war, and they insist that the secretary has issued the ultimatum to his subordinates that if Corbin is not received in the club they must leave it. It is charged that seven of the fifteen members of the board of governors are unalterably opposed to admitting Corbin, and that the petition will have no effect, no matter how many are the signatures.

Gen. Corbin's friends declare that the petition was suggested by men who opposed his admission under a misconception, and who are now in favor of admitting him. They deny that Secretary Root has concerned himself in the matter, and allege that they are acting entirely upon their own initiative. They persist in their threat that if Gen. Corbin is not admitted they will leave the club. In the meantime the women of the social set with whom Gen. Corbin is a great favorite are continuing their electioneering in his behalf.

"The fight," said an anti-Corbin member of the club, "is getting hotter. Every influence of the army, navy, diplomatic set and the general government is being exerted in Corbin's behalf, but it will do no good. We think the general's friends are acting unfairly. I do nor think that he would countenance their efforts for a minute if he understood how intense is the feeling. There has never been such a bitter fight in the history of any American club."

ARRESTED FOR SCORCHING.

Detroit, April 20.—A son of Mayor Tom L. Johnson of Cleveland was arrested here today for scorching on Woodward avenue in the automobile in which his father made his campaign tours. It is charged that the automobile was running 28 miles an hour.

NEGRO MURDERER

In Georgia Visited By Prominent White Women.

Americus, Ga., April 20.—Munroe Adams, a negro, who will be hanged here next Wednesday for the murder of his wife and daughter, has been the recipient of many attentions from prominent white women of this place. During the afternoon half a dozen white ladies visited the jail and asked to see Adams. Their request was granted, and they furnished him delicacies in the way of food, commiserated his sentence and also prayed with him.

The interest of the white women in Adams grows out of the circumstances surrounding his crime. Adams was a worthy and well-to-do negro, with a good-looking quardoon wife and daughter. The wife was faithless, and it is said was leading the daughter with evil courses. Adams became crazed by sorrow, and killed his wife and daughter, saying he would rather be hanged for their murder than to allow them to continue to disgrace him by their immoral habits.

Blowing One's Own Horn.....

It's natural for every store to praise its own goods, so that is accepted as a matter of course, but it takes something more than the say so of a firm to satisfy the demands of good dressers!

They all claim to have "the best clothes," "equal to any sold in the city," and at almost half the price! etc., etc., no matter how cheaply gotten up they may be; but much of this talk only excites the derision of those who know what good clothes are!

We can't say any more for our Tailored Suits, Costumes, Demi Costumes, Coats, Wraps, and the other beautiful ready-to-wear garments than other stores say for garments "that don't hold a candle to them," but the facts back us up in our claims and that makes all the difference!

Women who have never bought "ready-to-wear" before are amazed at the exquisite fit of the Tailored Suits, Costumes, Dresses, Coats, Jackets and wraps of every sort!

Others who have been buying ready-made, but were never very well satisfied, are delighted that they came to us!

Former customers if tempted to buy elsewhere come quickly back to us, resolved "no more to roam."

We speak the simple truth when we say that our clothes are the best to be had, and that one can get more for their money here than in any other place we know of!

Matters not — if it is a tailored suit at $15—which by the way are exceptionally good values—or a high class tailored suit, or costume, or theater wrap at a hundred and fifty—the style and value will be there.

Comparison has convinced hundreds of critical women of that—it will convince you!

We sell the best, but at the price of the cheaper kinds.

MILLERS TO FIGHT

Flour Men May Appeal to Interstate Commerce Commission.

Want a Permanent Adjustment—Transportation Man's Comment.

Minneapolis millers are considering an application to the interstate commerce commission for a readjustment of rates between Duluth and New York city on flour and wheat, lake and rail.

The Minneapolis millers and the Duluth millers also have closed down their mills because they say they cannot operate in competition with the Buffalo and Eastern millers, who receive wheat from the head of the lakes at a cost of 9 cents for the amount necessary to make a barrel of flour, while it costs the Western miller to ship a barrel of flour manufactured 26 cents.

This situation, it is claimed, permits the Buffalo millers to get the wheat and manufacture the flour at a rate so much less than it can be manufactured in the West and shipped on the docks at Buffalo or in New York, that the Western millers cannot compete with the Eastern men.

The question has been up before in years gone by, and the results have been a permanent understanding. The rates have been patched up and fixed over for the season, but this time the millers say they will have to be given something permanent or it does not go.

"The millers do not take into consideration several things," said a representative of one of the large lake transportation lines this morning, the boats of which are engaged in both grain and flour traffic. "For instance, the loading of 3000 tons of flour will cost $570 and about fifteen hours' time, while the cost of loading that much grain is but $60 and can be done in three hours.

"The unloading is at about the same ratio, or probably a little more costly for unloading the grain than it was to load it. But there are losses and damage that are costly to the transportation companies flour cargoes that do not obtain so much with the grain, and the percentage of that cannot be figured. The flour cargoes are package freight and the grain bulk.

"The millers do not take into consideration the conditions governing these shipments. It's funny that they can pay 25 cents an dover for all rail shipments during the winter, but as soon as navigation opens and they get a figure 5 cents cheaper or more, they find out that they can't operate their mills, and shut down. It looks as if it were a move to cause the prices to jump a little."

Nothing of importance developed at the meeting in Minneapolis Saturday at which representatives of the Omaha, Milwaukee, Burlington and Great Western roads met the millers. It is now thought that the next important development will come at the conference of the Western and Eastern trunk line managers in Chicago tomorrow. At this meeting the Northwestern Miller will be represented and the matter will be gone over directly with the men who have the power to bring relief.

Meanwhile in the Minneapolis field opportunity awaits the man. The first railroad man of prominence, representing a great system who enters the field empowered to act, will find such opportunity to do business as has rarely been presented. What concessions such a man would have to offer no miller will say, but it is admitted that the time is ripe for an aggressive convass and that no such opportunity to secure control of this immense shipping business has ever before been known. The millers are in the mood to throw their entire tonnage to any line showing disposition to favor them, and having facilities to care for the traffic.

This attitude on the part of the millers and their open expression of it gave rise to a rumor on 'change Saturday to the effect that J. J. Hill will come to the rescue. The millers believe he has the power to relieve the situation, and they hope that some proposition may be received from him. With the Burlington and the Erie an immense distributive territory could be covered, and the millers would give the bulk of the business to the Burlington on any agreement as to rates that would guarantee them protection at all times.

Failing to secure the desired rate adjustment from the railroads or lake carriers, the Minneapolis millers claim they can combine to purchase control of some railroad line east. Such a course, as a last resort, is favored by Ernest F. Smith, chairman of the Commercial club committee on transportation, of Minneapolis.

MIND WEAKENING.

Theodore Wilson Gives Evidence of Insanity.

Theodore Wilson, who robbed a chum of $25 in the Scandia lodging house some time ago and was sentenced to ten years at Stillwater, was taken to the state prison last night by Deputy Sheriff Bates.

Wilson, who also went under the name of Nelson, is believed to be on the verge of insanity over his long sentence. He talked volubly to the deputy all the way to Stillwater and gave no trouble.

Wilson has a peculiar red beard which makes him look like a comic opera comedian in full make up. He has an absurd habit of bending over and rubbing his chin on his knee when he is excited and the excitement which has attended his trial and sentence has been so great that he has nearly worn the whiskers off his chin.

The prison career of the man with the frayed red whiskers will be watched with interest by the local authorities.

Mrs. Fletcher to Leave.

Mrs. C. H. Fletcher has sold her property, which included three houses and lots on West Second street and Fourth avenue, in this city, to A. T. Burris, and will in the fall move to Minneapolis, where she will make her future home. She has let a contract for the building of a handsome residence in that city which will be completed and ready for occupancy at that time. Mrs. Fletcher has been a resident of Duluth for thirty years and has seen the city grow from a small hamlet to a prosperous meropolis. She has made many warm friends and acquaintances during her long residence and it is a source of regret to them to learn that she has decided to live in any other city.

EXTRA! EXTRA!

50 CENT WASH SILKS AT 25 CENTS!

Superior's Big Store Makes a Scoop in Silks

A GIGANTIC purchase of 5800 yards superbly stylish and sterlingly good silks at 50 cents on the dollar. THEY GO ON SALE TUESDAY. These silks are all new and choice—they come to us almost straight from Japan. It is the cancelled order of a St. Louis house which refused to accept April delivery on silks ordered for February.

The commission man had them left on his hands, he was in a hurry to leave for Yokohama, and asked us to bid on the lot. Only half serious, we made a ridiculously low offer, and much to our surprise we got the goods.

The silks are all spic, span new; they haven't been in America more than three weeks, and we'd never have gotten them at any such price had not the agent been forced to make an immediate sale.

It was a trade opportunity such we never before have known, and in turn we offer one that will be eagerly grasped by the best-posted silk buyers in the Northwest.

This sale is for cash only—we paid spot cash—and so must you.

Do not confound these silks with the trashily cheap, cottony stuffs sometimes masqueraded as wash silks, these are the real thing—the genuine KaiKai silks—made of silk-worm silk—woven on hand looms and as full of strength and wear as can be.

Silks of this quality are never regularly sold for less than 45c to 50c the yard, a few weeks ago we picked up several thousand yards of these from a New York importer who needed money, we got a bargain in them and sold them out in a hurry at the then unheard of price of 35c the yard.

At that time, we thought we were giving you the crowning silk bargain of the year, we knew it was an unparalleled snap and so did the women of Superior and Duluth, who eagerly bought it up.

And now we again strike an amazing bargain, it's the biggest and best that ever happened anywhere, and though the quantity (5800 yards) is something enormous, the price is "nifty" and will cause a buying furore, and those who wait will be disappointed.

Come early tomorrow—later in the day there will be a rush and a crush—people will revel in silks. Many extra salespeople will wait on you as promptly as possible.

And why not—think of the price—25c the yard. No credit. Spot cash or no sale.

Our Prices on Suits, Costumes, Skirts, Waists and Wraps are Not as High as You Have Been Trained to Pay in Duluth.

And though our prices are lower—our styles are newer and brighter—our qualities are as good or BETTER than Duluth stores can show you.

We Will Refund Car Fare If You Are Not Satisfied.

That is the sum total of our grounds for asking Duluth trade—It's all true—We're ready to prove it six days in every week.

In order to get you to see what we have to show—we make this proposition:

Make up a little party of your style-loving friends (or come alone, if you prefer) and enjoy a smooth, swift ride on the Interstate cars through interesting scenes of local industry—Get off at the Big Store—Visit its many up-to-date departments and take plenty of time over in our garment section—Here you'll see the very latest—the newest styles of the season.

Ask for "corset coats"—for white broadcloth coats—for sunburst skirts of any of the dozens of superb novelty costume styles now in vogue in the East—and the salespeople will show them to you.

No other house at the head of the lakes can do it. In their eagerness to be first to show the new styles—Duluth stores all bought too early—They show you the style-tendencies—We show you the fully developed styles.

There are not many of a kind here—of many styles, there is but one—of others two or three—so that here you get not only the brightest styles—but you get an exclusive style—One not to be duplicated here or elsewhere.

And what is true of our women's garments is equally true in Misses'—Bring over the girls and see for yourself.

And if you want to select from four times as many dainty shirt waists at any Duluth store can show—we're ready to sell them to you at a price you're glad to pay.

Come over—It is to your interest to get posted on our right styles and right prices.

AT WEST DULUTH

Today marks the opening of the mill season in West Duluth. The Merrill & Ring mill and the Alger-Smith mill, which have been closed since last November, opened for the summer this morning, and the St. Louis mill, which has been closed for a week for repairs, also reopened for the summer season.

The Merrill & Ring mill opened with one shift of about 200 men. The company has about 6,000,000 feet of logs at the mill ready for sawing. It has not yet been decided when the second shift of men will be put on.

The Alger-Smith mill is running with two shifts. Each shift is composed of from 200 to 250 men, the payroll thus consisting of about 500 men.

The Lesure mill did not commence operations this morning. The ice about the pond of the mill is still of considerable thickness and it will probably be some time before the mill commences sawing.

The St. Louis mill is again running after the annual spring shut-down for repairs. The two shifts employ about 250 men.

There are thus nearly 1000 more men employed in the industries of West Duluth today than there were Saturday. The effect is already being felt by the merchants of the town in an increased trade.

DIES OF CONSUMPTION.

After a struggle of nearly a year, during which time he visited the South and West in search of health, Adelbert L. Scott, of 126 South Sixty-sixth avenue, succumbed to an attack of consumption at a late hour last evening. Mr. Scott was but 24 years of age and very well and favorably known in West Duluth. Before his illness he was a telegraph operator in the employ of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway.

During the course of his illness he visited Colorado Springs and some Southern points in the hope of getting rid of the dread disease. No improvement was noticeable in his condition, and he recently returned home. He died at the home of his parents. He leaves several brothers and sisters.

MEET WITH DEFEAT.

West Duluths Downed By Big Duluth.

The West Duluth baseball team opened the season yesterday afternoon before a record-breaking crowd at the diamond at the head of Fifty-second avenue and went down to defeat at the hands of the Big Duluth nine, after a game struggle. The men showed lack of practice in their fielding, and lost the game through errors at critical moments. They have a likely bunch of players, however, and will be heard from later in the season. The final score was 13 to 7.

Young and Larson pitched for the home team, Young taking the first five innings. Lovell, Bruen and Bennett pitched for the visitors.

At the end of the fifth innings the score was tied and the excitement was intense. The sixth inning proved to be a Waterloo for the home players. The West Duluth men took an ascension, and when they reached earth again there were three unearned runs chalked up to the credit of the visitors. Although they made a strong rally in the ninth the West Duluth boys were unable to overcome the long lead and the game closed with the Big Duluth nine six runs to the good.

The score by innings is as follows:

Big Duluths	0	1	0	1	3	3	1	0	4	—13
West Duluth	3	0	0	0	2	0	0	0	2	— 7

The West Duluth team has a game scheduled with Cloquet for Sunday, May 3. Efforts are being made to secure funds to enclose a ball park on the grounds which they are now using.

A REFRESHING SLEEP.

Louis Johnson Puts In a Week at It.

After a sleep lasting four days, Louis Johnson will be discharged from the Red Cross hospital today an awakened man.

Johnson's case is a peculiar one and is proving of much interest to local physicians. He was brought to the hospital in an ambulance from the Duluth, Missabe & Northern train. He had boarded the train at Hibbing, and during the trip to Duluth had fallen into a sleep from which the conductor could not awaken him.

At the hospital every means was tried to bring him from his unconscious state but they failed. For seven days he slept. His pulse and respiration were normal and liquid food was swallowed automatically. Finally he was aroused and then for a short time he was subject to partial relapses.

He remembers nothing of his condition at the time of falling asleep, and can tell but little of his movemens during that time. Concerning his trip to Duluth, and the events succeeding that, his mind is a blank, according to his own statement, although certain of his knows more than he wishes to disattendants are prone to believe that he close.

Johnson is a man of about 35 years of age, and from his general appearance a working man.

ASK FOR A LOOP.

Residents North of Grand Avenue to Petition Council.

The citizens living to the north of Grand avenue on the hillside are not content with the plans of the street railway in extending the Grand avenue line. They claim that they will be very little nearer the cars than they were before the extension, and that the new line will be of no benefit to them. A petition is being circulated among the property holders in that vicinity asking that a loop line running up Fifty-ninth avenue to Norton street, along Norton to Fifty-fifth and down to Grand, be constructed for the convenience of the hillside residents. This petition will be presented to the council and it is expected that the matter will be taken up by Alderman Sang either at the meeting of the council this evening or at the next regular meeting.

There has long been complaint from the residents of this locality concerning the car service, and it was feared that if the Grand avenue line was built without this loop it would be some time before they could hope for improvements.

NEW HERALD OFFICE.

Considerable complaint has been made by some of the citizens of West Duluth about the disturbance caused by the newsboys in the evening in the vicinity of the corner of Central avenue and Ramsey street. In order to do away with any cause for complaint The Herald has constructed a small office at the corner of Fifty-fourth avenue and Ramsey street, from which the papers will be distributed in the future.

The increasing number of boys during the past few months has caused the disturbance to become more noticeable, and it is hoped that the nuisance will be abated by the removal of the headquarters of the boys one block east of the business center of the town.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

Mrs. C. N. Harris, of Aberdeen, N. D., has returned to her home after a short visit with her son-in-law, J. M. Lauermann.

A post-mortem examination on the body of J. J. Hardy, who died at Procktorknott Saturday afternoon, showed that death resulted from Bright's disease. The body will be shipped to Ashland this afternoon for burial.

T. E. Roseman left yesterday for a short trip to the Pacific coast. He is interested in some Idaho timber lands.

Mrs. James R. Dedland, of Warsaw, Ind., is visiting her mother in West Duluth.

GOLF CLUB PLANS.

To Be Made a Town and Country Club.

Plans for improvement, which the local Golf club have been considering for the last few months, have taken definite form. A country club will be formed and a suitable club house erected at the expense of about $15,000.

Four-fifths of this sum has already been subscribed by Duluth golfers, and the erection of the new club house will begin within the next two weeks. Little rouble is expected in raising the $3000 which have not yet been subscribed.

Two acres of ground adjoining the present links have been secured for the new house. The name of Duluth Golf club will be abolished and a regular country club will be formed in its place.

The new house will contain a buffet, cafe, large dining room for dinner parties, reception room. A ball room for parties during the winter months is also planned. The club will be kept open both summer and winter if the present plans go through.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

THEY GET A RAISE

Northern Pacific Trainmen Effect Agreement With the Road.

Advance of From Ten to Fifteen Per Cent In Pay.

The firemen on the Northern Pacific road closed their conferences with the officials Saturday, when the latter conceded an increase in wages to the firemen of from 10 to 15 per cent, and many provisions which make this the best working schedule in the country.

The firemen affected will number between 900 and 1000 men, and the negotiations were carried on and brought to a successful termination by a committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, the chairman of which is H. B. Smith, of Duluth.

Mr. Smith and conferes entered negotiations six weeks ago, and the work has been going on slowly ever since. Superintendent of Motive Power A. E. Mitchell and General Manager Thomas Cooper represented the road, and there were conferences almost daily from the time negotiations opened.

The firemen asked an increase of 15 per cent in wages and some modifications of the rules regarding the care of engines at the end of the run. The agreement was signed Saturday afternoon, and Mr. Smith returned to Duluth, and will make his report to the brotherhood in a few days. The new contract will take effect May 1.

The question of an increase in pay was a hard one to solve, because of the different sizes of engines in service and the different conditions under which they are operated. As it was settled, the firemen on the engines of the larger classes, which embrace about two-thirds of all the engines owned by the company, will receive advances in pay amounting to 15 per cent. The firemen of the remaining one-third of the engines will receive increases amounting to 10 per cent. Engineers of yard engines will receive an increase of 10 per cent and their firemen will get a raise of 15 per cent.

But better than the increase in pay, the firemen regard the concessions made by the company in the matter of cleaning engines. The firemen have been obliged to do more or less of the wiping and cleaning after the engines reached the end of the run. The rule varied according to the size of the engine, the firemen of the big machines having to wipe only the parts above the running board, while the firemen of the smaller ones had to clean the entire machine. It always meant from one to five hours of hard work right after a run, and when the men were dirty and tired.

Under the new rule the firemen will be released from all care of the engines after they are safe in the roundhouse, except the cleaning of the cab. They can wash up and go home at the end of the run just as the engineers, conductors and brakemen do. The concession in regard to cleaning the engines is looked upon as equal to 10 per cent increase in pay.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

A St. Paul Boy Held on the Charge of Robbery.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—At the conclusion of the preliminary examination of James Beraneck and George Thornton, of St. Paul, on the charge of highway robbery, the former was discharged and the latter was held in $500 bonds to the district court. He furnished the cash bond and is now at liberty. The two were arrested on the charge of robbing Jacob Lisman of $9 here last fall, and were arrested at Fargo.

Fargo—The trouble over the school officials has resulted in so much ill-feeling that there will be a lot of interest in the school election Tuesday. There are seven candidates on the official ballot and three more may run by stickers. As there are only three places to be filled and the ladies as well as the men have votes, the situation is confusing.

The Free Press of Devils Lake says it has discovered a weak spot in the new Shiels bill regarding druggists' permits. It is said the law was enacted to prevent the sale of more than a half pint of whisky to one person in each twenty-four hours. The measure reads that there shall not be more than a half a pint sold on any one "affidavit," and does not prevent any number of affidavits being made by the same person during the same day. It was evidently a slip and the courts may construe it to mean only a half a pint to any person during the twenty-four hours. There is doubt as to the constitutionality of the law, and it is probable a test case will soon be made.

The state medical board examined the papers of a class of twenty applicants and admitted sixteen of them to practice in the state. The examination was written before Secretary Wheeler at Grand Forks.

The mother of Dean Collins, of Mandan, died in Fargo at the advanced age of 86. She had been a resident of Fargo four about twenty years and at the time of her death was with the sisters at the Catholic orphanage.

Claus Jossig, a butcher at Wild Rice, was hit by the superintendent's special on the Milwaukee. One hand was cut off, an arm badly broken and a severe cut received in his head.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Elk Point.—The $10,000 damages suit ofr breach of promise of marriage, brought by Miss Kate Sewell against John Callahan of this place, was this week dismissed by the Woodbury county, Iowa, court.

Wilmot.—Great excitement is being taken in the regular municipal election to be held May 4. The voters will be required to express themselves upon the proposition of issuing bonds of $5000 for the construction of a waterworks system.

Revillo.—The town of Wilson, near this place, is fast disappearing. Many of its former residents have moved to Revillo and other towns in this vicinity, and all the buildings but one have been hauled elsewhere.

Sturgis.—I. M. Case of White Owl was in this city and had a huge petrified bone with him from some prehistoric animal of gigantic proportions. Case has found a veritable mine of the bony remains of the monsters of the animal kingdom that ranged this country in a remote period. He has written the Smithsonian institute describing his finds.

Piedmont.—Robert Boyd recently lost a sheep which is thought to be the oldest on record. Had it lived till next September it would have been nineteen years old. During the past winter Mr. Boyd nourished it on new milk and eggs.

Watertown.—A case of wide interest has just come under the supervision of the Watertown land office. On Friday the office received notice that a hearing would be held in the case of David Wolff vs. Ko-sip-i, a Sisseton and Wahpeton Sioux. In his complaint Wolff has filed affidavit which alleges that Ko-sip-i is a Crow Creek Sioux, and as such at this time possessed of Indian allotment No. 356 on the Crow Creek reservation. If this be true he is not entitled to hold the land on the Sisseton reservation, which he now has and holds as Indian allotment No. 1312. Ko-sip-i is the father of six children, all of whom have government allotments. The total amount of land held by the father and children is twelve quarter sections, worth about $30 an acre. Should the father be found not entitled to his land on the Sisseton and Wahpeton reservation, then his children will also have to relinquish their claims.

Pierre.—The authorities at the different Indian agencies of the western part of the state are getting things in shape for their summer operations of road-making and dam-building on the reservations. This work will all be done by Indians, and they will be paid $1.25 a day, which will be in lieu of government rations. This work proved more successful than was expected last year, the Indians taking to it and many of them voluntarily giving up their ration ——ets. Sixty-one homestead filings were made in the Pierre land office for the first half of April, and the indications point to a yet greater number for the remainder of the month, the excursion of next week promising a rush of homesteaders. Seven final proofs were made for the first half of the month, with twenty more advertised for the last half. The Chamberlain land office is doing as well, showing a steady flow of settlers to the range country.

CRIMINALS EXIST

In Every City That Belong to the Mafia Society.

Chief of Secret Service Sounds a Note of Warning.

New York, April 20.—Speaking on the arrests made in the New York "barrel murder" mystery William P. Hazen, former chief of the United States secret service, said:

"There is to my mind not the slightest doubt that this murder in a way may prove of great value to the entire country. The police have made a most important catch, which may prove how not only New York city, but every large city and many small ones are honeycombed with secret foreign societies which have for their object plunder and murder.

"Since the murder of President Mckinley the revolutionary societies of all kinds have been very careful not to arouse public indigation. Very little has been heard from them and a casual observer might easily believe that they had been entirely wiped out or reformed. Apparently everything is quiet and peaceful, but it was quiet at St. Pierre up to the very day of the eruption of Mount Pelee. Like the volcanoes these sneaking enemies of society are never idle, the most dangerous part of their work goes on so quietly that it is not observed by even the sharpest eye.

"I am not talking for effect or trying to scare any one unnecessarily, but simply telling the bare truth when I say that the growth of these underground organizations during the last few years has been alarming in all the large cities like New York, Chicago, Cincinnati, New Orleans, Milwaukee and the like. As the European countries are passing stricter laws against aspiring revolutionists this country is being flooded with the scum of Europe. Theoretically, no man with a criminal record may enter the United States, but nevertheless criminals by the thousands are being dumped here every year. The immigration authorities have neither the power nor the facilities to search carefully every suspect who tries to land here; in fact, the majority get in without any examination whatever.

"The members of the Mafia arrested for the murder of the unknown man, known as 'The Newcomer,' are all more or less known to the United States secret service men. I have personally helped to convict Morello, who was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary for counterfeiting. That Morello for years has been a leader of a local Mafia society is a fact that the United States secret service has long known.

"This Mafia society exists in every city of any importance in this country, and without exception its members are criminals of the worst kind, compared to whom anarchists and nihilists are angelic beings. A member of a Mafia gang will stop at no crime whatever, and the character of the people is clearly shown by the nature of the weapons found on the men just arrested.

"I understand that the police have found a considerable number of documents throwing light on the nature of the Mafia society, and I hope that these may cause some action to be taken against these invaders who do not deserve the name of human beings. Our authorities should decide upon some joint action with the police of Europe, and it should be made impossible for men of Morello's stamp to enter here. The New York Mafia murder should be a lesson, it should be a signal for all law-abiding citizens to rally and begin a war of extermination against these scoundrels, and every chief of police who suspects the existence of the Mafia in his city should not rest until he was sure that it had been destroyed root and branch. It is his plain duty to society to do so."

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Calumet Capitalists Complete Organization of Mining Company.

Calumet—Local capitalists have completed the organization of the Arizona & Michigan Development company, capitalized at $600,000, divided into 60,000 shares. The stock has all been taken. Some found its way to Boston, the investors of that city desiring to share the profits accruing to Calumet citizens from their judicious investments in Arizona mining properties. The new company has secured about sixty claims adjoining the property of the Mitchell Development company, in the southwestern part of Cochise county. Included in the group is one producing mine with several thousands of dollars' worth of ore in sight. Copper, gold and silver are the principal values.

Reports state that the Calumet & Arizona has encountered rich sulphide ores on the 1150-foot level in the mine at Bisbee, Ariz.

Will Hocking and Dan Harrington were seriously injured by a fall of rock at the Hecla branch of the Calumet & Hecla mine. Both are in bad shape, but are expected to recover.

Sault Ste. Marie—The opening of the new street car line recalls the fact that, in 1898, the first practical use of electricity as a motive power for the propulsion of cars, outside of the experimental work by manufacturers, took place in the Soo. The investment never paid expenses, and in 1893 the project was abandoned.

Menominee—It is a difficult matter in Menominee, where millions of feet of timber are sawed into lumber every year, to buy lumber at retail. The product of the mills is sold only in cargo or carload lots, and is practically all shipped away.

L'Anse—What is said to be the only graphite mine in the Northwest is in successful operation near L'Anse. It is the property of the Hathway Graphite Manufacturing company. The mine is an open pit and the annual product is about 200 tons.

Houghton—Charles F. Kehl, a resident for thirty years, died Friday morning after a brief illness.

Munising—While at work tearing down an old frame house at East Munising, last week, John Griffiths found a treasure consisting of a large amount of gold and currency. He refuses to tell the amount of the treasure, but it is said that it is several thousand dollars. The house in which the money was found was one that was built many years ago when the blast furnace was in operation at East Munising. It is said that a very eccentric man occupied the house at that time and that he killed himself there by hanging.

Newberry—Deputy State Game Warden Coulter came to Newberry from Charlevoix and drove out to Two Hearts and arrested George Whirl for killing deer out of season. Whirl was brought to town, pleaded guilty to the charge against him and paid the small fine imposed by Justice Mulvaney. Whirl is a man over 80 years of age and gains a livelihood by hunting and trapping. He makes his home in the Two Hearts river country, twenty miles north of town. When Whirl's friends in town learned of his arrest they were so indignant that they promptly made up a purse and insisted on reimbursing the old man to the amount of his fine. It was the general impression that some person had made a complaint to the game warden against Whirl for spite, but Game Warden Chapman states this was not the case. His deputy is making a trip through that section, investigating reports of alleged beaver trapping, and it was this business that took him to Whirl's place. Finding the venison in the man's possession he had no recourse but to place him under arrest.

PANTON & WHITE COMPANY — THE BIG GLASS BLOCK STORE — WHERE QUALITY IS PARAMOUNT

Our furniture prices are making the high priced stores very anxious.

One of them says: "We don't carry any cheap kitchen stuff; only those fancy pieces for which we can charge two prices with least chance getting caught at it." Another one says: "Somebody's buying the cheap, thrown-together furniture bought to Duluth, more's the pity." One says: "We cater only to millionaires and want no trade of wage earners or common salaried people." Another says: "Look out for cheap trash by paying us more for the same goods." These are liberal translations of the innuendoes of the shops hurt by Glass Block honest prices.

We cater to and want the trade of the wage earner. We cater to and want the trade of the people of wealth. We cater to and want the trade of all sorts and conditions of people. We treat them all alike and give each more for their money than they can get at any other store at the head of the lakes.

WEILER WAS IN SEARCH OF WIFE

Looked Over the German Contingent at Ellis Island.

New York, April 20.—George A. Weiler, a farmer of Fremont, Ohio, is in town looking for a wife. He visited the barge office, feeling that there his quest was most likely to be rewarded. Weiler passed through the gate that leads to the Ellis island ferry at the Battery. He drawled out:

"I'm looking for a wife. I'm in a hurry. Can I look over the immigrants at Ellis island?"

Over in the Ellis island immigration bureau Weiler surveyed the German contingent of women—something over 1000 of them—but found nothing to suit him, and he returned to the Battery as unconcernedly as he went on the noon boat. Some one brought him to the office of the women immigration inspectors, and to them he stated his case as calmly as if he were negotiating for a yearling colt.

"You see," he said, "I'm worth about $20,000 and I want a wife."

Miss Batchelder, of the University Settlement, was horrified.

"Why, surely," she began, "you don't mean to get a wife in one day—pick her out among a lot of strangers and take her away with you?"

"Well, you see, miss," was Mr. Weiler's response, "I have to get back to Fremont. My father and mother think I only went to the next township, and I want to surprise them by saying how I was in New York and bring a wife back with me."

"Any particular sort of girl you want?" ventured Miss Batchelder, "any particular color of eyes?"

"I want dark eyes"—this after a pause. "That is, I'd rather have them dark. Then I want a slim, tall girl, not over 21, and I'd rather have a brunette. I can't come back to New York again," he said just as he left the barge office. "If I can find a wife, then I shall take her right away with me on our honeymoon, but I have got to leave for home, as my folks will be getting anxious."

He promised to come back in the afternoon, but failed to show up.

RUTH HAS HER WAY.

Hanna's Daughter Changes Date of State Convention.

Chicago, April 20.—The Republican state convention of Ohio will not be held on June 10. The convention may be held a week later, or it may be held a fortnight earlier. That is undecided. But one fact is certain—the convention will not be held on June 10. Beneath the surface lies a unique battle of romance versus politics.

Miss Ruth Hanna, daughter of Senator Hanna, forbids it. And she had good reason for doing so. On June 10, the date set for the convention, her wedding to Joseph Medill McCormick is to be celebrated. Her father cannot be at his daughter's marriage and the convention at the same time. Consequently, while politicians fumed, she calmly told her father he must have the convention postponed.

Senator Hanna did it. And still there are women crying for a voice in politics.

The comment that Mr. McCormick made when he heard what his fiancee had done is not a matter of record, but the laughing answer Senator Hanna's daughter made is being told with delight by those of her friends who have heard it:

"What's the use of being a senator's daughter if one cannot have a wee bit of authority," she said.

HAD TO LEAVE OMAHA

On Account of Threats From Society People.

Omaha, Neb., April 20.—"I hope you will not be angry with me, for I know you will be surprised when I tell you I have left Omaha. But I had to leave on account of social threats."

Thus wrote Arthur Wolfsohn, local agent for the Hartford Life Insurance company, to S. W. Moody, of Chicago, general western agent for the company. The letter is dated April 4, and was written in Cincinnati, where Wolfsohn is now supposed to be.

Wolfsohn left his office March 21. When he failed to return or write for a week the cashier thought he had gone on a business trip, and when two weeks elapsed without a word from him he decided something was wrong. Then Mr. Moody received the letter written in Cincinnati, and came to Omaha to check up the office. The accounts of the office are straight, and nobody seems to know the nature of Wolfsohn's trouble. Not a sign of a letter from 'the woman in the case,' presuming from Wolfsohn's letter that there is one, has been found. In his letter to Mr. Moody Wolfsohn said he cannot explain his trouble, but that he will see Moody some day and explain everything. Wolfsohn is 23 years old, and formerly represented the Equitable company at Grand Rapids.

COWS WERE KILLED,

But Milkmaid Saved as If By Miracle.

Coshocton, Ohio, April 20.—Dora, the 17-year-old daughter of James Ice, of Thornville, was miraculously saved from death in the wreck of a barn during a miniature hurricane. The girl was milking in the basement of a bank barn. She was between two cows, and when the crash came a beam fell across the two cows, killing them but saving the girl. The barn fell down on her, and the crashing of a heavy beam broke her leg near the ankle. She was pinioned down in such a way that her arms were free only from the elbow.

In the loft of the barn were 200 bushels of wheat, and they streamed down into the girl's face as she lay pinned between the cattle. Her arms were free just enough to permit her to brush off the falling grain and keep from smothering to death. For two hours she lay thus before found by rescuers.

HER BROTHER,

A Minister, Testified Against the Faithless Wife.

Washington, Ind., April 20.—In the circuit court John Pitcher and Mrs. Thomas Bird were convicted of infidelity, and his punishment was fixed at 100 days in jail and a fine of $50, and hers at ninety days and $5 fine.

Mrs. Bird is the wife of the engineer of the electric light plant at French Lick Springs, Ind. She is a remarkably pretty woman and is the daughter of Rev. John Morgan, who died some years ago. Her brother, Rev. William G. Morgan, pastor of the M. E. church at Organville, Ind., was a witness against her. He testified that he tried to persuade Mrs. Bird to cast aside her unholy love for Pitcher and return to her husband and children at French Lick, but she refused to do so.

Mrs. Bird ran away from her home on March 4 and came here with Pitcher.

UPRISING IN CHINA.

A special correspondent of The Herald at Shanghai, who has lived in the Orient for years and is intimately acquainted with the state of affairs in China, predicts that the whole empire is going to rise in rebellion. His letter, published in another column, will be read with interest, because it gives the reasons upon which he bases this prediction and throws light upon the conditions in that country that are bringing about an uprising by the Chinese in another attempt to get rid of the "foreign devils." The two northern provinces, where the Boxers ran riot, are not expected to cause trouble, but in other large and populous provinces there is a state of unrest, armed riots are frequent and the imperial authority is openly defied. The result may be, and in the opinion of good judges will be, a rebellion that will reach great proportions and prove a most serious matter not only to the Chinese imperial authorities, but to foreign nations that have citizens residing in various parts of the Chinese empire. The result may be that foreign armies and navies will be again called upon to go to the rescue. In this event, the United States will be dragged into another war in order to save the Americans residing there and to protect American trade in the Celestial empire. The magnitude of that commerce is not understood by many people in this country, and the information given by The Herald's correspondent in regard to it will prove of special interest at this time.

It is said there is nothing to fear from the court, the empress dowager having had a severe lesson at the time the Boxer riots were suppressed by foreign troops, but the trouble is caused largely by the provinces being saddled with the payment of the large indemnity exacted by the foreign powers and by the interference of the central government in purely provincial matters. The Chinese empire is really a federation of eighteen autonomous provinces. Heretofore the central government has never interfered with provincial or local laws, and the provinces have acted independently. Now the viceroys of the different provinces are said to be taking concerted action in opposition to the central government's policy of interference in their affairs, and this fact makes the situation serious. Further developments in the Orient will be awaited with interest.

THE RACE QUESTION.

Rather a novel solution or an attempted solution of the race question is found in the proposed colony for white men only, to be established in Alabama. A large tract of territory has been purchased by the Southland company in Baldwin county, Alabama, for the establishment of a colony from which negroes are to be barred. The county lies at the southern end of the state between Mobile bay on the west and the Perdido river, the western boundary of Florida, on the east. President W. J. Bell, of the Southland company tells of the plans and purposes of the colony:

"The Southland company is not animated by any hatred or prejudice, nor intolerance of race, religious creed, or politics; it is proposing to work out Southern immigration and the race problem along original and what I consider the only rational lines. Very properly I think is chosen the South for the stage upon which will be enacted most interestingly the play, which has for its theme the central idea that this has been and always must be a white man's country, the white man's heritage, justly held and controlled by the white man and by virtue of all rights. It is written and will be adhered to that no negro can hold a residence in the town of Gateswood that we are locating, nor on the fertile lands that we are reclaiming from the cutover timber lands. A large experimental farm is being planted. Professor I. N. Tracy, special field agent of the United States department of agriculture, is conducting a series of experiments on the growing of staples in our district. An extensive treatise on the resources of these lands is at present being prepared by H. E. Stockbridge, Ph. D., formerly connected with the state agricultural departments of Indiana, South Dakota and Florida, showing forth the possibilities of stock raising, diversified farming and fruit growing. We will interfere with no man's religion, nor his politics. Churches will be erected for different religious denominations, there will be public libraries, public parks and public schools and the only question asked of the people we are seeking in all of the cities and countries of the North and from England, Ireland and Germany, is that there are not anarchists, nor labor agitators among them. It will be a colony where every man will own his own property, but he must be a man without one drop of negro blood in him."

This plan is practically no different from other schemes of colonization, with the exception of the color feature. The chances are that in time it will go the way of all others.

"Stung" for "stuck" is new slang at Yale. A Yale man is no longer "stuck" for a dinner, a seat at the play, a railroad ticket; he is "stung" for it. He is "stung" by the professor for his recitation and the bursar for his term bill; he is "stung" for a loan from his classmates, and so on without end.

THE LABOR QUESTION.

Before the days of overgrown industrial establishments, a close personal and usually cordial relation existed between employer and employed. The passing of this condition has often been regretted, but has been unavoidable. It has been a matter of study for those interested in social questions to restore in some way a partial return of the old relations. Many schemes have been advocated but thus far none has proved entirely satisfactory, although accomplishing some good. A labor department for all large industrial establishments is recommended by C. W. Carpenter, who ably discusses the matter in the Engineering Magazine, using as his text "the time to stop trouble is before it begins." He says that this department should be in control of the labor question with full authority to settle all questions that the men and foremen can not settle. There should always exist the right of appeal to this department on the part of either workmen or foremen. It should be its constant aim to settle all questions before they reach an acute stage and assume an unwarranted importance. The questions should be considered directly with the employes affected, no outside influence being permitted to enter. The department should also investigate those practices on the part of the workmen which are unjust to the firm and endeavor to have them corrected.

Such is the nature of the work that, it is contended, a standing advisory committee should be formed, composed of men who are highest in authority in the company, before whom shall be brought all important matters of labor policy and any very serious affairs that cannot be satisfactorily settled. This advisory board should be called together by the labor department on emergencies, and also for monthly reports, these reports to indicate clearly the nature of the troubles settled and progress made. Where it is possible, the supervision of the wage system, together with the power to advise the adjustment of inequalities in wages, should be committed to the care of this department. This department can with great profit watch for undue shrinkage in output or any tendency toward its limitation. A study of the reason for such conditions, and the changing of the conditions themselves, are often vital to the success of the business. This department should investigate and have installed such improvements in sanitary and working conditions as experience has shown to be practical. The importance of such work when carried out along practical lines in becoming more and more apparent. The work of such a department will be largely ineffective unless it has the support and co-operation of the foremen or men who are in direct charge of departments. These men must be instructed and trained in the best methods of handling men; most effective ways of increasing their working efficiency, in a manner not detrimental to their health; of increasing their interest in their work, and, especially in union shops, the most effective methods of securing the best results for the company and the men under union conditions. In order to gain the desired results, weekly meetings should be held of all the foremen and assistants for the purpose of discussing the problems and difficulties that they meet every day and of finding some solution.

Where union conditions exist, unionism should be discussed, frankly and fairly, in all its phases. The difficulties experienced in regard to it and the methods of overcoming their troubles; the best methods of handling men and getting good work from them; methods of encouraging workmen to take more interest in their work; methods of encouraging all workmen to attend their union meetings and to take an active part in the proceedings; encouraging good workmen to act as officers and members of union committees. It is evident that the men responsible for such work must be chosen with great care. Though representing the employers' interests, they must be careful to carry out the work in such a manner as to deserve and gain the confidence of at least the more conservative elements in the body of workmen. In this plan the introduction of any of the employes as members of the department is not contemplated or even suggested.

The plan of Mr. Carpenter seems worthy of consideration. It would appear on its face to offer a solution of many of the labor problems.

THE REFUNDING SCHEME.

The refunding scheme of the treasury department seems to have been a success, although perhaps not to the degree anticipated. Something over $30,000,000 of 3 and 4 per cent bonds have been presented and 2 per cents issued in their stead. While the original offer placed a limit of $100,000,000 on the bonds to be received, and the right reserved to suspend refunding operations at any time, it is believed that the offer will be kept up for a long period, at least long enough to provide further facilities for a big increase in national bank circulation, which was the object of the scheme. So far most of the bonds have come from individual holders, trust companies and savings banks. The national banks, which hold the greater portion of the securities named for refunding, have been holding back for some reason or other. Out of a total of 300 national banks that hold bonds of the classes named for refunding, only seventy-one have so far turned them in in exchange for the new 2s. From correspondence that the department has had with officers of other banks, however, it is apparent that large blocks of the old bonds will soon be offered. Many of the banks are waiting to receive authority from their respective boards of directors to surrender the old bonds for the new. Secretary Shaw had two objects in view in deciding to refund the 3s and 4s of 1908 and 1907. One was to place on the market a bond that would be attractive to national banks so that they would use it as security for national bank circulation, and thus add to the volume of that class of circulation. The other was to ease up the bond market and release some cash in the treasury by paying the premiums called for in all exchanges. By this latter process he has up to date put out about $1,500,000 in cash, and if the entire $100,000,000 of bonds is secured, he will have released something like $5,000,000 in cash.

There has been an increase of something like $3,700,000 in the volume of national bank circulation since the treasury began funding operations. At that time there was $382,519,000 of national bank circulation, and now it amounts to $386,171,000. The department looks for a much larger increase later on after the banks have had a better opportunity to take advantage of the secretary's offer. An encouraging feature in this connection is the fact that very few of the national banks are now decreasing their circulation. A few months ago there was a regular epidemic of circulation reduction. For a number of successive months the banks exhausted the entire limit of $3,000,000 withdrawals per month. There was only a little over $2,000,000 of withdrawals during March and the total will fall below that figure this month. The idea of having the national banks do their share in increasing circulation is a good one and there is no doubt that any treasury plan that appeals to them as to their advantage will be accepted and adopted all over the country.

President Smith of the Mormon church is fearful of hard times industrially and advises his people to pay their debts. This is good advice, even if prosperous times continue.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"I have known gamblers who would work for years following a system with which to beat a faro game, and I have heard of callow youths who had a system figured out to step off on the long end of the poker game; the average ribbon clerk will work out a system to beat the roulette table, and other types are known to have conceived plans to systematically lay down their money with the expectation of breaking a bank somewhere or somehow.

"But it remained for that wonderful and grotesque character that infests this part of the country, the integral member on the Northern populace, upon which depends the ability of many leading business men to accumulate wealth—it remained for this genius to conceive that a system could be evolved which could successfully beat the enticing slot machine," said a Hibbing man at the St. Louis hotel last night.

"I first saw the man who had figured out the only way at Hibbing last December. He had worked a month and had $35 and a foolish looking face. He hunted around till he found one of the spin machines, with lots of colors on it, and slots marks, with amounts from 10 cents to $5.

"His system, or what he thought was one, was hard to understand. He put a nickel into each of the slots and pulled down the lever. There was a whirl and 10 cents dropped out. Then he filled all the slots again, and whirled away a second time. He kept the thing up from shortly after noon until about dark, when he borrowed enough from the proprietor to get a meal, and after he ate it, he walked back to camp and went to work.

"Two weeks later, I was standing in a bar room, and I noticed something familiar approaching from the other side of the green swinging doors. At the top of the doors was a red fur cap, and at the bottom a pair of yellow, high-laced shoes. I remembered.

"He looked cautiously around when he came in, took out some money and secured change and then went over to the machine and dropped a couple of nickels in, acording to some directions he had on a slip of paper. He played and played, and finally after his two weeks' pay was gone, borrowed the price of supper and went away.

"This man interested me, and I looked for him. He would get paid every two or three weeks, and it was evident that as soon as he got his money he would rush down to Hibbing to try his luck by tempting dame fortune to his side.

"Well, I saw him every little while, and after the machines were supposed to have been thrown out, he would manage to find one and play it for an hour or two. He never drank or smoked, and would not talk to anyone, but it was evident he had a keen sense of humor, for about ten days ago he appeared for the last time, the camps being through work and he had closed his season in the woods.

"He walked over to the place he had been in the habit of playing, and there was no machine there. He hung around for awhile and finally, edging up to the proprietor handed him over $25 and said: 'You'd better take this; it's yours by rights, because if you had the machine here I'd lost it. Just see that I get a ticket to Blackduck and I'll be satisfied.'

"The proprietor got him under way and in a little basket of lunch he gave him, he slipped the change left over after the purchase of the ticket. The woodsman said 'thanks' for the lunch and good bye to the proprietor and went away, so far as he knew, without one cent for his year's work."

THE STAGE.

Tonight the Ferris Comedians will produce at the Metropolitan the drama of Southern life "The Octoroon," a play dealing with events of slavery in the south. The play will be appropriately scened and costumed, and will involve the full strength of the company. Between the acts will be seen the Aerial Shams which made such a hit at this theater a short time ago, but a big feature tonight will be the appearance of "Rosaire" the great European sensation. The following taken from the New York Journal, will give an idea of "Rosaire's" wonderful feats: "One of Bailey's latest foreign importations is Rosaire, acknowledged king of the high wire. The vessel on which Rosaire had taken passage was due to arrive at her dock Monday, March 15, and half the wonder workers of this hemisphere were on hand to greet the coming of this noted aerialist, for publicity had been given to his desire to slide into America. Arrangements were made whereupon the captain of the ship was prevailed upon to allow a wire to be strung from the main mast to a selected point on the shore. Directly the hawser had been fastened to the dock, and the gang plank was adjusted, the shore end of the wire was made fast to a water plug at the foot of Houston street. The band on the shore struck up 'Hail to the Chief' while the band aboard the ship played "God Save the Queen," whereupon Rosaire, who had already ascended the tall mast, unfurled a large American flag. Cheer upon cheer went up from the enthusiastic thousands below. An effulgent sun reflected iridescent rays from the gaudily attired, Adonis-like figure so gracefully poised on the towering, yard supporting timber. He stood but for a moment; the signal of ready pealed forth from the mouth of the ship's cannon; both bands now united, gave vent to that soul-stirring, patriotic air, 'Stars and Stripes'; Rosaire released his hold and slowly yet majestically, commenced his perilous slide into America."

The bread contest for $10 in gold will take place Wednesday afternoon, the prize going to the person bringing the best baked loaf of bread, the winning loa will be decided upon by an expert baker. The bread will then be devoted to charities and the poor.

Of all the many plays that visited this section last season, probably there are none that made a better impression or secured a stronger hold upon theater-goers than did "York State Folks," that charming play of rural life. "York State Folks" returns to the Lyceum tomorrow and Wednesday evening and Wednesday afternoon with the same great cast as last seen here, including James Lackaye in his creation of Simon Peter Martin, the irascible village boss; Kay L. Royce in the lovable character of the old organist; Ernest Lamson as the gawky horse-trauer; Mrs. Sidman as the neighbor's girl Randolph Currie, the manly son of old Simon Peter Martin; the three children who have been pronounced the cleverest tots before the public and all the others who assisted in making the original production of "York State Folks" the great success it is.

NAN'S ADVENTURES.

There once was a man from Nantucket
Who kept all his cash in a bucket;
But the daughter named Nan
Ran away with a man
And as for the bucket, Nantucket.
—Princeton Tiger.

He followed the pair to Pawtucket—
The man and the girl with the bucket;
And he said to the man
He was welcome to Nan,
But as for the bucket, Pawtucket.
—Chicago Tribune.

Pa's wife joined the party at Lima.
So glum she appeared, they said "Fie ma!"
But sae raved, "You will know
That the bucket of dough
Is mine," Nan exclaimed, "How you Lima."
—New York Sun.

Then the pair followed pa to Manhasset,
Where he still held the cash as an asset;
But Nan and the man
Stole the money and ran,
And as for the bucket, Manhasset.
—New York Express.

The pair then went to Natick,
Where the man thought he might turn a trick;
They had nothing to pawn
As the bucket was gone,
And the people would give them Natick.
—Boston Transcript.

So they bent their way to Woonsocket,
Where the judge found their names on the docket;
When 'twas over the man
Remarked sadly to Nan,
"Gee! Didn't the legal Woonsocket."
—Chicago Record-Herald.

But they came to the river Shetucket,
And they still had the cash in the bucket;
'Twas a sad, sad affair;
Nan left the man there,
And as for the bucket, Shetucket.
—New Haven Register.

BETTY AND THE WAR PARTY

By Frank H. Sweet.

(Copyright 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

When Willett Rodgers left the Plymouth colony and moved down into southern Rhode Island with his family he found the Narragansett country little more than a wilderness. All his seven daughters were good with rifle, while Betty, the youngest, not yet 15, was reckoned one of the best shots in the country, and could read signs almost as well as her father. As soon as she could walk she made the forest her playground, and the birds and animals her companions. There was scarcely a sound of the forest that she could not imitate.

Late one afternoon she was sitting in the doorway, watching her sisters. Black clouds were rolling up the sky, and every few moments came the deep reverberations of thunder. Big drops of rain were already beginning to splash on the doorstep.

Mrs. Rodgers was hustling about the huge fireplace preparing supper. She had just hung the pudding pot on the crane and swung it back over the fire, and was now patting appetizing looking cakes of corn meal dough upon the johnny-cake board. As the storm burst overhead with a deafening crash Betty left her position in the doorway.

"I saw Injin sign over on the ridge this afternoon," she said, as the echoes of the thunder died away in the distance.

Mrs. Rodgers looked up quickly. "Narragansetts?" she asked.

"No, didn't 'pear so. Signs seemed to say strangers. Down from the big river country, I guess."

The johnny-cake board being full, Mrs. Rodgers placed it carefully before the fire to bake. Then she went to a shelf in the corner and took down some pewter cups and plates and began to set the table.

"I wisht your father was here," she said, anxiously. "The Injins might run afoul of him unbeknownst."

"That's jest like mother," laughed one of the older girls. "Why, father won't be back from Plymouth till come Friday, an' the Injins will be gone 'fore then."

"I know, I know," said Mrs. Rodgers, deprecatingly," but he might come back 'fore he allotted to, an' then he'd be sure an' meet 'em."

"I think we're in a good deal more danger than he is," observed Betty, soberly. "This storm'll make the Injins go into camp, an' to-morrow they'll be almost sure to find us. They generally have runners out in all directions."

"Well, there's seven of us, an' we've all got guns," cried one of the girls, as she struck an attitude and took aim with her distaff at an imaginary foe. "It will take a good-sized tribe to capture us. Did you see their trail, Betty?"

"Yes; it passed over the ridge an' down toward Chestnut Holler. I think they'll go into camp there. From the trail they made I guess there's maybe 50 or 60 in the party."

Her sister became instantly grave and turned back to her wheel. But it was now getting too dark to work, and one after another the girls left their spinning and gathered round the fireplace. Presently Mrs. Rodgers lifted the pot from the crane and emptied its contents into a huge platter on the table. Then she took the johnny cakes from the board and announced supper.

As she did so there came a wild, peculiar cry, something between the howl of a wolf and the whinny of a horse. Mrs. Rodgers turned excitedly.

"Your father's back," she cried; "that's his horse."

"No, no, mother," expostulated one of the girls, "that's only a loon. You've often heard Betty imitate them," and she looked at the young girl for confirmation of her words.

But Betty did not answer. She was sitting with her head slightly bent forward, and an intent, puzzled expression on her fair young face. Again came the wild, quavering cry. Betty rose hurriedly and took down her gun from its place on the wall. "It's no loon," she said, calmly, but with a strange light blazing in her eyes. "A loon's cry isn't so perfect as that. It shakes more. An', besides, loons don't cry in a storm like this. It's an Injin runner callin' the rest. He's likely found my tracks, or something. Listen!" as the cry came once more through the darkness. "That means for all the rest to hurry to him, quick's they can. Fasten the door an' winder, an' don't open 'em for nothin' nor nobody till you hear me whistle," and before they could divine her intention she had slipped through the door and out into the darkness.

Mrs. Rodgers sprang forward to intercept her, but was too late. "You don't s'pose she's goin to fight the whole tribe, do you?" she asked, tremulously.

"No mother; you can trust Betty to take care of herself," reassured the oldest girl. "She has thought of some plan to help us." But her actions were less confident than her words, for she took down her gun, then paused irresolutely.

"I s'pose I'd do more harm than good," she said, doubtfully. "I don't know the woods like she does, an' would be sure to get lost an' need her help." She stood still a moment, then replaced her gun on the wall.

Half an hour passed. Then once more they heard that strange, weird cry. But this time it was fainter, and seemed to come from lower down the valley. They looked at each other questioningly. Another ten minutes, and it came again, very low and faint this time and scarcely to be distinguished above the noise of the storm. A sudden look of intelligence flashed into the oldest girl's eyes.

"Why, it's Betty herself," she cried. "I wonder we didn't think of it before. The child has gone round on the other side of the Injuns an' is calling 'em away. She's makin' 'em believe that cry's made by one of their own runners, an' they're follerin' it. To think of Betty foolin' a whole war party!" She rose excitedly, and once more took her gun down from its pegs. I wisht there was some way for us to be helpin' her, girls. It don't seem right for us to be here, doin' nothin', an' her out in the storm with a whole pack of Injins behind her."

Hour after hour went by, and still they waited, silent and watchful, but trying to avoid each other's eyes. There was nothing they could do, only wait. Outside the storm had increased in violence and was now raging and shrieking about the little cabin.

At last there was a slight noise outside, followed by a clear, boyish whistle.

In an instant six figures were crowding about the door, each trying to undo the fastenings.

"Why, you poor things!" cried Betty, a few minutes later, as she disengaged herself from their grasp; "you act as though I'd been on a war path, sure enough. 'Twan't much; but I'm jest beaten out," and she dropped wearily on one of the benches. "I fooled 'em down fur's the Saugatucket, an' then slipped off an' come back by a roundabout way. I must 'a' gone 15 miles, there an' back. They won't be apt to come here ag'in, for the storm'll wash my trail out long afore mornin'." A sparkle came into her eyes and she broke into a merry peal of laughter. "I guess they'll think 't was old Bad Medicine himself who was a leadin' 'em. It was lots of fun."

When Willett Rodgers returned from Plymouth and heard the story, he placed his hand proudly on Betty's brown curls. "The Injins have been makin' a bad raid down the country," he said, gravely, "burnin' houses an' running off cattle. If it hadn't been for this little girl I expect our cabin would 'a' gone with the rest. But we're safe now, for I hear the soldiers are out an' drivin' 'em back toward the big river."

Barometer of Prosperity.

Philadelphia Ledger: The general prosperity is reflected in the statement of the receipts of the federal postoffice department for March, 1903. Fifty of the largest postoffices in the country collected $5,720,-291, as compared with $5,270,721 for March of last year, a net increase of $449,479, or 8.5 per cent.

SMILING REMARKS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "I see that a New York woman shot her husband because she mistook him for a burglar."

"Say, ain't it wonderful how all those New Yorkers gets to look alike?"

Boston Transcript.—Miss Stayler—Everybody says I don't look my age.

Miss Pertleigh—Of course, you don't dear. It would be simply impossible.

Philadelphia Press.—"Young man," said her father, kindly, "you look a little bit nervous. How do you feel?"

"I feel flattered," replied the girl's lover, who had asked for the interview. "I was afraid I looked scared to death."

Chicago Post.—They were talking of the man who was thrown from a stret car.

"How badly was he hurt?"

"He doesn't know yet. The jury in his suit for damages is still out."

Wtshington Star.—"I shall not be content until we see our son making $40,000 or $50,000 a year," stid the fond mother.

"My dear," answered her husband, "what do you want him to be a jockey or a prize-fighter?"

Puck.—First Chaffeur—Whose make is your machine?

Second Chaffeur—Well, about one-third the manufacturer's and two-thirds the repairer's.

Philadelphia Record.—"Yes," remarked the loud-voiced man with the diamond stud, "I am out of politics for good."

"Ah," murmured the sedate little fellow in the corner. "May I ask for whose good?"

A HOMESICK FELLOW.

I am gettin' mighty tired of the life here in the town,
With its rush as ef the people meant to turn it unside down!
I might listen till I'm sixty—an' not hear a cow bell ring;
I might watch for ten years longer—an' not see a raael spring;
Fer the Aprules ain't like Aprile with no browzin' herds in sight,
An' no hum o' bees in clover, an' no apple blossoms white.
All the place is full o' strangers with their chatterings that grate—
Barbed wire langwige, some describe it, an' it's most appropriate!
Seems I'd give a little fortune ef I heard some person speak
In the plain old-fashioned lingo o' the folks at Billings Creek.
In the nerrer slips o' yards an' in the crocks on winder sills,
That's no flowers as is flowers—hollyhawks an' daffedils;
Jest sufficient scent an' color—tinny hints o' rose an' green—
Fer to take a dream o' meadows, woods an' sunny days between,
With the catbirds sendin' downward from the orchards deeps a stream
O' sich music as the saints make whar the lights o' heaven gleam!
Well, most folks has asperations—some look forward to the day
When they'll all have wealth er somethin' by the time that they air gray;
As fer me, it's my ambition fer the next few months to seek Cash enough to buy a ticket back to bliss an' Billings Creek!

THE COFFEE HABIT.

New York World: The fall of the price of coffee in the New York market to the lowest point on record, due to a heavy Brazilian crop coming upon the heels of enormous importation last year, calls attention to the surprising growth of the coffee habit.

In 1902 for the first time in our history we imported more than 1,000,000,000 pounds of coffee, at a bulk cost of more than $70,000,000 and a probable retail price to customers of nearly three times that sum. This was a supply of nearly twenty pounds, at a retail cost or about $4, for every person in the United States above 10 years of age; it indicates a use which has quadrupled in one generation and is now almost universal.

In the source of supply great changes have taken place. When "kauphy" was first drunk in London it came undoubtedly from Arabia, which remained the sole source of supply up to about 1700 A. D. Today our "Java and Mocha mixed" probably never saw Java and most assuredly never saw Mocha. Brazil alone gave us 85 per cent of our 1902 supply, and Mexico, the West Indies and other Central and South American countries 13 per cent. The East Indies supply about 1 per cent and "other Asia and Oceanica," including Arabia, the home of the coffee cult, furnish only 1 pound in 256. The Greek monks on the Isthmus of Sinai themselves drink Brazilian coffee, so complete is the "American invasion" of the world's market of the fragrant brown berry.

The Point of View.

Brooklyn Eagle: Nothing in particular reminds me of it. It is merely a story that they used to tell about Hagenbeck, the menagerie man, at the time of the World's Fair in Chicago. It seems that he had been out with some particularly thirsty friends in the evening and deemed it prudent not to go home. So, since the night was rather cool, he went to the fair grounds and crawled into one of his lion cages. Snuggled close to his largest and most dangerous beast, he slept until morning, when he felt something prodding him in the ribs. Opening his eyes he saw his wife standing in front of the cage, jabbing him with her parasol and scornfully saying:

"Oh, you miserable coward!"

Danger Ahead.

Washington Post: If it is really true that Admiral Schley is considering an offer to lecture, he should lose no time in executing a loop and thus avoid the danger.

Locality Makes a Difference.

Baltimore American: A New York state judge has decided that when husband and wife die at the same time the wife dies first. In New York this is a decision; in Ireland it would have been a bull.

The Vital Question.

Pittsburg Dispatch: Despite the large number of topics debated in the public utterances the question which is holding the public attention is, Will the president get the bear? The president started for bear once before and the nation would hate to have him disappointed again.

My, But It's Easy.

Detroit Journal: Napoleon Lajoie's ingenious and explicit instructions "How to Play Baseball" are in substance—hit the ball just as far as you can and never let a ball get by you.

And Has a Hair Trigger.

Pittsburg Times: The discovery that President Roosevelt carries a gun will not be news to the various people who in the past learned by sorry experience that he was loaded.

A RUSH FOR THE NAVY

Duluth Boys Applying to Congressman In Large Numbers.

Career Offered to Young Men In the Sea Service.

Duluth boys are in the midst of an epidemic of naval fever.

Congressman Bede is getting more applications for appointment to Annapolis than most congressmen get for free distribution of garden seeds.

While the quota of appointments was doubled by the last congress each United States senator and congressman is allowed to name only two midshipmen a year and, therefore, there are bound to be many disappointments.

The large increase in naval academy appointments does not mean that there will be any let down in the standard of requirements and it is therefore incumbent on all Duluth boys with ambitions to get Dewey's job to do a large amount of studying in the course of the next year or so as future appointments may be on competitive examination the same as appointments to West Point.

Candidates at the time of their examination admission must be at least fifteen years of age and not more than twenty. They must be physically sound, well formed and of robust constitution. The entrance examination includes proficiency in reading, writing, spelling, arithmetic, geography, English grammar, United States history, world's history, algebra through quadratic equations, and plane geometry.

The course for midshipmen is six years and it is one of the best and stiffest courses in the country, if not in the world. It is mostly engineering but it includes about as much of the classics as is administered in a fresh water college. The grade of scholarship is very high not being surpassed by Boston Technology or Cornell. Additional advantages are the military training and benefits of rigid discipline. All graduates are well set up, athletic, graceful men usually with very sound constitutions. It is a physical impossibility to dissipate at Annapolis.

The graduate midshipman is appointed to fill vacancies in the line of the navy and marine corps. This means that he is first made an ensign in which grade he will draw a salary of $1190 a year while on shore duty and $1400 while at sea or in foreign ports.

After a year he may become a second lieutenant where he will draw $1400 ashore and afloat. The next step is lieutenant of the junior grade, boosting the income to $1500, the lieutenant at a salary of $1650 ashore and $1800 afloat. For the first year or so the young officer will have to borrow or draw on his ancestral estates to pay the tailor for the uniforms required by the regulations cost almost an entire year's pay.

If the young officer is in luck, he may in five or six years attain the grade of captain in the marine corps with the munificent income of $1800 a year, or, if serving on the staff $2000. As lieutenant commander he will draw $2125, as commander $2250, and while at sea, $2500. As full captain in the navy he is entitled to $2575 to $2800.

If he has political sagacity and the necessary qualifications he may be made chief of a bureau by the time he is 45 and will get $5000 a year. If he becomes a rear admiral his pay will range from $4675 to $7000 depending on the grade and character of the service. If the Duluth boy has the ultimate good luck to get that job of Dewey's he can live comfortably for the rest of his life on $13,500 a year and allowances.

But though the salary is small the young man adopting the navy as his profession need not worry about financial panics. He is always sure of his job if he is decently well behaved. Then there is the social advantage. The social status of naval people is absolutely assured. It is so secure that it is difficult to lose it. If socially inclined the naval officer has opportunity to see society of all sorts and in all quarters of the globe and he is apt to become a very entertaining and accomplished person.

The navy is disposed to look down a trifle on the army. They live in their own exclusive and independent world and the way in is narrow and difficult.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at Abbett's drug store.

FIRE AT TACOMA.

Tacoma, Wash., April 20.—The immense packing house of the Pacific Meat company, on the Tide flats in this city, has been practically destroyed by fire. The loss, it is estimated, will reach $200,000.

THE BASEBALL SEASON OPENS

Big Duluths Defeat West Duluth In Good Game.

The amateur baseball season opened yesterday. The Big Duluths won their initial game, defeating West Duluth by a score of 13 to 7.

For five innings the play was unusually fast for a bleak day and the first attempt of the season, but the West Duluths went to pieces and neglected to support Young, who was twirling a very fine game. Larson who succeeded Young also pitched well, but was poorly supported.

The Big Duluths trotted out three twirlers, Bennett, Bruen and Lovell. Gerard the veteran catcher for the Big Duluths was strong with the stick, as was A. Busky of the West Duluth team, each getting three hits.

The score by innings was:

Big Duluths .....0 0 1 3 3 1 0 4—13	11	2
West Duluths .....3 0 0 0 2 0 0 2—7	7	10

The Universal Millers opened the season at Duluth Heights, winning a fast game by a score of 6 to 3.

Lowe's pitching and batting was a feature of the game. He struck out nineteen men and himself hitting hard enough to win his own game, ending up with a smash that was good for four bases. Joe Lauermann of the Universals also made a home run. Dennis, the Duluth Heights pitcher struck out eight men and allowed but nine hits, but was a little off on control. The score by innings:

Universal Millers..... 1 0 1 0 2 0 1 1 x—6
Duluth Heights .....0 0 1 0 1 0 1 0 0—3

SIMON CLARK TAKES OFFICE

Is Now State Surveyor of Logs and Lumber.

Duties of the surveyor general of logs for the Duluth district were this morning assumed by Simon Clark, who was last winter appointed to the position by Governor Van Sant to succeed Mrs. G. Fred Stevens upon the expiration of her term.

The surveyor general's office will remain at 507-509 Palladio building, where it was during Mrs. Stevens' term. Henry Taylor, formerly of the Imperial milling company, will be Mr. Clark's chief deputy. C. J. Evans who held the position under Mrs. Stevens, has accepted a position with S. C. Jackson & Co.

G. Fred Stevens who died last summer was appointed surveyor general two years ago. On his death his wife was appointed to fill out the unexpired term.

During the busy winter season Mrs. Stevens had eighty scalers under her. About twenty-five will be employed during the summer.

An Interesting Comparison.

It would naturally appear that owing to the price for which imported champagnes are sold, the combined revenue for the sale of all these wines would be in excess of the amount paid annually for any single brand of bottled beer.

But such is not the case, as the United States custom house statistics clearly and definitely prove.

Anheuser-Busch's Budweiser not only exceeds in sales all other bottled beers combined, but has proved itself the mightiest competitor of imported champagnes by exceeding their annual revenue more than $3,500,000.

The sales of Budweiser during the year 1902 were 3,790,300 bottles, averaging 25 cents per bottle, amounting to $20,947,575.

The United States custom house records prove the importation of all champagnes for the year 1902 to be 360,708 cases. Figuring on a basis of twelve quart bottle per case—4,328,496 bottles, and if sold at the maximum, $4.00 per bottle, to the consumers, amounted to $17,313,591.

From these figures it will be seen that Budweiser's lead was $3,633,591.

It is a noteworthy fact that this pure and wholesome beverage is fast supplanting imported champagnes upon the banquet table, just as it is supplanting the decanter upon the sideboard in American homes.

This is at it should be, and marks a perceptible advancement in the direction of true temperance.

Budweiser is a brew that is known the world around, and is not only preferred by discriminating customers because of its rare flavor, fine effervescence and perfect maturity, but prescribed by physicians everywhere on account of its absolute purity, nourishing and upbuilding effects.

"I had a running itching sore on my leg. Suffered tortures. Doan's Ointment took away the burning and itching instantly, and quickly effected permanent cure." C. W. Lenhart, Bowling Green, Ohio.

MISS MAGOFFIN DIES.

Tuberculosis Brought on By a Severe Cold.

The death of Lucy Bright Magoffin occurred Saturday afternoon. She was the third daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Beriah Magoffin and a grand daughter of Kentucky's famous war governor. Her splendid character, charming manner and beauty made her friends wherever she went and as she was practically raised and educated in Duluth it is not surprising that the news of her death caused such general sorrow.

Last fall Miss Magoffin contracted a severe cold while attending the annual charity ball from which she never fully recovered. In January she was compelled to take her bed and was never again able to leave it, the cold having developed into an acute case of general tuberculosis.

For some time past all hope of her recovery had been given up by members of her family, and two absent sisters, Mrs. Samuel Schakleford, of Frankfort, Kentucky; and Mrs. Victor Hugo, of St. Louis, were summoned to her bedside.

The funeral service was held at the Magoffin home yesterday afternoon. The service was most impressive. Dr. T. H. Cleland, of the First Presbyterian church preached the funeral sermon. The music was in charge of Prof. A. F. M. Custance and included three appropriate solos by Master Leslie Bassett. There was a great profusion of flowers from sorrowing friends. The interment was at Forest Hill cemetery but later the remains will be removed to Kentucky.

WITHDRAWING GUARDS.

The Hague, April 20.—The withdrawal of the military guards on the railroads has commenced in the northern and southern provinces, but the guards will be maintained for the present in the central provinces and at Amsterdam.

GALE DOES GREAT DAMAGE.

Berlin, April 20.—The gale of Sunday wrought such havoc on the grounds at Potsdam that a full report on the subject has been telegraphed to Emperor William. Many splendid trees were uprooted. The imperial wild park was also seriously damaged. Heavy snow has been falling for fifteen hours. All the trains from Posen, Silesia and east and west Prussia are hours late. Many trains have been stalled in the snow.

SAWING OF LUMBER

This Week Will See Beginning of Summer Manufacturing.

Some Sales Made During the Past Week—Other Matters.

This week will mark the opening of the summer sawing season for Duluth lumber mills. The mills, which run all winter, have been closed for some time for their spring repairs, but that work has been about completed now and they will all be settling down for their summer's run before the end of the week.

The first lumber boat to come to Duluth to load this season was the Edward Hines, which arrived here Saturday. She is now loading. The Jay Gould took out some lumber for Chicago yesterday, so that the shipping season at the head of the lakes may be said to have opened. It is improbable that the boats will begin to appear in large numbers for about a week more.

By May 1 the entire lumber fleet will be in active operation taking away the winter's cut and the 120,000,000 feet which were left over when navigation closed last fall. All of this has been disposed of.

The past week has been a rather active one in the local lumber market. The principal feature of the week's trade was sales of 3,000,000 of No. 3 and some better lumber, which were made by the American Lumber company, Richardson & Avery and Alger-Smith & Co.

All of the larger firms are pretty well sold up now. The winter's cut has fallen a little below the expectations of some of the lumber men and some believe that the summer's cut will be a little shy, too. But just at present the market is in a very comfortable condition and neither buyers or sellers show any inclination to force to any great extent.

The Schofield mill in West Superior has been closed down for repairs during the last couple of weeks. About $6000 has been expended on it. New machinery has been added to the old equipment and it is hoped to so increase the cutting capacity of the mill from 45,000,000 feet, the amount of last year's cut, to 65,000,000 feet. One of the largest piles of logs ever seen around this neck of the woods has been heaped into the bay around the mill. The logs are piled from the bottom of the bay to a point twenty or thirty feet above the water and the pile is a mile long. It contains about 40,000,000 feet of logs.

The Swan River Lumber company has another record-breaking bunch of timber at its banking place on the river, just above the junction with the Mississippi. It stretches along the stream for a mile and hardly allows sufficient room for the water to pass. It is said to contain fully 60,000,000 feet.

Rogers & Ruger, of Superior, have been awarded a contract by the United States engineer to furnish derrick timber of fir over thirty feet long, to be used on the new piers at the natural entry. The piers constitute something new in the way of concrete work. They are the first of their kind to be built anywhere. It is the first time that any extensive concrete operations of the kind have been undertaken without first completing a heavy timber substructure and is of considerable interest on that account. The pier will cost in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

The Weyerhaeuser interests are to extend the Duluth & Northeastern road from Island lake, on the Cloquet river, to Cloquet, a distance of twenty-five miles. Surveyors are now in the field and the road will be pushed rapidly. When this addition is completed the road will be fifty miles in length. The Weyerhaeusers are tired of gambling on the caprices of the river for the transportation of their logs and the road is built to afford a more certain mode of transportation.

Hot ponds will be made in the river at Cloquet and the fills will be operated all winter. The road is standard gauge and while it was built primarily for log hauling it may become a permanent route.

FOR YOUNG PEOPLE.

Baptist Gospel Meetings Conducted By E. Fogenstrom.

State Sunday school missionary, E. Fogenstrom, representing the American Baptist Publication society, is conducting gospel meetings in Duluth for a period of three weeks. The first was held last week at the First Baptist church in the East End, and were very successful meetings for boys and girls and young people, much interest being manifest.

This week the meetings will continue at the West End in the Second Baptist church and the First Swedish Baptist church, they uniting in the meetings by Mr. Fogenstrom. They will be held at the church on Nineteenth avenue west and First street, commencing at 7:45 in the evenings, and will be in English with addresses illustrated by stereopticon views. This evening Mr. Fogenstrom will speak on "The Voyage of Life." Yesterday Mr. Fogenstrom conducted the union services, assisted by Rev. J. W. Langbridge. In the morning he spoke on "A Message to Parent." His talks were impressive. He urged more religion in the home, greater consideration of the moral needs of the boys and girls, and appealed to parents for cooperation with him in the gospel work among the young people.

NEW SWAMP LAND RULING

Important Decision That Affects Large Number of Cases.

As a result of a decision of the secretary of the interior, a copy of which was received at the local land office Saturday afternoon, some fifty contests which are now pending before the register and receiver will be dismissed.

The decision reads as follows: "All controversies hereafter begun respecting the swamping or non-swamping characters of lands in Minnesota, whether heretofore or hereafter surveyed, must be determined by the field notes of the survey."

In future, therefore, oral testimony by witnesses as to the character of lands will not be entertained in a contest against state swamp lands. If the field notes show that the land is swamp land no amount of testimony on the part of witnesses will suffice to prove the contrary.

Up to the present time contests have been allowed and they have been very numerous. Witnesses would be brought to swear that the land was not swampy in character, and it was then incumbent upon the state to prove the contrary or the land could be homesteaded. Much of the state swamp land has been granted to railroads and their title has thus also been imperfect.

FUNERAL OF MRS. FITZSIMMONS.

New York, April 20.—Funeral services for Mrs. Rose Fitzsimmons, the wife of Robert Fitzsimmons, ex-champion heavyweight pugilist, were conducted yesterday at her late home in Bensonhurst. So large was the attendance at the services that not all of the friends of the pugilist and his wife could crowd into the house.

SENIORS DO WELL.

Dramatic Entertainment a Success In Every Way.

High school seniors scored a big success with their play Saturday evening. It was very well attended, and as a result the class cleared about $200 toward its graduating expenses. The crowd was the largest that has ever attended a senior play, and it was thoroughly pleased with the performance.

"Lamb and Mint Sauce," which was given by Mary Richards and Salisbury Adams, was very well done by both. Mr. Adams was excellent in the role of Horace a dissatisfied husband, and Miss Richards as Lydia did unusual work for an amateur.

Frank Kane as Hugh Brass in "A Regular Fix," made the best of the opportunities which the part afforded him. He was very well supported by the rest of the cast. Miss Kathleen Watterworth was a pretty and enticing Emily; Orren Safford was a noble lover, Grace Thompson did a difficult romantic part well, William Steiner as an irritable lawyer got very mad indeed; Miss Colbraith as Deborah Cartah was extremely interesting, and Ernest Granowz as Smiler, a sheriff, and Joe Harrison as a porter were very well made up and did their parts without a hitch. Misses Campbell, Washburn and Jones as parlor maids were clever and pretty.

Altogether the class made it one of the most successful affairs ever held at the high school out of the event.

PASSENGERS ON OCEANIC.

London, April 20.—The White Star liner Oceanic, which is to sail from Liverpool April 22, for New York, will have among her passengers Mr. and Mrs. G. W. C. Drexel, Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hazard and Mrs. Levi Z. Leiter and Miss Leiter.

ALL THE INMATES ESCAPE.

Brantford Ont., April 20.—All the inmates of the Indian institute, which was burned last night, escaped without injury. A panic prevailed among the occupants during the fire and it was impossible to say at the time if all had escaped. The loss is $35,000, covered by insurance.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH.

Cures Catarrh by Nature's Own Method—Every Breath of Hyomei Brings Relief.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by drugging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes.

Until recently our physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate; but now with Hyomei you can carry a health-giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and there is enough Hyomei for more than a month's treatment of catarrh. If one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

S. F. Boyce has sold hundreds of Hyomei outfits and the more he sells, the more convinced he is that he is perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

Those who are subject to catarrh or catarrhal colds will do themselves an injustice if they do not purchase a Hyomei outfit at once, so as to be prepared for the sudden changes of the season.

OBSERVATORY COMBINE.

Professor Pickering Believes In Their Consolidation.

Cambridge, Mass., April 20.—Professor Pickering, of the Harvard observatory, is said to be projecting a combination of all the astronomical observatories in the world, so that their combined capital or endowment can be used by all.

The aggregate working capital is close to $10,000,000 and there are enormous incomes. Professor Pickering thinks there is too much money wasted in making observations and too much needless competition. His plan is to distribute more equitably the working funds and the staffs, as some stations have too many men at work and others too few.

Harvard would be custodian of the fund, including those of Carnegie Institute and the National academy, distributing them to the best advantage for the science.

A VANDERBILT TO MARRY.

Rumors That William K. Will Wed at Paris.

New York, April 20.—It is reported here, says the Paris correspondent of the American, that William K. Vanderbilt is to be married quietly here on Wednesday to a young American widow to whom he has recently been paying attention.

The name of the bride-to-be, who is at present living in Paris, is kept secret. She is reported to have visited New York a year ago, where she was entertained by her sister, an unmarried woman, who is in the secret of the approaching marriage to the exclusion of Mr. Vanderbilt's relatives in New York.

TREASURY NEXT

Department That Is Likely to Undergo a House-cleaning.

Secretary Shaw's Portrait Has Been Painted By Chartran.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—While the postoffice department is undergoing a shaking up such as has not been witnessed for years it is stated that the treasury department is also to undergo a housecleaning that seems to be very badly needed. The air of Washington seems to be charged with investigation. Clerks who have held office for many years are under surveillance and heads of bureaus tremble when some innocent looking document is posted calling for reports when some innocent looking document is posted calling for reports along certain lines. The last investigation to be ordered comes from the treasury department and is directed against the rubber stamp. Last January Secretary Shaw appointed a special investigating committee to inquire into the manner of accounting in his department and to suggest necessary improvements. This committee is about ready to make its report and the disclosures which are expected will give a shock to Secretary Shaw's well known insistence upon the manner of accounting. One of the men charged with the work of investigation said today that the public will be surprised to learn that millions of dollars are paid out of the United States treasury every year without any authority other than that conveyed by the name of some chief of a bureau or division placed in an order with a rubber stamp.

Secretary Leslie M. Shaw has had his portrait painted by Chartran, who executed portraits of President Roosevelt, Secretary Root and Mrs. Roosevelt. The pose chosen by the artist is thoroughly characteristic and true to life, the secretary being shown in a standing position wearing a frock coat, double-breasted waistcoat, while both hands are thrust into his trousers pockets. The friends of the secretary have intimated that the pose is undignified and that he should have kept his frock coat buttoned and placed his hands behind his back. The secretary does not mind this criticism, but he does object to a little wrinkle which in the living face is almost imperceptible, but in the portrait is most marked, so strongly has it been handled by the celebrated Frenchman. In fact, it leads one to believe that Mr. Shaw has at one stage in his career been cut across the bridge of the nose with a cleaver. Directly above the bridge of the nose Mr. Shaw's face in repose shows three distinct furrows or wrinkles, but the portrait painter has only caught one, which gives an observer the impression that the distinguished secretary might have fallen downstairs when an infant and cut a gash in his forehead. Secretary Shaw is proud of his wrinkles and says they must be indicated correctly in his portrait before it is hung up on the walls of the treasury department for future generations to gaze at and wonder what manner of man this was.

A party of fifty German agriculturists, among them members of the nobility, feudal land barons and scientists in the employ of Emperor William's government, have planned to make an extended tour of the United States beginning next month for the purpose of studying American methods of agriculture, beet growing and stock raising. The tremendous strides made by Uncle Sam's government in the last few years in all branches of human industry have been the marvel of the agricultural nations of the world. The German who has felt the slow, but sure encroachment of the United States upon the markets of the kaiser's domain is now coming to the United States to see for himself the reasons why Uncle Sam is leading the procession of the nations in commerce, the arts and science. The party will arrive in New York on May 1 and will there be met by a representative of the department of agriculture who will have personal charge of the party and look after the comforts of the representatives of the German nation while on tour. The party will spend a day in Washington then by a southern route to California, up the Pacific coast, returning to the Atlantic seaboard through the northern tier of states. The trip has been arranged with a view of enabling the visitors to inspect the great wheat regions of the West, the famous orchards of the North, the world renowned stock farms of the South and West and the great packing houses of Chicago, Kansas City and Omaha. One of the main objective points of the trip is to Lexington, Ky., the home of the thoroughbred and trotter. On the 9th of May the party will be in St. Louis, and after two days spent in looking over the exposition city they will go to Kansas City and to Omaha, where the representatives of the fatherland will be given an insight into the manner which the enormous cattle industry of the United States is conducted, and they will see for themselves how the animals are transported, slaughtered, and prepared for the markets of the world. Stops have been arranged at Des Moines and Odebolt, Iowa, and Kearney and Ames, Neb. The irrigation question will be looked into, and the reclamation of arid wastes investigated, particularly as it relates to the raising of the sugar beets, a staple crop of Germany. The great fruit raising farms of California and the Columbia will be inspected, and they will reach Mount Hood valley ust at the season when the famous strawberries of that locality are ripening under sunny skies. The trip will embrace nearly two months and will cover about ten thousand miles. As an educator the trip as outlined cannot be excelled, and the department of agriculture is enthusiastic over its possibilities in fixing upon the German mind the reason for America's greatness.

ARE YOU LOSING WEIGHT

If so then your system is out of balance, and there is a flaw somewhere in your constitution, and a possibility that you are losing health, too. The falling off in weight may be slight, but it makes a wonderful change in one's looks and feelings, and unless the building up process is begun in time, vitality and strength are soon gone and health quickly follows. If you are losing weight there is a cause for it. Your blood is deteriorating and becoming too poor to properly nourish the body, and it must be purified and enriched before lost weight is regained. It requires something more than an ordinary tonic to build up a feeble constitution, for unless the poisons and germs that are lurking in the blood are destroyed, they will further impoverish the blood and weaken the system, and you continue to lose weight.

In S. S. S. will be found purifying and tonic properties combined. It not only builds up weak constitutions, but searches out and destroys germs and poisons of every description and cleanses the system of all impurities, thus laying the foundation for a healthy, steady increase in weight and future good health.

Food may be bountiful and the appetite good, but still the system weakens and we remain poor in flesh unless what we eat is properly digested and turned into rich, pure blood. S. S. S. re-inforces the Stomach and aids the digestion and assimilation of food, and there is a rapid up-building of health and strength. S. S. S. acts promptly and beneficially upon the nervous system, strengthens and tones it up, and relieves the strain by producing sound, refreshing sleep. You can find no tonic so invigorating as S. S. S., and being composed exclusively of roots and herbs its use is attended with no bad effects. Old people will find that it braces them up, improves the circulation of the blood, and stimulates all the bodily organs, and persons of delicate constitutions can take S. S. S. with safety, as it does not derange the Stomach like the strong mineral remedies, but acts gently and without any shock to the system. Those whose feelings tell them they are not strong or well, and who are growing thinner and falling below their usual weight, should take a course of S. S. S. and build up again. S. S. S. is recognized everywhere as the leading blood purifier and the safest and best of all tonics. We cheerfully furnish medical advice, without charge, to all who will write us.

WONDERFUL GAIN IN WEIGHT.

Huntsville, Ala., Jan. 10, 1903.

Some years ago my general health gave way; my nervous system was shattered, and I could get nothing to do me any good till I began to use S. S. S. I commenced to improve at once. My appetite became splendid and from 135 pounds I increased to 180. I became well again by taking S. S. S. and would take no amount for the good it did me. My health is now perfect, and I believe if everybody would take a bottle of S. S. S. occasionally, they would enjoy life as I am doing. W. L. WINSTON.

OUTLAW IS KILLED

James McKinney Shot By Officers After a Long Pursuit.

Deputy Sheriff Killed and City Marshal Fatally Wounded.

Bakersfield, Cal., April 20.—The long and exciting pursuit of James McKinney, the outlaw from Kingman, Ariz., ended in a battle with the officers of the law within a few blocks of the business center of the town yesterday, two men being killed and one fatally wounded.

The killed:

JAMES McKINNEY, outlaw.

WILLIAM E. TIBBETTS, deputy sheriff.

Fatally wounded: Thomas J. Packard, city marshal.

The battle took place in a large two-story brick building on the outskirts of Chinatown, occupied by the Chinese members of the Suiong Tong as a lodging house, opium den and joss house. Here McKinney had been secreted for two or three days. He had a companion, Al Hulse, an ex-convict, who, being a member of a Chinese secret society, was enabled to enlist the aid and sympathy of the Orientals in harboring the outlaw.

Shortly before 11 o'clock yesterday morning Sheriffs Kelly of Kern, Collins of Tulare and Levin of Arizona, with Officers Will and Burt Tibbetts, Gus Tower and City Marshal Packard, surrounded the house in which McKinney was known to be hidden. Will Tibbets and Packard approached and ordered the outlaw to surrender. McKinney answered by shooting.

Will Tibbetts was shot through the stomach and died shortly afterward; Packard was shot through the neck and shoulders and dangerously wounded. Burt Tibbetts, a brother of the dead deputy sheriff, shot McKinney through the mouth and neck, killing him. The house was a regular fortress. McKinney had a sawed-off shotgun in his hand, while Hulse used a pistol. Hulse would not obey an order to surrender, and the fire department was ordered to the scene. Hulse then surrendered. He was taken to the county jail.

Another accomplice of McKinney was known to be in the house where the battle took place, but he would not surrender. The building was set on fire, and in fifteen minutes the man, who refused to give his name, was smoked out and taken to jail.

The feeling runs very high against Hulse, the evidence tending to show he is the man who killed Deputy Sheriff Tibbetts. The dead officer was a popular man and there is much talk of lynching.

McKinney was accused of having committed several murders. He was a native of California and was first sent to the penitentiary from Tulare county for assault to murder, and after his release went to Randsburg, Cal., where he figured in some further shooting trouble. In the latter part of 1900 he shot and killed Tom Sears, a gambler, at Bakersfield, as the result of a dispute over a game of cards. No one saw the fight, and McKinney was acquitted. Last July, in Porterfield, he killed Billy Lynn and wounded Constable John Willis and another man in a drunken row. He made a sensational escape, and for several months wandered practically unmolested around the country. A few weeks ago Sheriff Collins located him at Hermosillo, Mex., and an application for his extradition was made. The Mexican authorities, however, had released him before the arrival of the papers, and he disappeared again for parts unknown. Nothing more was heard of him until April 5, when news came from Kingman, Ariz., that McKinney had murdered Charles Blakely, known as "The Cowboy Pianist," and Roy Winchester, a young miner. Nothing definite is known of the cause of the murder.

After the shooting the murderer went to a ranch and compelled the ranchman to shoe two horses for him, and then rode away.

A posse started in pursuit of McKinney, but he eluded them and succeeded in reaching Bakersfield, where his two brothers live.

MYSTERY IS CLEARED UP

"Slim" Clifton Confesses to Killing Church and Wife.

Newcastle, Wyo., April 20.—The mystery surrounding the disappearance several weeks ago of J. W. Church, and his wife, has been cleared up by the confession of "Slim" Clifton. Clifton admits that he killed them and has told the authorities where the bodies were buried by him. When confronted with the evidence recently unearthed, Clifton broke down and confessed. Clifton is a rancher and lived near the Churches.

Clifton said that after murdering the Churches and hiding their bodies in a granary on the Church ranch temporarily, he hauled them two miles away and buried them. Before doing so, he stripped the bodies of jewelry, which he afterwards had made over into a ring for himself. He then drew up bills of sale in Church's name, and disposed of them, also some of the household goods, all the while making his abode on the Church ranch.

Clifton claims that he killed the couple in self-defense, shooting the woman first. It had been reported that the Churches and Clifton had had trouble over advances made to Mrs. Church by Clifton. Feeling is high in the neighborhood, which is southwest of Gillette, about twenty miles, and it is feared an attempt will be made to lynch Clifton.

NO NEED OF POSTPONING

Lipton Declines Offer of New York Yacht Club.

Weymouth, England, April 20.—The two Shamrocks left here yesterday at noon for Southampton. The challenger was towed by the Erin.

Sir Thomas Lipton was interviewed before the departure of the yachts. Describing the accident of last week, he said:

"When the challenger lost her mast there were certainly six feet of water over her lee deck. My first impression when the mast went, was that the boat was sinking. Later, when I was able to scramble up on deck, I found everything gone and the boats out doing rescue work. I never saw the seaman, Collier, in the water."

Sir Thomas was bewildered at the suddenness of the accident, and said that what immediately followed seemed to him like the confused remembrance of a dream.

Questioned as to his future course, he said he meant to work day and night to get the yacht refitted in time for further trials before sailing for New York. His desire was to avoid a postponement of the races.

Mr. Ward, Designer Fife and Capt. Wringe have had a conference and have promised to put the challenger in racing trim again in three weeks. It will be a big job. Designer Fife has condemned the homo, gaff, mast and topsail spars of the yacht and they will all be removed, as will the sails.

The decision against the postponement of the races as proposed was reached by the New York Yacht club after a long consultation, and yesterday Sir Thomas sent the following telegram to G. A. Cormack, secretary of the New York Yacht club:

"I am pleased to inform you that the damage to the Shamrock III will be righted in three or four weeks. There will be no necessity of considering the question of a postponement. Please communicate this to your committee, and also convey my warmest thanks for their expression of sympathy."

Sir Thomas said he saw nothing in the recent accident to lessen the great confidence he felt in the Shamrock III. If racing yachts are to be built, he said, there must be some risk. If we built a vessel as safe as a liner we might as well keep her at home for any chance she would have of winning the cup.

Designer Fife took the same view. He has never appeared so confident as he is now.

Mr. Ward said he was surprised and disappointed at the accident. The crew was the same as that used on the Shamrock II. He explained that every precaution had been taken in over 200 tests had been made of the fittings, and he had the utmost confidence in every detail of this part of the equipment.

The body of Collier has not been recovered. Sir Thomas Lipton has offered a reward for its recovery, and has made provision for Collier's widow and child.

The wrecked spars of the challenger were lifted to the quay today. Many sightseers were present to view the wreckage. The shell of the mast is of extraordinary thinness, being of 3-16-inch nickel steel. The length of the mast was 155 feet, and its greatest diameter 27 inches. That the metal was very tough is evidenced by the fact that it had been bent and rebent in various places without breaking. It is believed that the next trial races will take place on the Clyde in a month's time.

BRAKE REFUSED TO WORK

Thereby Causing Bad Accident on Pittsburg Car.

Pittsburg, April 20.—Because an electric brake refused to work, a crowded electric car ran away yesterday in Allegheny, wrecked a carriage, broke through the safety gates of the Fort Wayne railroad, derailed a fast moving freight train and then went to pieces. Almost all of the forty-five passengers aboard the car were hurt, though only one fatally. The injured: H. H. Church, hurt internally, several ribs broken, probably will die. Mrs. Emma Lowe, hurt internally; condition serious. J. E. Mitchell, wife and infant, badly bruised and shocked. Stephen Harrison, both wrists sprained. Bruce Harrison, scalp and face cut. C. A. Rider. Mrs. Vassel Bell. John Boph. Clarence J. Cochran. Mrs. Emma Booth, all suffered severe cuts and bruises.

LOSE MANY SHEEP.

Severe Winter and Disease Carry Them Off.

Salt Lake, Utah, April 20.—Between the ravages of an unusually severe winter and the breaking out of a malignant disease known as "Big head" among their flocks, within the past few weeks, the Herald says the sheepmen of Utah, Southern Idaho and Eastern Nevada are afraid that by the time they get their sheep to the summer grazing grounds their losses will be about 50 per cent of the number they had last fall. Should this estimate be correct, the loss in Utah alone will amount to about 1,000,000 head, and would be an unprecedented loss to sheep owners of this state.

THE CAUSE OF CANCER

Results of Investigations Will Soon Be Made Known.

New York, April 20.—In a few days the results of the investigations carried on for many months by a number of well known bacteriologists and toxicologists regarding the cause of cancer and cancerous growths will probably be fully revealed in a paper written by Dr. Bertram H. Buxton, the bacteriologist and general scientist. This paper will contain, according to a trustworthy source, the message that the cause of cancer has at last been discovered and that this truth has been proved to the satisfaction of a number of men who stand high in the science of medicines. Briefly, the investigations have revealed, according to statements made:

First, the cancer is due to the chemical changes in the blood.

Second, that every part of tissure of a cancer has the power of producing fermentation.

Third, that in their powers of causing fermentation the cancerous tissues are akin to the tissues of the stomach.

Fourth, that by proving this theory the theory that cancer was due to a parasite was disproved.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

A west-bound Lake Shore & Michigan Southern freight train was wrecked at South Bend, Ind., Sunday evening by the breaking of an air brake. Seven cars were piled up, obstructing the track and delaying trains several hours.

Robert Long, a carpenter of Johnstown, Pa., late Saturday night shot and killed Miss Emma Foust, then fired a shot into his head and died instantly. The shooting took place at the girls' home at Seanor, and was caused by jealousy.

The capsizing of a rowboat on a small lake six miles east of Kalasmine, Mich., resulted in a triple drowning Sunday. The victims are John Victor, his wife and Maggie Feuth, Maggie Victor's sister. All were from Kentucky. The unfortunates went down in the water when only six rods from the shore.

The Chicago Federation of Labor at a meeting Sunday night adopted a resolution recommending that the American Federation of Labor invade the state of Indiana with 100 organizers and with $100,000 to "build a bulwark of rebuke around D. M. Parry, president of the National Manufacturers' association.' The recent address of Mr. Prrry before the national mannfacturers in New Orleans inspired the resolution.

Mrs. Esther Paddock, aged 27 years, was killed Sunday falling from the third story of a rooming house. At Kansas City the police believe that she was thrown or pushed or thrown out of the window and her husband was arrested to be held pending an investigation of the case.

A fire Sunday night destroyed four tenements of Paterson, N. J., and caused a loss of more than $50,000. All the tenants in the house were in bed at the time of the fire, and, it was with great difficulty that they were rescued.

The Indian institute at Brantford, Ont., was destroyed by fire Sunday night. The institute is the property of the New England company and was established for the purpose of educating young Indian students. The loss is $35,000. When the fire started 150 boys and girls in the institution were asleep. They were aroused and the wildest panic followed. It is impossible to ay as yet whether all were saved.

Arthur Van Meter, a prominent merchant of Salt Lake, Utah, Sunday, broke a self-imposed fast begun over forty days ago for the cure of dropsy. During this time he has lived entirely on water. He suffered no distress after the first three days and appeared to grow strong and healthy. The dropsical condition has entirely disappeared. When he began the remarkable fast he weighed 250 pounds; now he weighs 125.

As the result of a shooting affair at Smelth, Mich., early Sunday, following a dance, Mrs. Ella Hodge, aged 21 years, was killed, Louis Roth, a constable, was shot through the foot and six other men were grazed by bullets. Hodge and Frank Barrwell, his brother-in-law, are under arrest.

By means of the rural telephone service in the vicinity of Edwardsville, Ill., eighteen miles east of St. Louis, a posse of farmers was quickly summoned Sunday to capture two supposed robbers, and in the fight that followed Frank Charles, of Mobile, Ala., one of the two men, was perhaps fatally shot and his companion escaped after a three-mile chase.

BOBLETER LIKELY

To Succeed Gen. Bend In Command of the Brigade.

Maj. Wright to Succeed to Command of Second Regiment.

Lake City, Minn., April 20.—General orders No. 8, recently issued by Adjt. Gen. Libbey, will be received by the various company commanders with much favor—that, is, the part which provides that the annual allowance will be based on the number of men present for muster by a government at the home station, instead of having to take the men to camp, as was necessary last year.

The order further urges company commanders to spare no means to muster their full strength, as the allowance of magazine arms and equipments, under act of congress, is to be based upon the number of men present at muster. The dates of this inspection will be announced later.

The plans adopted last year became very unpopular, and it is thought company commanders will have much trouble in bringing out large companies to camp this year owing to the camp inspection. The officers and men much prefer to have these inspections held at the company station, and spend what little time they have at camp in battalion and regimental evolutions.

General orders No. 7 makes the following changes:

Commissioned—Samuel A. Nelson, Lanesboro, and Paul H. Gotzain, St. Paul, to be aides-de-camp, general staff, with rank of colonel; First regiment, John F. Snow, St. Paul, captain; George K. Shepard, to be first lieutenant and Fred C. Robinson, to be second lieutenant, all of Company C, Second regiment; Albert Pfaender, to be first lieutenant, and Fred Staltz, second lieutenant, Company A, New Ulm. Third regiment, John McKee Heffner, to be second lieutenant, Company F, of Brainerd. Albert F. Pray, Minneapolis, to be ordnance officer. First battalion of artillery. Faithful service medals for fifteen years' service are awarded to Capt. C. C. Bennett and Lieut. F. B. Bruce, Battery B, Minneapolis.

Col. Joseph Bobleter will succeed Gen. Bend as brigade commander, and Maj. A. W. Wright, of Austin, will be chosen to command the Second regiment. Maj. George S. Whitney will be elected lieutenant colonel, thus leaving Maj. Fred B. Wood, of Austin, now junior major, as the senior.

There will then be two vacancies of majors and it is more than probable that Capt. A. G. Chase, of Faribault, commanding Company B, and Lieut. Harry L. Bullis, judge advocate, of Blue Earth City, will be chosen for these positions. Lieut. Bullis is a popular officer and has been a member of the regiment for fifteen years. He served with the Twelfth Minnesota as a battalion adjutant.

It is said that Capt. John Buschere, Company A, New Ulm, and Capt. Anton Schaefer, Company I, Owatonna, will also be candidates, and it is probable other candidates may develop before the election is called.

In the Third regiment Lieut. Col. C. E. Johnson, of Mankato, is the only one affected by the new law, and his re-election will be unanimous. In the First regiment there will be no opposition to Col. C. McC. Reeve. It is said that Gen. Bend, realizing the inevitable, will tender his resignation prior to the election.

Maj. T. C. Clark, of Stillwater, has accepted an appointment as surgeon major of the Third regiment. Sergt. James Ferguson, formerly of the medical corps, will be made hospital steward. Col. Van Duzes will decide later on the assistant stewards. Maj. C. E. Dutton, of Minneapolis, will be placed on the retired list. The old medical department organization will shortly be mustered out.

Sergt. Henry Madson, Company H, Second regiment, Mankato, has received his commission as second lieutenant.

Sergt. Frank D. Knowlton, Company C, Third regiment, Duluth, has also received a like commission.

Word has been received that Lieut. Col. Philip Reade, Twenty-third infantry, now stationed at Fort Niobrara, Kans., has been ordered to the Philippines and his address will hereafter be Manila.

GREEKS CAUSE DISTURBANCE

Three Are Shot By an Officer In Chicago.

Chicago, April 20.—Because one of their number had been arrested for creating a disturbance, a crowd of Greeks, who were celebrating their Easter Sunday here yesterday, created a riot, and before the mob could be dispersed, three of them had been shot by Policeman Cohen and Henry Oppenheimer, a bystander, who came to the assistance of Cohen. The three wounded men, who are said to have been the leaders of the attack on the officer, were arrested. None of them were seriously injured.

The disturbance occurred near the Greek Catholic church, in Johnson street. During the Easter celebration some one threw a lighted fire cracker among the pedestrians in the street, and Policeman Cohen immediately arrested the offender. The crowd attacked the officer, knocking him down with a brick. Cohen sprang to his feet and fired a shot into the crowd, hitting Nick Rizito in the left shoulder. This act infuriated the mob, which again rushed at the officer, and probably would have killed him, had not Oppenheimer sprung to his assistance. He held the crowd at bay for a moment until Cohen could recover from the attack. Surrounded by the maddened cried, they fired several shots, wounding two of the disturbers, James Chipanvitz and John Leletts by name.

Cohen and his companion, after being severely bruised and having their clothing almost torn from their bodies, managed to escape to a saloon, where they held the crowd back until the arrival of police aid, which dispersed the mob.

GROWTH OF IMPORTS

Exceeded One Billion Dollars In Year Ending With March.

Increase In Imports Is Chiefly In Manufacturers' Materials.

Washington, April 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The imports into the United States exceeded one billion dollars in the twelve months ending with March, 1903. This is the first time in the history of our foreign commerce in which the imports in twelve months have exceeded $1,000,000,000. Prior to 1870 they had never reached as much as a half million dollars in a single year, and it was not until 1890 that they reached three-quarters of a million dollars in value, and now for the first time they have passed the billion-dollar line. Meantime the exports have grown with like rapidity. In the twelve months ending with March, 1903, the total exports were 1,414,786,954, against $1,061,596,583 of imports, giving an excess of exports during the twelve months of $413,399,371. Exports never reached a half billion dollars' value in a single year until after 1870, in 1880 they passed, for the first time, the three-quarters of a billion dollar line; in 1892 they for the first time exceeded $1,000,000,000, and in the twelve months ending with March 1903, they were $1,414,786,954; and should the exports of April, May and June average as high as those for March, they would bring the total exportations for the fiscal year past the $1,500,000,000 line.

The growth in imports has been especially marked during the past five years, in the twelve months ending with March, 1900, they were 900 millions in value; in the twelve months ending with March, 1900, 838 millions; in the twelve months ending with March, 1903, $1,001,596,688. While it is not customary to state the foreign commerce by annual periods ending with March, the fact that the figures just presented by the treasury bureau of statistics which cover the twelve months ending with March, 1903, show, for the first time, a total importation of one billion dollars in a twelve months' period justifies a presentation of the figures for an annual period ending with March and covering a term of years.

	Total imports.	Total exports.
1895	$ 704,215,585	$ 805,720,397
1896	804,091,352	882,731,707
1897	670,941,016	1,026,646,341
1898	721,116,906	1,154,618,432
1899	690,818,871	1,253,539,929
1900	828,761,870	1,332,863,022
1901	807,591,823	1,480,521,013
1902	902,440,030	1,429,083,878
1903	1,001,596,683	1,414,786,954

This increase in importation is chiefly in manufacturers' materials. While the details of the March imports are not yet completed by the treasury bureau of statistics, the figures for February and for the eight months ending with February show a marked increase in the proportion which manufacturers' materials form of the total importations. In the month of February alone manufacturers' materials formed more than fifty per cent of the total imports. Of the total imports of February, 1903, 51.3 per cent were manufacturers' materials, while in February, 1902, only 47.4 per cent were manufacturers' materials. In the eight months ending with February, 1903, manufacturers' materials amounted to 220 million dollars, against 270 millions in the corresponding months of the preceding year, an increase of fifty million dollars, or nearly 20 per cent. In the fiscal year 1885 manufacturers' materials formed 33 per cent of the total imports; in 1895, 33 per cent; in 1899, 40 per cent; in 1902, 46 per cent; in the eight months ending with February, 1902, 47 per cent; and in the month of February, 1903, 51 per cent.

tant, and help may be brought from there. Except Japan, no nation has equal facilities to succor its people in China, and Uncle Sam may be called upon to play a more prominent part than is to his liking. If anything serious is going to happen, it will come suddenly. These Orientals are not in the habit of giving fair warning when they are bent upon mischief.

After all it must be said that the United States, although keeping modestly in the background, while other powers were roaring and tearing, has as much interest in the preservation of law and order in China. Excepting those interested in the Oriental trade there are few Americans, I fancy, who have even a slight idea of our commerce with the Celestial Empire. The best gauge by which to judge is by the facilities for transportation, since steamship companies run their boats neither for honor nor for glory.

The Pacific Mail Steamship company is the pioneer of the trans-Pacific carriers. Until 1875 its monthly steamer had the monopoly, with its old side wheelers, taking from twtney-four to thirty-two days in waddling across. In that year the Southern Pacific leased three White Star liners and entered into competition, but the Chinese exclusion act rendered the service unremunerative. In 1890 a slight interest arose in the far East, and globe-trotting began. The Canadian Pacific railway catered to this trade and inaugurated its trans-Pacific service with the fine Empress boats. Two years later the Northern Pacific Steamship company was formed to connect with the railway of that name at Tacoma. Thus, ten years ago, there were only plying between this continent and China: The Canadian Pacific Steamship company, three steamers, Vancouver to Hongkong; the Northern Pacific Steamship company, three steamers, Tacoma to Hongkong; the Pacific Mail Steamship company, four steamers, San Francisco to Hongkong; the O. & O. company (Southern Pacific), three steamers, San Francisco to Hongkong, or altogether thirteen steamers.

The general depression coincident with and subsequent to the World's fair gave a strong impetus to our trade with China and Japan. In 1895 Messrs. Samuel Samuel & Co. established a line between Hong Kong and Portland, Ore. This line is now operated by the Oregon Short Line under the name of the Portland-Asiatic S. S. company. The following year the Nippon Yusen Kaisha (Japan Mail S. S. company) inaugurated a monthly service from Hong Kong to Seattle. Since 1901 its steamers sail twice a month. In the same year the Togo Kisen Kaisha connected its three magnificent steamers with the two San Francisco companies, and since then one steamer leaves that port every ten days. In 1897 the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe leased three boats to ply between San Diego, Cal., and Hong Kong; a new line has since been established in connection with that railway, but the terminus is San Francisco. Last year the Boston Steamship company began its service with six large boats, and this year the two immense vessels built for J. J. Hill will be added to the fleet. We have, therefore, in addition to the thirteen steamers enumerated above: Portland and Asiatic Steamship company, three steamers, Portland to Hong Kong; Nippon Yusen Kaisha, five steamers, Seattle to Hong Kong; Togo Kisen Kaisha, three steamers, San Francisco to Hong Kong; California & Oriental Steamship company, three steamers, San Francisco to Hong Kong; Boston Steamship company, six steamers, Tacoma to Hong Kong; Great Northern Steamship company, two steamers, Seattle to Hong Kong; or an additional twenty-two steamers, making a fleet of thirty-five large boats plying across the Pacific.

All these lines, it will be noticed, are in connection with one of the transcontinental railways. These steamers call at Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki, in Japan, and Shanghai in China. But this is not all. There are five steamship lines from New York to Yokohama via the Suez canal, and the Standard Oil company has a fleet of sailing vessels loading or sailing for the far East.

In magnitude the flour trade, at present almost wholly from the Pacific coast, stands first, with the Standard Oil a close second. Next come manufactured cottons. There are numbers of cotton mills, in New England and the South, operating exclusively for the China trade. Raw cotton is heavily exported to Japan. The Pacific coast also does a considerable export of lumber, especially to North China, where timber is very scarce; and of late fruit, especially canned fruits, find a ready market. There used to be a great demand for American machinery; but manufacturers are kept busy supplying the home market, and have permitted, or have been compelled, to stop the supply in the Orient.

It will be readily understood that, with the magnitude of American interests, the number of American merchants residing in the open or treaty ports is comparatively large. It is not very pleasant to be exiled from home and country for any length of time, and of all parts of the globe, China, I think, is least attractive; there are too many Chinese here. Fancy living years in succession in the midst of Chinese laundries, and remember that those laundries are palaces compared to most of the hovels in the interior or away from the foreign settlements. The sights and scenes are more than disagreeable, and the scent peculiar to the Chinese is thrown in.

In ordinary times there is no danger in the open ports, and Shanghai has an excellent municipal system, especially is its police force very effective. The majority of the patrolmen are Chinese in the employ of the municipality. They are intended to keep order among their fellow-queue-bearers. Next in number come the Sikhs, natives of India, splendid-looking fellows, their heavily bearded heads surmounted with the red turban; the officers of the force are white men, mostly British. For extraordinary events there is a volunteer corps of about 1000 men, acting in the capacity of our National Guards. This volunteer corps counts several Americans, and many of them have been under fire.

There are always one or more gunboats at Shanghai. Large men-of-war cannot come near the city on account of the bar near Woosung, where there is only nineteen feet of water at high tide. The river, too, is shallow. By the peace protocol which ended the Boxer troubles a conservancy board was established to provide for the deepening of the channel and dredging the bar. By the way, one of your Minnesotans, Hon. John Goodnow, United States consul general, is the president of that board. The funds are provided, and in a few years, if serious trouble can be averted at this time, Shanghai will be in a better position to defy a Chinese attack.

But, as things are looking now, it does not appear as if they will give us much respite. There is a good deal of smuggling of arms and ammunition, and there is a general belief that the provincial troops are being drilled by Japanese officers. It is my opinion, and I give it as such, that the Mandarins and literati, that is, the whole official class, is bent upon our extermination. It is almost impossible to arouse the Chinese unless their officers undertake the work, and then they run amuck. Every attack upon foreigners has been traced to these people, and every riot or disturbance has been instigated by them. That is, I think, the reason why no serious effort has been made to restore law and order in the disturbed provinces. The authorities sympathize and the rebels know it.

The Boxer disturbances were kept local in the northern provinces, through the efforts of the two leading Yang tsz viceroys, Chang Chih-tung and Lui K'un-yi. The latter died some six months ago, but Chang Chih-tung has always disliked foreigners, although he maintained law and order in his provinces. But it is well understood that, if China were fully prepared, or even if there was a fair chance of success, he would not hesitate one moment to put himself at the head of a united movement against us. His name, too, is a tower of strength among all classes of Chinese, because even foreigners give him credit for incorruptibility. But, while he has confidence in China's innate strength, and has done very much to develop her resources, by the opening of mines, the construction of small railways and the establishment of modern factories, he knows quite well that his country at present cannot cope with the civilized world. The question is if his sympathy will not get the better of his good judgment. If Chang Chih-tung throws his weight in favor of the attempt, we shall stand face to face with the united Yang tsz provinces, and the open ports will be in serious danger.

We have nothing to fear from the court. The empress dowager has had a severe lesson which she is not likely to forget. But the government has lost a great deal of its prestige in the provinces by saddling the last indemnity upon the people and by interfering in purely provincial matters. It is not generally known that the Chinese empire is really a federation of eighteen autonomous provinces, and that the central government has never dared interfere with provincial or local laws, its authority being confined to the appointment of officials who, in return, see that the stipulated contribution toward the court's support is regularly paid. Hitherto the provinces have acted individually and independently, but since the signing of the protocol the viceroys have had several telegraphic conferences and the result is visible in the concerted action taken by them. Herein lies the most serious cause of anxiety.

What will be the end of it? That can only be answered after the end has arrived. Of this we may be sure: China may be conquered, but the Chinese never will be, and it remains to be seen, would it be a good thing for us if these 400,000,000 people are placed under tutelage and compelled to adopt our modern way.

BOBLETER LIKELY

To Succeed Gen. Bend In Command of the Brigade.

Maj. Wright to Succeed to Command of Second Regiment.

Lake City, Minn., April 20.—General orders No. 8, recently issued by Adjt. Gen. Libbey, will be received by the various company commanders with much favor—that, is, the part which provides that the annual allowance will be based on the number of men present for muster by a government at the home station, instead of having to take the men to camp, as was necessary last year.

The order further urges company commanders to spare no means to muster their full strength, as the allowance of magazine arms and equipments, under act of congress, is to be based upon the number of men present at muster. The dates of this inspection will be announced later.

The plans adopted last year became very unpopular, and it is thought company commanders will have much trouble in bringing out large companies to camp this year owing to the camp inspection. The officers and men much prefer to have these inspections held at the company station, and spend what little time they have at camp in battalion and regimental evolutions.

General orders No. 7 makes the following changes:

Commissioned—Samuel A. Nelson, Langeboro, and Paul H. Gotzain, St. Paul, to be aides-de-camp, general staff, with rank of colonel; First regiment, John F. Snow, St. Paul, captain; George K. Shepard, to be first lieutenant and Fred C. Robinson, to be second lieutenant, all of Company C, Second regiment; Albert Pfaender, to be first lieutenant, and Fred Stultz, second lieutenant, Company A, New Ulm. Third regiment, John McKee Heffner, to be second lieutenant, Company F, of Brainerd. Albert F. Pray, Minneapolis, to be ordnance officer, First battalion of artillery. Faithful service medals for fifteen years' service are awarded to Capt. C. C. Bennett and Lieut. F. B. Bruce, Battery B, Minneapolis.

Col. Joseph Bobleter will succeed Gen. Bend as brigade commander, and Maj. A. W. Wright, of Austin, will be chosen to command the Second regiment. Maj. George S. Whitney will be elected lieutenant colonel, thus leaving Maj. Fred B. Wood, of Austin, now junior major, as the senior.

There will then be two vacancies of majors and it is more than probable that Capt. A. G. Chase, of Faribault, commanding Company B, and Lieut. Harry L. Bullis, judge advocate, of Blue Earth City, will be chosen for these positions. Lieut. Bullis is a popular officer and has been a member of the regiment for fifteen years. He served with the Twelfth Minnesota as a battalion adjutant.

It is said that Capt. John Buschere, Company A, New Ulm, and Capt. Anton Schaefer, Company I, Owatonna, will also be candidates, and it is probable other candidates may develop before the election is called.

In the Third regiment Lieut. Col. C. E. Johnson, of Mankato, is the only one affected by the new law, and his re-election will be unanimous. In the First regiment there will be no opposition to Col. C. McC. Reeve. It is said that Gen. Bend, realizing the inevitable, will tender his resignation prior to the election.

Maj. T. C. Clark, of Stillwater, has accepted an appointment as surgeon major of the Third regiment. Sergt. James Ferguson, formerly of the medical corps, will be made hospital steward. Col. Van Duzes will decide later on the assistant stewards. Maj. C. E. Dutton, of Minneapolis, will be placed on the retired list. The old medical department organization will shortly be mustered out.

Sergt. Henry Madson, Company H, Second regiment, Mankato, has received his commission as second lieutenant.

Sergt. Frank D. Knowlton, Company C, Third regiment, Duluth, has also received a like commission.

Word has been received that Lieut. Col. Philip Reade, Twenty-third infantry, now stationed at Fort Niobrara, Kans., has been ordered to the Philippines and his address will hereafter be Manila.

GREEKS CAUSE DISTURBANCE

Three Are Shot By an Officer In Chicago.

Chicago, April 20.—Because one of their number had been arrested for creating a disturbance, a crowd of Greeks, who were celebrating their Easter Sunday here yesterday, created a riot, and before the mob could be dispersed, three of them had been shot by Policeman Cohen and Henry Oppenheimer, a bystander, who came to the assistance of Cohen. The three wounded men, who are said to have been the leaders of the attack on the officer, were arrested. None of them were seriously injured.

The disturbance occurred near the Greek Catholic church, in Johnson street. During the Easter celebration some one threw a lighted fire cracker among the pedestrians in the street, and Policeman Cohen immediately arrested the offender. The crowd attacked the officer, knocking him down with a brick. Cohen sprang to his feet and fired a shot into the crowd, hitting Nick Rizito in the left shoulder. This act infuriated the mob, which again rushed at the officer, and probably would have killed him, had not Oppenheimer sprung to his assistance. He held the crowd at bay for a moment until Cohen could recover from the attack. Surrounded by the maddened cried, they fired several shots, wounding two of the disturbers, James Chipanvitz and John Leletts by name.

Cohen and his companion, after being severely bruised and having their clothing almost torn from their bodies, managed to escape to a saloon, where they held the crowd back until the arrival of police aid, which dispersed the mob.

GROWTH OF IMPORTS

Exceeded One Billion Dollars In Year Ending With March.

Increase In Imports Is Chiefly In Manufacturers' Materials.

Washington, April 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The imports into the United States exceeded one billion dollars in the twelve months ending with March, 1903. This is the first time in the history of our foreign commerce in which the imports in twelve months have exceeded $1,000,000,000. Prior to 1870 they had never reached as much as a half million dollars in a single year, and it was not until 1890 that they reached three-quarters of a million dollars in value, and now for the first time they have passed the billion-dollar line. Meantime the exports have grown with like rapidity. In the twelve months ending with March, 1903, the total exports were 1,414,786,954, against $1,001,596,583 of imports, giving an excess of exports during the twelve months of $412,190,271. Exports never reached a half billion dollars' value in a single year until after 1879. in 1880 they passed, for the first time, the three-quarters of a billion dollar line; in 1892 they for the first time exceeded $1,000,000,000, and in the twelve months ending with March 1893, they were $1,414,786,954; and should the exports of April, May and June average as high as those for March, they would bring the total exportations for the fiscal year past the $1,500,000,000 line.

The growth in imports has been especially marked during the past five years. In the twelve months ending with March, 1899, they were 699 millions in value; for the twelve months ending with March, 1900, 838 millions; in the twelve months ending with March, 1903, $1,001,596,688. While it is not customary to state the foreign commerce by annual periods ending with March, the fact that the figures just presented by the treasury bureau of statistics which cover the twelve months ending with March, 1903, show, for the first time, a total importation of one billion dollars in a twelve months' period justifies a presentation of the figures for an annual period ending with March and covering a term of years.

	Total imports.	Total exports.
1895	$ 704,215,585	$ 805,720,397
1896	844,091,352	882,731,707
1897	670,941,016	1,026,646,341
1898	721,116,936	1,154,618,452
1899	699,838,871	1,253,589,929
1900	838,761,870	1,392,863,922
1901	807,591,823	1,480,521,013
1902	902,440,030	1,429,083,878
1903	1,001,596,983	1,414,786,954

This increase in importation is chiefly in manufacturers' materials. While the details of the March imports are not yet completed by the treasury bureau of statistics, the figures for February and for the eight months ending with February show a marked increase in the proportion which manufacturers' materials form of the total importations. In the month of February alone manufacturers' materials formed more than fifty per cent of the total imports. Of the total imports of February, 1903, 51.2 per cent were manufacturers' materials, while in February, 1902, only 47.4 per cent were manufacturers' materials. In the eight months ending with February, 1903, manufacturers' materials amounted to 220 million dollars, against 270 millions in the corresponding months of the preceding year, an increase of fifty million dollars, or nearly 20 per cent. In the fiscal year 1895 manufacturers' materials formed 33 per cent of the total imports; in 1895, 37 per cent; in 1900, 40 per cent; in 1902, 46 per cent; in the eight months ending with February, 1903, 47 per cent; and in the month of February, 1903, 51 per cent.

taut, and help may be brought from there. Except Japan, no nation has equal facilities to succor its people in China, and Uncle Sam may be called upon to play a more prominent part than is to his liking. If anything serious is going to happen, it will come suddenly. These Orientals are not in the habit of giving fair warning when they are bent upon mischief.

After all it must be said that the United States, although keeping modestly in the background, while other powers were roaring and tearing, has as much interest in the preservation of law and order in China. Excepting those interested in the Oriental trade there are few Americans, I fancy, who have even a slight idea of our commerce with the Celestial Empire. The best gauge by which to judge is by the facilities for transportation, since steamship companies run their boats neither for honor nor for glory.

The Pacific Mail Steamship company is the pioneer of the trans-Pacific carriers. Until 1875 its monthly steamer had the monopoly, with its old side wheelers, taking from twtney-four to thirty-two days in waddling across. In that year the Southern Pacific leased three White Star liners and entered into competition, but the Chinese exclusion act rendered the service unremunerative. In 1890 a slight interest arose in the far East, and globe-trotting began. The Canadian Pacific railway catered to this trade and inaugurated its trans-Pacific service with the fine Empress boats. Two years later the Northern Pacific Steamship company was formed to connect with the railway of that name at Tacoma. Thus, ten years ago, there were only plying between this continent and China: The Canadian Pacific Steamship company, three steamers, Vancouver to Hongkong; the Northern Pacific Steamship company, three steamers, Tacoma to Hongkong; the Pacific Mail Steamship company, four steamers, San Francisco to Hongkong; the O. & O. company (Southern Pacific), three steamers, San Francisco to Hongkong, or altogether thirteen steamers.

The general depression coincident with and subsequent to the World's fair gave a strong impetus to our trade with China and Japan. In 1895 Messrs. Samuel Samuel & Co. established a line between Hong Kong and Portland, Ore. This line is now operated by the Oregon Short Line under the name of the Portland-Asiatic S. S. company. The following year the Nippon Yusen Kaisha (Japan Mail S. S. company) inaugurated a monthly service from Hong Kong to Seattle. Since 1901 its steamers sail twice a month. In the same year the Togo Kisen Kaisha connected its three magnificent steamers with the two San Francisco companies, and since then one steamer leaves that port every ten days. In 1897 the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe leased three boats to ply between San Diego, Cal., and Hong Kong; a new line has since been established in connection with that railway, but the terminus is San Francisco. Last year the Boston Steamship company began its service with six large boats, and this year the two immense vessels built for J. J. Hill will be added to the fleet. We have, therefore, in addition to the thirteen steamers enumerated above: Portland and Asiatic Steamship company, three steamers, Portland to Hong Kong; Nippon Yusen Kaisha, five steamers, Seattle to Hong Kong; Togo Kisen Kaisha, three steamers, San Francisco to Hong Kong; California & Oriental Steamship company, three steamers, San Francisco to Hong Kong; Boston Steamship company, six steamers, Tacoma to Hong Kong; Great Northern Steamship company, two steamers, Seattle to Hong Kong; or an additional twenty-two steamers, making a fleet of thirty-five large boats plying across the Pacific.

All these lines, it will be noticed, are in connection with one of the transcontinental railways. These steamers call at Yokohama, Kobe and Nagasaki, in Japan, and Shanghai in China. But this is not all. There are five steamship lines from New York to Yokohama via the Suez canal, and the Standard Oil company has a fleet of sailing vessels loading or sailing for the far East.

In magnitude the flour trade, at present almost wholly from the Pacific coast, stands first, with the Standard Oil a close second. Next come manufactured cottons. There are numbers of cotton mills, in New England and the South, operating exclusively for the China trade. Raw cotton is heavily exported to Japan. The Pacific coast also does a considerable export of lumber, especially to North China, where timber is very scarce; and of late fruit, especially canned fruits, find a ready market. There used to be a great demand for American machinery; but manufacturers are kept busy supplying the home market, and have permitted, or have been compelled, to stop the supply in the Orient.

It will be readily understood that, with the magnitude of American interests, the number of American merchants residing in the open or treaty ports is comparatively large. It is not very pleasant to be exiled from home and country for any length of time, and of all parts of the globe, China, I think, is least attractive; there are too many Chinese here. Fancy living years in succession in the midst of Chinese laundries and remember that those laundries are palaces compared to most of the hovels in the interior or away from the foreign settlements. The sights and scenes are more than disagreeable, and the scent peculiar to the Chinese is thrown in.

In ordinary times there is no danger in the open ports, and Shanghai has an excellent municipal system, especially is its police force very effective. The majority of the patrolmen are Chinese in the employ of the municipality. They are intended to keep order among their fellow-queue-bearers. Next in number come the Sikhs, natives of India, splendid-looking fellows, their heavily bearded heads surmounted with the red turban; the officers of the force are white men, mostly British. For extraordinary events there is a volunteer corps of about 1000 men, acting in the capacity of our National Guards. This volunteer corps counts several Americans, and many of them have been under fire.

There are always one or more gunboats at Shanghai. Large men-of-war cannot come near the city on account of the bar near Woosung, where there is only nineteen feet of water at high tide. The river, too, is shallow. By the peace protocol which ended the Boxer troubles a conservancy board was established to provide for the deepening of the channel and dredging the bar. By the way, one of your Minnesotans, Hon. John Goodnow, United States consul general, is the president of that board. The funds are provided, and in a few years, if serious trouble can be averted at this time, Shanghai will be in a better position to defy a Chinese attack.

But, as things are looking now, it does not appear as if they will give us much respite. There is a good deal of smuggling of arms and ammunition, and there is a general belief that the provincial troops are being drilled by Japanese officers. It is my opinion, and I give it as such, that the Mandarins and literati, that is, the whole official class, is bent upon our extermination. It is almost impossible to arouse the Chinese unless their officers undertake the work, and then they run amuck. Every attack upon foreigners has been traced to these people, and every riot or disturbance has been instigated by them. That is, I think, the reason why no serious effort has been made to restore law and order in the disturbed provinces. The authorities sympathize and the rebels know it.

The Boxer disturbances were kept local in the northern provinces, through the efforts of the two leading Yang tsz viceroys, Chang Chih-tung and Lui K'un-yi. The latter died some six months ago, but Chang Chih-tung has always disliked foreigners, although he maintained law and order in his provinces. But it is well understood that, if China were fully prepared, or even if there was a fair chance of success, he would not hesitate one moment to put himself at the head of a united movement against us. His name, too, is a tower of strength among all classes of Chinese, because even foreigners give him credit for incorruptibility. But, while he has confidence in China's innate strength, and has done very much to develop her resources, by the opening of mines, the construction of small railways and the establishment of modern factories, he knows quite well that his country at present cannot cope with the civilized world. The question is if his sympathy will not get the better of his good judgment. If Chang Chih-tung throws his weight in favor of the attempt, we shall stand face to face with the united Yang tsz provinces, and the open ports will be in serious danger.

We have nothing to fear from the court. The empress dowager has had a severe lesson which she is not likely to forget. But the government has lost a great deal of its prestige in the provinces by saddling the last indemnity upon the people and by interfering in purely provincial matters. It is not generally known that the Chinese empire is really a federation of eighteen autonomous provinces, and that the central government has never dared interfere with provincial or local laws, its authority being confined to the appointment of officials who, in return, see that the stipulated contribution toward the court's support is regularly paid. Hitherto the provinces have acted individually and independently, but since the signing of the protocol the viceroys have had several telegraphic conferences and the result is visible in the concerted action taken by them. Herein lies the most serious cause of anxiety.

What will be the end of it? That can only be answered after the end has arrived. Of this we may be sure: China may be conquered, but the Chinese never will be, and it remains to be seen, would it be a good thing for us if these 400,000,000 people are placed under tutelage and compelled to adopt our modern way.

WHEAT IS STEADY

Chicago the Only Higher Market—Duluth Is Unchanged.

Export Demand Falls Off —Flax Quiet and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 20.—Chicago was the aggressive market in the May option, there being an advance there of ⅝c as compared with no change in Duluth and a slightly lower market in Minneapolis. The advance in Chicago was due to the manipulation of the Armour interests. The export demand that was so good all of last week had apparently fallen off today. The Duluth exporters found the foreigners showing no disposition to buy and New York only reported 12 loads taken for export. The Liverpool market was lower, ⅛ to ¼d down on the old and ¼d on thre new, but Paris was ¼ to ½c higher. Foreign advices were that the weather over there was improved and Liverpool reported an increased movement of Russian wheat.

The world's shipments last week were large, aggregating 9,068,000 bus, against 8,577,000 bus, the previous week and 7,470,000 bus last year. The amount on passage decreased 544,000 bus. The visible supply showed a large decrease, 2,893,000 bus, against a decrease of 1,794,000 bus, the previous week and 2,370,000 bus a year ago. The total is now 37,271,000 bus, against 44,241,000 bus last year at that time.

Primary receipts of wheat were 375,000 bus, last year 295,000 bus. Shipments 425,000 bus, last year 485,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 660,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 192 cars, and at Chicago 36, a total of 228 cars, against 341 last week and 237 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½d higher. May corn in Chicago closed ¼c lower and May oats unchanged. Primary receipts of corn were 380,000 bus, last year 262,000 bus. Shipments 1,401,000 bus, last year 508,000 bus. Clearances were 445,000 bus. The world's shipments of corn last week were 6,743,000 bus, against 3,3600,000 bus the previous week and 2,769,000 bus last year. The amount on passage decreased 344,000 bus. The visible supply of corn decreased 625,000 bus last week and is now 5,344,000 bus, against 7,226,000 bus a year ago.

Wheat opened the week on the Duluth board with quiet trading. May opened unchanged at 77⅝c, sold at 77¼c and fell back to 77⅛c within the first couple of minutes and then advanced to 77⅝c at 9:48. In the next hour it lost ½c selling at 77⅛c at 10:48. After that it worked upward again selling at 77¼c at 12:50 and closed at 77⅜c.

Sales were light, being about 4000 bus.

Flax was quiet and lower, the May and July options losing 3c and September 1c. Receipts are running rather light, Duluth having 15 cars and Minneapolis 12.

There was an advance of ½c in rye to arrive, c track and May.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat, to arrive, No. 1 hard, 75¾c; No. 1 northern, 77⅝c; No. 2 northern, 76¼c; May, No. 1 hard, 198¾c; No. 1 northern, 77⅜c; July, 76¾c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was fairly strong most of the day. The cables early were a little disappointing, but created little selling pressure, and Armour supported prices, particularly on the May throughout the session. Broomhall cabled that the weather is better both in France and England and weakness in Liverpool was due to that and large Russian offerings. Also that the recent rains in Spain have been insufficient and that the crops is suffering from drought and high temperature. There was less talk about export business in American markets and the sales for the day were only moderate. Local manipulation is so important a factor at the moment that confident opinions are difficult. As long as continental markets continue their upward tendency, probably wheat should be bought on weak spots. Estimated cars, 45.

Corn—The market here was quiet and easier. A little better tendency to the weather throughout the West, and the fact that shorts covered freely last week were the causes. Receipts and demand except from local scalping shorts, the speculative situation is fairly strong, inas much as the holdings are in pretty good hands. Estimated cars, 50.

Oats—The unchanged quotations about represent the condition of the market. Shorts covered freely last week and the weather indications being a little more favorable, there was a halt in the commission house business. Complaint still come from sections of too much rain and seedin being delayed thereby. On the whole, however, we think these prices are not far from normal. The visible supply decreased 200,000 bus against increase of 60,000 bus last year, and is now 6,470,000 bus against 3,565,000 bus. Estimated cars, 210.

Chicago Record-Herald: There was not much in the home wheat situation early last week to depress prices. The government April report was fresh in the mind of the speculator. Later in the week the northwestern mills closed down in a spectacular way. But there was liberal buying of cash wheat by the foreigner and the crop advices from the continent persistently related the story of an unsatisfactory condition. The speculative situation slowly underwent a distinct change. There was a furore to sell at the outset and there appeared to be no support except Armour's. At the close of the week prices were at the highest level in over two months. There was no apparent Armour support, although his line was not lessened. The general sentiment has changed around from radical circumstances in effecting the change of opinion. It kept up at the rate of about 500,000 bushels day after day until the skepticism in regard to it was finally broken down. The result was the more decisive because so large a share of the bushess was sold direct from the west. Duluth's assurance of the demand counted for more in this market than if the same claim had been made by the seaboard. The good faith of the compainants as to the continental crop condition was attested by the routine reports as to the weather abroad. The daily cable announcement of snows in Paris in the middle of April was as convincing to the incredulous wheat speculator as anything.

Broomhall cables: "Total world's shipments of breadstuffs during the past week were 9,504,000 bus., against 8,816,000 bus. last week and 8,536,000 bus. a year ago. Of the above quantity the United Kingdom took the past week, 2,848,000 bus., against 2,588,000 bus. the previous week and 2,952,000 bus. a year ago. Corn shipments, 2,792,000 bus. against 2,150,000 bus. the previous week and 2,668,000 bus. a year ago.

Chicago: Up to the middle of last week it was not popular to buy wheat in any position but within a day or so it has become popular to buy the September. The argument is that cash wheat would need to have a long drop to make the September at 69c show the holder a loss. The September here is now about 9 cents under the cash wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis and 9 cents under the cash wheat here. The ordinary speculator is beginning to consider that a pretty liberal margin of protection.

Harris, Gates & Co.: Our Paris cable reads—"Weather has improved today, but for a week past we had sharp frosts, which made crop prospects less favorable. It is too early to make an estimate on our crop as yet, but it is feared that the wheat crop has been further damaged by recent frosts."

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Disappointing Cables Cause General Selling of Wheat.

Chicago, April 20.—Disappointing cables caused quite general selling in the wheat pit at the start today and opening prices were easier, July being off ½c to ¼c at 72¾@72¼c, while May was a shade higher to ⅛@⅜c lower at 77½c to 77⅝c. A good demand for July developed early in the session and that market became strong, the price advancing to 72⅝c. May sold at 77⅝@78c, but steadied around 77⅜c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 192 cars, which, with local receipts of 36 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 228 cars, against 341 cars last week and 237 cars a year ago.

The May delivery was somewhat tractic but on the weak spots, the leading long supported the market, causing a rally. The export demand was again good and a good tone prevailed late in the day. May advancing to 78½c, and closing at 78⅜@78½, a gain of ⅝c. July closed at 73c, with a gain of ½ after selling up to 20⅝@73.

Corn opened firm on higher cables, wet weather and small receipts with May unchanged to ⅛c higher, at 44⅝@44⅜c and July unchanged to a shade higher, at 44⅛@44c to 44⅜c. The volume of trading was small owing to the scarcity of offerings. The July option was in better demand than May and held strong at 44⅝@45c. Local receipts were 80 cars, three of contract grade.

There was considerable realizing in corn the latter part of the session and the market was easy. May closed ¼ lower at 44⅝c with July down ⅛@⅜ at 44⅜c.

Oats were active and strong with a good demand from shorts for May, which quickly advanced the price of that delivery to 35¾c after opening unchanged to ⅛c higher, at 35⅛@35¼c. Small stocks and wet weather was the cause for the active covering in the nearby future and there was little offered from any source. Local receipts were 102 cars.

Provisions were quiet and easier early in the day, the lower prices for hogs having been a depressing influence. The market lacked any features, brokers being the best buyers, with offerings coming from pit traders. There was little change in prices during the first hour. July pork opened 2½c higher at $17.65, July lard was unchanged to 2½c lower at $9.80@9.82½, ribs were unchanged at $9.75.

Close: Wheat—May 78⅜@78c; July 73⅞c; September 68⅛@68c. Corn—April 43⅜c; May 44⅛c; July 44⅜c; September 43⅞c.

STRONG IN STOCKS

Suspension of Northern Securities Decision Had Bullish Effect.

Good Buying Orders Appeared and Market Became Active.

New York, April 20.—The opening movement of prices was exceedingly irregular. A number of the small gains being promptly lost and some of the small loses as promptly recovered. The movement was limited to small fractions either way. Amalgamated Copper rose ⅝, which measured the largest movement.

Prices fluctuated in a confused manner. A jump of 2½ in Manhattan to 141½ had some little sustaining effects on the market. Other stocks in which the demand was ample enough to induce good gains consisted mainly of minor stocks and included.

Fort Worth & Denver City stamped, which advanced 6, Evansville & Terre Haute 3¼, Colorado Fuel 1⅞ and Metropolitan street railway. Wabash pfd, St. Louis Southwestern pfd and Texas & Pacific a point. Metropolitan Securities subscriptions declined a point. The Gould group displayed relatively more stability than other stocks, but were only moderately active. The market yielded a fraction all around before 11 o'clock.

The inability to move prices far in either direction discouraged the traders and the market became dull. Reading was under pressure and lost over a point, the second pfd 1½. B. & O. 1 and Kanawha & Michigan 4. Wabash pfd. Southern Pacific, Amalgamated, Metropolitan street railway, Evansville & Terre Haute and St. Paul reacted 1 to 1½. General Electric extended its gain to 4¾, Westinghouse Electric 8½, and American Car, Pressed Steel Car pfd. and Consolidated Gas to 1 to 1½. Bonds were steady at noon.

Small offerings forced the market fractionally lower, and St. Paul, Union Pacific, Copper and Smelting fell a point under Saturday's close. Pennsylvania, Atchison, Rock Island and Southern Pacific lost substantial fractions and the heaviness of the leading stocks had a depressing effect on long operations. Northern Securities dropped to 95 on apprehension over the decision on the application for a stay of the judgment against the company.

The fall in prices was still in progress when the news was bulletined that the Northern Securities petition for a modification of the decree against it pending an appeal had been granted. Net declines had reached a point or more in Pennsylvania, Norfolk & Western, Louisville and Delaware and Hudson and 2¾ in Northwestern. There was an abrupt recovery after the publication of the news. Losses were wiped out and net gains of 1 to 1⅝ in New York Central, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio and Southern Railway preferred were established. Manhattan rose an extreme 2¾. Northern Securities on the curb jumped from 94¾ to 99¾. Free selling carried prices backwards a point or more for the leaders and the market became extremely dull.

The selling movement was not pursued and professionals bid up the price level again to about the best. Consolidated Gas rose 4¼, Brooklyn Union Gas 6, St. Louis Southwestern preferred and United Railway Investment preferred 1¾. The closing was dull and steady.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is irregular and closed strong. The event of the day was the decision rendered at St. Paul which gave the Northern Securities company permission to pay dividends pending the final decission by the supreme court on the appeal. The market rallied sharply on this throughout the entire list. No doubt a good deal of the buying was to cover shorts which had been put out in anticipation of a denial of the request. Interest rates continue easy but there is no change in the character of the support the general market is receiving. Those who are well informed predict that the government will next attack the Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio and Reading combination. American Can preferred was another feature of the market and its action for several months past was to indicate that a dividend is not far off. Stocks may work some higher. We think we would rather sell them on the hard spots.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Comment in financial circles indicates the growth of confidence in improving values. There is no talk of any boom nor even of a big bull movement. As yet public interest is limited. But the way the market has recovered from such recent shocks as the Northern Securities decision and the tumble in Metropolitan leads experienced observers to believe that it is over and that conditions now justify purchases on all drives. Manufacturers and merchants in their private talk are unreservedly bullish on the country and hold the forces which so strongly favor the industrial situation, despite the draw-backs of "undigested securities" and adverse legal decisions. These are the views attributed to Marshall Field, Norman B. Ream, John D. Rockefeller and other men who are in a position to feel the pulse of the trade. Steady though gradual improvement in the monetary situation is a decided encouragement to believers in higher prices for securities and is being reflected in the bond market, where a better inquiry and hardening tendency are reported. It is noted with satisfaction that Secretary Shaw's bond refunding plan is at last an undoubted success, and it is expected that the sequel to this will be a material increase in circulation. Another thing which is regarded as reassuring is the growing belief that big exports not only will prevent gold exports this spring but bid fair to result in imports of the metal next fall. Some bankers think the latter outcome will be inevitable unless crop conditions in Europe are much better than reported and they also dwell on the importance of a big harvest and good prices in America. Gossip on specialties gives the impression that several of these stocks are likely to advance between now and May 1. Thus it is predicted that if there is no strike on the elevated lines Manhattan will go up sharply on its increasing earnings. Peoples Gas is another which is considered cheap. B. R. T., earnings are also showing big gains and on reactions the stock is regarded as a good purchase, also the Grangers and B. & O. The proposed investigation of the coal trust is expected to result in a lower market for the coalers, but the feeling is strong that this combination is impregnable and that on any slump the Readings and Eries should be bought.

Walker to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market opened about steady but very dull with traders doing very little. Some little short covering helped prices but it did not amount to much. Later when the Northern Securities news came out there was quite a rush to cover and prices advanced sharply. Traders took profits and the market hesitated. In the afternoon some good buying orders appeared and the whole market became strong and active and continued so until the close which was at the best prices of the day and with much better feeling. Look for a further rally tomorrow.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 20.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a 4 point decline. The feeling was generally quite weak in the absence of bull support and continued weak following the opening call and soon showed a net decline of 6@7 points on the old crop positions with the new crop months comparatively neglected. For the rest of the forenoon business was small and fluctuations narrow. Local sentiment was also bearishly influenced by favorable reports as to the new crop outlook on the score of acreage, fertilizers and general climatic conditions. Public speculation was not a factor owing to fears of renewed manipulation. European orders went to the selling side of the account chiefly.

WILL IS SUSTAINED.

Bulk of Bruce's Estate Goes to Plummer.

Eaton, Ohio, April 20.—The circuit court here sustained the decision of the court of common pleas in the celebrated Bruce will case.

James H. Bruce, a direct descendant of William Bruce, the founder of Eaton, died an aged bachelor, leaving an estate valued at $75,000.

Winfield Plummer made his home with Bruce, who left a will bequeathing to Plummer the bulk of his estate.

Relatives and heirs of Bruce, prominent residents of Eaton, made a vigorous effort to break the will, but after two legal battles in the courts the will was sustained.

WIFE DECLARED

Two Women Had Charge of Husband's Sanitarium.

Bloomington, Ind., April 20.—A sensational divorce suit has ended in the circuit court. L. T. Lowden, who enjoys a large practice, brought the suit. He has been married thirty years. He alleged in his petition that he was frequently robbed of his sleep by his wife's abuse when he came home nights and often had to sleep in the barn or garret.

The wife filed a cross-complaint in which she charged that the doctor kept a "sanitarium" and had two women in charge of it, that he frequently stayed at the office over night and neglected his family.

Judge Heffron, of Indianapolis, presided and at the end of the testimony he propmtly decided in favor of the wife's petition.

The doctor was ordered to pay costs of the suit and $12 per month for the support of the youngest of the nine children.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Towing Wars Elsewhere But No Sign of One Here.

Large Arrivals of Coal Expected In Duluth This Week.

The rival towing companies of Buffalo are having a merry fight, and prices are being cut. The Great Lakes Towing company in that port is now towing vessels at a rate of $5 regardless of the size of the vessel or whether it is a steamer or a barge. The price of towing has been cut in two With the opening of navigation both companies have all the work they can attend to, but it is expected that when the season is farther advanced there will be many a chase for tows.

At Duluth the situation is less strenuous. The Indepondent Tug company has but two tugs in commission as yet, the Dowling and the Merrill. A third, the Carpenter, will be added today. The officers of that line report that they are securing all the business they can attend to. The five tugs of the Great Lakes Towing company, now in commission, are also being pushed to handle the work required of them, and it is not thought likely that any similar fight between the rival companies is imminent in Duluth.

Last season the struggle between the two companies was confined to racing for tows and no cut in prices was made.

The tug Crosby of the Great Lakes Towing company will leave today for Ashland, where she is to be stationed for the summer. Captain Harry Ditzel, who was in command of the tug Vigilant of the Thomas Nester estate last season, will be in command.

COAL IS MOVING.

Large Deliveries In Duluth Expected This Week.

With the settlement of the firemen's strike the long-delayed movement in coal is commenced. During the forty-eight hours a score of vessels carrying in the neighborhood of 100,000 tons of coal have cleared from lower lake ports for the head of the lakes and a number of others are loading. The deliveries of coal at the port of Duluth during this week will be very heavy. Since the settlement of the coal strike vast quantities of coal have been shipped to the docks at the various lower lake ports for shipment to Duluth, Superior and other points in the Northwest reached from the head of the lakes by rail. The movement of this stock is now commencing in earnest and the depleted piles of the coal companies at the head of the lakes will be replenished before May 1.

It is unlikely that any drop in prices will result from the heavy receipts. The coal dealers say the increase in the price of fifty cents per ton over the opening price of last season is covered by the increased price of the commodity at the mines and the higher freight rates.

A renewed activity in other shipping is also showing itself since the settlement of the labor troubles as evidenced from the increased size of the port lists. The lumber fleet is now moving and a number of vessels light for lumber are on their way to the head of the lakes. The package freighters are also commencing to move more freely. The Osceola of the Lake Michigan and Lake Superior line with package freight from Chicago is due tonight. She will be the first vessel of that line to arrive in Duluth this season.

TO HAVE ELEVEN TUGS.

Union Company to Put Big Fleet In Commission.

Within two weeks the Union Towing & Wrecking company will have a fleet of ten or eleven tugs in commission at Duluth. At present there are five tugs in commission, the Zenith, Superior, Excelsior, Inman and Carrington.

The tug Schenck left Sault Ste. Marie this morning for the head of the lakes and will be put in commission here on her way. The Schenck is one of the crack tugs of the Great Lakes fleet. The Zenith, the most powerful of the tugs at present in commission here is 95 gross tons and 83 feet long. The Schenck is 126 gross tons and 91 feet long. The width and depth of the two tugs are the same.

The stearing gear of the Lyons is being removed and will be placed in the tug Buffalo. A hand stearing gear will be put in the Lyons. The two tugs will then be added to the fleet.

The Record is being fitted out. There has been some delay with the repairs and the unfortunate but staunch little tug will not be at work for about ten days.

The Abbott is being fitted out and will go into commission Wednesday.

Several other tugs are laid up in the harbor, including the Helm and the Wisconsin, and they can be added to the fleet should necessity arise.

The fleet last year consisted of but seven or eight tugs. The year before last, however, there were thirteen tugs in commission. The small number last year was due to the tugmen's strike and the large number of the year before to the fact that there was no independent line.

WANT SOME OTHER

East Superior Street Owners Do Not Want Asphalt.

Work Begun on Improvements—Car Service Arrangements.

"Anything but asphalt."

That is the slogan of East Superior street property owners petitioning to have that thoroughfare paved between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues.

More than half of the property owners express a preference for tar-macadam, while those that have no specific choice as to material say they are willing to have any kind of paving except that which is to be put down on Superior street between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues.

The Sixteenth to Twenty-third avenue petition will go to the council this evening and will probably take the ordinary course of procedure which may delay the improvement until very late in the fall as improvements already contracted for will keep the rush in the revolving fund at a pretty low ebb until that time.

Within a month or so the property owners will have an opportunity to see what a bituilthic paving really is. Work on Nineteenth avenue east which began late last fall and was then abandoned on account of weather conditions, was resumed today. The Warren Brothers patent bituminous macadam is the material to be used.

There is a report at the city hall that the city officers have received an offer for a municipal bithulithic paving plant that is better thought of than the offer recently made by the Warrens. The price is the same but the plant is said to be portable while the Warren plant is stationary. The advantage is obvious.

Work of taking up the cedar block paving on East Superior street began this morning. This is for the asphalt improvement between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues. Representatives of the Barber Asphalt company called on the city engineer today and assured him that the work would be carried on as speedily as possible.

Fears of the Lakesiders that they would not be properly taken care of by the street railway company during the temporary disarrangement of the track on account of the paving of East Superior street are pronounced groudless by the management which says:

"While the track are being rebuilt between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues east on Superior street the West Duluth and East End line will be separated and run as two independent lines. The West Duluth line will have its easterly terminus at Third avenue east. The headway will be six minutes and the time of passing all points the same as on the through time card recently put in effect. The cars will all carry signs reading 'West Duluth Extra.' These signs were made for extra cars to be run upon the West Duluth line as far as Third avenue east during rush hours and on special days when a 3-minute headway is required. They consist of blue side signs and ground glass transparent signs with blue glass squares at either end, and were designed to be so different from the regular West Duluth and East End signs that there would be no excuse for persons taking Third avenue east cars by mistake for Twenty-third avenue east cars.

"Owing to the stretch of track to be torn up it will be impossible to maintain the 6-minute headway upon the East End of the line, but a temporary time card has been arranged giving cars between Eighth avenue west and Twenty-third avenue east every ten minutes. Every other East End car will be followed by a Lakeside car, the East End and Lakeside cars going through over the temporary track close together. Lakeside mars will run upon the same time as heretofore and it is hoped that the temporary track can be made so that the double truck cars may be kept on the Lakeside line. The East End cars will leave Twenty-third avenue east on the 5, and Third avenue west going east on the 6.' While the work was begun today it will not reach the point when the track will have to be torn up before the middle or latter part of the week."

THE JOHNSON EXPERIMENT

Duluthians In St. Paul at the Test Being Made.

Local iron men are much interested in the experiments which are now in progress at the plant of the Johnson Nickel company in St. Paul, for smelting black titanic ore.

A number of Duluthians who are interested in iron lands left here last Friday to see the workings of the process by which the Johnson people claim to have attained a profitable smelting of what was hitherto considered a worthless ore. They have not returned as yet though they were expected yesterday. Their continued stay is thought to indicate that they are seeing something interesting.

The black ore is iron, chemically combined with considerable percentage of titanium, and its profitable smelting has been a problem to furnace men for years.

It has been smelted in small quantities but it requires such a great heat to release the ttantum from the combination that it is very expensive and the intensity of heat required burns out the furpaces so often that it costs more to replace them than the ore is worth.

When it is finally prepared it makes the very finest of steel. It is from this ore that the famous "Swedish" steel is manufactured. The Johnson process does not turn the ore into billets of iron but by special manipulation of the fluxing, and by taking advantage of the chrome which is contained in considerable quantities in the titanic ore found in this part of the country, it is turned out immediately as steel.

The present experiments are being made with six or eight tons of the titanic ore taken from the black range in Cook county. A company is adready planned to erect a smelter in Duluth.

BEAUTIFY DULUTH

Mrs. Conde Hamlin Says Great Things Are Possible.

Will Point Out In Her Lecture How to Begin.

Mrs. Conde Hamlin, who will speak this evening at the High School Assembly hall on "Civic Improvement," was seen this morning after a drive about Duluth. In speaking of the improvement that Duluth needs, Mrs. Hamlin said:

"It would sound trite, I suppose, to the people of Duluth to speak of the beauties that most impress one upon a visit to your city. Nevertheless, the combination offered makes up a beautiful picture. The immense body of water and the series of terraces upon which the city is built is a great natural advantage. The one thing that impresses most in the laying out of the city is the remarkable foresight of someone in securing the land surrounding the several creeks running through the town. The opportunity for improving the city is very great in this one point, although nothing need be done in this particular line for some time to come.

"We took the boulevard drive and we also drove about the lower part of the town, and Duluth has, as all other cities, its beauty spots and its untidy places. It has been busy thus far in its career giving nearly its undivided attention to the commercial side of the city, and it is time now that it should wake up to the improvement and beautifying of the city. The work to be done is largely that which is to be done by the administration, although great good can be done in the individual work. Some of the things to be done are the curtailing of the privilege of the sign painters of defacing the natural beauty, and the procuring of proper arrangements for keeping the city clean. Duluth certainly has the natural advantages of becoming one of the finest show cities in the country or the world. The public buildings in Duluth, which are, of course, principally the schools, are very fine.

"As to how the work is to be begun my talk tonight will point that out. I will show several views of Duluth, some of its good points and some of its poor ones."

Answering the question of how she became interested in the work, Mrs. Hamlin said: "I was always interested in municipal questions and heard much of them at all times. In '91 I became interested in the Rivington settlement work in New York, and on returning to St. Paul founded the Civic league there. This is not the first one formed in the state, but it has probably done a more sweeping work than any other. We have been successful in bringing about many changes and reforms in the city.

"The league was really the prime mover in securing the new charter that was adopted three years ago. The campaign was managed entirely by the league, which secured fifteen of the leading men of the city, who did the speaking for us. We printed the charter in Swedish, German and Engush, and saw that one was sent to every home in the city, and one that could be read in that home. On the day of election boys from the schools were posted at the polls, and slips were given to the voters with the request to vote for the charter, and although many said it never could be carried, and we were not at all sanguine ourselves, the day was won easily.

"In drawing up the charter provision was made for the hard time anticipated in its adoption, and many of its features were not of the very best, but an ideal charter might have been drawn up and it would not have been adopted. The league has been instrumental in settling the garbage question in St. Paul, taking it away from contract work and giving it to the board of health, and is now working with the men's clubs of St. Paul in many questions of interest to the city. The league has also given time and money for the introduction of industrial work in the schools."

"I am also," continued Mrs. Hamlin, "on the board of directors of the national organization of the American League of Civic Improvement, which is doing a wonderful work throughout the country. The league gives to cities desiring information any it has gained through experience as to the best methods of improving a city. If it contemplates securing a new charter, the league sends it copies of the best charters explaining the best features of each, advises as to the best park systems and makes itself generally useful.

"This national league has been the means of having an exhibit at the St. Louis exposition, which will show and illustrate all questions dealing with municipal affairs. Maps and plans will be exhibited and complete description of ways and means. Data will be there showing the kind and method of paving used to the best advantage, the water supply of the best regulated city, the light question and sewerage, the proper arrangement of public buildings and so on. It will not only be an advertisement to the cities, but will give an insight to municipal affairs."

Mrs. Hamlin will speak this evening at the high school on "Civic Improvement." She has been brought here through the efforts of the Women's council, of this city, and it is greatly desired that a large audience will show the appreciation of the efforts of the council in securing such a fine speaker and such a good authority on the subject.

The five sawmills at Cloquet began operations this morning, two of them which had been running, and were closed down for repairs for several days, starting again today. Two of the mills have been running all winter. The Brooks-Scanlon mill at Scanlon, a few miles from Cloquet, also opened for the season this morning.

The Witness Contradicts Himself on Several Minor Points.

Frankfort, Ky., April 20.—The cross-examination of James B. Howard, on trial on the charge of killing Governor Goebel was continued today. He said he was in the Board of Trade hotel when the crowd passed bearing the wounded man. He became somewhat tangled when he attempted to describe the manner in which Goebel was being carried.

Mrs. Henry E. Youtsey is here and will be called by the defense to contradict her husband as to his confession made on the witness stand in the Howard trial. Youtsey's brother-in-law, Banker R. H. Witherspoon, of Winchester, and other relatives are also here for the same purpose.

The cross-examination of Howard was completed at 11:30. He contradicted himself on a number of important points as compared with the record in former trials.

Miss Anna Weis, who was a typewriter under Auditor Sweeney, and who worked in the little room in which Youtsey worked, said she did not hear any knock on the door or see or hear him in conversation with anyone prior to the shooting. She was in and out of the office, but did not see him in the office and did not see him admit Howard or anyone else.

MILLS TO RESUME.

Railroads Agree to Reduce Freight on Flour.

Minneapolis, April 20.—(Special to The Herald.)—The flour mills of Minneapolis will soon be running again, the railroads which caused the shutdown having consented to a reduction in flour rates.

The millers were confident this morning that the roads would accede to the demands of the mill owners. The situation had begun to assume alarming proportions as the unexpired contracts of the millers had to be filled.

WORLD'S FAIR INSURANCE.

Jefferson City, Mo., April 20.—Governor Dockery today signed the bill passed by the recent session of the legislature, which allows the Louisiana Purchase Exposition company to secure insurance from unauthorized companies without the payment of the 2 cent tax. The bill is destined to allow a sufficient amount of insurance to be secured to protect a certain amount of World's Fair property.

COULDN'T DO IT.

Didn't Know Food She Used Lacked Building Material.

Proper food brought a woman and her child out of sickness into health. A lady living in Madison, Wis., relates her experience, which certainly is interesting.

She says: "For about fifteen months I was an invalid and a part of that time caring for a little baby girl. Different physicians said I had heart trouble, torpid liver, nervous prostration and female troubles. Finally I was sent down to Chicago to my uncle, a good old physician. He said the difficulty all came from my not being able to build up from the kind of food I had been using.

"I had run down from 130 pounds to ninety-eight and had about made up my mind I would never get well. He put me on a diet of Grape-Nuts with good cream and graham crackers, a little stale bread when I wanted it and butter, but no meat and no medicine.

"In two months I got so I could sleep sound where before I used to walk the floor all night. My sick feelings left me and I began to get well. I weaned the baby, but she was very sickly and puny. The doctor said it would be a wonder if we ever raised her. Grape-Nuts had done so much for me I concluded to put her on the food, and got a coffee mill to grind it in, and gave it to her with cream. She picked up very quickly and began to gain flesh and strength. Now she has a round, ruddy face, is perfectly healthy, out doors all day and hungry all the time. I am grateful to the makers of the food that has saved my life and given strength and health to my little girl." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

DIRECTORS RE-ELECTED

At Annual Meeting of United States Steel Corporation.

New York, April 20.—The annual meeting of the stockholders of the United States Steel corporation was held in Hoboken today. The acts of the directors, the finance committee and the executive committee during the last year were approved. These proceedings included the purchase of the stocks of the Union Steel company and the stocks of the Troy Steel Products company. A stockholder inquired why the Troy Steel Products company, was bought and Chairman Gary replied that after due investigation it was decided that the acquisition of the Troy property was desirable, particularly to supply the trade in Worcester and several other cities in Massachusetts. The following directors were elected for three-year terms: Francis Peabody, Charles Steele, William H. Moore, Norman B. Ream, P. A. B. Widener, James Reed, H. C. Frick and William Edenborn.

The election of the following directors in the course of the year was ratified: James Gayley, of the third-class for the term ending in 1904, in place of Percival Roberts, Jr., resigned, and Robert Bacon, of the firstclass, for the three years ending in 1904, in place of William E. Dodge, resigned. Chairman Gray presided at the meeting which was attended by about seventy-five stockholders representing 1,844,100 shares of preferred and 2,035,168 hares of common stock. Among those present were Charles M. Schwab, president of the corporation, and George W. Perkins, of J. P. Morgan & Co. The meeting was harmonious throughout.

The board of directors will meet on May 5 for the purpose of electing a president and other officers.

Possible Identification of the Murdered Man.

New York, April 20.—Police Inspector McCluskey announced today that the identification of the body that was found in a barrel last Tuesday would be positively made within a few hours and that the identification would come from Buffalo.

"I wish to say," said the inspector, "that all these stories stating that the murdered man was mixed up in the Waterbury, Conn. case are absurd. There is no foundation for them whatsoever. The solution of the mystery attached to the murder will come from Buffalo."

Later the inspector stid he was convinced that the murdered man was Madiena Benedetto, 40 years of age, of 47 Trenton avenue, Buffalo. A picture of the murdered man had been positively identified, the inspector said by Joseph De Pr[illegible] a brother-in-law of Benedetto, who is now serving a term in Sing Sing.

Sir Oliver had been in feeble health for some time but the accident in which he broke his leg last Sunday night hastened the end. Sir Oliver was premier of Ontario from 1872 to 1896, twenty-four years, thus earning the distinction of having had the longest continuous term of office as premier ever accorded to any man by the people of any province or colony in the British empire. In 1896 he resigned to become minister of justice in the Dominion cabinet. In 1897, he was appointed lieutenant-governor of Ontario. He was one of the fathers of confederation.

NO TROUBLE IN CUBA.

Negotiations For Final Treaties Proceeding Smoothly.

Havana, April 20.—The correspondent of the American Press association is authoritatively informed that there is no hitch in the negotiations for the final treaties between the United States and Cuba, the only differences thus far being on the subject of details covering the acquirement of private properties for the purpose of the naval stations. The government prefers to purchase these lands and lease the whole, together with the government lands required, to the United States for a nominal consideration. There appears to be some natural question about the extent to which the United States will compensate Cuba for the purchase and leases, but no serious difference has arisen on these subjects.

The final negotiations are now embodied in three treaties: One for carrying out the details of the arrangements for the occupancy of the naval stations in accordance with the Roosevelt-Palma agreement; another covering the sovereignty over the Isle of Pines, and the third incorporating the Platt amendment provisions into a perpetual treaty. Minister Squiers says the negotiations are progressing a well as any negotiations could proceed between any countries.

NORDEN WON RACE.

Boston, April 20.—John C. Norden, of Cambridge, won the annual Marathan race today, covering the 25 miles in 2 hours, 41 minutes, 27 seconds. This is 1 minute, 46 seconds less than last year's time and is about 12 minutes behind the record time.

GEESE WATCHDOGS.

Having discharged the family watchdog in disgrace, J. D. Huebner, a Los Angeles cottager, has installed two enormous gray geese as guardians of his home, says the New York Sun.

They are two shades more efficient as sentinels than the best watchdog that ever lived, he thinks. In addition to which they have the following points in their favor: They do not howl at the moon; they do not make friends with visiting burglars and bite the parson; they do not transform the front lawn into a depository for ancient bones.

Like most big ganders they are belligerent. The minute the front gate clicks they come rushing around from the back yard with wings outstretched and flapping, looking for a fight. It is no use to say "Good doggy, nice doggy" to them. They cannot be flattered or capoled. Moral suasion falls futile.

The average burglar who hears about Huebner's geese will doubtless be of the idea that one has only to say "Shoo, chicky," to send them scuttling. Any burglar who knows these geese will know better. A big gray gander isn't afraid of anything.

These two will attack anything that comes in the front gate with the savageness of a bulldog. And they are able to do about as much damage. They take flying leaps at the intruder, beating him about the head with their wings and punching him in the face with their bills.

All the time they keep up such a hissing and honking that the noise is enough to scare away the stoutest-hearted burglar.

USE ASTRONOMY.

Army and Navy Journal: In a lecture on "The Uses of Astronomy to Military Officers," Col. E. E. Markwich, of the British army, cited the case of Lieut. Rawson, R. N., naval A. D. C. to Sir Garnet Wolseley, says the Army and Navy Journal. To him was allotted the duty of directing the Highland brigade in a night march which was the prelude to the battle of Tel-el-Kebir, Sept. 13, 1882. He was a man well accustomed to steer his way by the stars, and was familiar with the desert, having accompanied Sir Garnet in his many journeyings to and from Ismailia by night. In the observations that had been made in the early morning and reconnoissances, previously made, stars had been selected which would be nearly over the position of Tel-el-Kebir. That had a double advantage, as such stars would show at once the general direction, and owing to the fact that, in the latitude of Egypt, the stars near the West set at a pretty steep angle to the horizon, the change in bearing would be small. The sun rose true to time, and so accurately had the direction been taken by that means, that the attack on Tel-el-Kebir was carried out just as pre-arranged.

FARMS
The North Half of Sections 5 and 6 T. 51 R. 13.

We are offering these two fine half sections, subdivided into 40, 80 or 160 acre tracts, some have hardwood timber enough on them to more than pay the price we ask—other parts have been thoroughly burned over and can be put under cultivation for ten dollars per acre. Others have clearings on them with good buildings. We are offering these tracts at prices 40 per cent of what they sold for in 1891. You will never have another opportunity to buy lands of the quality of these, so near the city, surrounded by the best of roads, and at the prices we are offering these.

YOUTSEY TELLS MORE ABOUT GOEBEL MURDER

Deboe Said That Goebel Must Not Be Killed.

Governor Taylor Made No Objection to Plan.

Frankfort, Ky., April 21.—Henry Youtsey was recalled for further cross-examination in the trial of James Howard today. Youtsey was asked if he did not refuse to tell Assistant Auditor Johnson where he was when Goebel was shot. He said Johnson asked him the question, and that he told Johnson he was in a safe place. Johnson said that was not sufficiently definite, as the detectives had called for particular data as to where all employes of the office were when the shot was fired. Youtsey then told him he was in the toilet room in the basement of the executive building. Youtsey denied that he had ever told Gen. A. Leads prior to the shooting that Goebel once beat him out of a fee and that he despised him. He admitted that he told R. H. Witherspoon and other relations that he had named Jim Howard as the man who fired the shot, and that the stories were without foundation. "It was my defense at that time," said Youtsey, "that Howard and me were strangers, and I told everybody that I had never seen Howard till we met in jail."

Further along in the interrogation Youtsey declared that from and after the shooting of Goebel all of the others engaged in the killing conspired together to clear themselves and to throw the entire responsibility of the crime upon him. Responding to questions as to negotiations with Dr. Johnson to kill Goebel, Youtsey said he went to see Senator Deboe and told him Johnson and others were willing to do it. Senator Deboe, according to witness replied that enough Democrats were going to vote with Taylor to retain him in office and it would not be necessary to kill Goebel. Deboe said it must not be done. Witness went back and told Johnson what Deboe said. Johnson told him not to pay any attention to Deboe but to go and see what Governor Taylor said about it. He went to see Taylor and told him what Johnson said and Taylor raised no objection to the plan of shooting Goebel.

SESSION OF THE MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE HAS ADJOURNED

Proposed Tax Amendments Failed to Pass.

Anti-Trading Stamp Bill Went Through.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The thirty-third Minnesota legislature adjourned sine die today at noon, after passing nearly 400 new laws, mostly of a curative or minor character. The appropriations were far above any previous legislature, but the tax levy was reduced to 1 mill, the lowest previous rate having been fixed two years ago, when it was made 1 3-10 mills. Proposed tax amendments to the constitution were finally lost in conference, the house adjourning at midnight while the fifth committee was still out, four earlier attempts to agree having failed. The limit of cost for the new capitol was increased to $4,500,000, after a house committee had investigated the accounts of the state capitol commission and reported everything in good shape. Several other investigations brought out no sensations. The measures to give more power in control of foreign corporations, which were intended to cover the conditions made apparent by the Northern Securities company's experiences, failed to become laws, although the Gandrud bill increasing the scope of the law against consolidation of competing and parallel railroads was more fortunate and became a law.

St. Paul, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The legislature crowded a lot of work into its last day's business, and in the three sessions yesterday a large number of bills were passed. Most of them were uninteresting local members, for most of the members who had little pet measures affecting only their own localities were given a chance to crowd them through under suspension of the rules.

Capt. Ray T. Lewis did quite an act when he palmed the Pugh bill, appropriating $997 for the relief of Walter S. Cutter, a militia boy, off on the house as a local measure, on the ground that

WILLIAM J. BRYAN BITTERLY ARRAIGNS GROVER CLEVELAND

In Speech at Kansas City, the Nebraska Man Scores the Former President Most Severely.

Kansas City, April 21.—William J. Bryan, speaking this morning to the toast "Democracy" at the banquet given by the Democratic Jackson county club and the newspaper men of Missouri complimentary to William J. Stone, at which addresses did not begin until long after midnight, bitterly arraigned Grover Cleveland and his supporters who are making the plea for harmony among Democrats. The assembly was made up of representative Missouri Democrats and the remarks of Mr. Bryan met with enthusiastic favor with his hearers. He said in part:

"What we need in this nation is moral courage among men. We want the kind of moral courage that will fight for honest Democratic principles. In your junior Senator William Joel Stone, you have in Missouri a man who possesses both moral courage and ability. I am glad that you have harmony in this state. I believe the Democrats of Missouri give the best idea of how to secure harmony among the Democrats of the nation. I believe in harmony. The Democratic bed is wide enough for all who want to come in, but we do not want to have to sit up nights to keep certain pretenders from pickin our pockets. We invite all who have strayed from the fold to come back if they so desire, but we want them to stay in after they come. We have had enough of Clevelandism in the Democratic party. We had four years of Cleveland, and after his administration was over we found ourselves weaker than we had ever been before because we had been betrayed. These so-called harmonizers, Cleveland and his followers, showed their meanness to Republicanism by deserting us in our hour of greatest need and supporting the Republican party

"The Democrats won a great victory in 1892, which gave our party a great opportunity, but Grover Cleveland betrayed the Democratic party and I carried the burden of his administration through two national campaigns and there was not a plank in either platform that was such a detriment to me in those campaigns as that burden was. Cleveland had the best opportunity to redeem the Democratic party ever offered to any man since the time of Andrew Jackson, but instead of being true to his party he disgraced himself. As a party we must stand true to Democratic principles and if we do I believe that Democratic victory will some day come and it will be here to remain when it comes.

"He is of the highest service to his fellows, who can give the highest ideal. There has been a lowering of ideals in this country. Money is talked about morning, noon and night. Commercialism is the curse of the country today and it has debauched our country. The foreigner has come to regard the American simply as a money maker and we give cause for the belief that we put nothing beyond wealth, and that money is ruling the country with an iron hand. The manhood and womanhood of the United States are more important than money. Jefferson set a higher ideal for us than that of the worship of money, and nothing but the ideals of Jefferson will ever lift us out of the slough of despond. The Democratic party is not the enemy of honesty acquired wealth. I have heard it said that Democrats believe that a man cannot have money and be honest. I deny that as being false. A man can have money and be a Democrat, but if money has him he has to be a Republican. Jefferson believed that money should be subserwient to the man, and Jefferson was an educated man. There are more people today who think that the educated man should be separated from the common rabble. Jeferson believed that the man who was too good to take part in politics was not good enough to live in a land like this. Jefferson did not create the principles of the Democratic party; they existed long before Jefferson lived. He simply put the principles into living form. There never was a time when the people were more ready to accept Democratic principles than today. We must appeal to the common sense of the people. Three remedies for existing evils have been suggsted to me. First, an appal to the conscience of the people; second, by legislation and third, by revolution. But revolution is not to be thought of. Revolution is not a remedy in a country where a people can vote. People can vote themselves free in this country and if they could not do that they could not fight themselves free. Jefferson stood for the people and their interests and Hamilton believed that the president and the senate should be elected for life or during good behavior. The Republican party today is forming not Jeferson clubs, but Hamilton clubs.

"Never swerve in your loyalty to Democratic principles. I would not give one Democrat who really believes in Democratic principles for a whole barnyard full of trimmers and compromisers who pretend to be Democrats."

Letters of regret from Richard Olney, Senator Gorman, Senator Carmack, W. R. Hearst, Tom L. Johnson, Edward M. Shepard, D. B. Hill, Senators Daniel, Clarge, of Arkansas, and Bailey, of Texas, were read. The letters of Johnson and Hearst raised a tumult of applause.

Senator William J. Stone, who did not arise to speak until 3:30, said in the course of his remarks:

"We are apart, let us get together. The platform is the creed of the party, and the man who does not subscribe to it does not believe in the Democratic party."

Speaking of next year's convention, he said:

"There will be no abandonment or reorganization, and no man unworthy to hold up the old Jefferson flag will be nominated. And if he is, God pity us, for he will be defeated."

THE SALES OF TIMBER ON CHIPPEWA RESERVATION

Being Arranged By General Land Office and Terms to Be Announced Soon—Territory For the Forest Reserve Will Embrace 341,000 Acres.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The officials of the general land office are now engaged on various questions involved in the sales of timber on the Chippewa reservations in Minnesota, as provided for in the Morris act, and formal announcement of the precise terms may soon be expected. It is said today that the rules and regulations that will govern the sale of the timber and logging operations will shortly be promulgated. During the early part of the coming month advertisements calling for proposals on the timber will be authorized and six months thereafter the sales will commence in the several United States land offices in Minnesota.

The division of forestry has not yet ben able to definitely indicate the tracts that will be embraced in the proposed forest reserve. This is due to the fact that the war department has thus far failed to determine the flowage lines at the headwaters of the Mississippi. However, the forestry division is now in a position to designate in a general way the majority of the townships over which it will take jurisdiction, as provided by the Morris law. This division has selected an area of territory embracing about 341,000 acres within which a scientific system of forestry shall be inaugurated. This area lies between Leech lake and Winnibigoshish on the north and Ball Club lake on the east, running westward to Red lake. It embraces the Cass Lake reservation, most of the Chippewa reservation and part of the Winnibigoshish reservation.

The operations to be conducted under the commissioner of the land office will be outside the territory indicated. Officials of the land office are at present unable to estimate the amount of timber involved in the first sale. It is probable that the operations to be conducted by the division of forestry will be authorized in time to permit of logging next winter. About 165,000 acres of timber will be involved in this sale.

The resignation of A. G. Bernard, of Cass Lake, as clerk to Edward Warren, chief of estimators, has been received by Commissioner Richards. Mr. Warren recommends the appointment of E. H. Funk to succeed Bernard, and his recommendation will be favorably acted upon.

HILL FORMS BIG CORPORATION TO BUY ILLINOIS COAL FIELDS

Markets of Northwest to Be Opened to Illinois Fuel By Means of Great Northern, Northern Pacific and Burlington Railroads.

Chicago, April 21.—The Tribune today says: Vast coal fields in Central Illinois are to pass to the control of a gigantic corporation, with a capital of $80,000,000, and they will be operated in connection with the Hill system of railroads.

James J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Railroad company, is said to have financed the deal, and the Burlington, the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific railroads will open markets for Illinois fuel in the Northwest. The territory acquired by the combination extends through forty miles of the richest coal lands in the state, and is traversed by the Jacksonville & St. Louis railroad, bought last year by the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. A connecting link of ten miles will be built from Jacksonville to Concord, on the St. Louis branch of the Burlington, which will give an outlet from the coal fields to all the Hill roads.

This short line of road will be constructed at once, but in the meantime it is understood a deal has been made with the Alton to deliver the coal to the Hill road.

Interested in the enterprise to a large extent are stockholders of the Pittsburg Coal company. While admitting that his company has purchased a large amount of stock in the Illinois mines, C. E. Wales, the local manager, said there was no attempt at a combination.

THE INTERSTATE COMMISSION READY TO HEAR COAL ROADS

Board Is In Session In New York and Will Consider the Charges Made By William R. Hearst Against the Railroads.

New York, April 21.—The interstate commerce commission sat in this city today to consider the complaint of William R. Hearst that certain coal carrying roads are violating the interstate commerce law. The defendants are the Philadelphia & Reading, the Lehigh Valley, the Central of New Jersey, the New York, Susquehanna & Western, the Erie, the Ontario & Western, the Delaware & Hudson, the Pennsylvania and the B. & O. The specific complaints of Mr. Hearst are that the roads charge unreasonable rates, that they unjustly discriminate in favor of the bituminous against the anthracite coal companies, and that they have contrived, in violation of the anti-pooling section of the interstate commerce law to discriminate against the independent coal mining companies in favor of the companies controlled by the railroads. The commission is also to consider while here the old case of the complaint of the Texas Cattle Raisers' association and the Chicago Live Stock association against the Chicago local transfer tax, which calls for the payment of $2 per car for cattle transferred from the termini of the Western railroads in Chicago to the Union Stock yards. At the first hearing on that subject the commissioners ordered a reduction of the tax from $2 to $1 per car. That ruling was submitted to the United States supreme court, which sent the whole case back to the interstate commerce commission for more evidence. None of the railroads was represented when the commission convened.

Kansas City, April 21.—A passenger train on the 'Frisco Line, which left Kansas City at 11:30 last night for Memphis and Birmingham, was partially wrecked near Everton, Mo., north of Springfield, by a defective rail, at 7 o'clock this morning. The engine, baggage and mail cars went into the ditch and were badly damaged. The engineer, fireman and one postal clerk were killed, a mail clerk and one passenger were badly hurt, and perhaps a dozen passengers were slightly injured. The dead:

A BRIDGE AT ANOKA GIVES WAY

St. Paul, April 21.—An Anoka, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The north wing of the west abutment of the Rum river bridge was weakened by high water and crashed into the river early this morning. With it went hundreds of cubic yards of the dirt approaches at the north side walk approach. The loss thus far will exceed $1500, and is increasing, as the dirt is constantly falling, which causes the fall of more masonry.

THE VICTIM WILL RECOVER

Mrs. Bridget Mahar Is Now Regarded Out of Danger.

Houghton, Mich., April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Bridget Mahar, who was shot by John H. Nolesworth, the discarded lover of Miss Eliza Mahar, Saturday night, is out of danger. Nolesworth's body is held pending arrival of Mrs. John H. Nolesworth, of Englewood, Ill., who telegraphed for details of the tragedy and notified the authorities to hold the body, although she did not say she would come to claim it.

WANT MORE MONEY.

Foreigners on Duke's Estate Refuse to Work.

Somerville, N. J., April 21.—Because James Duke, president of the American Tobacco company, refused to increase the wages of several hundred Hungarians and Poles who work on his estate here, about 100 of them have gone on strike for an increase of wages.

The strikers gathered at the Raritan river bridge last night armed with guns and clubs, intending to attack the men who had remained at work as they crossed the bridge to their homes. John Lawson, manager of the Duke estate, placed the men in wagons and headed the procession for the bridge. He was held up at the entrance by a Hungarian with a gun.

Lawson drew his own revolver and covered the man, who became frightened and lowered his weapon. The wagons were then allowed to cross the bridge. The strikers threaten to prevent the men from returning to work, and trouble is expected.

DIED FROM BURNS.

Miss Ida Hawley of St. Paul Has Succumbed.

St. Paul, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Ida Hawley, who was burned by the explosion of a gasoline stove at 192 Charles street, last Saturday, died at the city hospital this morning. She has gradually grown weaker ever since the accident, and no hope was ever held out for her recovery.

Miss Hawley was employed as housekeeper at the home of R. H. Adams, where the explosion took place. C. R. Adams is recovering, but his father, R. H. Adams, is still in a critical condition.

DUG OUT OF THE SNOW.

Berlin, April 21.—The train on which the president of the reichstag, Count Von Ballestrom, was traveling, was dug out of the snow in Silesia in time for him to reach Berlin and open the reichstag today.

KILLED A COLORED PORTER.

Alexandria, Ind., April 21.—Mrs. Dona Tillman, a colored widow, shot and killed John Terrance, a colored porter here early today. The two quarreled after a cake walk. It is said the woman was jealous. She was arrested.

MINNEAPOLIS FLOUR MILLS REOPEN

Minneapolis, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minneapolis flour mills reopened for grinding this morning. Twelve mills, with a capacity of over 100,000 barrels of flour daily, started at daybreak today under prospect of settlement of the difficulties that arose between the railroads and the mill owners regarding alleged discriminating freight rates on flour. About two-fifths of the mills are still closed, but it is only a question of a day or two before the others will reopen. Over 1200 men weeraffected by the reopening today. About 800 men are still out of employment. The railroads, while no official agreement has been reached, have indicated their willingness to make amends.

MAJOR GENERAL BADEN-POWELL, ENGLAND'S GREATEST ROUGH RIDER, WHO IS VISITING AMERICA.

Major General R. S. S. Baden-Powell, the hero of Mafeking, who is now visiting this country, is beyond a doubt Great Britain's most famous rough rider. His defense of Mafeking was one of the most notable achievements of the British forces during the Boer war, and the exploit caused his rise at one bound from lieutenant colonel to major general.

AN AERONAUT GETS A BAD FALL

Chicago, April 21.—A dispatch to the Tribune from Houston, Texas, says: Professor Leroy Fewer, an aeronaut, has met with a serious accident before thousands of spectators here. Professor Fewer made a successful ascension of 2000 feet in the air and cut loose with his parachute in good trim. While attempting to shift the course of the parachute on its downward flight, one of the ropes snapped, almost reversing it and causing the balloonist to lose his hold when within 150 feet of the ground, and the man fell, turning over and over in the descent. He struck in a soft slough, which he had been trying to steer clear of, and this alone prevented his instant death. One arm was broken in two places, two ribs and his nose were broken, and there are believed to be internal injuries. The man is still alive and physicians believe he has a chance to recover.

CHINESE WANTED IN SOUTH AFRICA

San Francisco, April 21.—The feasibility of importing Chinese laborers to work in the gold mines of the Transvaal is a question which Ross Skinner and H. H. Noyes, at present in this city, are now on their way to the Orient to investigate. "Since the close of the Boer war," said Mr. Noyes, "mining in South Africa has gone ahead with tremendous strides, but the future development of the industry is seriously hampered by want of cheap labor. There is not sufficient Kaffir labor to operate the mines, and the chamber of mines of South Africa has accordingly undertaken to solve the labor question by looking into the feasibility of importing Chinese labor. The idea of employing white labor is out of the question. White men will not work alongside of Kaffirs. We think, however, under wise governmental regulations, we will be able to get sufficient Chinese labor to meet the condition. Mr. Skinner and myself are on our way to the Orient to report to the chamber of mines on the capabilities of the Chinese as a mine worker. At the present time I think 100,000 Chinese laborers could be profitably employed in the South African mines. To overcome political objections, it is proposed that the Chinese shall be indentured in China and taken to South Africa for a fixed term of years, and upon expiration of their fixed term of service, will be returned to their homes."

THE LARGEST EXPRESS STEAMER

New York, April 21.—The new North German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II, from Bremen, Southampton and Cherbourg, was reported forty miles east of Nantucket lightship at 9:40 this morning. The Kaiser Wilhelm II should reach Sandy Hook lightship about 7 o'clock this evening. Her time of passage will be about 5 days, 23 hours and will beat all maiden records. It will not, however, equal the best time between Cherbourg and New York.

The Kaiser Wilhelm II is the latest addition to the North German Lloyd company's fleet, she sailed from Bremen on April 14, and is commanded by Captain Hogemann.

The Kaiser Wilhelm II is the largest express steamer in the world. Her principal dimensions are: Length over all, 706 feet 6 inches; beam, 72 feet; depth, 52 feet 6 inches; draught to lead line, 29 feet 6 inches; and displacement 26,500 tons. The estimated average speed of the vessel is from 23 1-2 to 24 knots per hour at sea. She is of 40,000 horse power and has a gross register of 20,000 tons. The steamer is capable of accommodating 775 first-class, 343 second class and 770 third-class passengers. The crew consists of 600 persons. The Kaiser Wilhelm II is equipped for wireless telegraphy.

Test for Yourself the Wonderful Curative Properties of Swamp-Root

To Prove What Swamp-Root, the World-Famous Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, Will do for YOU, Every Reader of The Herald May Have a Sample Bottle FREE.

GENTLEMEN:—Some two years ago I was so run down that I lacked strength, had no appetite and could not sleep nights. Sometimes it seemed as though my back would break in two after stooping. I had to get up many times during the night to urinate and go often through the day. After having the best physicians prescribe for me without relief, I decided from my symptoms that the medicine I needed was Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy. After trying a sample bottle with good results, I purchased six bottles of the regular size and after taking them was entirely cured. Swamp-Root is a wonderful remedy when a man is not feeling well, after exposure or loss of sleep and irregular meals. It is also a great medicine to tone up a man's system. Other members of the Police force are using and recommending Swamp-Root. They, like myself, cannot say too much in praise of this great remedy.

The Officers (whose signatures accompany this letter, as well as myself, thank you for the good you have accomplished in the compounding of Swamp-Root.

We remain very truly,

To Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. — William Moore, Chief of Police. W. H. Fredenburg, Roundsman. John W. Heath, Patrolman.

Officers of the Binghamton, N. Y., Police Department.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the famous new discovery, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, therefore, when through neglect or other causes, kidney trouble is permitted to continue fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable. Makes you pass water often through the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach and liver trouble; you get a sallow, yellow complexion, makes you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy that science has ever been able to compound.

EDITORIAL NOTICE—Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, is so remarkably successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all of our readers who have not already tried it may have a sampl bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also book telling all about kidney and bladder troubles and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured by Swamp-Root. In writing, be sure and mention that you read this generous offer in The Duluth Daily Herald, when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the same, Swamp-Root—Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

INSANITY GROWS

The Number of Cases In This County Is Increasing.

More Than One a Week Is the Average Number Committed.

Insanity seems to rapidly increase throughout St. Louis county.

Years ago a crazy person was something of a rarity in the local probate court, but the number has steadily increased until the average of more than one commitment a week has been attained.

Last year fifty-six crazy people were sent from Duluth to Fergus Falls, which is something more than one every week. Many of the patients are brought down off the ranges.

About 90 per cent of the people committed from here are Scandinavians. The large proportion of the population which is of Norse derivation probably explains this to a considerable extent. But authorities on the subject say that Scandinavians are not as healthy, as a general rule, in this climate as some of the other people who have settled in this part of the country.

Poles seldom go insane. Lizzie Biernat, who was examined in the probate court yesterday, is the first Pole that has been held for insanity here in years.

Ill health coupled with worry usually brings on dementia. There seems to be no particular cause to which all of the cases may be ascribed.

Women are about as numerous as men in the hospital at Fergus Falls. In almost every case worry over their children or some family trouble unbalances their minds.

They frequently make trouble for the officials. A woman, who had seen her little son accidentally disemboweled was confined in the county jail some time ago. She had become violently insane the instant her eyes fell on the boy and his awful injuries. Locked in a cell to keep her from injuring herself and others, she insisted on pouring water all over the floor and then taking off her own clothing to wipe it up under the impression that it was her boy's blood.

Just what can be done to prevent insanity is a problem which the best physicians cannot answer. St. Louis county has been rapidly settled during the last few years, and the increased population may be the real cause of the increased number of insane patients rather than an increase of crazy people in proportion to the population.

Dr. Gunsaulus, Lecturer.

Of Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, who will lecture in the Star Lecture course this evening at the First Methodist church on "Robert Browning, the Poet," the Richmond, Ind., Telegraph says:

"The Rev. Gunsaulus is a tall and angular man. He has a splendid forehead and an eye which speaks volumes. His articulation is absolutely perfect; not a letter, not a sound is either blurred or lost. His gestures are good but not dramatic. He is full of fire, and his eloquence held the vast throng as if spell-bound. His word painting is with ideas and not adverbs and adjectives. In fact, the speaker is such a matchless orator and the hearer is so carried away that it is hard for him afterwards to give an adequate idea of what was said."

SUPERIOR AGITATED.

Duluth Buys a Couple of Her Fire Horses.

Superior is agitated because Duluth has purchased a couple of her supposedly worn-out fire horses and has found that they are not worn out at all, but, on the contrary, are in good condition.

"Cap" and "Jim" were placed on sale at auction in Superior a week ago because they were believed to be no good for further service. Former Chief Kellogg of the Superior department bought them for $155 and a day or two later sold them to the Duluth fire department for $250.

On this side of the bay they were clipped and prepared to go on a regular fire department run. Superior can't believe that Duluth would be so silly as to buy worthless horses for her fire department. The profit of $95 which former Chief Kellogg so quickly made out of the purchase of the team rankles in Superior's heart. The people over there are not sure, but they have a hazy notion that they have been sold.

When examined over here the horses were declared to be in good condition and quite capable of taking hard runs on an engine company.

UNCLE OF SCHLEY

Lives In Obscurity In Douglas County, Minn.

Alexandria, Minn., April 21.—In the township of Leaf Valley in Douglas county there lives an eccentric old man named Adam Schley, who claims to be, and without doubt is, an uncle of the famous admiral who was lately the honored guest of Minneapolis. At first it strikes one as very strange that while the nephew is so distinguished and so well known, the uncle pursues the humble profession of veterinary surgeon in a secluded part of this state. But after a little reflection one recognizes the fact that in view of the peculiar nature of democratic institutions this state of things is the most natural in the world.

Schley lives very quietly, sometives at the house of one farmer, sometimes at the house of another, and is always welcome wherever he may appear. He has not had much communication with the other members of his family for some time. Shortly after the civil war, dissatisfied with the adjustment of his father's property, he left home and coming West, engaged in trading in and doctoring horses.

Owing to the circumstances under which he left home he did not keep up a correspondence with his brothers and sisters, but a short time ago when his nephew's fame recalled to him memories of the old home he made a visit to his native state. He traveled incognito, and though his sisters recognized him he refused to acknowledge that he was their brother Adam.

It is said that he went as far as Washington in order to look into the face of his nephew, the admiral, but even then did not make himself known but was satisfied to come away as he went.

Old Adam is very proud of the admiral but he does not wish for any reflected glory and is well satisfied with his own reputation for probity and good natured worth among his own neighbors.

Council Delays the Ferry Service Award For One Week.

Gas Contract Is Approved ---Bowery Saloons May Be Increased.

The council last night—

Referred action on the Park Point ferry contract until relative merits of boats Estelle and Carrington could be satisfactorily determined.

Directed the proper city officers to enter into a ten-year gas furnishing contract with the Zenith Furnace company as agreed last week.

Declared for a policy to decrease the number of saloons between Fifth and Sixth avenues west, thus forcing the Bowery district westward.

Decided to request the Northern Pacific for better local accommodation train service between Union depot and Fond du Lac.

Directed an expenditure of $300 to make repairs for Bay View-Proctorknott road, as petitioned for by merchants and others.

Delegated a committee to investigate the "any-thing-but-asphalt" petition for paving East Superior street, between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues.

Deferred approving the annual contracts for building of cement and plank sidewalks awarded by the board of public works yesterday.

Directed an expenditure of $1812 for the remodeling of police headquarters and city jail, improving sanitation and office room.

Deferred acting on Alderman Mannheim's ordinance prohibiting building of barns on streets without consent of neighboring property owners.

Directed electric companies to inaugurate conduit system on East Michigan street, if possible, before street is improved with new sandstone paving.

Agitating aldermanic intellect, the Park Point ferry service was the paramount issue.

The council desires reports from marine experts before awarding the yearly contract to the Estelle at $27 a day, or the Carrington at $30 a day.

Alderman Walker started the debate with a motion that the contract be made with the Carrington on condition that the boat touch at Fifth avenue on trips during the rush hours morning, noon and evening, and that when not running at night she be compelled to tie up on the Minnesota Point side of the harbor.

Porter J. Neff, who was Mr. Walker's predecessor in the council and who was defeated last February because the Estelle got fast in the ice, keeping a large number of Fourth ward voters in the middle of the ship canal till after the closing of the polls, was heard in opposition to the Carrington and in favor of the Estelle, saying that the service of this boat during the past year was eminently satisfactory, and referred to the fact that a petition had been presented by Minnesota Point residents asking that the Estelle be retained.

Alderman Walker replied, saying that while a petition containing thirty-three signatures had been presented to the council for the Estelle, another petition, containing the signatures of 350 people requesting another boat, had previously been presented.

J. D. Mahoney, captain of the Duluth Boat club, said that as a representative of that organization, he considered a renewal of the Estelle contract an act that would endanger lives.

Alderman Krumsieg suggested that the contract should not be acted on until such time as the council could get reports on the competing boats from marine experts and government inspectors. This suggestion was acted on.

Without debate and without one negative vote the proper city officers were authorized to enter into a ten-year contract for gas to be manufactured at the coking plant of the Zenith Furnace company. This was merely a formal ratification of the agreement between the city and Zenith Furnace company last week.

A resolution was adopted partially rescinding the anti-Bowery saloon-increase resolution of three weeks ago, but not rescinding the council's declared policy for Bowery purification.

This new resolution permits saloon licenses in the Metropolitan theater building and also in a new fifty-four room hotel at 702 West Superior street, but its tendency is to decrease the number of saloons between Fifth and Sixth avenues west and if possible force the Bowery out beyond Seventh avenue.

The West Duluth aldermen gave a good account of themselves in securing the adoption of resolutions asking for an improved passenger train service on the Northern Pacific between the city and Fond du Lac, and also an appropriation for the immediate repair of the road from Bay View Heights to Proctorknott.

The surburban train service is something desired and long anticipated from the Union depot clear out to One Hundred and Thirty-Fifth avenue west, which is the extreme western limit of the city. The West End, West Duluth, Smithville, New Duluth and Fond du Lac people are very eager for it.

The improving of the Bay View Heights and Proctorknott roadway will be made without delay at a cost of $300. It is estimated that an expenditure of $650 will be necessary to put it in first-class condition.

More traffic passes over it in a day than any two other country roads entering Duluth but since the spring thaw it has been almost impassable. Duluth merchants that do a thriving wholesale and retail business, the West Duluth Commercial club and many tax payers and citizens have been urging the repairs, which were authorized through the efforts of Aldermen Sang and Kern.

The "anything-but-asphalt" petition for the repaving of East Superior street between Sixteenth avenue east and Twenty-third avenue east was reported on favorably by the board of public works and then referred to the committee on streets, alleys and sidewalks as was the petition to repave Lake avenue from the viaduct to the canal with sandstone.

The board of public works reported its award of sidewalk building contracts subject to the approval of the council. The Cement Construction company's bid of $7,461.25 was accepted by the board for cement walks, while the bid of W. H. Kilton, of $21.40 per 1000 feet was considered the best of the plank walk proposals.

Several of the aldermen were not inclined to agree with the board of public works on this proposition and both contracts went over for future consideration.

City Engineer Patton submitted estimates for strengthening the bridges along the West Duluth street car line in order that double-truck cars might be operated to that part of the city with perfect safety. He estimates that it will require a rebuilding of four bridges through the center at a cost of $7673.

The Polk street bridge on Central avenue will cost about $2115, the Fortieth avenue west bridge on Oneota street $1200, the Forty-third avenue bridge on Oneota street $1715, and the Forty-ninth avenue bridge on Oneota street $1950. Incidentals will cost about $698.

The plans for remodeling police headquarters and the central police station in order to acquire better sanitation, light and necessary office room were approved. This remodelling will cost $1812.

Alderman Mannheim's ordinance which will prohibit the building of barns, stables and ice houses within seventy-five feet of any street except on a petition from neighboring property owners, or on an affirmative two-thirds vote of the council, seems to meet with favor, now that it is fully understood, and may come up for passage next Monday night.

In effect the ordinance would compel the building of stables on alleys. From all parts of the city complaints have been made about the building of stables on streets to the detriment of adjoining property.

The various companies having electric wires on Michigan street east of Lake avenue are to be notified that this street is to be paved within a short time, and the city would consider it a special favor if the wires were put in conduits before the new paving is put in place, in order to save the expense and general inconvenience of taking it up again later on.

The annual poundmaster problem is again before the council. Mayor Hugo has appointed Samuel Wenberg, Chris Ottinger, Amos Deniels, Jacob Sanberg and David Doyle regular poundmasters, and they will begin work on May 1. Robert Roome has been appointed special policeman and poundmaster for Woodland, and the city appropriates $100 a month to help defray his expenses, the citizens of that suburb contributing the remainder.

Duluth Heights and Bay View Heights taxpayers are complaining of cattle and horses running at large, breaking sidewalks and damaging property, and Alderman Kern endeavored to have an appropriation of $100 for the Eighth ward suburb, while Alderman McEwen will look after the nuisance on Duluth Heights, and it is likely that all suburbs will be taken care of later on.

Alderman Frank Schaffer of the Sixth ward, who has been laid up with rheumatism, was receiving congratulations from his colleagues last evening on his ability to attend to the business of his constituents under such handicapping conditions.

Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure

Costs Nothing If It Fails.

Any honest person who suffers from Rheumatism is welcome to this offer.

I am a specialist in Rheumatism, and have treated more cases than any other physician, I think. For 16 years I made 2000 experiments with different drugs, testing all known remedies while searching the world for something better. Nine years ago I found a costly chemical in Germany which, with my previous discoveries, gives me a certain cure.

I don't mean that it can turn bony joints into flesh again; but it can cure the disease at any stage, completely and forever. I have done it fully 100,000 times.

I know this so well that I will furnish my remedy on trial. Simply write me a postal for my book on Rheumatism, and I will mail you an order on your druggist for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure. Take it for a month at my risk. If it succeeds, the cost is only $5.50. If it fails, I will pay the druggist myself—and your mere word shall decide it.

I mean that exactly. If you say the results are not what I claim, I don't expect a penny from you.

I have no samples. Any mere sample that can affect chronic Rheumatism must be drugged to the verge of danger. I use no such drugs, and it is folly to take them. You must get the disease out of the blood.

My remedy does that even in the most difficult, obstinate cases. It has cured the oldest cases that I ever met. And in all my experience—in all my 2,000 tests—I never found another remedy that would cure one chronic case in ten.

Write me and I will send you the order Try my remedy for a month, as it can't harm you anyway. If it fails it is free.

THE STAGE.

"York State Folks," one of the finest of rural dramas, will make its second visit to Duluth tonight and tomorrow night. Upon the occasion of its former visit it made a most favorable impression. It is a pastoral drama of the best type. The author has tried to keep as near nature in every way as is consistent with dramatic requirements. There is no villain in this play, and very little that could be called melodrama, and yet there is plenty of heart interest which will appeal to all classes. There is a well-defined plot with a delicate vein of pathos running through it, a few tears and a great many laughs. Above all, atmosphere and character have been sought and adhere to. The company that will be seen here will be the same identical cast which presented it at its last visit, and includes James Lackaye, who has done the best work of his stage career as Simon Peter Martin, the irascible village boss; Ray L. Royce, as the lovable and humorously inclined old village musician; Ernest Lamson, as the gawky young horse trader, Lem Dunbar; Harry Jackson, as the sleepy workman in the woodshop, the three clever children, and all the others of the original cast.

The Ferris Comedians in "The Octoroon," at the Metropolitan last night, pleased a large audience. The play is interesting throughout, dealing with the negro slaves in the slavery days in the South. Gus A. Forbes, as Salem Scudder, was clever in the part. Albert Dorris made a good George Peyton. Will L. White, as Jacob McCloskey, was seen at his best, and the part fits him admirably. William L. Lang, as the negro Pete, also was excellent. Harry Langdon was good as Sunnsides. J. H. Ferris made an excellent auctioneer and looked the part good. Dell Henderson made a fine looking Wah-No-Tee, Indian chief. Emily Batlo, as Paul, a yellow boy, gave a pleasing impersonation of the boy character. Mona Carrington, as Zoe, the octoroon, was excellent, while the Misses O'Neil and Haines were all that could be desired in their respective roles. The play was well staged.

The specialties were of a highly pleasing nature. Rosaire did feats on the slack wire that were marvelous. The Aerial Shaws repeated their former success and were repeatedly encored. This big bill will be given again tonight and at the matinee tomorrow, when $10 in gold will be given to the person bringing the best baked loaf of bread. The contest is open to all.

WAS CHARGED WITH FRAUD

North Dakota Attorney In Trouble Over Collection of Fee.

Washington, April 21.—A decision in the case of Thomas E. Kepner, a citizen of North Dakota, who began the practice of law at Manila two or three years ago, is liable to be handed down by the United States supreme court soon.

Kepner was attorney for a Filipino named Aun Ton, and after having secured his release from imprisonment was unable to collect a contract fee of $1000.

Before Aun Ton was released his friends had deposited a one-thousand dollar government warrant as security for Mr. Kepner. Kepner, it is claimed, got hold of his warrant, which was drawn in favor of Aun Ton and cashed it. He was then arrested and convicted of fraud. There are two other important insular cases pending in the United States supreme court.

The case of Osaki Mankicki, a native of Japan, who was convicted of murder in Honolulu, is important in that the contention is made that his trial and conviction was not in accordance with the constitution of the United States.

One point raised is that the constitution of this government does not extend in a case of this kind, where a native of a foreign country is convicted.

Mankicki's counsel claims that the fifth and sixth amendments to the constitution were in force in Hawaii from the date of its annexation to the United States.

The crime occured after annexation, but before the law passed making Hawaii a territory of the United States.

Mankicki was tried under the Hawaiian law, and insists that he should have been tried under the provisions of the American constitution. There are several other similar cases pending, and this one will be made a test.

An appealed case from Porto Rico is that of Herbert Crowley, a former post-office employe in that island. He was convicted of embezzlement by the Porto Rico supreme court, and has raised the question of jurisdiction. On that point his case has been carried to the United States supreme court.

KILLED TWO.

Attempt to Arrest Man Ended In Fatalities.

Rawlins, Wyo., April 21.—F. J. Keefe, head of the Keefe Commercial house, and former city treasurer, shot and killed Thomas King and Policeman Baxter last night and made his escape. Sheriff Horton and a posse are in pursuit.

Policeman Baxter and Policeman Spencer had gone to Keefe's place of business to arrest Keefe, who had been drinking heavily. Keefe suddenly appeared at the door with a gun and began shooting. Baxter was shot through the stomach and King, who was passing, fell, shot through the heart.

King was a lieutenant in Torry's Rough Riders during the Spanish war.

ACTRESS HAS ACCIDENT.

Chicago, April 21.—Miss Georgia Caine, prima donna in "Peggy From Paris," now running at the Studebaker theater here, slipped in her entrance last night in the first act, and sprained her hip so seriously that she had to be supported during her opening song. At its conclusion the curtain was rung down and Miss Caine was carried from the stage in a swoon. She will be confined to her hotel for a week.

TYPHOID AT STANFORD.

Many Cases Have Broken Out at University.

Stanford University, Cal., April 21.—Twenty additional cases of typhoid fever have broken out Sunday and yesterday. Thirteen of these are reported from Palo Alto and seven on the university campus. The total number of those stricken by the epidemic since its first appearance now aggregate close to 100.

As yet there has been but one death, Williiam Pluntz, a bookkeeper for a San Francisco oil company, and a resident of Palo Alto, succumbed to the disease Sunday morning. Several other patients are very low and more fatalities are feared. A majority of the new cases are students in the university. Among those critically ill are: E. E. Miller, of Vinton, Iowa, and R. D. Barbett, of Herman, Minn.

There has been much talk about the university closing, but Dr. Jordan states that while conditions are as they are, and while the physicians are of the opinion that the trouble is almost checked, no action in this direction will be taken.

Uncle Reuben's Opinion.

"They may say what they please, but listen—hear me: I've taken all kinds of laxatives, purgatives and cathartics, but when it comes to one that is easy and pleasant to take, mild and gentle in its action, and that makes one want an extra slice of bacon for breakfast, just give me Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and you may have all the laxative syrups, dyspepsia medicines and pills, little or big, there is in this country. Them Tablets surely do make you feel joyful." For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

ALL ON FIRE

A Duluth Citizen Tells How Relief Came.

Ever have eczema?
Have any itching skin disease?
Itching almost drives you crazy.
You feel "all on fire."
Doan's Ointment brings quick relief.
Cures eczema, itching piles,
And all itchiness of the skin.

Mr. Warren Blossom, of 519 Superior street east, says: "It is a pleasure for me to recommend a remedy of such sterling merit as Doan's Ointment. For twelve years I suffered from eczema in a very bad form on the groin and upper limbs. The irritation was intense and few can realize what agony I endured. The skin assumed a coarse, leathery appearance. I used ointment after ointment, wash after wash, and bottle after bottle of medicine. Doctors did me no good, and I despaired of ever getting rid of it. When I saw Doan's Ointment advertised, and thinking that it probably might relieve me, if only temporarily, I got a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and commenced to use it. The first application cooled and relieved the burning irritation, and by the time I had used one full box all signs of the trouble had left me and the skin was soft and smooth."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

WILL NOT GET IT

New Duluth and Fond du Lac Hopes Are Dashed.

Northern Pacific Cannot Afford to Give Added Service.

The management of the Northern Pacific road has avowed that it can not profitably give more train service to New Duluth and Fond du Lac. Not being able to operate the train profitably it will refuse to put on the train.

In an official document sent to General Agent T. E. Blanche a few days ago, the general offices of the company instructed the local representative to communicate to the petitioners for a new train service to the west, the regrets of the officials and the statement that nothing could be done this year.

The resolution of the common council last night will have to go to the general offices of the company, where a re-consideration of the subject may be secured.

It was a fact that the officials gave the matter a great deal of consideration the first time it was put up to them, when the petitions of Duluth business men were sent in. Mr. Blanche was before the officials and explained the necessity for the train, in his opinion, and Mr. Vanderslice was also present to show what the cost of such service would be and the business that would result.

A passenger train service as frequent as is asked between Duluth and New Duluth and Fond du Lac, would be a rather costly investment for the railroad, and the officials desire to be shown where they will get their money back, before they will go into a proposition that costs them money.

There is another element that conspired with other conditions to cause the railroad people to refuse the request for the train, and that was the shortage on motive power, with which the Northern Pacific is said to be afflicted. This argument cannot be gotten away from very well.

The Sunday business to the resort towns, it is acknowledged by the railroad people, would be profitable were it not for the fact that the extra coaches and rolling stock that could be employed, can be used to so much more profit on longer hauls on other parts of the line, where the Sunday business is of a different character.

The petitioners for the new trains set forth that the impetus the suburbs would receive by the train service would make the investment a paying one for the railroad within another year, and that it is presumption on the part of the railroad to ask that there be ample business to make the trains profitable from the start, as they figure the road would make up their losses many times in a year or two, and could reasonably afford to take the initiative in the building up of the western part of the Duluth suburban district.

The letter written to A. C. Volk, who has been active in the demand for the new train service, stated that after consideration the railroad people had arrived at the determination that they could not put on the train this spring.

The inference was that there might be a chance for it next spring, and whether or not the common council resolution will have any effect on the announcement cannot be told from this end of the argument.

CLASH OVER DIRECTORIES

Polk Directory People Ask Injunction Against Clinton McCormick.

St. Paul, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Duluth Directory company, of which Clarence B. Stanley is manager, filed a complaint in the federal circuit court today, asking for an injunction against Clinton B. McCormick, of Duluth, and the Pioneer Press Printing company, of St. Paul, restrainng them from printing or publishing a directory of Duluth.

The complaint alleges that the plaintiff is the proprietor of the R. L. Polk & Co. directory of that city, and that McCormick is having printed at the Pioneer Press a directory the copy for which consists largely of sheets from his directory, which is a copyright publication.

According to the complaint the printing company is actively engaged in printing and binding the directories, which are alleged to be an infringement of his copyright.

FOR STEALING BAGGAGE.

Two Men Arrested at Spooner By Duluth Police.

Angel food and arrow root pudding are considered preferable to butterless rye bread and sardines by two suspected thieves locked up in the central police station.

Magnus Jensen and Anton Lindquist are very much disappointed at the "stable 'd hote" meals they are getting in their apartments over the patrol wagon team.

Arrested yesterday at Spooner by Chief Troyer and Detective Irvine they are accused of stealing baggage from the Spalding check room where Lindquist was employed.

While he was on duty he would take checks and give them to Jensen who would present them and claim baggage when some other boy was on duty.

Jensen has a bad reputation and is wanted in Minneapolis for breaking out of the workhouse.

IRON BILL BOARD.

One Is Being Put Up on Michigan Street.

Iron is rapidly succeeding wood in every department of usefulness.

Duluth's latest witness to this fact is a new bill board over a hundred feet long which an advertising company is erecting on Michigan street. The board has a wooden frame but the face on which the bills are to be posted is of sheet iron.

This is the first of its kind to be erected in this city though successful boards of its kind are used elsewhere. It is claimed that the sheet iron will last longer than wood and that the paper will stick closer.

With the old wooden boards the contact is so poor that after several thicknesses of paper have been pasted on, it will begin to roll up and tear itself away from the surface. This will be to an extent eliminated with the new style.

To Recover Lands.

Frederick Weyerhaeuser, Frederick Denkman and the Northern Lumber company have entered suit against George A. Hogobloom and John McAlpine in the United States court to secure title to certain lands in section 33-52-15. The plaintiffs ask that an injunction be granted restraining the defendants from cutting or removing any timber from the lands until the case be settled.

The case hinges on the question involved in the old Northern Pacific grants and is important as the land in question is valuable, having a heavy growth of pine on it.

The plaintiffs waive an examination under oath and ask that the defendants be subpoened to appear and answer the charges contained in the bill of complaint.

JOHNSON TEST

M. C. Littleworth Brings Bar of Steel to Duluth.

Tells of Test and Conditions Under Which Made.

M. C. Littleworth, who escorted the party of Duluth business men to St. Paul to see the tests in the Johnson steel-making, returned this morning with the rest of the party.

He exhibited a bar of steel, fourteen inches long and an inch and a quarter wide and high, which was run off yesterday at the tests, which proved successful and satisfactory to the 250 people who watched the operation in the Saintly City. The bar weighs six pounds.

"The test," said Mr. Littleworth, "which was made under the most adverse circumstances and conditions, proved more than satisfactory to the owners of the process, the Johnson Nickel company, and those who witnessed it. The steel was made in a plain foundry cupola, and the slag and the metal had to be drawn off through the same hole. There was only a cold-air blast and a 40-horse power engine.

"With a first-class furnace we will have no trouble about making the best kind of steel, a steel which will beat the Swedish process.

"The tests were made under the supervision of Dr. Lehnen, a chemist of standing in the Twin Cities, and he averred afterwards that the steel could be made by this process of the black titanic ore better and cheaper than by the Bessemer process from other ore.

"One of the tests made was drilling into this bar of steel. An American steel drill was secured, tempered by a practical mechanic, and a hole was started into the steel bar. At half an inch the drill crumbled, the substance being too hard for it.

"This bar I have here has been polished with a rough emory wheel. With a fine wheel it would be polished to a degree that would cause it to shine like a piece of silver.

"This piece of steel I hold is of such quality now that it could be made into edged tools at once, and would be a superior quality than most on the market now.

"Our first run was successful, but the second run was a failure. This failure was caused by the attempt to run out two furnaces, one after the other, continuously, and not giving the cupola time to cool. It burned the fire brick and spoiled the run.

"The last one yesterday, however, was entirely successful, even though thee quipment at the Valley Iron works, where one of the regulation foundry cupolas was used, was not what it should be. It took forty minutes after filling the furnace, from the time the blast was thrown on, until this steel was run off and in the shape it is now. This is what Dr. Lehnen said: 'I can produce with this process the best quality of steel from black titanic ore, cheaper or as cheap as steel from hematite ore.' That was pretty strong, but he is ready to make good his claim.

"There were seven tons of the black titanic ore taken to St. Paul from the Cook county iron deposits, and it was found, upon this test, to be better than it was thought before, on account of the venadium and chrome contained in it, which neutralized the gases.

"Everyone who attended was satisfied with the exhibition, and it will terminate with the erection at once of a 50-ton smelter and converter somewhere in Duluth. There have been offers of sites from Superior and Ashland, but we have three in view here, and will probably locate it here. The money is up now and the capital in our hands. We will put up the works and then we will be in a position to show the way the steel can be made with one smelting, without any failures, from the black titanic."

Frank Johnson, the inventor of the process, will not be in Duluth for eight or ten days yet.

TO RELIEVE THE COUNTIES

County Auditor Halden Secures Passage of a Necessary Bill.

A bill which will save St. Louis county from $25,000 to $40,000 and keep most of the counties in the state from temporary bankruptcy, passed the legislature Saturday, largely through the efforts of County Auditor Holden.

It was the bill to legalize absolute deeds which had been declared void by the supreme court about four months ago. Acting under the advice of the attorney general and the state auditor, the various county auditors had issued absolute deeds to property on which delinquent taxes only were included. The supreme court decided that no absolute deeds were legal unless the current year's taxes were included.

This would have made it necessary for all of the counties which had been issuing deeds under the order of things in vogue before the court handed down its decision—every county in the state, in fact—to refund sums so large that a temporary swamping of the county treasuries would have resulted.

The bill passed the house all right, but the judicial committee of the senate, misunderstanding it, thought it was a "woodchuck," and reported it for indefinite postponement.

Auditor Halden went to St. Paul, and after explaining the bill it was voted on by the senate and passed with a slight amendment. This made it necessary to send it back to the house, where it was again accepted, and so it was steered through the legislature last Saturday and will become a law.

It would have been a very serious matter if Auditor Halden's timely explanation had not happened along as it did and the bill had been set aside in the senate.

WILL BUY THE BARRETT.

Capt. Gaillard Decides Upon Mitchell & McClure Tug.

After receiving bids for a tug to be used in Duluth harbor during the erection of the south pier at the natural entry, and carefully examining the boats, Capt. Gailladr has decided to purchase the Ada Barret, of the Mitchell-McClure company, for $2500.

The steel plate for which bids on 47,000 pounds were asked, will be obtained from the National Iron company, of Duluth. There were bidders from outside of the city, Superior and the East.

The office here also asked for bids on steam and gasoline locomotives, to be used at Superior and Marquette, but the manufacturers require three or four months before the engines can be delivered, so an attempt will be made to find second-hand locomotives which can be procured immediately.

Capt. Gaillard is daily expecting orders from headquarters to leave Duluth and go to the station which he will next assume command of.

Supreme Court Settles Lorimer-Durborrow Election Contest.

Springfield, Ill., April 21.—The supreme court this morning settled the Lorimer-Durborow election contest of Chicago by handing down an opinion in which they hold that the circuit court of Cook county had no jurisdiction in the case, and that the whole matter was in the hands of the election commissioners. The result of the court's opinion will be that the ballots will be counted and the courts of Cook county can make no further order in the case. The supreme court ordered the habeas corpus proceedings against Sheriff Barrett of Cook county for the release of the election commissioners, who were cited for contempt of court dismissed.

Minneapolis Reports Concession to the Flour Manufacturers.

Claim That Minneapolis Forces the Premium on Wheat.

Some of the smaller milling companies at Minneapolis have begun grindig wheat again, and it is reported in the Minneapolis Journal that the other millers have assurances from the railroads that some rate concessions will be forthcoming forthwith.

The larger milling companies expected to resume last night or this morning, and it was expected that by tonight fifteen of the twenty-two mills belonging to the larger companies would be operating. The Duluth-Superior and other mills here have not signified an intention of continuing business as yet.

The theory outside of Minneapolis is that the millers have swamped themselves so dismally with wheat at from 1 to 4 cents a bushel higher than the Duluth price that they must secure some concessions to put them on the same ground as eastern millers who have bought wheat in Duluth at lower prices.

It is asserted that the diversion of the wheat away from Duluth by means of a premium of from 1 cent to 4 cents a bushel is unfair and hardly legitimate and the Duluth traders and shippers are hoping no concessions in rates will be given the Minneapolis millers, until they show their squareness by adjusting their cash wheat prices to a legitimate basis.

The Duluth Daily Commercial Record, Duluth board of trade, had this to say on the situation yesterday:

"With considerable spectacular accompaniment, the Minneapolis flour mills closed down on Friday last, ascribing the principal reason to be the fact that lake and rail rates on flour are out of all proportion to the advantages given the transportation of the raw product. It is an old argument and the pros and cons have been threshed over so many times and for so many years, although the mills continued running, that the grain trade not directly interested came to believe it more buncombe than anything else.

"It is barely possible the Minneapolis mills have a grievance, but we fail to see wherein they can make complaint with clean hands so long as they persist in paying 1 to 4 cents a bushel more for wheat at Minneapolis than the Eastern and foreign miller can buy it at in Duluth.

"There is no legitimate reason why wheat at Minneapolis should ever get closer than 2 cents to the Duluth price, and while the May options are at that spread now, it is the first time in over a year, and even at that their cash wheat is practically 2½ cents over the May, making it ½ to ¾ cent higher than Duluth cash.

"With a 180,000,000-bushel wheat crop in the Northwest and Minneapolis mills drawing 25 to 35 per cent of their requirements from outside states, it does seem as though the Minneapolis miller could allow what wheat would naturally flow to Duluth to come, and not insist on putting a premium over Duluth on every bushel of wheat that goes to that market.

"Until the Minneapolis mills adjust their cash wheat price to a legitimate basis under Duluth, there is no reason apparent why transportation interests should give the slightest heed to their claims of discrimination in freights."

PRIZES FOR BEAUTY

Commercial Club Offers One For Best Lawn In Each Ward.

Directors Meet and Transact Considerable Important Business.

The Commercial club is to give Duluth's cleaning up movement a boost by offering a first prize of $20 for the best kept lawn in each of the eight wards of the city. A nursery company has offered to give second and third prizes in nursery stock, so that a lively competition in the manner of beautiful lawns will be brought about in all parts of the city.

The club will turn the $160 which it will donate to the purpose over to the Woman's council which has been doing so much of late along the lines of civic improvement, and let that body arrange the details of the contest such as selecting the judges and arranging the rules of the competition. Mrs. J. L. Washburn is president of the council.

An important meeting of the board of directors of the club was held this afternoon and several committees were appointed. Secretary Preston, Guy A. Eaton, and W. B. Silvey, were deputized to attend the meeting of the good roads convention in St. Louis April 27 to May 2 as representatives of the club and to attend the formal dedication of the Louisiana Purchase exposition on April 30, in the same capacity.

A committee on which a representative of all of Duluth's great interests was placed, was made up to co-operate in the Minnesota commission which has charge of the state department at the St. Louis fair next year. The members of this committee are as follows: Alexander Mclbougall, chairman; L. W. Powell, C. A. Duncan, R. E. Denfeld, F. A. Patrick, Ward Ames, I. Freimuth. The state has appropriated $100,000 for the state exhibit and the governor has appointed a commission of three with whom the committee will confer in regard to its work.

A committe to interview the officials of the Northern Pacific railroad with regard to a short line to Fond du Lac during the summer months was appointed as follows: A. C. Volk, O. G. Brice, and T. A. Merritt.

A committee to try to secure conventions to be held in this city was named to consist of E. L. Millar, S. H. Rothermal, Jr., and Secretary Preston. G. W. Weiles, T. F. Cole, G. A. Tomlinson, A. M. Miller, Jr., and B. Silberstein were constituted a committee to raise funds for entertainments, to organize excursions, induce factories to locate here and carry on the other important work of the club.

Watson S. Moore and J. A. Ferguson were deputed to confer with the street car company with a view to securing observation cars on the street car system so that visiting excursionists may see the city more comfortably.

A plan was also proposed for the organization of a jobbers and manufacturers auxiliary of the commercial club which could use the Commercial club rooms and who should have a common secretary with the club.

PREPARING TO BID

Asphalt Company Getting Data For New Paving Jobs.

Will Have Difficulty In Landing Contracts For These.

"Anything but asphalt" which is the slogan of East Superior street property owners in their efforts to secure good paving, does not seem to cause much anxiety on the part of the asphalt trust.

Representatives of that particular paving are in the city today getting data for estimates on two large contracts—the paving of Superior street between Third and Eighth avenues and the paving of Superior street between Sixteenth and Twenty- third avenues. The trust now has the contract for paving between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues much to the regret of many that are now paying assessments for the improvement which should have been completed last fall but which only began yesterday.

It is not likely that any asphalt bid will be given serious consideration after the deal the city got last autumn, to say nothing of a discrimination of 60 cents a square yard in favor of St. Paul as against Duluth. In St. Paul the asphalt people have bid as low as $1.55 for practically the same work that was offered Duluth at $2.45 a square yard.

The present tendency is to use vitrified brick on that part of Superior street between Third and Eighth avenues east. The various materials for this piece of paving are estimated to cost as follows:

Vitrified brick	$33,378 84
Bitulithic	34,485 99
Asphalt	42,339 66
Sandstone	45,221 71

The majority of property owners desire "anything but asphalt" on the second contract from Sixteenth to Twenty-third avenues, and many prefer bitulithic paving to all others. The estimates on this are:

Vitrified brick	$40,463 56
Bitulithic	45,139 84
Asphalt	51,801 35
Sandstone	52,012 36

HIGH GRADE ORE IS FOUND

Highland Stuff That Runs 66.80 Per Cent In Iron.

The best ore yet taken from the Highland range was analyzed in this city today and ran 66.80 per cent.

This ore was taken from the property of W. F. King and his local associates in 28-55-11 and from a pit 24 feet in depth.

The assay was made by one of the best chemists in the employ of the United States Steel corporation and the 66.80 showing was on samples of hard ore.

Samples of soft ore taken from 3 and 4-51-11, owned by the same parties, ran 58.40 in iron and .034 in phosphorus. This was taken from a pit 17 feet deep.

In the explorations thus far a churn drill has been in use but within a few weeks from four new diamond drills will be put in on the land where these samples came from and it is expected that discoveries of considerable importance will result.

NO LIQUORS CAN BE SOLD

St. Paul, April 21.—A Sioux Falls, S. D. special to the Dispatch says: The question as to the legality of selling liquor at Wagner and other towns situated on the ceded portion of the Yankton reservation in Charles Mix county was effectually settled in the United States court here today. The treaty with the Indians provided that liquor should not be sold on any portion of the ceded lands.

This treaty was ratified by congress in 1894 and because the act of ratification did not fix penalties for those guilty of selling liquor on the ceded lands, attorneys have maintained that liquor could be sold without fear of punishment. In a test case, Fred Stanley of Wagner, indicted for this offense, today pleaded guilty and Judge Carland sentenced him to a term of six months imprisonment and fined him $100, thus deciding in effect that the provisions of the treaty with the Indians prohibiting the sale of liquor on ceded lands were legal and binding.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Slow Progress Is Made In Corn Planting.

Washington, April 21.—The weather bureau's weekly crop bulletin says: In the states of the Upper Missouri valley, the week ending April 20 was milder than usual and generally favorable for farming operations, but elsewhere east of the Rockies the temperature was much below the average, and excessive rains retarted farm work generally throughout the Atlantic coast districts, Ohio valley and the southern portion of the lake region. The central and west gulf states and portions of the southeast Rockies are much in need of rain, no appreciable amount having fallen over a large part of these districts for more than two weeks.

On the Pacific coast cool weather has retarded growth and frosts have caused considerable injury in Oregon. Southern California coast districts have received heavy rains, insuring an abundance of irrigation water.

Very slow progres has been made with corn planting throughout the corn belt and the Middle and Southern Atlantic states, owing to cold, wet weather, while dry weather has impaired stands in the central and west gulf states.

The previously reported excellent condition of winter wheat in the principal winter wheat states continues unimpaired, excepting to a slight extent in portions of the Upper Ohio valley, where in some localities it is turning yellow. Les favorable reports are also received from the Middle and South Atlantic states and portions of Texas.

Seeding of spring wheat is general in all parts of the spring wheat region, but progress has not been rapid in Southeastern Minnesota owing to wet soil. The early sown in Iowa and South Dakota is germinating slowly though even stands are indicated. On the North Pacific coast spring wheat seeding is much delayed.

WOODSMEN IN LARGE NUMBERS

Duluth Filled With Them —Have Not Much Money.

Duluth is filled with woodsmen. Employment agents say that there are more men in town now that there has been at any other time in three years.

Lodging houses are crowded in the Bowery district. Most of the men have had a chance to spend all of the money they can spare and on that account the clothiers and others who handle their trade are not doing a very rushing business.

The men spend their time loafing around on the streets and keeping their eyes on the bulletin boards of the employment agencies. Railroad work is slow in starting this spring and there are few jobs waiting for them at present.

Orders will be more plentiful after May 1, and the men will then begin to leave the city in large numbers. An occasional order for a few men is received by the agencies, but they are all filled up in a few minutes.

Most of the laborers will work on the railroads during the first summer months and about the last of July they will come back to town to prepare for a trip to the harvest fields of North and South Dakota. Special harvest rates go into effect July 26 this year on the railroads.

"Norse, Swede, Finn, U. S. and Irish spoken here," is the card which one of the local employment offices displays, but the men find on entering at present that "nothing doing" is about all the job finders are able to say, in spite of their linguistic accomplishments.

HIS POSITION IS EMBARRASSING

Baron Von Sternberg Near Foot of Diplomatic List.

Washington, April 21.—Considerable attention is being given in official and diplomatic circles to the embarrassing position which Germany is forced to occupy at Washington as a result of the delay in arrival of credentials of Baron Speck Von Sternberg, who, it has been announced, is eventually to succeed Herr Von Holleben as ambassador here. The German envoy's present rank is that of minister on a special mission, and as such he necessarily is at the foot of the list of ministers and just preceding the charges d'affaires. While he has ostensibly taken no notice of the embarrassing effects of his minor rank, friends of Germany in the United States are confessedly dissatisfied that the head of the imperial German embassy, who prior to the departure of Ambassador Holleben was dean of the diplomatic corps, should be ranked by all of the foreign representatives, save Venezuela, Uruguay, China and the Dominican republic.

One Man Dead and Another Seriously Injured.

Indianapolis, April 21.—Two men, one of them dead from terrible injuries about the head and the other unconscious from serious injuries were found between the Big Four tracks near Neil street south of Mt. His hat had been bought in Cincinnati.

ADMIRAL WINS SUIT.

San Francisco, April 21.—Rear Admiral Gilmore, U. S. N. retired, has won a suit which was brought by the stepfather of his wife for the recovery of $1150 which it was alleged was spent in supporting Mrs. Gilmore. Superior Judge Troutt granted a non-suit because the plaintiff failed to prove any abandonment on the part of the naval officer or that he had failed to contribute to his wife's support.

BITTEN BY ST. BERNARD.

South Carolina Girl Brought For Pasteur Treatment.

New York, April 21.—Clara Shufford, 8 years old, of Lenior, S. C., said to be the daughter of a wealthy planter, has been brought to this city to be treated at the Pasteur institute for hyprophobia. The physician in charge of the institute refuses to disclose the Christian name of the girl's father.

She owned a big St. Bernard dog, and was very fond of it. About a week ago the dog got the rabies and bit twelve sheep in a field near the homestead and then ran to the house. Little Clara was on the back porch and thought the dog was running to greet her. She went to meet him and threw her arms about him. The dog growled and then snapped at the girl. She became frightened and started to go indoors. The maddened animal knocked her down and bit her on both arms and the back of the right leg before she was rescued by her father.

EDUCATION IN THE SOUTH

Complaint That Southern Rich Men Are Indifferent to It.

Chicago, April 21.—William E. Curtis, in a special from Chattanooga, Tenn., to the Record-Herald, says: Each spring for five years a number of philanthropists have met at some convenient point to discuss the educational conditions of the South and devise means for their improvement. The assembly has usually consisted of men from the North who have command of money and poor but practical educators in the South, who appreciate the deplorable illiteracy of their fellow countrymen, and are willing to sacrifice their strength and their lives to elevate them.

I do not wish to raise a "sectional issue," but I have yet to hear of a rich man in the South putting his hand in his pocket to find money to pay the expense of educating the masses. There are plenty of rich men in the South, and they are generous in other directions. In the city of New York alone there are many millionaires from this section who, notwithstanding their pride in other respects, permit the benevolent spirit of the North to monopolize the privilege of promoting Southern education. They never lack words of patriotism and affection for the "Southland," as they call it; they are inspired with uncontrolable enthusiasm when the band plays "Dixie," but when there is a disaster in the South that calls for financial relief, when the hat is passed around for contributions to establish and maintain schools for their former neighbors, they seldom contribute a dollar, and when conferences are called to consider means to advance the welfare of "the poor white trash" of the South, they never have time to attend. This is not only true as a rule of rich Southern men who live in the North, but it is even more true of the rich men who still live in the South. They are absolutely indifferent to the illiteracy and morality of the masses. They are full of sentiment for their beloved "Southland," but have no time or money to devote to the practical, mental and moral improvement of its inhabitants.

"I do not mean to be understood that the spirit of patriotism does not exist in the South, but I do assert that it is confined to poor men who have nothing to contribute but their lives and their talents, and are giving those with a zeal and a devotion that could not be surpassed. No public servants in any part of the world are entitled to greater admiration or gratitude than the country school teachers in the Southern states, because the difficulties they encounter, the sacrifices that are required of them, are never experienced by teachers in the North, and the lack of ways and means which they must supply by their own ingenuity costs them more of strength and spirit than is expended by members of their profesion in any other part of this country. Nor are their zeal and talents and devotion appreciated by those who should give them a substantial encouragement and support.

"The greatest obstacle to the educational progress of the South is politics. Public sentiment is indifferent, and whenever an appropriation is to be cut down, whenever taxes must be reduced in this section, the schools are the first to be sacrificed. In the North they are the last."

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

New York Broker Found Dead In Bed at Houghton.

Houghton—Charles Nicole, a New York broker, was found dead in his bed here Monday night. He came to Houghton from New York city in the interest of the United Mines Developing company.

Wakefield—The Meteor mine, operated by Corrigan, McKinney & Co., will close down this month. This will throw out of employment about 100 men. The mine has been operated at a loss, the prospects for ultimate success have appeared good. A small village of good substantial dwellings has built up around it. In 1887 this mine, then the Comet, was operated on a big scale by the Penokee & Gogebic Development company, but its failure in 1893 made it idle for five years or until resumed by the present operators.

Menominee.—The thirty cases against young boys arrested at Menominee for stoning trains, jumping on trains, and other malicious conduct, have been disposed of by Judge Opsahl. Thirteen of the culprits were arrested, the fines ranging from one dollar and costs to five dollars and costs. The costs amounting in all cases to $4.20. The rest of the boys were discharged with a good lecture by the judge.

A strange and unusual condition is noted in an old gravel pit back of the Riverside cemetery at Menominee. The pit, which is about the level of the river, contains several feet of water, in which thousands of small fish live. The species of these fish is not known, but what puzzles is how the fish got there. The pond has no outlet or inlet and the fish have been there ever since last fall. One theory is that some fish spawn must have been dropped into the gravel pit by a bird flying over.

Escanaba.—In justice Glaser's court at Escanaba last week, Frank Bassey, proprietor and manager of the pool and billiard rooms at 516 Ludington street, pleaded guilty to the charge of permitting, in violation of the state law, minors under sixteen years of age to frequent his pool and billiard rooms. He was fined $25 and costs, which he paid. The complaint against Bassey was entered by Mrs. George Young. The particular minor specified was her son, George Young, Jr.

Ironwood.—Captain Thomas Oliver, mining captain at the New port mine, at Ironwood, for the past six years, has severed his connection with the company. Just now he is in Texas, but will return about May 1 and shortly after will leave for England for an extended visit. The captain was one of the fortunate investors who got in on Calumet & Arizona on the ground floor. He recently disposed of his holdings for $50,000 or $20,000 and plans to spend the rest of his days in ease. Just prior to his leaving the Newport mine the men presented him with a handsome gold watch in token of their esteem.

TWO MEN DROWNED.

Winnipeg, April 21.—While the government tug, Sir Hector, was being launched yesterday, a cable gave way and let the boat down suddenly. Eight men were on the water side and six of them managed to escape by running into deeper water and swimming around, but John Davis and Ed Ryder were caught beneath the boat and both drowned. Davis' body was recovered, frightfully bruised and lacerated, but that of Ryder is still missing.

VANDERBILT IS TO MARRY.

New York, April 21.—Justice Geigrich yesterday, in the supreme court, signed an order permitting William K. Vanderbilt to marry again.

The order modifies the decree obtained by Mrs. Alva Vanderbilt in 1897, by which Mr. Vanderbilt was forbidden to marry within the life of his divorced wife.

The application for the order was supported by affidavits made by United States Senator Chauncey M. Depew and E. V. Rossitor, and sets forth that Mr. Vanderbilt is now in Paris, France, and he is desirous of forthwith contracting another marriage.

A WASHINGTON, D.C., LADY

Makes a Remarkable Statement.

After Years of Sufferings From Acute Nervous Dyspepsia,

Paine's Celery Compound

Effects a Happy Cure.

MRS. ADA COCHRANE.

Dyspepsia, one of humanity's most cruel enemies, is effectually cured by the use of Paine's Celery Compound. This tormenting disease is caused by acute inflammation of the nerves centered about the stomach. In dyspepsia nervous energy is wasted, and the entire digestive organism is deranged. The needs of dyspeptics may be summed up as follows: The great nervous system requires strengthening; the blood now charged with impurities must be cleansed, so that it will flow healthily and in abundance; the stomach, weak, and unreliable, must be toned up. Paine's Celery Compound in the springtime will accomplish all that is needed for the dyspeptic sufferer, and banish troubles that make daily life unbearable. Mrs. Ada Cochrane, Washington, D. C., says:—

"I have been for years a sufferer from acute attacks of nervous dyspepsia, and during the past winter I heard so much about your Paine's Celery Compound I decided to try what it would do for me. I used less than two bottles and experienced relief almost from the first dose I took. I did not find it necessary to finish the second bottle. I therefore do not hesitate to add my hearty indorsement to the many thousands of testimonials you already have."

Two Express Company Men at Sioux Falls Arrested.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—George S. Roe, agent of the United Express company, is under arrest charged with the embezzlement of about $1000. Roe says his brother John, who was a driver for the express company, abstracted the money from packages and that in order to protect his brother he paid the shortages out of company funds, as well as his own. He was placed under $2500 bonds, which he secured. John Roe, now at Pipestone, Minn., has been arrested.

White Rock—Citizens have been raised $200 with which to test the quality of clay found in a pit east of town. A mill has been built and all arrangements made for burning a test kiln this week. The price of lumber and the high insurance rates have led citizens to undertake the manufacture of brick.

United States Government Engineer A. O. Powell, of St. Paul, recently made a trip into the Red River valley for the purpose of establishing gauging station in connection with the proposed improvement for flood protection.

Vast quantities of dead fish line the west banks of the lakes. The fish were evidently smothered.

While the city marshal was at dinner a Montana cowboy gave a little exhibition of Western life. He had evidently taken on too bi a cargo and while following a citizen, fired his revolver several times, piercing an umbrella which the resident was carrying.

Vermillion—The April term of Clay county's circuit court, adjourned one week by Judge Smith, lasted only three days. The principal suit was between sisters, Mrs. J. H. Maurer vs. Mrs. P. W. Peterson, wherein the former sued for $15,000 for slander. The trial had just commenced when a point of law was brought up by the defense which necessitated a continuance until next term.

Hot Springs—The new iron bridge across the Cheyenne river at the mouth of Fall river has been opened for public travel. Ever since the settlement of this county the fording of the Cheyenne river has at some seasons been a serious problem. The completion of the bridge is therefore an event of more than ordinary importance to the people of Fall River county, who gathered to dedicate the structure. The total length of the bridge is 412 feet and it is so high above high water mark that it will never be in danger of floods.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Grand Forks—Miss Nielson, who registered at Hotel Prescott on Friday, was found dead in her bed Sunday night. Nothing is known of her. She had been drinking, and it is thought she put some dope in her liquor or that some one else did. The coroner is holding an inquest and there will be a postmortem examination. Thus far the physicians have been unable to determine the exact cause of death. She was 30 years of age and had two pawn tickets and a little change in her purse.

At the preliminary examination of James Beraneck and George Thornton, of St. Paul, on the charge of highway robbery, the former was discharged and the latter held in $500 bonds. They were arrested on the charge of robbing Jacob Listman.

Fargo—The Elks had a great time Saturday night when a large class was initiated, the new officers installed, and visitors from Grand Forks and Crookston entertained. After the regular work of the evening the social session was put on and the feature was a minstrel show by members of the order in the nature of a josh on the street railway in Fargo. Much of the talent of the local lodge participated.

President N. A. Lewis, of the Merchants state bank, and former Postmaster A. L. Loomis have purchased the interests of A. E. Clendening in the Vidger & Co.'s wholesale grocery and fruit house.

NEW TRIAL TOO EXPENSIVE

Mrs. Hossack, Charged With Murder, to Be Dismissed.

Des Moines, Iowa, April 21.—The Hossack murder case will not be tried again. It is now on the criminal court docket of Madison county, to which county it was taken on change from Warren, where the murder took place. It will be dismissed because Warren county is unwilling to stand any further expense in the prosecution. The case has already cost Warren county about $10,000, and there seems to be no probability of a conviction. Mrs. Hossack was tried and convicted of murder in the first degree on account of the mysterious death of her husband, and she was sentenced to life imprisonment. But the case had been badly tried, and the record was full of errors, and the supreme court could not do otherwise than send it back for a new trial. It was taken to Madison county on account of the prejudice existing in Warren county. The trial at Winterset, which ended in a jury that could not make a report or verdict, was very expensive for Warren county. A large number of witnesses were sent to Winterset and the ex-county attorney of Warre county and other lawyers were hired to assist in the prosecution.

Last week the board of supervisors of Warren county adopted a resolution directing that the county attorney of Madison county be not granted any further assistance in the case, and cutting off the employment of the Warren county lawyers, who alone are sufficiently familiar with the case to make a strong presentation of it. The resolution also asked County Attorney Cooper, of Madison, to dismiss the case and make no further expense to Warren county. There will be no alternative for him, and Mrs. Hossack will be at the next term of court declared free, and her bondsmen will be released.

The case has been one of the most interesting ones in criminal annals of southern Iowa. The defense of Mrs. Hossack was by Senator Berry and Judge Henderson, who have thus added greatly to their reputation. Mrs. Hossack is now somewhat broken in health, and as she is getting old she will be allowed to end her days with her children, and the mystery of the murder of John Hossack will never be solved.

VOW REQUIRED BY DOWIE.

Family Ties and Human Governments Subordinate.

New York, April 21.—One of the letters of the Rev. John Alexander Dowie to his agents who are now here preparing for the arrival of the Zion Restoration Host next October contains the official wording of the vow which every convert to Dowieism will be compelled to sign when received into the fold of Elijah II. This is a copy:

"I vow in the name of God, my father, and of Jesus the Christ, His son and my saviour, and of the Holy Ghost, who proceeds from the Father and the Son, that I will be a faithful member of Zion Restoration Host, organized at the Shiloh tabernacle in the city of Zion on Lord's Day, Sept. 21, 1902, and I declare that I recognize John Alexander Dowie, general overseer of the Christian Catholic church of Zion, of which I am a member, in his threefold prophetic office, as the messenger of the covenant, the prophet foretold by Moses, Elijah the restorer.

"I promise to the fullest extent of all my powers to obey all rightful orders issued by him directly or by his properly appointed officers and to proceed to any part of the world, where he shall direct, as a member of Zion Restoration Host, and that all family ties and obligations and all relations to all human government shall be subordinate to this vow, this declaration and this promise.

"This I make in the presence of God and of all visible and invisible witnesses."

MISS ASTOR

May Wed Roumanian Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Bucharest, April 21.—For the hand of Pauline Astor, daughter of William Waldorf Astor, two powerful rivals are contending—Prince Ferdinand of Bulgaria and "Tonel" Bratiano, Roumanian minister of foreign affairs.

Prince Ferdinand is heir to the Bulgarian throne. He is most anxious to have the daughter of the Astors as a stepmother to his four motherless children and to have the benefit of the millions she will inherit. He is not prepossessing, and his reputation has been clouded by many escapades. He is more than 50 years of age.

On the other hand, "Tonel" Bratiano is young, vigorous, manly and unmercenary. That he will become leader of the liberal party, as his father was, is generally admitted. He is only 25 years old. His ambitions are lofty, and his motives disinterested and high.

Between the claims of these two suitors Miss Pauline Astor has expressed no choice, but her actions are significant. For four months she has lingered with his brother in Bucharest, where Bratiano is assiduous in pressing his suit for her hand. The two are very often together and it is evident to the most careless observer that his attentions are not unwelcome.

STEAM LAUNCH SUNK.

New York, April 21.—The steamer Pampero, says a Herald dispatch from Montevideo, rammed and sank the steam launch of the American cruiser Newark in the harbor here. The crew was rescuer unhurt.

BRITISH PARTICIPATE.

New York, April 21.—It is announced by a director of the Deutsches bank, says a Berlin dispaten to the Herald, that a deal has just been consummated by which England assumes 25 per cent of the Bagdad railroad bonds, thus insuring British participation in the construction of the enterprise.

THE RUSH OF IMMIGRANTS.

Dispatches from New York a day or two ago indicated that the monthly record for immigration would undoubtedly be broken this month. It further seems evident that the yearly record will also be smashed all to pieces. A total immigration of 800,000 is now looked for, whereas the best existing record for a single year is 788,992, and that for 1882. The accommodations of every port of entry are being taxed to the utmost. The real busy season has not yet arrived; for the figures for May, June and July are always the heaviest. Immigration up to date, since July 1 last, amounts to 494,425. Last month 92,000 foreigners arrived on our shores, establishing new figures for March. An average of more than 100,000 a month is looked for in April, May and June, which will bring the totals for the fiscal year well over 800,000. Last year, 648,743 immigrants arrived here.

There is undoubtedly a marked improvement in the character of the immigrants who are arriving. The fact that the detention list is much smaller goes to show this. We get very few immigrants who are likely to become public charges, compared with the figures of a year ago. There is no doubt that a lot of aliens go to Canada in the hope of getting across the border at points where there are no inspectors on duty, realizing that they would be rejected if they applied at regular United States ports of entry. An inspection of the steerage passengers shows the improvement. For the most part the immigrants are rugged and thrifty looking people, a majority of them being young men and women about 18 or 20 years of age. There is a very prosperous air about them, considering the general class of aliens that usually come in. The people owned good-looking packages and bundles of clothing. When they take out their money to show to the inspectors they have anywhere from $100 to $500 apiece. Another encouraging sign was that they stayed in New York only long enough to get to the train. Most of them buy tickets for the Northwest, where they expected to find employment on the farms and in the growing cities. We are getting a lot of Norwegians, Germans, Finns and Swedes at present. It is hard to account for the great rush to the United States this year, and particularly this spring. No doubt some of it is caused by visits of former immigrants back to their home countries, and to letters which they send home telling of the prosperous conditions in the United States.

However, these aliens are welcome, as long as they are industrious, healthy and not criminals, and they will find plenty to do, and in time become good citizens of their adopted country.

DESERTIONS FROM THE NAVY.

The increased desertions from the navy seem to be due to the increased strength of enlisted men in that department. Desertions vary according to the efforts made in increasing the number of men on the ships. When efforts are made to secure the maximum strength then the desertions increase; when enlistments become normal then the desertions decrease. H. C. Gauss, the confidential clerk of the secretary of the navy, has been doing a little figuring on this matter. He begins his considerations with the year 1876, the earliest for which data are at present available in the department. In that year the strength of the navy was reduced from 8500 to 7500; and the desertions were 16 per cent. As the strength reached its minimum, the desertions decreased, being 11.6 per cent in 1877, and 9 per cent in 1878. In making the reduction, says Mr. Gauss, "ships' crews were broken up, and there was a spirit of unrest and disturbance," among the men; when this had passed, desertions decreased, and stayed near the minimum until 1887, when the percentage was 9.2. In that and the next year the commissioning of the first vessels of the "new navy" called for an increase of enlistments, which was attended by an increased percentage of desertions, the figure reaching 13.4 per cent in 1888, and falling to 9.1 per cent in 1889.

In 1891, with more vessels to be manned, recruiting was pushed so earnestly that thrice the work was stopped because the authorized strength was reached; and desertions reached their high-water mark with the percentage of 16.8. This figure decreased slightly in 1892 and 1893 (15.2 per cent in both years). In 1894 the authorized strength was placed at 9000, an increase of nearly 10 per cent. Desertions should have increased too; but they did not, because the very size of the increase permitted recruiting to be pushed steadily and systematically, without sudden starts and stops. In 1897, however, with an increase of enlistments, came an increase of desertions, which amounted to 12.8 per cent, falling again in 1898, the war year, to 5.7 per cent. Men do not desert in active war time. The reduction of the war strength in 1899 brought increased desertions to 13.9 per cent. Since then the enlisted strength has been increased each year by upward of 20 per cent; and desertions have followed suit, reaching 14.7 per cent in 1900, 16.7 in 1901, and falling again to 14.1 in 1902.

During the past winter, though recruiting continues actively, desertions have decreased. At the end of November, though the strength of the navy had been increased by 25 per cent over the corresponding month of 1901, desertions had increased by only half of 1 per cent, in December the strength was larger by 29 per cent, but desertions had fallen off by four-tenths of 1 per cent. At the end of March the strength was one-third larger than in March, 1902, and desertions were one-tenth of 1 per cent smaller. Mr. Gauss concludes:

"There is reason for belief that the great body of new material added to the navy in the last two or three years is being worked into a contented, efficient personnel, and that the measures taken to improve the service and make it more attractive have been wisely conceived and successfully carried out."

It is to be hoped that this is so and that the percentage of desertions of enlisted men in the navy may rapidly decrease in the future. But a good way to stop them would be to open the door to promotion to enlisted men by examinations on the same footing as graduates of Annapolis.

THE MINNESOTA LEGISLATURE.

The legislature of 1903, which has just concluded its session of ninety days, the constitutional limit, has made a very creditable record. Fourteen hundred and nine-two bills were introduced during the session, and of that number about 400 were passed. Undoubtedly the state's interests would not have suffered had some of the measures which became laws failed to pass, while on the other hand some meritorious bills met an untimely death. On the whole, however, the legislature displayed a wise discrimination in passing upon the merits of the bills which were considered. The legislature was conservative as a rule and for this there is reason to feel thankful, because this disposition has tended to prevent radical and unwise legislation that would have proven injurious to the interests of the people.

The proposed amendments to the tax provisions of the state constitution failed, because the senate and house were unable to agree, the house standing by wide-open amendments that would have permitted, if ratified by the people, very great changes in the methods of making assessments and levying taxes, and the senate favoring more restrictive amendments. Neither branch would recede from its position, and consequently no legislation on this subject resulted. While it is generally agreed that there is much room for improvement in the system of taxation, no serious injury will result from the failure to propose amendments to the constitution in this respect. Perhaps the wisest plan to secure the needed changes is by holding a constitutional convention, but unfortunately the legislature declined to pass a bill providing for such a convention. Perhaps the next session of the legislature may be prepared to act on this question.

All attempts to restrict the authority of the state board of control failed, although several bills were strongly supported with a view of removing from the control of the board the university, normal schools and other institutions. For two years more, at least, their affairs will be administered by the board of control, and upon the results of this system will depend the action of the next legislature. If the board succeeds in conducting these institutions efficiently as well as economically there will probably be no disposition then to make any change.

Among the important bills passed was one proposing a constitutional amendment to increase the gross earnings tax on railroads to 4 per cent. A similar amendment failed of adoption at the last election. However, a bill has been passed providing that constitutional amendments be printed on a separate ballot, and this may result in a larger vote thereon and secure the adoption of the gross earnings amendment. Another important constitutional amendment which will be submitted to vote at the next election proposes to change the grand jury system. It was introduced by Senator Laybourn of this city, and passed after a hard fight in the senate. It does not abolish grand juries, but gives the legislature power to do so, if it sees fit, or to provide that in criminal procedure indictments by a grand jury shall not be necessary. This would bring about a desirable reform in the trial of criminal cases, saving both time and expense. The additional sum of $1,500,000 was appropriated to complete the state capitol, and $100,000 was voted for a Minnesota exhibit at the Louisiana Purchase exposition at St. Louis. An anti-trading stamp bill, designed to restrict the operations of that pernicious system, was passed on the last day of the session. Increased state aid was granted to high, graded, semi-graded and rural schools, which will prove highly beneficial to the cause of education. Of interest to labor circles especially, as well as to the traveling public, was the passage of a bill prohibiting railroads from working engineers and firemen longer than fourteen hours continuously. Undoubtedly many railroad accidents have been due to the overworking of the men in charge of the trains, and this restrictive legislation should have a good effect.

There were two important measures introduced by members of the St. Louis county delegation, which were defeated—the Pugh civil service bill, affecting the grain department, and the Dowling non-partisan judiciary bill. Both were excellent measures, and it is regretted that the legislature failed to pass them. The Laybourn iron-bounty bill was also defeated, and while there may be an honest difference of opinion as to the advisability of offering bounties to industries, the establishment of iron and steel plants would be of such great value to the state that it might have been wise to have passed this measure.

There were many other bills, good, bad and indifferent, that passed or failed to pass, but the work of the legislature generally will meet with public approval. The appropriations were greater than at any previous session, but the increased revenues made it possible to reduce the tax levy to one mill, which is the lowest in the history of the state.

There are 312 clerks in the executive departments at Washington over 70 years old, and most of them too infirm to perform their duties. What to do with them is a puzzle for the government, which dislikes to turn them out into the streets. Compulsory insurance of departmental clerks might be adopted to take care of future cases of this kind.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Manager W. A. McKay, of the Hotel McKay, has gone into the chicken raising business. Unlike the rabbit farm of Mr. Walsh at Tower, the chicken ranch will be a tangible quantity, and Mr. McKay has decided that he will spend the profits in European trips and in loping about the Orient for a few years.

Yesterday the second step in the process was approached. That was the purchase of eggs. The first thing to do was to get an incubator, which was secured some time ago, and it was experimented with, by the use of china eggs for a month or so, but those have not hatched.

The chicken ranch, which will be considered a branch of the hotel business, is to be on the farm of the McKays, a few miles out from the city, as soon as the eggs are hatched. The first lot will be started in a few days.

"This is all in the nature of an experiment," said Mr. McKay, "but we have the incubator and now I have procured the eggs which will be used for the first setting, and if there are one-third as many chickens hatch out as there are eggs placed in the incubator, we will be more than satisfied. The usual run of incubator settings is something more than that, I believe.

"The principal object of the experiment is to see if we cannot provide for our house eggs and fowls for eating, and make sure of the quality and the freshness of them, by raising them ourselves."

The test setting will be placed on file in the incubator this week.

"I saw a story in your paper last night about a lumberjack who had a system for beating a slot machine," said T. I. Longlade, of Ashland, who is at the St. Louis hotel, "but I claim the prize gambling story of the age, and it has its moral, too.

"I was the hero, and it was when Cripple Creek was at its height that it happened. I got in there with a great deal of difficulty, and didn't have much money when I landed. It took about a week for me to be cleaned out, strapped, broke. I didn't have a cent, and couldn't get to work, and the only place I could go to hang around was one of the gambling houses. There at least it was possible to keep warm, and it was pretty cold that winter.

"I drifted around there the second time, after I had been watching the games all the day and most of the night before. I had never seen a game before I went there, either. But faro was easy to get a line on, and I knew how the bets were made by that time and watched with a good deal of interest.

"I had just a nickel and a couple of two-cent stamps. But I was walking over to one of the tables when I spied a dollar on the floor and saw the dealer just shuffling the cards and slip them into the box. He was just sliding out the card, when I said: 'Wait a minute. I'll just copper that ace for a silver dollar.' He sang out: 'All right.' I made a move toward my pocket, and before I got my hand in the ace showed up to lose. So I pulled up a chair and put my lone on that dollar, and sat down. I wanted to lean over and pick it up, but couldn't very well without attracting attention, as several people had come up behind me and were watching, by that time.

"I played the king to win, and it came out the next card. I played the queen to lose, and she showed up on my side the next card. A few trailers began coming in and playing behind me. I began to get nervous, but I kept on. I had a hunch, and let my first judgment take care of it.

"The jack was a winner, the ten a loser and so on down to the duce, all in rotation and all alternate winners and losers. I never moved my winnings from the table, but shifted them from one card to another right straight around the board fifteen times. I followed that inspiration, and fifteen times I won. I began to feel the perspiration stand out on my forehead, my hands were cold, clammy and nerveless. When I won on the second queen I was over $6,000 winner, and had not lost a single bet, and had doubled every time.

"My throat was parched and dry, and I shoved over the stacks which had grown to have $100 and $500 checks to the dealer, and said I guessed I would cash in.

"I had forgotten all about the dollar on the floor, but my foot was still over it.

"As the dealer counted up the checks, he said: 'It is customary to pay for any checks you buy from the bank, and if you will hand me the dollar on that first bet, it'll fix things up.'

"What I discovered paralyzed me. It was not a dollar. It was a round damp spot on the floor where someone had expectorated, and the glimmer of the reflection of the lights had made it look like a silver dollar down under the table.

"I flushed up, as I arose and said that what I thought was my dollar was not there, and someone had probably picked it up and gone away with it while I was playing. I had no more, I told him.

"'Sorry, old man,' said the dealer, 'but you see we couldn't pay these checks very well, under the circumstances,' and he swept the cash back into the drawer, and the checks were stacked up in the rack.

"I looked over the place again, and then hurried down to the postoffice and wrote a letter with one of my two-cent stamps home for money and when the next mail came I left the place and came back east to work by the month. That was the first and last gambling for me."

How He Horrified Her.

St. Louis Mirror: One pleasant day last fall, so the story goes, President Hadley of Yale was strolling through the beautiful campus of Dartmouth college with his wife on his arm. They were admiring the beautiful buildings which dot the campus, several of them having been erected by wealthy alumni. Presently they came to an especially noble hall, built of stone and occupying a commanding site. Over the main entrance was a marble tablet which announced that the hall had been erected by "John C. Blank as a memorial to His Beloved Wife."

President Hadley stood and looked at the noble pile for a moment. Then he heaved a sigh that was almost envious.

"Ah," he said, "that is what I should like to do for my college."

And to this day, the boys declare, President Hadley cannot understand why his wife should have looked so horrified.

PASSING PLEASANTRIES.

Chicago Tribune: "Candidly, Biggus, weren't ou a good deal of a lobster when you went to college?"

"I don't deny it. Those were my salad days.'

Washington Star: "I is always sorry," said Uncle Eben, "to see a man hoardin' his pennies like a miser an' squanderin' his opportunities like a millionaire."

Detroit Free Press: "The taxerdermist has a paying business."

"Yes, the wolf never comes to his door for fear of being caught and mounted."

Philadelphia Record: Rollingstone Nomoss—Wot would you do if you had $1,000,000, Tatterdemalion Tatters—It would be just my luck to wake up.

Philadelphia Press: "All my achievements," said the great race horse, "are due to the fact that I always put my best foot forward."

"I find," replied the wicked mule, "that I accomplish more by putting my best foot backward."

Washington Star: "You are sure that the combination you mentioned deserves to be classed among the good trusts?"

"Not a doubt of it," answered Senator Sorghum. "One of the most liberal I ever worked for."

Chicago Tribune: "The German carp," indignantly exclaimed Uncle Allen Sparks, detaching another one from his hook and throwing it to the dog, "is the English sparrow of the American waters!"

Chicago Tribune: "You ought to know better," said the occulist, "than to rub your eyes after handling paper money. Unless it is perfectly new it's full of germs."

"But this was a thousand-dollar bill a fellow handed me to look at. I rubbed my eyes to see if I was awake," responded the patient.

Washington Star: "Have you ever made any effort to distinguish yourself in public debate?"

"No, sir," answered Senator Sorghum; "when money talks, its argument is usually most effective when it comes in the nature of a strictly personal communication."

New York Times: Harduppe—Say, old man, I believe I owe you an apology.

Freeman—Well, I've heard it called a V, a fiver, a fimuf plunks and five bones, but never an apology before.

LIFE'S SUNNY SIDE.

Brooklyn Eagle: A pleasant face is indeed a sight for sore eyes. Did you ever stop to think of the tiny thrill of cheer that dashes through your consciousness as a face, benign in its expression, passes you on your way to your work? It gives a sense of warmth, of calm, of hope that is hard to define, and yet is there, and before you know it you watch for and welcome that face again, even though it be that of a stranger. It is delightful, too, to notice how many such faces there are passing and repassing us daily. They bear the marks of care many times, of poverty, of suffering, but, leaping over and suffusing all the lines which age or trouble can bring, is the light of peace, of trust, of hope. We can imagine, as we glance at the face, gentle yet strong, just how it looked in baby-hood, in childhood, and we recognize at once that in spite of outward circumstances of life and growth that man or woman has kept intact the purity of soul bestowed on every human child. There used to be told to children a story of the good little child whose obedient lips dropped pearls with every word, while her naughty sister's pouting, cross mouth brought forth ugly toads and snakes. The story was not so very far off, either, for, as the wise man saith: "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." But how much greater blessing to us all even than wise words are faces that silently bless and help us. And, the best of it all, this wireless telegraphy is not restricted by any patent or device. Its use is free to every one and begins with looking pleasant.

Slavery In Substance.

Philadelphia Press: Kentucky has a brutal law under which men are sold into servitude for a definite length of time to satisfy a sentence of vagrancy or other offense. Bruce Marcum, 27 years old, was sold for six months for $6.50. He is about on a par with a slave under his master for the next six months, as all he gets to live on will be furnished by the man who bought him and who expects him to work according to orders.

Cleveland on the Race Problem.

Indianapolis News: Mr. Cleveland, as might have been expected, takes a rational and hopeful view of the race problem. The rapidly growing belief that the negro must make his own place in the world by his own efforts, and that it is not necessary or desirable that he be continually lifted, except by the ordinary education that all receive, is doing more to end the race problem than all the misdirected enthusiasm of the last thirty-five years.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Sick morals are the most contagious of all diseases.

Generally one who has a good opinion of himself needs it.

The only thing that slanderers hate worse than the truth is the adage that every story has two sides.

Some men are of such indecision that they can't make up their minds whether to kiss a girl where a freckle is or a dimple.

Some one has said that talk is cheap, yet we hear a good many extravagant remarks.

The Intervention Of a Kindly Fate

By John Raine.

The waiter girls were piling chairs atop of the cleared tables, the cashier was arranging her money, the few remaining diners were preparing to depart.

Esther Newton, listening to the story of her companion with a faint smile and wide, impenetrable eyes fixed on the outer darkness beyond the brilliantly lighted street windows, sipped her black coffee with apparent placidity but an inward feeling closely akin to despair. The story she kept back was far more thrilling than that which her companion was relating. Hers was rapidly approaching a dramatic climax—which his was not.

Nearly a year before—to take up her story—Esther Newton, left free and all but penniless—by the sudden death of her father, had come to the city with $80 in silver and a portfolio of clever drawings for capital. A sublime hope and confidence, supported by almost incredible ignorance of the world and her possible chances, had upheld her in the beginning; the drawings, by good luck, had taken the fancy of a certain newspaper editor. The moderate success that followed seemed to the deflighted girl most delightfully certain. Sure and safe, as she believed, in the present, she had lived in the present only, saving never a penny. When, with a suddenness as natural and usual as it seemed to her remarkable, the editor who liked her work was supplanted by the editor who didn't, her income suddenly ceased. Six long, dreary weeks of anxiety and bad luck followed, and now, tonight, she was close to despair.

For six long, dreary weeks her board bill had been unavoidably neglected, that her room was closed to her until the arrears were paid. "No trunk nor nuthin' till I gets my pay," the landlady had called after her miserable ex-boarder. Her only consolation lay in the knowledge that a small sum of money awaited her at the newspaper office whither she was going; with this sum she could at least pay a week's advance board to some other provider of poor food and lodging.

In the city, however, disappointment awaited her. The editor who had used the pictures was sorry, but he had quite forgotten to make mention of her work on the pay roll. Would she come around next week?

She went out into the street slowly, her face pale and strained and she greeted Bruce Darke, who suddenly bowed low before her, as one in a dream.

He begged her to dine with him, pressing the request most eagerly. The sister with whom he lived was to be away from home that evening; he hated a solitary meal. He reminded the girl that not once, in all the eight months of their friendship born in the studio of a mutual acquaintance, had she accepted the smallest, slightest courtesy from him. He did not remind her how many courtesies had been offered, extended, but she remembered, knew. The stern rules laid down when she entered the city were by no means disregarded, but a certain concession she did make.

"I have never dined in public with a man yet," she told him, "but we will dine together tonight if—you will allow me to pay my own bill."

Because he could not overcome her scrupulous determination, he agreed, and they went to dinner. A feeling of mild recklessness overtook Esther, and she refused to remember that to dine alone would cost much less than the "dollar table d'hote" of which they were presently disposing. She enjoyed the meal and the merry conversation, moreover, until it was time to go.

Still, smiling bravely, she slipped from her flat pocketbook the lonely dollar and pushed it, hidden by her curving fingers, across the table. In the reluctant taking, Bruce felt the touch of the little fingers, and was conscious of a strange, mysterious thrill. He was wondrously happy as he paid the check, adjusted her wraps and led the way to the street. The girl, apparently calm and untroubled, evolved a sudden, desperate idea.

Her companion must be somehow disposed of. Obviously, he could not take her home, since she had no home, since she knew not where to go. Stay! She would spend the night on the elevated railways, if nothing untoward prevented, and if her money held out. Which line, she wondered, gave the longest ride for one fare?

"You may take me to the nearest elevated station," she explained to him, sweetly, but with nervous, impassable decision, "but no farther. The—the friends with whom I am to spend the night live too far out for me to allow you to go with me, especially as I am sure you must have an engagement for this evening. I—I shall be met at the other end."

Vaguely he divined some misfortune, but was helpless. He accompanied her to the platform, through the turnstile, to the door of the South Side car. Then, bowing and smiling, he said good night as the train started, and she sat down to face her despair.

Supposing the cars should not run all night, or that an "all out at the next station" accident should happen? And would the little heap of small change in her pocket book last until daylight? And after daylight, supposing she got so far in safety, what then?

She rode to the end of the line, changed cars and rode back to the city. Twice she repeated this program, then decided, for no particular reason, upon taking the Douglas Park line. At the end of the run—it was after 11 o'clock, the night was as bitterly, chillingly cold as only a March night can be and the station platform but poorly lighted—her heart sank suddenly. She sat still in the car, until the guard approached her.

"End of the line, miss," he said, regarding her curiously.

She looked up at him with wide eyes, out of which she could not keep the tears.

"I—I want to keep on riding," she explained, miserably. "I've got so little money, and I've nowhere to go. But I think I can pay carfare until the morning. If you'll let me stay."

The guard, after a moment of silent, surprised scrutiny, went back to the end of the car and shut himself outside it. The girl, her courage utterly vanquished, dropped her head on her breast and sobbed wretchedly, although under her breath. She was still sobbing when Bruce Darke dashed up the steps and into the train just as it started. He saw and recognized the melancholy, solitary figure on the instant; two minutes later, the troublous truth in his possession, he was casting about for ways and means of assistance. To lend her money would be useless, even would she accept it, for who would take her in at this hour? The touch of the little hand he was holding, quite unconsciously, nerved him to great efforts, but how to expend them? And then, as if in direct answer to his urgent thinking, the door of the car was once more opened, and a man and woman—his sister and her husband—came in.

"Look out of the window," he softly commanded poor Esther. "I'm coming right back."

Down in the vacant seat beside his sister he dropped.

"Sis, dear," he murmured, softly, "do you truly love me just as much as you ever did?"

"What's the matter, old boy?" inquired the loving but practical sister. "What do you want me to do?"

"That girl there," murmured Bruce, indicating Esther by a minute gesture, "is a dear friend of mine, sis, and the girl I'm going to marry if she'll ever give me a chance to propose. She's alone in the city, she's got no money, and she's trying to ride up and down on these trains all nigh, because she's no place to go. I just happened on her, accidentally, although I saw her downtown earlier in the evening, and wormed the truth out of her. She's the nicest, dearest, sweetest of girls, sis, and——"

"She can come home with me, of course, sonny," said the impulsive Mrs. Sangster, returning his affectionate hand-pressure with interest. "I'm sure it will be all right, won't it, Jim?" appealing to her husband, who, from her other side, had listened to the story in calm and impassive silence.

"Yes," he said, with the air of one who delivers a weighty judgment, "it's all right."

A moment later the soft swish of silken skirts attracted Esther's surprised attention, and the sister slipped a warm, tender, reassuring hand into and about her own.

"My brother tells me you have missed your friends and lost your way and money," said Mrs. Sangster, using her kindly—and brilliant—imagination freely. "Now, my friends are my brother's friends, and his friends are mine, so—you'll come home with me until the morning, will you not?"

Long and hard-earned habits of self-control stood Esther in good stead at this trying juncture and she neither wept again nor gushed on Mrs. Sangster's shoulder. But the guard, watching the occurrence from the car platform, felt, somehow, that the girl's troubles were over, and Bruce Darke, tenderly escorting Esther from the West to the South Side line, presently, in the swishing wake of his sister's graceful draperies, knew that the day of his happiness had come.

MINE ENEMY.

By day, by night, by land and sea,
I've ever known that we must meet;
I and my awful enemy.
Who dogs me, aye, with silent feet—
Whose veiled face I never see.

His glance and mine have never met;
No word has passed twixt him and me;
He makes no sign, no sound, and yet
A sudden stillness falls, and he Breathes in my heart. "Do not forget."

Still day and night, by land and sea,
Through meadow and through market place,
O'er valley, mountain top and lea,
With stealthy, sure and dreadful pace,
He follows me, and follows me.

Alone, or in the laughing crowd,
I've felt that icy breath of his;
I felt it as my troth I vow'd,
I felt it inmy lover's kiss;
My heart stood still, and then beat aloud.

Christ! let me and this deadly fear,
End the mad terror of this chase.
Mine Eenemy! If thou canst hear,
Come meet me—meet me face to face!
Hark! Something answers, "I am here!"

And now he stretches forth his hand,
I brace myself to meet the blow—
With damp and quaking fear unmann'd—
When a voice, tender, sweet and low,
Says, "Look on me and understand."

I raise my eyes! And this is he?
Mine enemy! whom I abhor?
Those lips that smile such love to me!
Those eyes with pity brimming o'er!
That voice like some soft melody.

He smooths my brow with gentleness,
And wipes the tearstains from my cheek;
His touch is chill yet, yet ne'ertheless,
I have found something that I seek
To dull all pain and cure distress.

"Come!" and I feel his cooling breath,
The while he takes me in his arms.
"Come where no mortal sorroweth!
Far from the world and all its harms.
Peace dwells, with me—my name is Death."

"The sins which strength and honor steal,
Famine and plague and lust and war,
And bloated greed, to which men kneel,
Drive them all stricken to my door,
Where I but comfort, soothe and heal.

"These are ills of life—not mine—
After the turmoil of the world,
Defeat and victory, storm and shine,
The battle o'er, the banner furl'd,
Drink of my grateful anodyne."

And so he folds me to his breast,
My arms about his shoulders steal,
And thankfully I sink to rest,
Where all my wounds forever heal,
With this dear foe, who loves me best.
—E. H. SOTHERN, in New York Herald.

Where the Money Will Count.

San Francisco Call: It is to be hoped that when the government has spent as much money in irrigating the West as it has expended in trying to keep the Mississippi from over-irrigating the big valley it will have something better in the way of results to show for the coin.

DRIVEWAY GOING

London Road Fast Approaching a State of Ruin.

Residents Along Thoroughfare to Have Meeting Monday.

Formerly the finest driveway in the city, London road now presents a surface that would compare unfavorably with an improved country road.

It is badly in need of resurfacing and some sort of regulation barring heavy teaming. People living along the North shore driveway from Eighth avenue east to Lester Park are protesting vigorously against its condition.

Today they went to Mayor Hugo with a protest and a public meeting has been arranged for in the executive chambers of the city hall next Friday morning.

One of the protesting taxpayers says: "The agitation for the resurfacing of London road and its future preservation is not new, though the present movement seems to have a deal more life to it than those futile attempts of former years.

"Year after year the handsome driveway has been allowed to go down and flown without proper maintenance until today it is almost impossible to ride a bicycle over it.

"Heavy teaming and log hauling have ruined the fine macadam surface that was never intended for traffic of that sort. In Chicago and other cities heavy teaming is not allowed on certain streets and why should it be on London road?

"The mayor and other city officers seem to agree with the people of the lake front, Lakeside and Lester Park on this proposition and it is possible that next Friday's meeting will develop something that will preserve the old roadway."

HANNON TO PRISON.

Hibbing Man to Be Taken There Tomorrow.

Commitment papers for Richard Hannon who has been sentenced to fifteen years at Stillwater for the killing of a man named Ness which occurred in Hannon's saloon at Hibbing, some months ago are expected to arrive here this evening and tomorrow. He will be taken to prison.

Hannon was convicted of manslaughter in the first degree for shooting Ness during a bar-room row. The shot did not take immediate effect but the injured man was brought to Duluth and he died of blood poison which set in the wound about two weeks later.

The county jail is pretty well cleared of criminals who have been sentenced to the state prison at Stillwater. Hannon is the last of the long term men to be transported.

FATALITIES WERE SEVEN

That Number of Lives Lost In the Erie Wreck.

Salamanca, N. Y., April 21.—It is now known with practical certainty that seven persons perished in the wreck on the Erie road at Red House yesterday. The railroad officials have compiled a list of the names of the passengers who escaped uninjured, the names of the injured, and the name of one dead man, and by comparing this with the record of the conductor as to the total number of passengers on board the train, they find that six are missing or unaccounted for. They believe that the bodies of all those killed have been found, and that the list of the fatalities will not exceed seven. The six unidentified bodies are so badly charred that recognition is impossible, and they bore nothing which would give any clew to their identity. Agent Hicks, of the Erie railroad, at this place, has received many telegrams containing inquiries as to passengers on the train, but thus far all the names mentioned have been in either the list of the injured or the killed.

A Good Canal Title.

The announcement that the title which the Panama Canal company can transfer to the United States is satisfactory, advances the canal building project materially. It was feared that a satisfactory title could not be obtained. In medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has a clear title to first place among family remedies, having an unbroken record of cures, extending over half a century, back of it. No home is, therefore, complete without a bottle of it in the medicine chest. It will restore the appetite, positively cure dizziness, listlessness, nausea, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation; also prevents la grippe, chills and malaria, fever and ague. A fair trial will convince you of its value. The genuine has our Private Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

A Model Issue.

The May number of 10 Story Book is a model issue of a short story magazine. An unusual strong list of authors contribute. Opie Read, who is at present so much in the public eye, leads with a new and original sketch entitled "The Man and the Mummy." It is a quaint piece of humor, involving a most profound psychic proposition which gives Mr. Read ample opportunity for a play of his wit. Elizabeth Philips Train, the noted novelist, is in with an Easter story. It is called "An Easter Specter" and is as good as anything this talented lady has done for a long time. Of thrilling interest, and perhaps of some gruesomeness, it still in no way can be classed as cheap sensationalism. "The Rancher's Debut," by H. S. Canfield, deals with a Westerner's experience in New York's social realms, and is particularly clever. Other writers of note in this issue are Howard Fielding and Sara Beaumont Kennedy. A Prize story by Howard Ordway Hilton is of a political nature and shows the writer's familiarity with the inside workings of the game. The masterpiece of the month is "Diamond Cut Dimond," a gambling episode in the career of the Hon. Mr. Deuceace, by William M. Thackeray.

THE APOLLO CLUB CONCERT

First Appearance a Conspicuous Success—Deserves Public Support.

The Apollo club concert at the Lyceum last evening, the first appearance of the organization before the people of Duluth, was a signal triumph for the entire membership of the club and for its director, Milton B. Griffith. It surpassed all expectations and thoroughly deserved the enthusiastic appreciation which was extended to it. There is nothing finer in the musical line than a fine male chorus, and there is nothing more execrable than a poor one. This club has great possibilities, for the individual voices are good and they harmonize and balance admirably, swelling to magnificent volume and delicate in pianissimo. The attacks were made with certainty and as one man, and at no point in their work was there a suggestion of raggedness. Confidence in their leader was apparent, and in his direction there was firmness, repose and musical intelligence. The selections were well made, exhibiting the fine harmony of the voices, but not so difficult as to try the club too much upon its first appearance. Greater things will come in time. The numbers included "Breezes of the Night," by Lamothe, a familiar chorus number; "Serenade to Juanita," by Joubert-Spicker, a particularly fine number; "O Why Art Thou Not Near Me," by Marchsner, and Greig's "Land Sighting." The last named contained a solo by Edgar W. Prophet, which was admirably sung.

The permanency of this Apollo club is a subject that should concern the musical people of Duluth, for the fine start that has been made toward the building up of a musical organization that will compare favorably with similar ones in the large cities of the country deserves the attention of all those who have the musical welfare of the community at heart. It is no easy matter to hold a club such as this together. It takes something more than the mere enthusiasm of the individual members. It takes financial and moral support and appreciation. In Minneapolis the Apollo club has been a source of pride to the city and has brought it into much prominence in a musical way, but Minneapolis sustains it liberally. Some years ago—and the same system probably still obtains—several hundred Minneapolis citizens contributed annually a sum, something like $10 each, to the club, and in return the club gave three or four concerts a year. The funds paid the expenses of these concerts, the director, the music, and the thousand and one incidentals that run into large sums rapidly with such a large membership. And so, if Duluth wishes to preserve and continue this organization which promises so much, it should not content itself with now and then half filling an auditorium upon the occasion of a public concert. An organization dependent upon such a precarious source of revenue can never have that security which comes from a well supplied fund to meet its expenses, and it cannot attract members as it should, for the feeling of individual responsibility would undoubtedly deter many from joining who might be valuable additions.

Assisting the club were two excellent artists from Chicago, Miss Charlotte De Muth, violinist, and Frank B. Webster, basso. Miss De Muth is a very pleasing young player, excellent in her technique and with much evidence of musicianly temperament. The principal criticism to be offered to her playing is that it is somewhat lacking in force; a little more dash and brilliancy at times would immensely improve it, but time will probably bring that, and Miss De Muth at present gives promise of great things. She played the Wieniawski concerto, Op. 22, No. 2, with three movements; a charming ballade by Sinding, and a group of three delightful numbers by Lalo, Godard and Hubay.

Mr. Webster's voice is mellow and finely modulated, and his numbers were warmly received. He sang Henschel's "Young Dieterich" and a group of three songs, "Three Comrades," by Hermann, "When Gazing In Thine Eyes," by Manney, a particularly beautiful number, and "Marching Along," by White. For an encore he sang the familiar and stirring "The Two Grenadiers."

The accompaniments, always a most important part but one rarely appreciated to the degree which they deserve, were played by Marx E. Oberndorfer and were excellent.

Altogether the concert deserves to be numbered among Duluth's brilliant musical successes, and the musical people will hope that it will not be long before the club will again appear.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says, "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

PAYING UP WELL.

Delinquent Taxpayers Come In Very Rapidly.

Delinquent tax lists will be turned over to Sheriff Butchart for collection on Friday. County Treasurer Whipple and Clerk of the Court Johnson will compare their list of delinquent property owners, and when a correct list is prepared will give it over to the sheriff, who will collect them.

About 1100 delinquent bills will be turned over to the sheriff for collection. During the last two weeks the treasurer has been extremely busy with the rush of taxpayers who flooded his office to settle their taxes. As a result the delinquent list is shorter than was at first expected.

There were 600 more taxpayers in this county this year than last, but the number of delinquent bills collected by the sheriff will be no larger than usual.

New York, April 21.—H. H. Rogers, of the Standard Oil company, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis, passed a restless night last night, according to a statement made at his home today. A physician said Mr. Rogers was doing as well as could be expected.

ADAMS SENTENCED.

New York, April 21.—Justice Scott in the supreme court today sentenced Albert J. Adams to not less than one year and not more than one year and nine months in Sing Sing prison and to pay a fine of $1000 for having paraphernalia for playing policy in his possession.

POWERFUL SPEECH

By Charles Emory Smith of the Philadelphia Press.

Protests Against Libel Law Passed Pennsylvania Legislatures.

Harrisburg, Pa., April 21.—Every important newspaper in Pennsylvania was represented at the hearing on the Grady-Salus libel bill by Governor Pennypacker today in the hall of the house of representatives. Attorney General Carson sat with the governor throughout the hearing, but neither indicated what would be the governor's action on the measure.

The governor and attorney general arrived in the hall promptly at 10 o'clock and were greeted with applause. The governor said the bill was a very important one, and he was anxious to hear both sides, and he suggested that two representatives from each side be heard in order to save time. He also suggested that the opponents of the bill be heard first. The opening address was made by Charles Emory Smith of the Philadelphia Press, who was presented by Thomas V. Cooper of the Media American. At the outset of Mr. Smith's address Governor Pennypacker took exception to his use of the word "insolently" and suggested that it would be well for the speakers to omit the strong adjectives. Mr. Smith accepted the suggestion, saying at the same time that he spoke strongly because he felt strongly. Mr. Smith said:

At the outset I beg to thank your excellency on behalf of all my associates for granting this hearing. You have given us what the legislature ruthlessly and insolently denied us. This bill was rushed through that body with unbecoming, if not indecent haste, in contempt of the spirit of the constitution and as I believe, in disregard to its letter. It deeply affects our rights and our property. We asked for the hearing to which we were entitled in the commonest fair-play among men. We were contemptuously refused all opportunity to defend our rights and to protest against what we believe to be a monstrous wrong, and this shameful refusal compels us to appeal to the fairness, the rectitude and the justice of the governor of the commonwealth.

We are here in great numbers from all parts of the state. We are of one accord and we are profoundly in earnest. We believe that our most vital rights and interests are at stake. And we must in common manhood defend them now and hereafter. We stand for just liberty of the press, but not for its abuse. We do not object to any wholesome restraint upon irresponsible, malicious and licentious journalism, nor do we desire that the bars against libelous publication shall be let down. We accept the law which holds us responsible for actual injury when inflicted by our publications, even though inadvertent and unintended, for we know that this is one of the necessary risks of our business. In the main, the press reflects the public tone and temper. It is what the people make it and what the people want. The great folly of this bill is that it is utterly ineffective and futile for the purpose of which it is really designed, while it exposes reputable newspapers to the constant and unavoidable danger of costly, vexatious and blackmailing suits. It must fall of its plain intent while it is infinitely mischievous in other directions.

What measure of protection is offered here which is not found in the present statute? It is in the more stringent provisions for liability on account of "negligence in the ascertainment of facts and in making publication?" But in this particular kind of publication least of all does "negligence" appear? Their very characteristic is that they are intended, deliberate, studied and carefully prepared. Is it that they are offensively libelous? But if so they are open to prosecution now. Is it because punitive damages can be awarded? But punitive damages can be awarded now. Is it because there is a new provision for damages for physical and mental suffering? But though not distinctly specified and itemized as such, a jury can take that element into account in making up its sum total of damages now.

An intelligent and reasonable consideration of those points demonstrates that the bill is abortive, so far as relates to its special purpose.

The very essence of libel is that the publication shall be of a defamatory or injurious character. The law now rightly holds the newspaper responsible for publications of that nature. But this bill would incorporate a new principle in the code. It would make any publication accountable in which there has been negligence, even where there is nothing of a dematory or injurious character. It does not require that the matter should be libelous. And so, this bill practically makes every incorrect publication actionable, no matter what its character. What unlimited fields of annoyance are opened in this extraordinary provision.

The great newspaper has fifty more men on the staff. It has 500 correspondents. It has all the thousand agencies of the Associated Press. Its intelligence comes to it through all these multiplied sources. This vast machinery is the indispensable condition of modern journalism. Enforce the utmost vigilance and how is it possible in human nature, with all these agents, to prevent mistakes? For mistakes which inflict actual injury, the newspaper is now liable and there is full redress, as there ought to be. But how shall this new danger of emotional or imaginary damages be met? How shall the "physical and mental suffering" be measured? It is intangible, imperceptible, incommensurable. It lies locked up in the heart or imagination of the complainant. He chooses to swear to it and how can it be combatted or estimated? And in what cases may it not be claimed?

In the presentation of the news of the day, errors will inevitably creep in. The errors need not, under this be libelous. They need only result from what may be called negligence and every error may be regarded as showing negligence at some point. Thus every error, every misprint, every mistake in any single element of a statement may be made the basis of a suit for damages. What shark will not leave the trial of the trolley in his hunt for prey to pursue the newspaper in this more prolific field?

The bill is special legislation in that it excludes weekly newspapers. It treads all around the weekly and carefully avoids stepping on it. This is no accident. The language is three times repeated in the course of the bill and every time in the same peculiar terms and with the same exception.

There are no monthly or bi-weekly newspapers. It is a contradiction of the terms. There are only forty semi-weeklies in Pennsylvania. The weeklies in Pennsylvania number 964 and the dailies number 209. To declare that a statement is a libel when printed in 209 dailies and not a libel when printed in 964 weeklies is simply grotesque.

This bill is utterly powerless to stop the particular kind of publication which it aims at, but it encompasses legitimate publications with an unlimited net work of embarrassment and vexation; it would cripple and curtail the presentation of the regular and proper news of the day; it would start up a whole swarm of speculative shysters and curbstone blackmailers; it infringes the just and constitutional liberty of the press and would impair that valuable protection for public morals and public rights which is found in the searchlight of publicity; it is special legislation in undertaking to make a law for newspapers while exempting the weekly from its operations. It prepetrates a gross wrong in seeking to fasten the principal responsibility upon the agent, where the agent not only does not commit the offense, but where he has not even the power to prevent it.

MORE THAN NEEDED.

Martinique Subscription Fund Double Needed Sum.

Postmaster Fisher, who had charge of the collection of the Martinique relief fund, which was collected in Duluth some months ago, yesterday received a letter from Washington, to the effect that twice the necessary amount of money had been collected, and that the surplus was to be disposed of either by returning it to the contributors or sending it to the Philippines.

Those who donated the money will be asked what they wish done with it, and the decision of half the contributors will settle the matter.

The total amount of the subscription all over the country was $159,298.46. Of this $73,034.34 was spent. This leaves $82,264.12 to be disposed of. Duluth contributed $541.40, which leaves $270.70 to be either sent to the Philippines or divided among the subscribers. The amount will not be broken, but the entire sum either given back to the contributors or sent to the islands.

THE SCHOOL QUESTION.

Virginia-Eveleth Muddle Coming Up Tomorrow.

The question of whether or not school district No. 24 shall be divided will be brought up at tomorrow's meeting of the board of county commissioners.

This district contains both Eveleth and Virginia. It was made up when neither of the towns was as large as they are now and at that time was adequate. Since the rapid growth of the cities, however, a great commercial rivalry has sprung up between them, and when a new school house was to be built some time ago both towns wanted it.

Virginia won out at the election, but Eveleth charged fraud. Then the application for a new school district, formed by a division of the old was made to the board, Virginia will attempt to force its rival city to pay a share in the expense of the new building for old district 24 before she secedes.

WILL BECOME PRESIDENT

High Honor Is In Prospect For "Pudge" Heffelfinger.

Washington, April 21.—If "Pudge" Heffelfinger, of Minneapolis, accepts the position tendered him on the civil service commission by President Roosevelt, he will be promoted to the presidency of the commission.

Commissioner William Dudley Foulke, of the civil service board, contemplates resigning his office some time this fall. His plans were intended to remain secret for a time. It is said they have been discussed thus far only with President Roosevelt and a few intimate friends.

Being a warm admirer of President Roosevelt, Mr. Foulke desires a return to Indiana and work in behalf of the president's interests there. The civil service commissioner stands well with the party in Indiana, but probably does not have extensive political influence. He accepted his present office soon after Mr. Roosevelt became president.

Commissioner Proctor, president of the board, is shortly to be promoted to assistant secretary of the department of commerce, which would place Heffelfinger at the head of the civil service branch of the government.

BAD BREATH

"For months I had great trouble with my stomach and used all kinds of medicines. My tongue has been actually as green as grass, my breath having a bad odor. Two weeks ago a friend recommended Cascarets and after using them I can willingly and cheerfully say that they have entirely cured me. I therefore let you know that I shall recommend them to any one suffering from such troubles."

21st AVENUE WEST, On Superior St. DULUTH, ... Minn.

AT WEST DULUTH

Two West Duluth ladies narrowly escaped death from a runaway horse today near the corner of Fifty-fifth avenue on Ramsey street.

A delivery horse, belonging to I. L. Lamin, of West Superior, was standing on Central avenue, near the Northern Pacific tracks. The horse, which is a powerful black animal, has recently been brought from the woods, and was not yet used to the city sights. He became frightened by the train and dashed down Central avenue at a terrific pace. The wagon struck the curb in front of H. R. Patterson's livery stable and flew several feet in the air, turning completely over and being broken from the shafts. The dangling shafts still further terrified the frightened animal and it turned the corner and dashed down Ramsey street with the shafts flying about its heels.

An open carriage, driven by two ladies, was coming westward on Ramsey street and the animal, which now seemed blind with fear, made directly for them. Nothing but a sideward jump on the part of the horse driven by the ladies saved them from a collision and the shafts narrowly missed striking them on the head. Their own horse then became frightened, and another runaway seemed imminent, but with the aid of some of the bystanders it was subdued.

The runaway meanwhile continued its way down Ramsey street, turning south on Fifty-second avenue. It had become freed from the shafts by this time and was captured by some men near the Merrill & Ring mill. The wagon was badly broken.

CIVIC IMPROVEMENT.

West Duluth Awakening to Its Importance.

With the prospect of a new pavement on Central avenue the civic improvement idea has taken a firm hold on West Duluth, and many plans are being discussed among the merchants for the beautifying of the business portion of the town. W. H. Green, the new superintendent of the Crushed Stone works, has been induced to give a talk on macadam for street paving purposes and its value to the appearance of the city. The address will be given before the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club next Friday evening.

The possibility of having the unsightly wooden telegraph poles removed to the alleys and the wooden street railway poles replaced by iron ones is also being discussed, and the matter will probably be taken up by the Commercial club. The telegraph poles have become disfigured and in the opinion of many of the merchants are a great drawback to the appearance of West Duluth. A number of the merchants of this end of the city heard the address of Mrs. Hamlin at the high school last evening and were much impressed with the value of a good appearance of the city streets.

TWO WEDDINGS.

Two weddings occurred in West Duluth yesterday.

Miss Ida M. Peterson and Louis Hogland, of Sandy Lake, were married at the residence of Rev. Gus Nygren, on Fifty-eighth avenue, by the Rev. C. A. Aldean. They left this morning for Sandy Lake where they intend to take up their residence.

Miss Hannah Mattson and Gus Johnson, two well known young West Duluth people, were married at the home of Mrs. P. Gillison, at 517 Fifty-sixth avenue, by the Rev. Mr. Johnson, pastor of the Duluth Swedish Mission church. They intend to reside in West Duluth and will take up their residence on Fifty-seventh avenue.

THINKS HE WAS DRUGGED.

Louis Johnson, who was discharged from the Red Cross hospital yesterday after being awakened from a sleep lasting seven days, returned this morning and asked to be taken back. He will probably be sent to the poor farm today.

"Johnson was probably drugged," said the physician who had charge of the case. "He had just come from the woods and had been drinking heavily. His long sleep was either due to the effects of the large quantity of bad whisky he had been drinking, or to some drugs which it contained."

YOUNG GIRL DIES.

Edith May Hartley, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Hartley, of 827 North Fifty-sixth avenue west, died yesterday afternoon of heart disease at the home of her parents.

The little girl had been suffering for the past six weeks from an attack of grip and had partially recovered when her heart became affected.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the West Duluth Baptist church.

CAPT. CASTLE DRAGGED IN

Attempt to Lay Old Department Error at His Door.

Washington, April 21.—Capt. Henry A. Castle, of St. Paul, auditor for the postoffice department, has been dragged into the postoffice scandal. According to a local paper it is charged that a special commissioner who has been investigating treasury department methods, discovered that the auditor was not keeping any track of the distribution of postage stamps and stamped paper supplies such as stamped envelopes, postal cards and paper wrappers. The bureau of engraving and printing supplies the stamps and the stamped paper is supplied by other contractors.

Capt. Castle does not deny the facts set forth, but says he knew of this laxity of keeping accounts three years ago, and called the attention of the treasury and postoffice departments to the faultiness of the system in his office at that time. He asked for an increase in the force and has repeatedly asked congress for more clerks to take up this branch of the work, but they were not allowed. In his report for 1900 Capt. Castle said in part:

"No account has ever been kept by the postoffice department of stamps and stamped paper furnished to it by the bureau of engraving and printing or by outside contractors. This account should have been opened when postage stamps were first introduced, say, fifty years ago, and continuously kept until this time. That account would be a fundamental corrective check upon substantially the whole revenues of the postoffice department, amounting to over $9,000,000."

That no such account has even been opened or kept is an astonishing revelation of defective methods, almost glaring because similar accounts have always been rigidly kept by the auditor of the treasury department with the commissioner of internal revenue whenever revenue stamps have been required by law. It is evident that the opening of such an account in this bureau should be no longer delayed. An investigation is now being made to ascertain how this matter may best be done. The fact that stamps and stamped paper are sent to over 75,000 postmasters, many of whom do ont properly receipt for the stock is a serious difficulty in the way of keeping supplies and account, but it is believed that a feasible method can be found to overcome this. The several accounts should show separately any special series of stamps and envelopes and the number of clerks required will depend upon the detail with which the account is kept.

A MONSTER EGG

Contained Tables at Which the Guests Took Their Seats.

Another Unique Dinner of Gotham Society at Sherry's.

New York, April 21.—Within an egg which towered to the ceiling of Sherry's ballroom and reached nearly to the outer walls, Mrs. Arthur B. Proal entertained thirty-five of her women friends at luncheon. Outside of the shell was the farm where live chickens, ducks and geese made roundelay, where rabbits hopped and the original agneau de printemps bleated as though he were in pastures green. Pigs and lambs and guinea pigs roamed at will about the bucolic foreground, and occasionally a creature went up an incline and viewed the company which had assembled within the monstrous shell.

Mrs. Proal had intended the function as a farewell to city life, for many of those who were her guests will shortly go to their country homes. Many of them have country places at Monmouth Beach and in that neighborhood, and therefore everything was arranged to expresss the longing for the green fields and the sunlit skies which all had begun to feel now that the spring has fairly established its sway.

The luncheon was announced as though it were spread in one of the smaller rooms at Sherry's, or perhaps in the main dining room downstairs. Only one of the guests knew of the plan. The one who knew, in defiance of all axioms to the contrary about women keeping secrets, guarded this one so well that the astonishment of the thirty-four was complete.

Everywhere in the great ballroom was the country. The walls of gilt had disappeared, and the one or two mirrors which had remained unobscured served as vistas. Around the outer walls of the apartment were scenes representing fields and pastures, where brooks bridged by rustic spans flowed through a land of sunshine.

The farm houses and the barns were in the distance, and far away were sheds and haymacks. The guests saw a farm hand, clad in blue overalls and jumpers, hurry across the scene, followed by a flock of geese. A rooster, red-combed and with glittering feathers, poised himself on a box and saluted the rising sun.

For surely at that very moment the light of day shone through the filaments of the electric lights which had received their full power by the turning of a switch. Two young pigs ran between the heels of the farm hand and with all speed around an ellipse. The spring lamb gamboled lightly over the greensward.

Rabbits with eyes filled with wonderment stopped the munching of carrots to see the company which had appeared on the threshold, and then ran into corners and hid in the high heaped straw.

About the place were scattered all manner of agricultural implements, as though the farm hands had just abandoned the place. Scythes, lawn mowers, corn cutters, pails, buckets and milking stools were bestowed over the field and the dooryard in prodigal profusion.

In the center of the landscape was the egg which was in itself a vindication of the reputation of the cheerful Sinbad, who told of the great rock. Mrs. Proal and her guests at 1 o'clock walked up the steps which led into the pentralia of the shell. It was nearly 4 o'clock when they left the farm, for after the luncheon they viewed the settings of he scene and watched the live properties at play.

Architecturally this egg was unique. Even in the confines of the ballroom it looked remarkably like a real egg. The color of the shell was a creamy white, and the form was geometrically perfect. The shell was fashioned from a skeleton of light timber, bent to conform to the shape required, and these supports were decorated with green leaves.

The arbor-like effect made the inside of the great shell seem like some refuge in a land of trees and flowers and vines. Yet, although above the resemblance to the egg was a trifle obscured by the delicate tracery, the egg form again appeared in the table.

The table was a perfect oval, hollowed in the center, and, within the hollow part were floral decorations, which represented the white and yolk of an egg. Daffodils and jonquils were the yolk, and the outer fringe of white was made up of lilies and candy tufts and flowers, such as one might see on country hedges.

The appearance of it all was startlingly like that of a real egg. From the center came the fragrance of the flowers, and the air was laden with the breath of spring. Mrs. Proal sat at the point of the table, and at either side were her guests.

Involuntary exclamations of surprise came from the lips of the guests as they took their seats, and then looked about upon the picturesque surroundings. A band of negro musicians hurried in, and seating themselves on board benches without the dining room of the shell they sang plantation melodies.

Another surprise came with the first course, for the waiters were clad as farm hands in colored shirts and overalls, and on their heads some of them wore wisps of straw. Handsome souvenirs were distributed.

VERDICT APPLAUDED.

Bryson Acquitted of Kidnaping Priscilla Howell's Child.

Memphis, Tenn., April 21.—Hugh W. Bryson was acquitted on the charge of kidnaping the child of Miss Catherine Friscilla Howell. The jury was out only twelve minutes, and the verdict was received with applause by the crowded courtroom. Evidence presented convinced the jury that the child really died at Helena, Ark., and that Miss Howell's long journey to California in search of Bryson was from motives of revenge.

Sensational testimony was adduced during the trial connecting the name of Senator W. V. Sullivan, of Mississippi, with Miss Howell's. He was her attorney, and it is said advised the trip to California to bring Bryson to book.

Miss Howell declared that he traveled 10,000 miles in her search for Bryson and her missing baby. Many tatements she credited to Brys-n regarding the disposition that had been made of the baby, chief among them being one to the effect that he had given the child to an uncle of his who resided at Cincinnati, Ohio.

APPEAL IS FILED

Against the Decision of Court In the Merger Case.

Exceptions Are Noted to Every Paragraphs of Decree.

St. Paul, April 20.—Thirty-four points of error are alleged by the counsel for the Northern Securities company and other defendants in their appeal from the decision of the circuit court. Exceptions are noted to every paragraph in the decree, and the court is claimed to be in error: in rendering any decree, save one for a dismissal of the petition and proceedings. The text of the appeal follows:

1. The court erred in finding and deciding that in the summer of 1901 certain large and influential stockholders of the defendant railway companies conceived the design of placing a very large majority of the stock of both of said companies in hands of a single owner, and erred in finding and deciding that the stockholders thus described had practical control of the roads of the two defendant companies.

2. The court erred in finding and deciding that said above described shareholders arranged and agreed with each other that a corporation to be formed by them under the laws of New Jersey should buy all, or at least the greater part of the stock of each of the defendant railroad companies.

3. The court erred in finding and deciding that the above described stockholders agreed with each other to exchange their respective holdings of stock in the two defendant railroad companies for the stock of such New Jersey company.

4. The court erred in finding and deciding that the above described stockholders agreed with each other to use their influence to induce other stockholders in their respective companies to exchange their respective holdings of stock in said railroad companies for the stock of such New Jersey company, and in deciding that this was to the end that the New Jersey company might become the owner of the whole or at least a major portion of the stock of both of said railroad companies.

5. The court erred in finding and deciding that the Northern Securities company was organized under the plan mentioned in the foregoing assignments and influencing and deciding that the capital stock of $400,000,000, with which the Northern Securities company was organized was the exact amount required to purchase the stock of the two railroad companies at the price agreed to be paid therefor.

6. The court erred in finding and deciding that when the Northern Securities company was organized it assented to and became a party to the above mentioned scheme, found by the court as aforesaid to have been devised by its promoters.

7. The court erred in finding and deciding that the Northern Securities company was enabled to make purchases of stock of the Great Northern Railroad company from holders thereof, not immediately concerned in the organization of the Securities company by the advice, procurement and persuasion of those stockholders of said railroad company who had been instrumental in organizing the Securities company.

8. The court erred in finding and deciding that the scheme so as aforesaid erroneously found by it to have been devised and consummated placed the control of the railroads of said two railway companies in the hands of the Securities company and destroyed every motive for competition between said two railway companies by pooling their earnings for the common benefit of the stockholders of both railway companies; and erred in finding and deciding that any such, or any pooling of earnings was ever contemplated or has ever been made.

9. The court erred in holding and deciding that all contracts and combinations which merely tend to restrain interstate commerce, whether by suppression of competition or otherwise, are in themselves, and although such tendency does nto result in any such restraint, violations of the act of congress of July 2, 1890, known as the Anti-Trust act.

10. The court erred in holding and deciding that all contracts and combinations which merely confer the power to restrain interstate commerce, whether by suppression or competition or otherwise, are themselves contracts or combinations in restraint of such commerce and declared illegal by the anti-trust act, though such power is not and is not intended to be exercised.

11. The court erred in holding and deciding that every combination whereby the power is acquired to suppress competition between two parallel and competing lines of railway operating under state charters and engaged in inter-state commerce, is a combination in violation of said anti-trust act whether such power is exercised or intended to be exercised, or not.

12. The court erred in holding and deciding that it would have been a violation of said anti-trust act had the individual defendants, in pursuance of a previous agreement so to do, sold their shares of stock in the defendant railway companies to a natural person, and had induced their fellow shareholders to do the same with the resulting acquisition, by such individual, of a majority if the stock of each railway company.

13. The court erred in holding and deciding that the interstate commerce of each defendant railway company is controlled by its shareholders and not by its board of directors.

14. The court erred in holding and deciding that the Northern Securities company directly controls the commerce of both of the defendant railway companies, though by the charter of each company the management of its business is vested in its board of directors, and the companies have and must have separate and distinct boards of directors.

15. The court erred in holding that the ownership of a majority of the shares of each of two competing railway companies gives to the owner of such shares a control over each of such companies and its commerce, which the holder of a majority of the shares of a single railway company was held, in Pullman's Palace Car company vs. Missouri Pacific Railway company, 115 U. S. 587, not to posses over such single railway company or its commerce.

16. The court erred in holding and deciding that the constitution and composition of railway companies chartered by states or organized under state laws, but carrying on inter-state commerce, are themselves matters of inter-state commerce, and, as such, subject to regulation by congress. And in holding and deciding that under the commerce clause of the constitution congress has power to prescribe who may and who shall not be shareholders in such companies, and how much stock any one stockholder or combination of stockholders may own in any such company, and to authorize and forbid the consolidation of such corporations or any of them.

And erred in holding and deciding that the acquisition and holding of stock in such railway companies, and all matters of their internal constitution and competition, are not matters over which the state incorporating such company has exclusive power of regulation. And erred in holding that the authorizing or forbidding of the consolidation of any two such railway companies is not within the exclusive power of the state or states by or under whose laws they have been incorporated.

17. The court erred in holding that consolidations of railway companies created by or under state laws and competitors in interstate commerce, are effectual restraints upon such commerce, and that such consolidations, though expressly authorized by state charter, are violations of said anti-trust act and illegal.

18. The court erred in holding and deciding that any of the defendants have ever attempted to interpose the New Jersey charter of the Northern Securities company as a shield between themselves and the law, and that such charter is about the only shield that can be so interposed.

19. The court erred in finding and deciding that "the reasoning which led to the acquisition of that (the said New Jersey) charter," was "that while as individuals the promoters could not, by agreement among themselves, place the majority of the stock of the two competing and parallel roads in the hands of a single person or a few persons, giving him or them the power to operate the roads in harmony and stifle competition, yet that the same persons might create a purely fictitious person termed a corporation, which could neither think nor act except as they directed, and by placing the same stock in the name of such artificial being, accomplish the same purpose."

20. The court erred in holding and deciding that the shares of the two defendant railway companies held by the Northern Securities company have merely been placed in its name by the former holders thereof, and that it is not the absolute owner of the same in its own sole right.

21. The court erred in holding and deciding that, "so far as the New Jersey charter is concerned, the question which the court has to determine is whether a charter granted by a state can be used to defeat the will of the national legislature as expressed in a law relating to inter-state trade and commerce over which congress has absolute control."

22. The court erred in holding and deciding that the existing combination gives to a few men acting in concert and in the name of the Northern Securities company and under cover of its charter the power to control all the means of transportation of the defendant railway companies, and to directly control said companies and all their commerce.

23. The court erred in defining and deciding that "the object and necessary effect" of the combination found by it to exist in this case, "is to give to a single person or to a coterie of persons full control of the means of transportation owned by two parallel and competing lines of railroad engaged in inter-state commerce, as well as the power to fix the rate for the transportation of persons and property."

24. The court erred in holding and deciding that the said anti-trust act, if construed as forbidding or restricting the shareholders of the two defendant railway companies from selling their shares to the Northern Securities company, or exchanging them for shares of that company, or forbidding or restraining that company from making such purchases or exchanges and holding the railway shares thus acquired as its own, is a valid law and not in conflict with the fifth amendment of the constitution of the United States.

25. The court erred in holding that the said anti-trust law was intended, and was and is effectual, to include and prohibit "virtual consolidations" of parallel and competing railway companies chartered by the several states, and combinations looking to such "virtual consolidations."

26. The court erred in holding and deciding that this proceeding can be maintained under section 1 of said anti-trust act, although it is apparent on the petition itself, and appears by the proofs, that whatever the combination or conspiracy complained of was formed to do, had been fully and completely done and effected before this proceeding was begun.

27. The court erred in disregarding as immaterial the averments of the answers and the proofs in support thereof, showing that the combination in question was not a combination in restraint of commerce; that its purpose and its effect had been to very largely build up, increase and protect the inter-state and foreign commerce of the two railway companies. And erred in considering not all the effects of said combination upon such commerce, but only its possible effect in restraining a minute portion of such commerce—an effect at the most incidental—and in unduly magnifying the extent and importance of such incidental restraint, and holding the same to be the principle, if not the only purpose and effect of such combination.

28. The court erred in holding that the proofs disclosed any contract, combination or conspiracy in restraint of inter-state or foreign commerce, or any other combination than one to build up and enlarge inter-state and foreign commerce without any restraining of either.

29. The court erred in deciding and decreeing "that the defendants have heretofore entered into a combination or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several states, such as an act of congress, approved July 2, 1890, * * * denounces as illegal."

30. The court erred in deciding and decreeing that all of the stock of either of the defendant railway companies, claimed to be held and owned by the defendant Northern Securities company, was acquired and is now held by the Northern Securities company in virtue of the combination or conspiracy mentioned in the last preceding assignment, and erred in decreeing that any of said stock was acquired or is held in virtue of any such combination or conspiracy.

31. The court erred in decreeing that the Northern Securities company be enjoined, and in enjoining it from acquiring or attempting to acquire any further stock of either of the defendant railway companies, and from voting any stock at any stockholders' meeting of either railway company, and from exercising or attempting to exercise, any control, direction, supervision or influence whatever over the acts of either railway company by virtue of its holding of stock thereof.

32. The court erred in decreeing that each defendant railway company, and its directors, officers, agents and servants be enjoined, and in enjoining them, from permitting the shares thereof held by the Northern Securities company to be voted at any corporate election of such railway company; and from paying to that company any dividend on the stock of such railway company which it now claims to own and hold; and from permitting or suffering that company or any of its officers or agents to exercise any control whatsoever over any of the corporate acts of such railway company.

33. The court erred in deciding and decreeing that the Northern Securities company does not and cannot lawfully hold shares in even one of the defendant railway companies, and has not and cannot enjoy or exercise the rights and powers incident to such ownership; and in decreeing injunctions depriving it of all rights of a stockholder in either one of the two railway companies.

34. The court erred in rendering any decree save a decree for a dismissal of the petition and proceeding.

Save the Babies.

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent., or nearly one quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent., or more than one-third, before they are five, and one half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save a majority of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium, or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. Castoria operates exactly the reverse, but you must see that it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. Castoria causes the blood to circulate properly, opens the pores of the skin and allays fever.

Dr. E. Down, of Philadelphia, Pa., says: "I have prescribed your Castoria in my practice for many years with great satisfaction to myself and benefit to my patients."

Dr. J. E. Waggoner, of Chicago, Ills., says: "I can most heartily recommend your Castoria to the public as a remedy for children's complaints. I have tried it and found it of great value."

Dr. Edward Parrish, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says: "I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild laxative effect and freedom from harm."

Dr. J. B. Elliott, of New York City, says: "Having during the past six years prescribed your Castoria for infantile stomach disorders, I most heartily commend its use. The formula contains nothing deleterious to the most delicate of children."

Dr. C. G. Sprague, of Omaha, Neb., says: "Your Castoria is an ideal medicine for children, and I frequently prescribe it. While I do not advocate the indiscriminate use of proprietary medicines, yet Castoria is an exception for conditions which arise in the care of children."

Dr. J. A. Parker, of Kansas City, Mo., says: "Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact, it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."

Dr. H. F. Merrill, of Augusta, Me., says: "Castoria is one of the very finest and most remarkable remedies for infants and children. In my opinion your Castoria has saved thousands from an early grave. I can furnish hundreds of testimonials from this locality as to its efficiency and merits."

Dr. Norman M. Geer, of Cleveland, Ohio, says: "During the last twelve years I have frequently recommended your Castoria as one of the best preparations of the kind, being safe in the hands of parents and very effective in relieving children's disorders, while the ease with which such a pleasant preparation can be administered is a great advantage."

Dr. F. H. Kyle, of St. Paul, Minn., says: "It affords me pleasure to add my name to the long list of those who have used and now endorse your Castoria. The fact of the ingredients being known through the printing of the formula on the wrapper is one good and sufficient reason for the recommendation of any physician. I know of its good qualities and recommend it cheerfully."

A SCIENCE TRUST

Director of Harvard Observatory Suggests Combine In Astronomy.

Fifty Stations Now Duplicating Work Needless Waste of Effort.

Cambridge, Mass., April 21.—What a million dolars would do for the science of astronomy; how a great beneficent trust might be formed among the world's leading astronomers; how a board of advisers, consisting in part of directors of the principal observatories of the United States and in part of older astronomers retired from active work, could apportion the income from such a sum of money in such manner that the best possible astronomical use would be made of it—such in essence is an astronomer's thoroughly practical dream described in a special report just issued by Professor Edward C. Pickering, director of the Harvard Astronomical observatory, on the subject of the "Endowment of Astronomical Research."

Professor Pickering is so fully convinced that the proposition of incorporating, as it were, an astronomical trust with a capitalization of $1,000,000 or even $2,000,000, is feasible that he has had no hesitancy in outlining and publishing it with considerable fullness of detail. Such a scientific organization would have all the advantages, he believes, of the commercial or industrial trust and none of its objectionable features. "No one," he says, "would object to a trust in wheat, for example, if its only object were to increase the quality and especially the quantity of the crop and to furnish it at the lowest possible rates, while all the time aiding those who are not members of the trust in every possible way. * * * It is universally admitted that in the industrial arts there is a great advantage in co-operation and in carrying on work on a large scale. The same remarks apply to scientific investigation, with the added advantage that the supply and demand are indefinitely great, so that the market can never be glutted."

The general plan urged by Professor Pickering is as follows: He would have a central board of advisers, composed of leading astronomers of the United States, who would meet at least once a year—and probably at first oftener—to determine the apportionment of the income of the astronomical trust fund—an income, by the way, that should amount to at least $50,000 annually to accomplish the work that is, from the astronomer's point of view, of pressing importance. This board would be able to place various tasks of observation and calculation just where they could best be performed. Every danger of duplication of work would thus be eliminated. This is indeed a most serious consideration in astronomy, for hitherto a most disheartening sort of waste of time, money and energy has been noted among astronomical observatories throughout the world. For example, fifty observatories set out to observe the planet Eros during its opposition in 1900, but so far as is known only two or three have made the reductions necessary to render their observations of any value.

Not only would the special endowment of this new institution have to be managed by the board, but a close connection with all astronomical research would need to be established as fast as possible, in order that the incomes from these, too, should be applied in the most effective way. In fact, it would be desirable to secure a maximum of centralization of astronomical interests in the hands of the one board. Membership in the organization, however, would certainly have no effect upon the amount of the appropriation offered to any given observatory; all that would be necessary would be evidence of capacity to do the required work.

Even at this writing there are beautiful observatories in the United States, equipped with powerful telescopes, which lie idle and therefore useless a great part of the night. Such an unfortunate state of things has grown up because individual doners have given money here and there without consulting the actual needs of the science of astronomy.

Yet the stream of gifts continues to flow. There is no science more distinctly popular, none that appeals more distinctly to the imagination, than the study of the starry heavens. Consequently money is given freely by individuals to this institution and that. The expenses of conducting the world's leading observatories seem considerable, even in these days of large figures. The annual incomes of the five richest observatories are as follows: Naval observatory, Washington, $55,000; Paris, $53,000; Harvard, $50,000; Greenwich, $48,000; Pulkowa, $48,000. Existing funds for research are all passive in the sense that they wait for applications and then consider what appropriations can be made. This fund would be active, seeking out the men and the institutions where aid might be needed; where instruments not in use might be available for work; where otherwise valuable material might remain unpublished and consequently useless for lack of means.

In brief, the whole plan is for an institution that will advance the interests of astronomy under the combined advice of the leadins astronomers of the world. Professor Pickering, however, is convinced that it would be a distinct advantage of the new institution to have its funds invested in the name of the president and fellows of Harvard college, as the university corporation is called, believing that the standing of the university insures practically absolute permanency in financial management. Starr T. Murphy, the financial expert who investigated the Harvard methods at the request of J. D. Rockefeller before the latter made his $1,000,000 gift to the Harvard medical school, was able to report, for example, that the university has never yet lost a fund through bad investment. Professor Pickering also cites the fact that the funds invested by the treasurer of Harvard university now amount to more than $14,000,000, and that the net rate of interest during the past year has amounted to 4 8-16 per cent. So that Harvard would be admirably competent, in Professor Pickering's opinion, to take charge of the financial end of such an astronomical trust as he has proposed. But, however financed, he hopes to see it carried out regardless of commonwealth, country or personal considerations.

MOTHER'S FRIEND

MACHEN IS STRONG

And Cannot Easily Be Shaken Loose From His Place.

Only Strong Influence Can Fire the Rural Delivery Man.

Washington, April 21.—When Democratic politicians swept down upon Washington in 1893, consumed with hunger for office, Augustus W. Machen, then assistant postmaster at Toledo, came also. The postmaster in Toledo was a relative by marriage of Grover Cleveland, a fortunate circumstance calculated to facilitate Mr. Machen in landing easily on a good thing. One day, after weeks and even months had gone by, Governor Campbell of Ohio, a warm friend of the assistant postmaster in Toledo, visited the White house, accompanied by a friend in this city.

"You forgot to speak to the President about Machen," said this friend, as the two were leaving Mr. Cleveland's presence.

"That's so," said the governor, and thereupon returned.

"Is that fellow still here?" exclaimed Mr. Cleveland, fondling the little curl upon the top of his forehead, as was his wont in perplexity, when Governor Campbell brought up the subject of an appointment for Mr. Machen.

"Yes," said the governor, who knew well that Mr. Machen had come here in the hope of becoming first assistant postmaster general.

"What will he be willing to take?" asked the president.

"Almost anything," replied the governor laconically.

"How will the place as superintendent of free delivery suit?"

"That's splendid."

Thus Mr. Machen, then 32 years old, entered the public service, where he has waxed great. Sometimes they call him "Big Gus." A powerful United States senator not many months ago referred to him as "The Keystone of the entire difficulty in the postoffice department." No matter what other things persons may say about him, everyone agrees that he has grown to great influence in the administration of postal affairs and will not be deposed from office without a fight which will make itself felt in every political quarter.

No other bureau of the government has increased in importance in the last decade as has the bureau of free delivery. From his roomy office on the fourth floor, northwest corner of the postoffice building, Mr. Machen is in immediate command of a postal army of 15,000 men. The ultimate authority, of course, reached up to First Assistant Wayne and Postmaster General Payne, but they have much less than he to do with the actual details.

"When I came to the head of the office in 1893," said Mr. Machen today, careful to talk nothing except the character of the service in view of pending investigations, "it comprised a force of fifteen persons. By 1896, I think, the force had increased to about ninety. Now I have an office force of 268 with special agents and others on the road and in the field to increase the number of the force to 450. For the rural free delivery there are now eight division headquarters and another will be established July 1. These headquarters are now in New York, Philadelphia, Nashville, Tenn., Marietta, O., Indianapolis, St. Louis, Denver and San Francisco. The assistant of free delivery in San Francisco is now also acting in charge of the rural free delivery division there."

"The number of carriers under your division has increased enormously?" was suggested.

"Yes," replied Mr. Machen, as he reached for a report from which to verify the figures. "July 1, 1897, there were forty-four rural letter carriers in the service of the United States government. One year later the number was 148 and another year later, 391. By July 1, 1902, it will reach 15,500, and 16,000 more carriers will be added to that force in the next fiscal year by reason of the appropriations of congress.

"In 1893, when I came into the service, there were 11,625 city letter carriers. By next July their number will be approximately 19,500. Then the revenue of postoffices in cities with free delivery was 48 million dollars annually; now it is 96 million dollars, having doubled. The rural free delivery covers about 350,000 square miles, out of a total available area of 1 million square miles."

Every congressman in the United States who has secured a free rural delivery route for his constituentss has got it through A. W. Machen. Democrats have been placed under the same obligations to him as Republicans and this is the reason why political influences are felt in his behalf so strong that only the clearest case against him can shake his hold with the postoffice administration.

RESPONSIBLE FOR ILL-LUCK

Was the Fine Opal Worn By Burke and Morris.

Indianapilis, Ind., April 21.—The remarkable story of a magnificent opal has been made public, now that both the principals are dead—one by disease, the other by accident.

Something over a year ago Nathan Morris purchased the opal, which he wore in a scarf pin. It was a weakness of Morris that he was never so happy as when gratifying the wish of a friend, and soon after, when Frank Burke, ex-district attorney, remarked, "That is a beautiful opal you are wearing, Morris," the latter, in his impulsive way, transferred it to the scarf of Mr. Burke, remarking as he did so: "I hope you are not superstitious. You know the opal is by some thought to be unlucky."

Mr. Burke disclaimed being superstitious, and, although he was loath to accept so handsome a gift, it remained in his scarf.

Soon after Burke found himself in failing health, and before he left for Jeffersonville to be operated upon in his last illness, which culminated in his death in this city, he entered Mr. Morris' office early one morning, and, walking directly to Mr. Morris' desk, without a word of salutation laid the pin down before him and turned to withdraw.

"What's the matter now?" queried Mr. Morris, who knew his visitor's whimsical humor.

"Nathan," replied Mr. Burke in his most vehement tones, "there's that confounded opal. I haven't had the least bit of good luck since you gave it to me."

Without further remark he stalked away going, soon after to Jeffersonville where he remained until his return to St. Vincent's hospital in this city, where death relieved him of his suffering.

Scarcely had the community wiped away its tears over the death of Mr Burke until it was called to mourn the loss of Mr. Morris, burned to death in his sister's home while trying to rescue a beloved nephew.

JEALOUS WIFE SHOOTS

Husband as He Is Leaving Another Woman.

Crandon, Wis., April 21.—With his good-bye to another woman on his lips, Farice Duff, a young Kentucky laboring man, was shot and fatally wounded by his jealous wife in front of the residence of the woman upon whom he had been calling at a late hour Saturday night, and lies at his home in a dying condition, with a bullet from a heavy revolver lodged in his back.

Duff fled to a restaurant, followed by his wife, brandishing a revolver. The woman of whom Mrs. Duff was jealous is a sister-in-law of the notorious Tom Banker, who was shot to death by Officers while resisting arrest at Bryant, Wis., for participating in a knife duel. Mrs. Duff was arrested. She expressed regret that she did not also shoot "that woman, too."

FLIMSY WAS THE COSTUME

Of His Wife Reproduced Accidentally In a Magazine.

London, April 21.—A series of photographs of an exceedingly handsome woman, arrayed in a very becoming costume that revealed rather than concealed the beauties of her form, appeared recently in one of the London magazines. The sequel of its publication is very amusing and conveys a lesson to irresponsible photographers.

A certain camera enthusiast, well known in literary circles, and who has a beautiful wife, was not content until he had taken a number of pictures of his better half. To obtain certain effects he posed her after an ancient Grecian model. Her costume was of the filmsiest character. The pictures, naturally, were intended for home consumption only. To this end they were put into a special album. Other albums contained the landscape and such matters of more general interest.

Recently the editor of the illustrated paper above mentioned dined with the amateur photographer, and after dinner he was shown the albums. He looked through them with interest and said:

"I should like to reproduce some of these pictures, if I may."

The amateur, feeling flattered, answered: "Reproduce what you like. In fact, take the album away with you and select what you fancy. Let me have them back when done with," or words to that effect.

The editor departed, and in due course the amateur photographer received copies of the paper.

"You will find some reproductions on page so and so," wrote the editor. "Hope you will like them. They are, I think, the best."

Opening the pages eagerly the amateur photographer nearly had a fit to find the editor had reproduced private portraits of his wife. Needless to say all his friends discovered them also.

Permanently Cures Alderman Peterkin, of Minneapolis, of a severe case of Nasal Catarrh.

HON. JAMES PETERKIN.

"I recommend Kickapoo Indian Oil as the one and, I believe, the only infallible remedy for Nasal Catarrh. I have suffered with this offensive trouble for nearly fifteen years. My breath was bad, and my sufferings were simply awful. Mucus would constantly drop into my throat, and I would have to hawk and spit all the time to the disgust of my friends and myself. My nose would bleed profusely and sick headaches would be the result. After having tried different salves, powders, snuffs and inhalants, I was advised to try Kickapoo Indian Oil, and that medicine is certainly a wonder. It helped me as nothing had before. I used it faithfully for eleven weeks, when I was entirely and completely cured. This was nineteen months ago, and I have not had any trouble since."

TELLS THE WAY

Mrs. Conde Hamlin Gives Duluth Some Excellent Advice.

Points the Way to Make It a Beautiful City.

With a charming personality, an excellent delivery, and subject matter that was well in hand, Mrs. Conde Hamlin made a most favorable impression on the large gathering that attended the High School last evening to listen to an address on "The City Beautiful."

Mrs. Hamlin, a prominent St. Paul club woman, has made a study of the methods of beautifying cities, and in pursuit of these studies has visited all the large cities of the United States and many foreign centers. In connection with her address she exhibited a large number of well-chosen stereopticon views taken from a number of different cities, which illustrated her talk and aided much in conveying the ideas she wished to make clear.

Mrs. Hamlin was introduced by Mayor Hugo, who made a brief address of welcome.

"Since the early ages," he said, "woman has had charge of the house. You know the result. It is clean and sanitary. During the same time man has had charge of the house municipal. It is unclean and often unsanitary. And now woman has put on her gingham apron, tied a towel around her head and has started in to clean up. The men have tried and made failures of it. Good luck to the women! This city ought to be beautiful. We have natural drainage, and there is no reason why we should not have a clean and sanitary city. Mrs. Hamlin is here to aid us in that work, and will now tell us of the means used in St. Paul and other cities and of what is being done along the line of civic improvement."

"Duluth," said Mrs. Hamlin in commencing her address, "is one of the cities in the country which ought to be proud of having a public-spirited mayor. They are few and far between, and they are the first requirement of 'The City Beautiful.'

"In this work the majority of people know what ought to be done, but not all know how it should be done.

"The first consideration is the site of the city. Most cities are situated on water for commercial reasons. With a water front we immediately get an aesthetic possibility as well as a commercial possibility. The American cities are commencing to recognize this aesthetic possibility, and are beautifying their water fronts. This means that the approaches to a city become beautified, and this has much to do with the first impression the traveler gains of the place. Duluth's site is marvelous in its possibilities for a beautiful water front and approach. But these views will show you what has not been done."

Mrs. Hamlin here showed the approach to New York city, with the beautiful Battery park, and in startling contrast placed on the screen a view taken from the ship canal looking up Lake avenue. The unpainted wooden shacks in that vicinity formed an unsightly picture.

"The city should have a regular park system. A system of parks and boulevards should be planned. Boston has the most complete system in the world. There are many advantages to having a plan. The idea is not to make your plan and immediately carry it out. That would mean too heavy an outlay. But work along the lines of that plan with a view to ultimately accomplishing it. In securing your plan don't be niggardly. Secure the best advice on the subject possible and pay for it. St. Paul has a beautiful capitol. But it is in sordid surroundings. The state has built us the capitol. The city should purchase the approaches and make these approaches harmonious with the remainder of the park system.

"Duluth is well started. You have the beginnings of an excellent park system, with your boulevard, ravines, Lester park and the other little parks scattered through the city. They should be made to form an harmonious whole, and in this way a complete park system can be worked out."

A number of views of the park systems of Washington, Cleveland, Harrisburg, St. Paul and other cities were here shown.

"The approaches to a city ought to be monumental. They form the gateway, as it were, to the city, and they should be impressive. The Michigan Central railway and the Northern Pacific railway are carrying out this idea and are erecting large and beautiful depots and beautifying the surroundings to these."

Some views of the portion of Duluth that first greets the traveler's eye showed in a startling manner the idea which Mrs. Hamlin wished to convey.

"After the site and plans comes the water and sewage systems. Of the former I do not need to speak here. You have learned your lesson. It was a costly one but you have learned it well and now have one of the most perfect water systems I know of.

"Duluth has every opportunity to have a perfect sewage system. You have natural drainage and every opportunity for frequent flushing of your sewers and streets. There is no reason why your system should not be perfect. To make it perfect you should become familiar with the present system and know where the sewers are. Procure maps of the sewage system and study them.

"There then comes the question of wires and telegraph poles and this brings up the question of municipal ownership. This I shall not discuss but it is a question whether we shall own them or they shall own us.

"The health department is one of the most important departments of the civic administration. With a competent and energetic commissioner its powers and duties can be extended almost indefinitely. Ordinances against spitting on sidewalks should be made and enforced. The chimney question is another important one that comes under the province of the health commissioner.

"Unsightly bill boards should not be tolerated in cities. A well painted and artistic sign board is a far more attractive advertisement than a great unsightly bill. In Duluth I see they have adopted a plan of painting the sides of rocks in the western portion of the city, and the passer-by is greeted with the advice to smoke a certain cigar hideously painted on the sides of the rock cuts.

"There is nothing you need more to know about in Duluth than disposal of your garbage. Your system is a disgrace to a city, positively a disgrace. It is a question that should be taken up at once. In St. Paul the garbage is collected every day in closed wagons and carted to the country where it is sold to the farmers. I do not know whether you could do that here or not as you have not the farming community to draw from that we have but our system actually pays a revenue.

"The streets, trees and boulevards are an important department of the 'city beautiful.' The grass should be kept cut in front of vacant lots. It should be cut by the city and assessed against the property. It is not right or just that owners of vacant property should be allowed to sit back and let the property owners on each side improve the value of his property by making theirs beautiful while he is not paying a cent toward it.

"Big parks are fine things for a city but the value of small pieces of green in a city should not be forgotten. Let the outlying parks be wild. Give Nature her way. Assist her where necessary but do not alter her plans. In the small pieces of green within the city, however, be formal. Little scattered parks of grass and trees trained in a formal manner are a great improvement to a city and the cost is small.

"The value of foliage to architecture should not be forgotten. Vines should be trained to grow on the various public buildings. They soften the outlines. There is no reason why trees should be removed from the business districts. On warm summer days they are an intense relief from the glare of the sun and they add materially to the beauty of the city. The question is whether the people are for the city or the city is for the people.

"We must begin the work of beautifying the city with the children who will form the next generation. The majority of the children come from homes where they do not have artistic or beautiful surroundings. Then make the environment of the children in our schools as artistic and beautiful as possible and teach them to appreciate art. Our school buildings should be models and the surroundings should be pleasant.

"Your high school building here is the most dignified, magnificent and best situated school building in the country. It has been a great advertisement for Duluth and you should not regret the cost.

"There should be a law in every state compelling the school boards to furnish a playground for each school building. These playgrounds should be without a spear of grass that the children do not want there. Give them absolute freedom of it. Have your lawns in connection with your school building but have a playground also.

"The industrial work in the schools is an important factor. With the industrial revolution there came the danger of the loss of many arts that were formerly taught in the homes. These must now be taught in the schools. In the industrial work in the schools lies the future of American art."

Every word of Mrs. Hamlin's address was appreciated by the audience.

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH

S. F. Boyce Guarantees That Hyomel Will Cure the Worse Case of Catarrh in Duluth.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Duluth guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will return the money, it speaks volumes as to the merit of that remedy. It is in this way that S. F. Boyce is selling Hyomel, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in Duluth and vicinity.

Hyomel is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or kineglass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, that Hyomel will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomel does not cure you S. F. Boyce will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

Hints To Advertisers

Copy for ads. that appear in The Herald's two biggest days of the week, Wednesday and Friday, should be in by noon of the day before, to insure an attractive display.

"Life would be too smooth if it had no rubs in it."

Your Herald "want ad" will rub the names off your competitor's signs.

Nearly everyone has something to sell. Herald "want ads" sell second hand sewing machines, stoves or anything having any value in it.

Study your goods, consider their beauties and write the things that they move you to say. If the goods do not move you to say forceful, convincing things there is grave question whether they are the sort of goods that can be profitably advertised.

Advertisers might well follow the policy of many noted literary men. When a bright idea strikes you, jot it down for future needs.

Printers' Ink: The man who doesn't believe in advertising is usually the man whose limit in all things is quickly reached.

J. M. Gidding, of the Silberstein & Bondy company, who prepares the firm's advertisements, received a very flattering notice in a recent issue of the Dry Goods Economist.

Since the advent of the busy spring season, it has been necessary to leave several advertisements out of the Wednesday and Friday issues of The Herald, owing to the failure of advertisers to get copy in early.

Every successful business man has been a good advertiser; every good advertiser is a successful business man.

A FABLE.

Once upon a time a man lost his umbrella. Being a clever advertiser, he published a "want ad," saying the person who stole the umbrella was known and would be prosecuted if the umbrella was not returned. The next morning the man found 10,000 umbrellas in his front yard.

Moral: Use "want ads." Herald "want ads" are the best.

"The true, strong and sound mind is the mind that can embrace equally great things and small."—Boswell.

The successful advertiser uses the little "want ad" as well as the big display ad.

NATIONAL ADVERTISER.

The most notable instance of the benefits of bank advertising of which we have any record, says an exchange, is furnished by the experience of the Pittsburg Bank for Savings. The amount of the deposits in this bank have increased about fourfold in the past four years, and during the past year 14,000 new deposit accounts were opened, which is regarded as almost wholly the result of advertising. The depositors now number 35,000, with about $12,000,000 of deposits. This bank has an advertising manager on its staff, and advertises regularly in over one hundred and fifty newspapers. A large part of the increase in business is attributed to the system of banking by mail, by means of which thousands of persons in all parts of the country are enabled to open accounts, and thus secure the four per cent interest on their money, which is made a conspicuous feature of the bank's advertisements.

ESCAPED FROM THE ICE FLOES

American Vessels Get Away After Three Months Imprisonment.

St. Johns, N. F., April 21.—The American herring vessels that have been imprisoned in the ice floes in the Bay of Islands since Jan. 18 escaped from the ice last Saturday.

Dispatches received here from Port au Port, St. George, Cod Roy river and Cape Race declare that the ice has been driven away from the land by a heavy easterly gale. This enabled the herring fishers to obtain egress from the gulf of St. Lawrence into the Atlantic. The vessels will sail for home.

Attempts were made to free the imprisoned herring vessels, but without success. Their crews were reduced to short rations for the last two weeks of their imprisonment in the ice.

Gloucester, Mass., April 21.—All Gloucester was happily surprised yesterday afternoon when the schooner Sceptre, one of the Gloucester vessels which have been imprisoned in the ice at Bay of Islands, N. F., rounded Eastern Point and dropped anchor in the harbor. The last word from the vessels which the Gloucester people had was that the fleet was obliged to return to anchorage in Bay of Islands on account of the pack ice.

Capt. Choon reported that the schooner Dauntless also escaped the ice, but has probably gone to St. Pierre, Miq., to dispose of cargo.

In his story of three months in the ice pack, Capt. Choon says that the snow is from 20 to 30 feet deep on the level in New Foundland, and in ravines it is probably 100 feet deep. He thinks the summer season will not be long or warm enough to carry away the snow. He saw great herds of deer and caribou, which had been driven to the coast, walking on the snow and feeding on the tops of the trees. Capt. Choon says the Gloucester crews are well, the vessels unhurt and the cargoes in good shape as the weather was extremely cold up to April 10, soon after his vessel escaped from the ice.

PRETTY JAPANESE WOMEN

Were Rescued and Reunited to Their Husbands.

New Orleans, La., April 21.—Two dainty little Japanese women, looking like quaint dolls in their foreign costumes, were restored to their husbands through the medium of the Japanese consul, J. W. Philip. Their rescue was effected by the police from the resort of Alice White, and when the dainty tots of femininity were told that they might go with their husbands if they chose their delight and gratitude knew no bounds. They prostrated themselves upon the floor of the parlor into which they had been summoned, and wept for sheer joy.

The case came to light through the complaints made to Mr. Philip by two Japanese men—F. C. Yokowo, a Japanese photographer, and K. Tohoshi, a Japanese cook. The men said they had come from San Francisco, under the promise that their wives would be given places as Geisha girls in a house which was to be opened. Salaries of $50 a month were promised. Tohoshi was told he would be given the same salary as a cook, and both men were given guarantees that they would not be separated from their wives.

The quartet arrived in New Orleans Monday night, and were driven to Alice White's resort. The husbands were allowed to stay until Wednesday, when they were ejected at the point of a revolver. The women were detained, being told, it is said, that they were indebted for the entire passage money of the party from 'Frisco.

EXPERIMENT SUCCESSFUL

Titanic Iron Ore Smelted In an Ordinary Cupola.

St. Paul, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—An experiment that may revolutionize the iron and steel industry of the country was successfully worked at the plant of the Valley Iron company here yesterday afternoon. Titanic iron ore, of which there are billions of tons in Northern Minnesota, was smelted in an ordinary cupola, and turned out pig iron that polished up like steel and that, according to those interested in the experiment, is far better in every way than the finest bessemer steel.

While the hard and soft ore mines of St. Louis county have been turning out millions of tons annually for years, farther north there have been lying gigantic beds of iron which, because of the presence of titanium, making it refractory, have received but little attention, though their existence is generally known. It has been commonly believed that sooner or later it would be necessary to use this ore, because of the rapid dwindling of the supply of hard ore which is necessary to bring the soft ore up to bessemer grade, and that before that time somebody would discover a process by which this apparently valueless ore could be used.

Frank Johnson, of this city, president of the Johnson Nickel Mining company, claims to have discovered this process, and in the presence of about thirty Duluth men who are interested in iron mining, he conducted a successful experiment yesterday afternoon. Several of those who witnessed it are interested in lands bearing this sort of ore, and they were jubilant yesterday over the result of the test. Prof. N. Lehman of St. Paul, who was present yesterday, said that in his opinion the ore could be smelted as cheaply as hematite. Aside from solving the question of how to smelt this refractory ore, it is claimed that it produces a steel much better than bessemer, because with one-third the weight the same tensile strength is secured. The superior quality of the product is ascribed to the presence in the ore of vanadium and chrome, ingredients that are said to give it extraordinary strength and toughness.

Propositions looking toward the construction of large smelting works at Duluth have been hinging on the result of this test, and it is expected, now that success seems to have attended it, that these projects will be pushed rapidly.

"There are incredible quantities of this ore in Cook county," said Mr. Johnson yesterday. "My company owns 7000 acres of lands on which there has already been shown up 20,000,000 tons of it. We have drills holes 1007 feet in ore, and the limit of the bed has not yet been struck. B. G. and J. F. Segog, who were present this afternoon when the ore was run, own 10,000 acres of land adjoining the holdings of my company. This is not the first time I have successfully smelted this ore, but the test today was made for the benefit of the Duluth parties who are interested in the successful treatment of ore that has always been supposed to be utterly refractory."

WEDDED TO HIS STEPDAUGHTER

And Divorced Wife, Her Mother, Will Live With Them.

Springfield, Ohio, April 21.—William Baker is now the husband of his stepdaughter, the marriage having been performed in Covington, Ky., a few days ago. There is a romance back of the wedding.

On Saturday, March 28, Mr. Baker was divorced from Ollie Baker, on the grounds of bigamy. A few seconds later, his stepdaughter, Mrs. Nosha Fairchild, was granted a divorce from John Fairchild. She charged willful absence. The daughter was restored to her maiden name of Nosha Shellhart.

When Mr. Baker married Mrs. Ollie Baker she supposed that her first husband was dead. She had not heard anything from him for eight years, and had been informed in a letter from his mother that he died from typhoid fever.

About eight months ago Shellhart presented himself at the Baker home. An embarrassing situation followed. He wanted his wife to take him back, but she refused to have anything to do with him. He had no desire to prosecute her for bigamy, and went away. Baker's love for his wife grew cold, and he brought suit for divorce. Mrs. Fairchild brought suit at the same time. Mr. Baker and his bride, formerly Mrs. Fairchild, returned home and will reside here. It is understood that her mother, his first wife, will make her home with them.

MARRIAGE KEPT SECRET

Until Thomas Paid Attention to Another Woman.

Akron, Ohio, April 21.—Four years ago next June Miss Cora B. Thomas, a pretty schoolteacher of Cuyahoga Falls, was married in Dunkirk, N. Y., to William Thomas, her cousin, of Tallmadge, this county. They never lived together. Both returned to their homes near each other, and they kept the marriage secret.

Recently, it is alleged, the husband paid attention to another young lady in Tallmadge. Mrs. Thomas then made public their marriage. She and her mother went to Dunkirk and procured a copy of the marriage license as evidence. Mrs. Thomas began divorce proceedings, alleging absence and non-support.

Thomas has been restrained from selling his coal lands in Tallmadge township.

EXCITING MARKET

Lively Times In the May Wheat Option In Chicago.

The Close Is Lower—Flax Is Fairly Active and Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 21.—There was a wild time in May wheat in Chicago this morning and as Armour is in the May options in other markets, they also were affected. In Chicago there was a decline of 3½c in less than an hour's time. At one time there was trading in May at both 77c and 75¾c at the same time. The range for the day in Chicago was from 79c to 75½c. The close was ½-⅝c below yesterday, at 77⅝c. In other markets the range was narrower, but the fluctuations were sudden.

In Duluth the market moved between 77½c and 76c and closed ⅞c off. In Minneapolis there was a range of 1⅜c and a decline of ⅝-1c. In New York the decline was 1½c.

The cause for the flurry was not clear. One rumor was that it started by the supposition that Armour was trying to unload some of his long holdings. The selling has become quite general that without a good export demand Armour cannot get out without a loss and that has restricted trading and it is not an easy matter to unload. The export demand has fallen off considerably this week. Early in the day there were rumors that Armour was settling with shorts. He supported the market at once, however, upon its sharp decline. In July the movement was less erratic, the range being within 1⅝c. There seems to be a general fear that Armour will try to get out of the May option quietly if he can and this causes a panicky rush at the first suggestion of Armour selling.

Broomhall reported the continent selling wheat in Liverpool; there being a considerable improvement in the weather there. The Southwest also reported that France was reselling there. Paris closed ¼c lower to ⅛c higher. Liverpool closed unchanged on the old and unchanged to ¼d lower on the new.

Bradstreet reported a decrease of 6,-956,000 bus in the world's visible supply against a decrease of 3,000,000 bus a year ago.

Primary receipts of wheat were 371,000 bus, last year 301,000 bus. Shipments 549,-000 bus., last year 332,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 264,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 68 cars, and at Chicago 35 cars, a total of 123 cars, against 108 last week and 236 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ¼d higher. May corn in Chicago closed ¼c lower and May oats ¼c lower. Primary receipts of corn were 359,-000 bus., last year 313,000 bus. Shipments 527,000 bus., last year 145,000 bus. Clearances were 213,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 2,481,000 bus. in the world's visible.

The Duluth wheat market was slow though erratic. May opening unchanged at 77⅝c, selling at 77½c at 9:43 and settling back to 77⅜c at 10:25. It held at that point until after 11 o'clock and then suddenly slumped off to 76c at 11:38. A rally to 76¾c followed within a very few minutes and the market closed at 76¾c.

Cash prices continued at ⅛c over May for No. 1 northern and 1¼c under the No. 2. Sales were light.

Flax was fairly active and somewhat lower. May sold ¼c up to $1.10½ and then dropped to $1.09¾ but rallied to $1.10 and closed there, a decline of ¼c. July declined ⅝c as did also September.

Rye fell ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 76¾c; No. 2 northern, 75¼8. May, No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 76¾c; July, 76¾c. Flax in store, $1.09, to arrive, $1.10; on track, $1.10; May, $1.10; July, $1.11½; September, $1.12½; October, $1.12½; November, $1.11½. Oats on track, 33c; to arrive, 32½c; May, 33¾c. Rye on track, 49½c; to arrive, 49½c; May, 50c. Barley, 35@51c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 17; last year, 55; oats, 16; rye, 3; flax, 23.

Receipts: Wheat, 9650 bus; oats, 10,026 bus; rye, 1791 bus; barley, 241 bus; flax, 12,700 bus.

Shipments: Wheat, 216,583 bus; oats, 257,568 bus; flax, 354,306 bus.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Chicago, April 21.—There was a continuation of the bullish sentiment in wheat today and May opened a shade to 1@1⅜c higher at 78½c to 78¾c, but the rather indifferent cables caused an easier tone in July and that month was unchanged to 3c lower at 72⅝c to 72⅞c. A good demand from commission houses with small offerings resulted in a stronger feeling soon after the opening, May advancing to 79c and July to 73⅝c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 68 cars, which, with the local receipts of 55 cars, two of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 123 cars, against 108 cars last week and 236 cars a year ago.

About noon a break of 3¼c in May occurred on attempts by the Armour people to unload part of their immense line. The crowd had anticipated such a move, however, and no sooner had the leading long began to sell than the pit was flooded with selling orders and the price took a sudden drop. May declining to 75½c. Seeing the futility of any further efforts to sell, the Armour crowd started in to buy and within two minutes the price had advanced to 77c. The late market was quite firm and after touching 78c, May closed 1⅛@⅝c lower at 77⅞c. In sympathy with May, the July option declined to 71½c but rallied later, closing at 72⅛@¼c, a loss of 5⅝@⅞c.

Trading in corn was quiet and the market lacked features. Small receipts caused considerable buying by shorts and the early market was firm. May opened unchanged to ⅛c higher at 41⅝c to 41¾c and July was unchanged to ⅛c higher at 44⅜c to 44½c. Local receipts were 85 cars, one of contract.

The market continued dull throughout the day, and the close was steady, May being 1⅛c lower at 40c and July unchanged at 44⅜c.

The sentiment in the oats pit was again bullish with an active demand from shorts and a fair demand from commission houses. Opening prices on May were unchanged to ⅛c higher at 35⅛c to 35¼c and there was little change in values the early part of the day. Local receipts 150 cars.

Provisions opened about where they left off last night on a steady hog market, July pork being a shade lower at $17.60; July lard unchanged to 2½c lower at $8.82½ to $8.85 and ribs a shade lower, at $9.77½. The market became a little firmer early in the session on the strength in grains, but trading was of small volume.

Close: Wheat, May, 77⅝c; July, 72⅛@⅜c; September, 68⅝c. Corn, April, 43¾c; May, 44c; July, 44⅜c; September, 43¾@⅞c. Oats, April, 34½c; May, 34⅝c; July, 31⅝c; September, 28½c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was unsettled and on the whole weak. Broomhall reported continental selling in Liverpool on the more seasonable weather in France. The southwest reported French re-selling wheat recently bought there for shipment. The export demand so far this week has been much poorer than it was last week. As much of the recent bullish feeling has been based on the bad weather abroad and the export demand, the change in conditions made more or less selling. During the day there was a sharp break but at the extreme decline prices were again supported by Armour buying. Combination of uncertain weather and the uncertainty of one man's actions makes a very unsatisfactory conditions. Without the aid of a liberal export demand it will be a difficult proposition for Armour to sell his wheat except at a loss. Realizing this, the trade is becoming smaller daily and more nervous. Outside interests, both active and small. Bradstreet makes the world's visible increase 7,000,000 against 2,360,000 bushels last year. Even this bullish item failed to stimulate general confidence. Minneapolis mills have resumed operations and farmers' deliveries from the Northwest are still very small. In the Southwest they seem to be increasing. It seems probable that Armour will not permit any serious break in this market at present, and on this theory we are inclined to think we would buy wheat on the soft spots and take profits as we saw them. Estimated cars 20.

Corn—Market here was very dull and steady. The weather throughout the West is about normal, with possibly a tendency towards something warmer. Small receipts are to some extent offset by little larger offering in the interior. Cash demand is fair. Contract stocks, however, show but little decrease. There is a good deal of July corn in strong hands, but the operations from day to day are small. Estimated cars 30.

Broomhall cables: "Our latest advices state that the weather is mild and rainy in France with temperature ranging from 40 to 55. In Germany the weather is changeable."

Chicago: The Berlin Treidmarke edition of April 8 spoke about German wheat crop prospects as follows: "With the exception of some parts in Southern Germany, the reports about the growth is thin and in spite of recent favorable weather have shown no improvement. Fall seeding was late and besides the damage by field mice there was a good deal of winter killing owing to the continued wet and cold weather ever since the wheat was put in the ground. A very high percentage will have to be re-plowed and re-seeded with either spring wheat, oats or barley."

Chicago: Paris cables late yesterday afternoon said the weather had improved with temperatures running from 44 to 50 degrees, but it was suggested it was too early to arrive at any estimate of the crop, but it was feared damage had been done by frosts.

The Kansas April crop report according to a message from King, of Toledo, makes the wheat condition 97.8, compared with 94 last year and 99.8 two years ago.

TAKING OF PROFITS

By Professionals Affected the Prices In Stock Market.

Trading Was Dull Toward the Close, Which Was Easy.

New York, April 21.—Opening prices were about ¼ higher on an average and the trading was active and widely distributed. Exceptional gains were shown by Minneapolis, St. Paul & Soo preferred of ½, Manhattan of 1 and Wabash preferred of ¾.

Special strength was shown by a few stocks which have been accumulated recently, notably Baltimore & Ohio and some of the Gould stocks. Trading was broad and rather active, but the demand was freely fed and the prive movement was narrow. Many obscure stocks were dealt in at advances of 1 to 2 points. Sugar moved up a point on the advance in refined sugar and Baltimore & Ohio, St. Louis Southwestern preferred and Wabash preferred gained as much. General Electric rose 2 points, while Cast Iron Pipe preferred lost 2½.

The market was practically motionless for a time and then renewed the advance. The Gould tocks retained their conspicuous position, Wabash, Missouri Pacific, Texas & Pacific, Atchison, Canadian Pacific and Norfolk & Western. Detroit United Railway advanced 2½ and a number of minor industrials gained between 1 to 2. The heaviness of Amalgamated was attributed to the illness of the president of the company.

Bonds steady at noon.

The representative railroad stocks figured more prominently in the dealings and were bid up strongly. Their strength accelerated the rise elsewhere and stocks were purchased with considerable confidence. Minor stocks showed increasing prominence and the decision of the exchange authorities to record odd lot transactions of less than 100 shares was followed by a wide variety of purchases. The principal midday gains were of a point or over in St. Paul, Southern Pacific and Louisville & Nashville and 2 to 3 in Colorado Southern first and second preferred, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Detroit Southern preferred, Rubber Goods preferred, Steel Foundry and Sloss-Sheffield Steel. Colorado Fuel was pressed for awhile steadily and lost 1⅜. Gras Twine declined 3 points.

Increasing activity and strength developed during the course of the afternoon. New stocks were brought forward into the advance. Southern Pacific, Chicago & Alton and Canada Southern were numbered in the two-point gains. Rock Island, Pennsylvania and Reading advanced a point over last night. Sloss-Sheffield Steel 4½, Westinghouse Electric 6 and the first prfered 8. The buying movement extended to Amalgamated, which had been heavy during the forenoon and it rallied to 5¼ above yesterday's close. Profit taking in Manhattan and Baltimore & Ohio was achieved under cover of the general strength.

Professional profit-taking affected prices all through the list, but Manhattan led the reaction to the extent of 1⅜. Missouri Pacific fell back a point and General Electric 1¼. Gains of 2 to 2½ were scored by St. Louis & San Francisco, Denver & Rio Grande, Pittsburg, C. & St. L., North American and Railway Investment preferred. Erie first preferred advanced 1¾. Brokers turned their attention to exercises incident to the last day of business in their temporary quarters on the floor of the produce exchange and trading became dull. The closing was dull and easy.

Northern Securities, 90¼c bid; 90½c asked.

The total sales were 751,100 shares.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Speculators for a decline have been confident that the court would refuse to modify the merger decree and thus prevent the payment of dividends on Northern Securties stock. A considerable interest had been made on this assumption. The decision of the court yesterday therefore, permitting the payment of dividends removed quite a weight from the market and the feeling in conservative circles is that the Securites case as a factor in speculation has lost its influence as it will be several months before the United States supreme court will dispose of it. Meantime it is believed that there will be an increased in the theory that the price movement will be governed by influences which are usually potent at this season. The first of these is improving monetary conditions. It is learned that the Union Trust Co. yesterday made loans at 1½ per cent for four months on strictly railroad collateral. With the banks gaining freely from the treasury an dwith larger receipts from the interior probable, it is good opinion that time money will be obtainable at this rate in the near future on good mixed collateral as against 5 to 5½ but recently quoted. Crop news and railroad earnings continue excellent, the heavy increases in the latter for the second week in April having a pronounced effect on sentiment. The labor situation notwithstanding scattered strikes, is more favorably regarded than for some time. The foregoing incentives explain the renewed confident buying of stocks on the opening of the week by substantial interests identified with the Gold stocks particularly Mo. Pac. and with Atchison common, B. & O., common, Union Pacific and Rhode Island, and among the industrials Copper and U. S. S., which are considered good purchases on recessions. Foreign bankers think the decision permitting Northern Securities to pay dividends will strengthen the market for American securities in London and possibly lead to good foreign buying.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: It is a pretty good market. There is more activity, both professional and outside, although the volume of trade is still a moderate one. Advances have been pretty general throughout the list during the day. Money is easy and the street is looking for another favorable bank statement on Saturday. General sentiment seems rather confidently bullish. It looks as if prices would work some higher, but we hardly look for a runaway market. No session of the exchange tomorrow.

ORE RATES FIXED

Contracts Are Made For Moving Four Million Tons.

Vesselmen Do Not Like Some of the Rates Made.

Cleveland, April 21.—Ore rates for the season were fixed and contracts for moving about 4,000,000 tons were made on the basis of 85 cents from ports at the head of Lake Superior. The steel trust began chartering and covered about two million tons. General Manager Wolvin insisted on last year's differentials, which means 75 cents from Marquette and 65 from Escanaba. Other shippers had figured on paying 80 cents from Marquette and 70 cents from Escanaba, but they will, of course, hold for the same figures offered by the trust. Vesselmen will accept contracts at 85 cents from the head of the lakes, but they do not like Marquette or Escanaba business at the rates quoted.

GOES TO A FARM.

Capt. Kemp to Seek a Quieter Life.

Captain Al. Kemp, who for the past few years has been the master of the steamer Clement has succumbed to the attractions of a rural existence and has resigned his position to take up his residence on a farm which he has purchased a few miles north of Duluth. He was one of the most popular captains sailing the lakes and will be missed by all his old associates. His place has been taken by Capt. Reilley, who last year held the position of assistant officer of the United States yacht Vidette. Capt. Reilley is young in years but old in experience and a very well known and popular officer. His promotion is welcome news to all who knew him, and he has received many congratulations on his step during the past few days.

the man affected lived in Duluth. Senator Pugh had the bill put through the senate in the morning, and in the afternoon, when the house members were given a chance to call up local measures and pass them, Capt. Lewis said this was his local measure, and got it through.

The most important matters yesterday were the trading stamp bill and the wrangle over the tax amendments to the constitution. The trading stamp bill passed both houses yesterday, and will become a law. It provides that trading stamp concerns must print upon the face of their coupons their advertised value, and must redeem them in cash or merchandise, at the option of the holder, in any amount in which they may be presented. This prevents the concerns from requiring holders to wait until they have accumulated a specified amount, usually a large one, before they can realize. The bill is not what the retailers went after, but when there was no possibility of getting the original bill through because of its manifest un

COUTURE CAUGHT

Man Who Jumped His Bail Nabbed on the Street.

Man Who Was His Surety Meets Him on Street.

After purchasing a few days liberty by forfeiting $100 bail, put up by a friend, Joseph Couture was captured yesterday afternoon and turned over to the police by the man whose confidence he betrayed.

Couture was arrested last week for threatening the life of his wife and family. Joseph Andre put up $100 to keep him out of jail pending the trial. Andre agreed to deliver him in court when the case was called, and did have him there, but neglected to turn him over to an officer.

Couture skipped out and the court notified Andre that unless he was surrendered the bail of $100 would be forfeited. For several days Andre has been constantly on the look-out for Couture, and yesterday they met face to face on Second street, and if Couture had been wise he could have read life's meaning in the other man's eyes.

They discussed the municipal court incident and at Andre's suggestion walked down toward Superior street together. Couture, thinking that a lawyer was to be consulted about getting the $100 bail back.

Instead of going to a lawyer's office, Mr. Andre turned him over to the first officer he met and Couture was immediately taken back to the court room from which he escaped.

Judge Windom ordered Andre's $100 to be returned, and then put Couture under $500 bonds to keep the peace on the original charge of threatening his wife. He was naturally unable to raise the bond, after forfeiting that put up by Andre, and the court ordered that he be confined in the county jail until the bond should be furnished, not to exceed a period of six months.

MATINEE MUSICALE.

Election of Officers For the Year Held.

The last meeting of the Matinee Musicale occurred yesterday afternoon and the program was given up to the music of Russia. Mrs. Wilson G. Crosby and Mrs. Mark Baldwin were in charge of the program. The first number was a piano number, "Lesghinka," by Cui, and was delightfully played by Mrs. J. A. Stephenson and Miss Simonds. Three songs were pleasingly sung by Cyril Tyler, and following were two piano numbers by Miss Ruth Rogers, who played with a feeling and delicacy of touch that is winning her many friends among the musicians of the city. Two songs of Tschaikowsky were sung by Miss Mary Bradshaw in charming style and were much appreciated. One of the finest numbers of the program followed, a sonata of Rubenstein, played by Mrs. Marie Geist-Erd and Marx E. Oberndorfer. The two movements of the sonata were given, the 'cello tones being especially clear and beautiful. The program closed with two songs by Cyril Tyler.

After the regular meeting the election of officers for the coming year occurred. The following were elected: Mrs. John Millen, president; Mrs. J. A. Stephenson, vice president; Miss Carlotta Simonds, corresponding secretary; Miss Berenice Crowley, recording secretary, and Miss Winifred Holmes, treasurer. The plan of work for the coming year will later be decided upon.

KNOWS NOTHING OF A WEDDING

White Has Not Heard of Coming Vanderbilt Nuptials.

London, April 21.—Henry White, secretary of the United States embassy and brother-in-law of Mrs. Lewis M. Rutherford, who it has been reported, is to marry William K. Vanderbilt, says no wedding is to take place at his house tomorrow, and also, as far as he knows, Mrs. Rutherford is not even engaged to Mr. Vanderbilt. Mr. White has heard absolutely no mention of their wedding. Both of the parties to the alleged engagement are out of England, and neither the United States embassy nor Mr. White's house has been placed at the disposal of any parties contemplating marriage, and no request for the use of the embassies or Mr. White's residence for a marriage ceremony has been made.

Paris, April 21.—At the Vanderbilt house here those occupying confidential relations with William K. Vanderbilt declined to further discuss the reports of his marriage. When Mr. Vanderbilt's note to the Associated Press yesterday evening saying the report was untrue was written, he was aware of the reports printed in New York yesterday that he was to be married here tomorrow, and his denial specifically contradicted these reports. Nothing further will be given out as to the reports or regarding the proceedings before the New York courts.

MINERS STILL OUT.

Mitchell Has Nothing to Say Concerning Lockout.

Shenandoah, Pa., April 21.—All the Philadelphia & Reading collieries and the Cambridge and Furnace, individual operations, are idle again today. As far as can be learned no overtures have been made by either side toward terminating the lockout.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 21.—President Mitchell had nothing to say about the Philadelphia & Reading lockout except that he is waiting further particulars. President Fahey of the Ninth district says the men have been accustomed to work eight hours on Saturdays since 1898, and he believes that they may continue to do so in accordance with the findings of the strike commission. The district board members and President Mitchell went into session at 10 o'clock this morning. They will hold another session this afternoon and possibly one this evening.

RECEIVED BY KING.

Gen. Wood Calls on the Ruler of Italy.

Rome, April 21.—Brig. Gen. Leonard Wood was received in audience today by King Victor Emmanuel. The general had a most gracious and cordial conversation with the king, who took great interest in the Philippine islands. Gen. Wood explained that he was going to the islands on strictly military duty, and said he had the greatest admiration for Governor Taft. He felt that the results which the governor had accomplished there were excellent.

The king said that should Gen. Wood go to Eritrea, the Italian African colony on the Red sea, he had given instructions to the authorities there to put themselves entirely at his disposal. Gen. Wood thanked the king warmly, and said he was gratified when, through the Italian ambassador at Washington, the foreign office here invited him to visit Eritrea.

Maj. Scott and Lieut. McCoy, who accompanied Gen. Wood, also were received by the king.

Sacramento, Cal., April 21.—Governor Pardee has granted requisition papers for the arrest and extradition of R. N. Warren, wanted at Clintonville, Wis., on a charge of abducting Ella Doty, aged 17, from her home. Sometime ago Warren accepted employment on a ranch near Davisville, Cal. He was accompanied by the girl, who was dressed in boy's clothing. Their identity was discovered and they fled to Wesley, Cal., where Warren was arrested.

Henry Herman, Fugitive Milwaukee Operator, Owes Fully $600,000.

He Used His Credit to Tide Over Bad Investments.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 21.—It is now believed that the obligations of Henry Herman, the real estate operator and contractor, will amount to at least $600,000. It is know that he has used his credit, which formerly was almost limitless, to secure funds from a variety of sources in order to tide over his many projects.

Mr. Herman, according to his former business associates, for several years conducted his affairs to legitimate business methods, but as he became more deeply involved departed from regular practices and resorted to means which it is believed laid him open to criminal prosecution. Among those who are losers through Herman's dealings are George Ellis, a venerable capitalist, who intrusted many of his affairs to Herman; his sureties as assignee of the Plankington bank, O. R. Hanson, a lawyer, and a number of others.

Applications for orders in bankruptcy will be filed tomorrow and a complete investigation of Herman's affairs will be made. Even then there may be difficulty in ascertaining the full extent of his indebtedness.

Several business men who knew Herman and have some knowledge of his methods assert that while they believe his swindles are extensive, he has not profited a dollar by absconding and that it is more than likely he had barely enough money to take him out of the country.

It is asserted that Herman is $37,000 short in his accounts as assignee of the Plankinton bank, but whatever shortages there may be these are amply secured by his bondsmen.

Among the most daring of his exploits is one which concerns the issuance of his personal note to George Ellis, who seems to have been his principal victim so far as individuals are concerned.

Herman waited on Mr. Ellis June 14, 1900, and obtained a loan of $9000 payable in three months and bearing 6 per cent interest. On the face of the note is the following:

"Secured by mortgage and note of Maude Hendee left as collateral."

In place of the note and mortgage, there were found placed in the envelope in which Herman sent the note to Mr. Ellis a fire insurance policy on a dwelling house belonging to Maude Hendee, located in Woodland court, for $2000 and $1000 on the furniture, which is absolutely worthless for anything excepting a loss by fire.

When it is taken into consideration that Mr. Ellis is a feeble man of 88 years of age, it seems to have been an easy matter to have imposed upon him, but there is always the danger of his consulting some one over his securities, or of offering them for sale, which would quickly disclose the fraud. But this did not deter Herman from taking all the chances.

The note was given June 14, 1900, payable in three months, and at the end of each intervening three months since the date of its issuance it bears the indorsement upon the back that the interest has been paid to date, and that "it has been renewed by mutual consent of the parties."

The last indorsement was made March 14, 1903, from which date it is to run three months longer. The mortgage upon the property supposed to be given to Mr. Ellis as security for his $9000 loan to Herman is owned by David Adler, and is for $5500. How Herman came into possession of the insurance policy which he palmed off on Mr. Ellis in lieu if the note and mortgage is yet to be learned.

It is reported on good authority that Mr. Ellis would lose about $40,000 of the $50,000 he loaned to Mr. Herman by reason of the frauds that have been practiced upon him.

O. R. Hansen, the lawyer, has a claim of $55,000 against Herman, but he holds collateral securities enough to make good his claim almost at its face value.

Herman also is an indorser on the paper of Loss & Co., which had extensive contracts for constructing railways in Indiana, in which he was interested, and the amount for which he stands liable is $42,000. He is also an indorser on the notes of A. H. Hadfield for about $8000 for which he is liable, and in addition to all this he is said to be owing a bank in Racine, Wis., $5000.

The fact that Herman has absconded from the city of Milwaukee and the United States was brought to the official cognizance of the courts Saturday by the filing of papers in a suit begun by George Ellis against Charles FitzGerald and Henry Herman. The object of the action is to establish the plaintiff's interest in Eighteenth ward realty owned by Mr. FitzGerald and mortgaged by him to Herman for $3000. The complaint shows that Mr. Ellis loaned Herman $1000 March 21, 1903, on a note payable three months from date. As security for the loan Herman, the complaint states, assigned to him the FitzGerald mortgage, which was executed March 18 and made payable in three years. The mortgage was placed on record in the office of the register of deeds March 20.

The complaint states that through a mistake or oversight the plaintiff received the assignment of the mortgage without having it witnessed or acknowledged so as to enable it to be recorded. It is alleged that the plaintiff presented the assignment at Henry Herman's office and requested that it be witnessed and acknowledged, but the request was refused. The complaint continues:

"The defendant has absconded from the city of Milwaukee, and, as the plaintiff is informed, from the United States, and, in spite of diligent search, his present whereabouts is unknown."

BRITONS WANT COAL.

Ask Uncle Sam For Some For Warships.

Honululu, April 21.—(By Pacific Cable.)—The coal strike in British Columbia is responsible for the non-arrival of a shipment of 1500 tons of coal for the use of British warships stationed here. H. M. S. Amphritrite has appealed to the local naval station to give her 2000 tons to enable her to make the return trip to Hong Kong, towing the torpedo boat destroyers due there from Esquimalt. The naval station wired to the navy department at Washington for permission to grant the request.

COURTS UNABLE

To Collect Millinery Bills From Mrs. Dean.

New York, April 21.—For more than three months, Mrs. Adele A. Dean, a widow, handsome and wealthy, living in an apartment hotel in West Forty-fifth street has defied courts, lawyers, deputy sheriffs, and detectives, all engaged in the attempt to collect from her a bill of $287, which Mrs. Teresa Martyn, a dressmaker, declares is due her.

The court directed Mrs. Dean to pay the bill; she paid not the slightest attention to the decree. Deputy sheriffs tried to serve her with an execution, but she evaded them with an ease that was laughable, although they camped in the corridor of the hotel where she lived, day after day.

Mrs. Dean is the daughter of the late F. F. Stott, millionaire mill owner of Stottsville, Pa., whose death was followed by the failure of his firm after the collapse of W. L. Strong & Co. Commodore Stott—he was commodore of the Brooklyn Yacht club—was the late Mayor Strong's best friend, and it was charged by the Strong heirs that the downfall of the Strong firm was caused largely by Col. Strong's indorsement of the Stott paper. Mrs. Dean has a fine summer home at Morristown, N. J.

It was early last January that the city court awarded Mrs. Martyn judgment for the bill she claimed from Mrs. Dean. Then Deputy Sheriffs Doris and Dunn were assigned to serve the execution. They went to Mrs. Dean's hotel and asked for her.

"Mrs. Dean?" queried the clerk. "O, yes, she lives here, but she's out driving."

And the sheriffs did wait, day after day, until midnight, but Mrs. Dean was either out driving, at the theater, visiting with friends, or had gone to a party. And so, after two months of this sort of work they begged the sheriff to assign them to an easier job.

A woman detective secured a sight of Mrs. Dean by pretending to be an old friend. She served the paper, but that was as far as it went. Mrs. Dean never paid any attention to it.

WATER RESOURCES

Of Minnesota Investigated By Professor Hall.

Washington, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—Among the states in which hydrologic work has recently been begun by the United States geological survey is Minnesota. The water resources of this state, and especially the artesian and other underground supplies, have been under investigation for some time by Prof. C. W. Hall, of the University of Minnesota, Minneapolis, whose services have been procured by the government for the same line of work. Professor Hall is now engaged in preparing a report which, when completed, will be published by the geological survey and distributed free of cost to those interested in the water resources of Minnesota.

The report will describe the water resources of the state, including lakes, streams, springs, shallow and deep wells, artesian wells, etc. Besides describing the wells, the report will consider the chemical and sanitary properties of the water, its present and prospective uses, the amount and stability of the flow, and the future prospects, both in developed and in untried areas. The report will also be accompanied by a brief description of the geology of the state so far as it affects artesian supplies, and will be illustrated by a number of maps and figures.

Philadelphia, April 21.—An order has been issued by the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, which operates several collieries in the Panther creek valley, reinstating all of its old employes who have been idle since the end of the strike. About 200 men and boys whose positions had been filled will find work in and about the mines.

RICH GIFTS MEAGER

Former Missionary Donates Gold to Church But Is Criticised.

The Ownership of the Valuable Mines Is In Dispute.

Chicago, April 21.—Part of a loaf is better than none, particularly when the part amounts to almost $100,000, but there is a feeling among the officials of a certain Chicago religious organization that the loaf should be uncut.

Behind this feeling, which as yet is uncrystallized, lies a story of how a poor missionary rose to wealth and affluence in the cold fields of Alaska, and how, after he returned to the states with more than $500,000, he gave his money freely to Swedish charities and to friends who aided him in the days when he was obliged to live in Chicago on $1.75 a week.

The former missionary is Peter H. Anderson, at present a resident of San Francisco, who still retains valuable holdings in the Klondike and who has extended his operations to the diamond fields of Brazil. Those who feel that his gifts are too meager are the officials of the organization who sent him to Alaska to work among the Indians as a missionary. It was while serving the organization that he came upon his fortune.

Within the next month there will be dedicated a $40,000 addition to the Swedish Home of Mercy in West Foster street, near North Kedzie avenue. This structure and the men's dormitory, built not so long ago for the North Park college, as well as the residence of David Nyvall, president of the latter institution, were the gifts of Mr. Anderson. In all, he has contributed nearly $100,000 to the Swedish association, aside from large sums of money given to other religious organizations.

It was said at the college that while Mr. Anderson has been liberal, he might have given much more and still be in debt to the association, as there is a disposition to contend that much of the mining property that was acquired by the former theological student belongs to the institution. This is the position taken by C. August Youngquist, treasurer and manager of the Swedish Evangelical Mission covenant, and by others.

For the last nine years the Swedish Evangelical Mission covenant has maintained a mission near Cape Nome, and thither it was that Anderson, then penniless, was sent five years ago.

Regarding Mr. Anderson's career in Alaska, there are two stories. According to officials of the university, before he went there the Rev. Hultberg, missionary for the association, had, while on a far northern trip, in company with two Eskimo reindeer drivers, discovered a valuable gold mine and staked out claims for the Swedish society in his name and in the name of the two Eskimos, one of whom afterwards died.

When Anderson succeeded the Rev. Mr. Hultberg as missionary he is said to have fallen in with one Price, a Swede of the name of Lindberg, and through their agency the Eskimos and the religious association are said to have been deprived of their rights.

The other story, told by the friends of Anderson, is that he acquired the mining property in a legitimate manner while in command of an expedition looking for coal. He is said to have fallen in with disappointed miners, and out of their talk grew a prospecting tour into what later became one of the most richly productive sections of the Nome region.

Anderson, then a youth, came to Chicago eight years ago from Kansas, being the son of a poor farmer, who was struggling to support a large family. For three years he studied in the Swedish seminary here and during this time he was seriously ill. The girl who nursed him back to life became his wife shortly after he returned from Alaska with his riches.

HE WILL WED THE WIDOW

Vanderbilt's Relatives Admit Rumors Are True.

The Marriage Will Occur In the Near Future.

London, April 22.—The engagement of Mrs. Lewis M. Rutherfurd to William K. Vanderbilt is confirmed. It is not known whether the wedding will take place here or at Paris, but it will not take place at the United States embassy here or at the London residence of Secretary White, Mrs. Rutherfurd's brother-in-law.

Paris, April 22.—Intimate friends of William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Lewis M. Rutherfurd accept the authoritative statement from London of their approaching marriage as confirmatory of The difficulty has been that both of the what they have believed for some time. parties immediately concerned have continually denied that their marriage was to take place. These denials apparently have been due to the legal impediments existing until the New York court proceedings of Monday.

Mr. Vanderbilt was present at a small dinner party Sunday night, and when the question of his engagement was broached, he professed to entire ignorance of the matter.

New York, April 22.—Mrs. Anna H. Rutherfurd is a sister of Oliver Harriman, Jr., of this city, and of Mrs. William R. Travers. Mrs. Travers, it is understood, is to sail for Europe in a day or two, presumably to attend the marriage of her sister to Mr. Vanderbilt. Mrs. Henry White, wife of the secretary of the American embassy to Great Britain, is a sister of Lewis M. Rutherfurd, who was Mrs. Rutherfurd's second husband. The first husband was S. S. Sands.

ORPHAN CHILDREN BRUTALLY TREATED BY PERFORMERS

St. Louis, April 22.—The Humane society has taken two children, George and Florence Migge, aged 8 and 7 years, from the home of John Earl on Washington avenue, and Earl is in jail charged with mistreating them. The boy's back is lacerated to his hips, both eyes are blackened and four of his teeth are missing. The little girl is even in worse condition. In the instep of her right foot is a wound, caused, it is said, by the application of a glowing poker. Portions of her stocking have been burned into the flesh. Four flesh scars are on her left limb and there is a deep scalp wound on the top of her head. The Humane society charges that Earl inflicted these injuries as punishment because the children refused to perform acrobatic feats which he had endeavored to teach them. The wound on the little girl's head was caused by her falling from a trapeze.

Earl and his wife travel as performers with patent medicine shows. Recently they took the children from an orphan school for adoption, and when one of the officers of the institution called to see how the children were getting along, the discovery of their condition was made.

CENTURY OLD CLAIM MAY BE PAID

New York, April 22.—After four generations of Christophers had fought and waited sixty years or more for their share of the spoliation claims award growing out of the desultory naval warfare between this country and France in 1801, Mrs. Mary Christopher, a widow, whose home is in Brooklyn, and her son, Thomas V. J. Christopher, are assured by their lawyers that they will soon receive from Washington at least $17,000 as their share of the award. Their claim is based on the capture, in 1801 by the French, of the ship Ganges, owned in part by Vermilye Christopher, a prominent shipowner and merchant in this city. When France sold Louisiana to the United States, one of the stipulations was that $3,750,000 of the purchase money was to be set aside to pay the spoliation claims. The son of Vermilye Christopher put in a claim for a share of this fund because of the loss of the Ganges, and the fight has descended to his grandson, who, with his mother, is assured by the lawyers that they will soon receive at least $17,000.

DREYFUS DEMANDS THAT HIS FAMOUS CASE BE REOPENED

Asks Investigation at the Hands of the Minister of War---Request Will Cause a Sensation.

Paris, April 22.—Alfred Dreyfus has submitted to Minister of War Andre a lengthy letter, in which he asks for a reopening of his case by means of an investigation by the minister, as the supreme head of military justice. The letter, which is dated Paris, April 22, confirms the reports that Dreyfus has been living quietly here for some time. It promises to cause a tremendous agitation among the various elements of the political groups for and against Dreyfus. The first part of the letter is an earnest plea that the court which condemned him at Rennes was improperly influenced, first by the annotated document ascribed to Emperor William, and second, by the false testimony of one of the witnesses, C. C. Zerunski. After arguing on the extent to which these contributed to his condemnation, Dreyfus recalls in graphic terms the long series of horrors to which he had been subjected.

The letter throughout is couched in highly dramatic style, which is likely to make it one of the most notable papers of the case.

It refers to Esterhazy as "one who stands before the entire world as the culprit." One of the leading passages, showing the rhetorical style, is as follows: "I will not recall, Mr. Minister, what I have endured since 1894. Picture to yourself the horrors of a soldier whose whole life was devoted to duty, to work, to loyalty and to profound devotion for his country, and who in an instant is stripped of his good name and despoiled of the honor of himself and his children. For five years this soldier is subjected to horrible sufferings. They seek to crush physically, to annihilate him morally. He is absolutely innocent of all crime, and struggles in vain to penetrate the mystery, proclaiming his innocence and struggling with all the forces of his mind and body for that supreme pleasure of vindicating his good name and character. Days, months, years pass thus in most cruel agony, amid the tortures of a murderous climate. At last he is brought back to France, the guilty one is discovered and the soldier hears himself proclaimed innocent. It was thus, Mr. Minister, that I hoped to see my martyrdom ended."

REVIEW OF THE WORK DONE AT THE LEGISLATIVE SESSION

Not Many Bills of Importance Were Passed---Measures Affecting St. Louis County.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—The thirty-third session of the Minnesota legislature, just concluded, has been productive of a little important legislation, but, as stated yesterday, it was more important for what was not done than for what was done.

Perhaps the most important failure of the session was regarding tax legislation. No important tax measures were passed, and what will be particularly hard to explain is the fact that no amendments to the constitutional provisions on taxation were adopted.

The only thing along this line that was accomplished was the submission to the people of a new gross earnings tax bill, increasing the tax on the gross earnings of railroads from 3 to 4 per cent. The railroads made no fight whatever on this bill, and it went through without any opposition.

The legislature probably put an end to the trading stamp business in this state by passing the attorney general's substitute for the Jenson anti-trading stamp bill. While the measure does not prohibit trading stamps, it will make the business rather unprofitable, because it requires trading stamp concerns to redeem their stamps in coin if the holders wish it, and in any amount in which they are presented. A large percentage of the profit under the present system lay in the fact that many holders of stamps never collected the amount necessary to realize anything on them, and these stamps were never presented. If the stamps are to be redeemable in cash and in any quantity, there will be little profit from this feature.

The chance of passing constitutional amendments was somewhat improved by the passage of the law requiring them to be printed on separate ballots instead of being printed on the regular state ballot.

The codification of the game laws was passed, giving the commission $50,000 instead of $25,000, and giving it the fees and fines received instead of letting them go into the general revenue fund. There were no changes in the open seasons, but few important changes in other provisions.

One of the most important measures was that creating a state sanatorium for consumptives at Walker, Cass county.

The osteopaths were successful, after having failed in two or three preceding sessions, getting legal recognition and in securing the appointment of a state board of osteopath examiners. The measure makes the examinations quite rigid, and requires those now practicing to take the examination as well as new applicants.

A proposed amendment to the constitution, in a bill by Senator Laybourn, will permit the next legislature, if the people adopt it, to abolish grand juries in this state.

The most important failure, next to the matter of tax legislation, was the refusal to take the educational institutions away from the board of control, instances are known where members changed against the proposition because the governor was working for it.

The numerous anti-bucketshop propositions all failed.

The primary election law, assailed by a horde of proposed amendments, escaped unscathed.

The proposed constitutional convention was not adopted by the legislature, failing in both houses.

The house and senate were wide apart on most lines, and while the house killed numerous senate measures, the senate did more than its share of slaughtering.

Among the measures particularly affecting St. Louis county that went through the most important were as follows:

S. F. 178, Laybourn—Making the salaries of the district judges in the Eleventh district $5000.

H. F. 637, Dowling—Relating to the sheriff's residence and providing for the board of prisoners in St. Louis county.

S. F. 369, Laybourn—Amending the 1901 law relating to the construction of bridges in counties over 50,000.

S. F. 476, Laybourn—Permitting the United States government to acquire land in Minnesota for establishing a weather bureau observatory at Duluth.

H. F. 320, Hugo—Authorizing cities over 50,000 to make contracts for the purchase of a supply of electric power or gas or for operating an electric or gas lighting or heating plant or system.

S. F. 383, Laybourn—Fixing fees to be charged by the sheriff of St. Louis county for returning summons when parties cannot be found.

H. F. 609, Hugo—Fixing the salary of the county treasurer and county auditor of St. Louis county at $3000 and $3500, respectively, and authorizing clerk hire to the amount of $9000 and $12,000, respectively.

H. F. 793, Randall—Requiring the use of covered patrol wagons in order to protect occupants from idle public gaze.

S. F. 325, Hawkins—Increasing the salaries and compensation of municipal court employes in Duluth.

H. F. 58, Hugo—Validating assessments for sidewalks in cities of 50,000 inhabitants, that were not petitioned for.

H. F. 853, Dowling—Relating to school meetings in common school districts in St. Louis county.

H. F. 889, Lewis, R. T.—Amending section 13, chapter 8, of the laws of 1878, relating to St. Louis county.

H. F. 235, Lewis, R. T.—Allowing mileage to constables in counties of from 75,000 to 150,000 inhabitants.

H. F. 414, Dowling—Providing that the county superintendent of St. Louis county shall not be a resident of Duluth.

NEW BUILDING IS DEDICATED

Fine Quarters of New York Stock Exchange.

Members Devote Attention to Ceremonies.

New York, April 22.—The members of the New York stock exchange abandoned business today and devoted themselves to the ceremonies incident to the dedication of their handsome new building. These ceremonies were brief and impressive. After prayer by the Rev. Morgan Dix, of Trinity church, Ransom H. Thomas, chairman of the building committee, formally handed the new building over to Donald McKay, president of the Stock Exchange Building association, who in turn formally presented it to Rudolph Keppler, president of the exchange, for the use of the members. In accepting the building Mr. Keppler made a few remarks.

Mr. Keppler said: To receive this beautiful structure at your hands, in the name and on behalf of the members of this exchange, and in the presence of this vast assemblage of invited guets, is a privilege so high, and so rare, that it fills my heart with humble pride. But this occasion calls for something more than pride; it calls, above all else, for gratitude. So I accept this edifice with a grateful heart; grateful for the blessings which made it possible for us to attempt this great undertaking and grateful for the many sacrifices that enabled us to carry it to a successful completion. Grateful, also, to the members of the building committee for the zeal and energy with which they applied themselves to their arduous task, and deeply appreciative of the unselfishness displayed by them in their patient and indefatigable labors.

I hold it to be my duty, as president, and speaking for the members of this exchange, to say to that committee, that work was never more conscientiously performed nor duty more faithfully discharged—and never were grave responsibilities more cheerfully and yet more seriously accepted, and complex problems more fearlessly and more persistently met, and overcome, than by these gentlemen. To say that disappointments were the rule—rather than the exception—is but to tell the truth. Ever recurring obstacles and emergencies confronted them. As the great work unfolded itself, the vastness and the extent of the undertaking seemed to increase with its development; but the determination to meet every issue successfully, kept pace with the demands upon their courage. But it needed more than courage—it needed faith: Faith, founded upon the conviction that they had the confidence of the members in general, and of the governing committee in particular. Then, from time to time, the requirements became greater and greater, and every new demand, exceeded the preceding one, the members of the building committee were met by a spirit of generosity and a vote of confidence at every turn, in response to their clearly defined and thoroughly matured recommendations. No criticism marred

ITALIAN MARQUIS COMES TO NEW YORK TO FIND A BRIDE

Would Like to Bestow His Title on Some Beautiful Bride Who Can Bring Him a Few Hundred Thousands to Pay For the Honor.

New York, April 22.—Armed with documents to verify his claim to nobility, Marquis Arthur De Mayo Durrazzo, of Naples, Italy, has come to New York with the avowed intention of marrying an American heiress, and in evidence of his earnestness recently advertised to this effect.

The marquis thinks New York is the Mecca for heiresses.

"There is more money in New York than in all Europe," he said, when asked why he came to New York instead of going to some other large city.

"You see," said the marquis, "I am young, and would like a young and beautiful bride with the large dowry. So I came here to find it. American girls are beautiful beyond all others."

Asked if $100,000 would be a fair dowry, he said: "It would do, but it is not much return for the honor my title brings. My family is nearly 650 years old and has large estates near Naples."

Passports from Naples, signed by the mayor, say that "Arthur, marquis of Durrazzo, is of good moral character and the son of Francois, marquir of Durrazzo, a wealthy man of Naples."

NEYMEISER KILLED WIFE

Chopped Up Body and Cremated Himself In a Barn.

St. Paul, April 22.—A Cumberland, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: In a fit of jealous rage last night, John Neymeiser, living south of here, shot and killed his wife, chopped up the remains with an ax and set fire to his barn. Then throwing himself into the fire, he burned the structure, himself and all his stock. The Neymeisers have had domestic troubles for some time, resulting in a separation two months ago, when the husband left for unknown parts. He returned at midnight last night, broke into the house and committed the deed. They leave a large family of small children.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Business Presented Before Committee at Toronto.

Toronto, Ont., April 22.—A request has been received by the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor from the Stonemasons' International union for a charter. It was held under advisement.

Delegates from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and from the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners appeared relative to the amalgamation of both bodies, as directed by the New Orleans convention. This also was taken under advisement. A delegation from the Denver Trades' and Labor assembly protested against the action of some of the Denver newspaper publishers in discriminating against union made paper. The executive, by wire, strongly urged them to resume the use of union labelled paper.

THE MICHIGAN CONVENTION.

Lansing, Mich., April 22.—The proposition to hold the Republican national convention in Detroit as a feature of the celebration of the semi-centennial of the birth of the party, under the oaks at Jackson, Mich., has created enthusiasm here. Auditor General Powers has communicated with Senator Hanna, chairman of the National Republican committee, to secure his views in regard to the proposition.

BAD FIRE AT LA CROSSE

Park Department Store and Other Buildings Were Burned.

La Crosse, Wis., April 22.—Fire last night completely destroyed the Park store, the largest department store in Western Wisconsin and did much damage to surrounding buildings, causing a loss of approximately $500,000.

The fire started in a mysterious manner in the rear of the store and within thirty minutes after it was discovered the entire plant was ablaze. The building which was three stories high and extended over a quarter of a square, was filled from cellar to garret with all sorts of inflammable material and the fire department could do nothing to check the progress of the flames. There was practically no wind blowing at the time, which was the only thing which saved the entire block, which includes property worth $2,000,000 from destruction. The entire plant was completely destroyed within two hours after the first alarm was given, and it took forteen streams of water to save the surrounding buildings from destruction. Several times the flames leaped across the street on two sides of the building and although the heat was unbearable the firemen held their ground and saved the threatened buildings. The city of Winona fire department was called upon for assistance, but the local department had the blaze under control before they arrived.

A FLOATING ISLAND.

Makes Its Second Journey Down Connecticut Lake.

Winsted, Conn., April 22.—An island, 125 feet long and 30 feet wide, seemingly fixed as solidly as a rock on the east shore of Lake Garfield, in Monterey, has floated three-quarters of a mile down the lake. Twenty years ago the island made a similar journey. This lake, in the Berkshire hills, has been a favorite fishing resort of former President Cleveland.

BRAMBILLA WON.

London, April 22.—At the Epsom spring meeting today, the city and suburban handicap was won by Brambilla. Valenza was second, and Over Norton was third. Fifteen horses ran.

GEN. WOODSON SINKING.

Great Falls, Mont., April 22.—A late report from the bedside of Brig. Gen. A. E. Woodson is to the effect that the patient is rapidly sinking and cannot survive many hours. His entire left side is paralyzed.

Thomas, chairman of the building committee, formally handed the new building over to Donald McKay, president of the Stock Exchange Building association, who in turn formally presented it to Rudolph Keppler, president of the exchange, for the use of the members. In accepting the building Mr. Keppler made a few remarks.

Mr. Keppler said: To receive this beautiful structure at your hands, in the name and on behalf of the members of this exchange, and in the presence of this vast assemblage of invited guests, is a privilege so high, and so rare, that it fills my heart with humble pride. But this occasion calls for something more than pride; it calls, above all else, for gratitude. So I accept this edifice with a grateful heart; grateful for the blessings which made it possible for us to attempt this great undertaking and grateful for the many sacrifices that enabled us to carry it to a successful completion. Grateful, also, to the members of the building committee for the zeal and energy with which they applied themselves to their arduous task, and deeply appreciative of the unselfishness displayed by them in their patient and indefatigable labors.

I hold it to be my duty, as president, and speaking for the members of this exchange, to say to that committee, that work was never more conscientiously performed nor duty more faithfully discharged—and never were grave responsibilities more cheerfully and yet more seriously accepted, and complex problems more fearlessly and more persistently met, and overcome, than by these gentlemen. To say that disappointments were the rule—rather than the exception—is but to tell the truth. Ever recurring obstacles and emergencies confronted them. As the great work unfolded itself, the vastness and the extent of the undertaking seemed to increase with its development; but the determination to meet every issue successfully, kept pace with the demands upon their courage. But it needed more than courage—it needed faith: Faith, founded upon the conviction that they had the confidence of the members in general, and of the governing committee in particular. Then, from time to time, the requirements became greater and greater, and every new demand exceeded the preceding one, the members of the building committee were met by a spirit of generosity and a vote of confidence at every turn, in response to their clearly defined and thoroughly matured recommendations. No criticism marred

Would Like to Bestow His Title on Some Beautiful Bride Who Can Bring Him a Few Hundred Thousands to Pay For the Honor.

New York, April 22.—Armed with documents to verify his claim to nobility, Marquis Arthur De Mayo Durrazzo, of Naples, Italy, has come to New York with the avowed intention of marrying an American heiress, and in evidence of his earnestness recently advertised to this effect.

The marquis thinks New York is the Mecca for heiresses.

"There is more money in New York than in all Europe," he said, when asked why he came to New York instead of going to some other large city.

"You see," said the marquis, "I am young, and would like a young and beautiful bride with the large dowry. So I came here to find it. American girls are beautiful beyond all others."

Asked if $300,000 would be a fair dowry, he said: "It would do, but it is not much return for the honor my title brings. My family is nearly 650 years old and has large estates near Naples."

Passports from Naples, signed by the mayor, say that "Arthur, marquis of Durrazzo, is of good moral character and the son of Francois, marquis of Durrazzo, a wealthy man of Naples."

NEYMEISER KILLED WIFE

Chopped Up Body and Cremated Himself In a Barn.

St. Paul, April 22.—A Cumberland, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: In a fit of jealous rage last night, John Neymeiser, living south of here, shot and killed his wife, chopped up the remains with an ax and set fire to his barn. Then throwing himself into the fire, he burned the structure, himself and all his stock. The Neymeisers have had domestic troubles for some time resulting in a separation two months ago, when the husband left for unknown parts. He returned at midnight last night, broke into the house and committed the deed. They leave a large family of small children.

FEDERATION OF LABOR.

Business Presented Before Committee at Toronto.

Toronto, Ont., April 22.—A request has been received by the executive committee of the American Federation of Labor from the Stonemasons' International union for a charter. It was held under advisement.

Delegates from the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and from the Amalgamated Society of Carpenters and Joiners appeared relative to the amalgamation of both bodies, as directed by the New Orleans convention. This also was taken under advisement. A delegation from the Denver Trades' and Labor assembly protested against the action of some of the Denver newspaper publishers in discriminating against union made paper. The executive, by wire, strongly urged them to resume the use of union labelled paper.

THE MICHIGAN CONVENTION.

Lansing, Mich., April 22.—The proposition to hold the Republican national convention in Detroit as a feature of the celebration of the semi-centennial of the birth of the party, under the oaks at Jackson, Mich., has created enthusiasm here. Auditor General Powers has communicated with Senator Hanna, chairman of the National Republican committee, to secure his views in regard to the proposition.

BAD FIRE AT LA CROSSE

Park Department Store and Other Buildings Were Burned.

La Crosse, Wis., April 22.—Fire last night completely destroyed the Park store, the largest department store in Western Wisconsin and did much damage to surrounding buildings, causing a loss of approximately $500,000.

The fire started in a mysterious manner in the rear of the store and within thirty minutes after it was discovered the entire plant was ablaze. The building which was three stories high and extended over a quarter of a square, was filled from cellar to garret with all sorts of inflammable material and the fire department could do nothing to check the progress of the flames. There was practically no wind blowing at the time, which was the only thing which saved the entire block, which includes property worth $2,000,000 from destruction. The entire plant was completely destroyed within two hours after the first alarm was given and it took forteen streams of water to save the surrounding buildings from destruction. Several times the flames leaped acrosss the street on two sides of the building and although the heat was unbearable the firemen held their ground and saved the threatened buildings. The city of Winona fire department was called upon for assistance, but the local department had the blaze under control before they arrived.

A FLOATING ISLAND.

Makes Its Second Journey Down Connecticut Lake.

Winsted, Conn., April 22.—An island, 125 feet long and 30 feet wide, seemingly fixed as solidly as a rock on the east shore of Lake Garfield, in Monterey, has floated three-quarters of a mile down the lake. Twenty years ago the island made a similar journey. This lake, in the Berkshire hills, has been a favorite fishing resort of former President Cleveland.

BRAMBILLA WON.

London, April 22.—At the Epsom spring meeting today, the city and suburban handicap was won by Brambilla. Valenza was second, and Over Norton was third. Ffteen horses ran.

GEN. WOODSON SINKING.

M. S. BURROWS

A RATE ON FLOUR

Chicago Great Western Road Published a Cut Tariff.

Chops Twenty-Five Per Cent From Minneapolis-Chicago Rate.

The Chicago Great Western railroad has published a flour tariff from Minneapolis to Chicago of 7½ cents a hundred. The prevailing rate has been, up to this time, 10 cents a hundred.

Whether this is the concession which caused the Minneapolis millers to open up their plants again yesterday or not is not known. None of the other roads have come down to the figure, so far as is known in Duluth.

The rate is supposed to be low enough to counteract the discrimination alleged in favor of Buffalo millers on wheat and flour shipped via Duluth.

The Great Western's proposition, if used, will at least cause the diversion of a large amount of flour from the lakes during the coming summer, and if the other roads come down to the figure it will mean a great swerve in the course of the commodity.

At any rate, however, the relief for the Minneapolis millers in the Eastern market will be questionable, as the all rail transit will be more expensive than the rate on wheat down the lakes.

Another explanation of the Minneapolis shut down is given in the Chicago Record-Herald in its market gossip. It says:

"The plan which the Minneapolis millers made last week in order to affect wheat prices having proved a failure, it has been gracefully revoked. Minneapolis yesterday wired that the millers were buying cash wheat again in that market, and that the mills would be going again Tuesday morning. If a weak-kneed bull had been running things at Chicago the stoppage in the grinding at Minneapolis, Chicago and at some of the other big milling centers might have had a disastrous effect on the campaign. The Minneapolis establishments alone use up 900,000 bushels of wheat weekly, and the mills which stop if they had stuck to their plan, would have meant a reduction in the weekly wheat consumption of possibly 1,250,000 bushels. But the Chicago bulls were not disconcerted by the move. Armour even saw to it that the Minneapolis and Duluth prices did not drop any when the mills closed. As the flour miller can no better risk the losing of his customer than any other manufacturer, the millers, after one day's demonstration against the market, during which the price advanced rapidly instead of declined, decided to do the graceful thing and start up business again.

"PE-RU-NA SAVED MY LIFE"

Writes Mrs. W. McRoberts.

Women Made Strong and Happy Mothers.

Catarrh of the Pelvic Organs Is a Frequent Cause of Barrenness.

Pe-ru-na Eradicates Catarrh From the System.

"I Do All My Housework and Take Care of My Baby, and I Feel So Good."

TO the woman of ancient Israel not to become a mother was regarded as the geratest of earthly calamities. To become a mother—more especially the mother of a strong, healthy boy—was the height of glory for the faithful woman of the good old Bible days. Even now, when maternity is not esteemed as of yore, the mother of healthy children is an object of admiration, and sometimes envy, by her neighbors. As compared with ancient peoples, the average American woman has a low appreciation of motherhood. There are, however, a great many exceptions to this statement.

The accompanying letters from grateful women who have been made strong, healthy and happy mothers need no added words of ours to make them convincing. Catarrh had weakened and impaired their entire systems. Peruna made them sound and well.

Mrs. L. M. Griffith, Arco, Idaho, writes:

"Your medcine did me a wonderful amount of good. It cured me of barrenness. I am 30 years old and never had any children, but since beginning your medicine I gave birth to a ten-pound baby girl. She is now six months old and weighs twenty-five pounds. My friends were all surprised. Some would not believe it until they came to see me.

"My husband says he never saw such a change in any one as there was in me after I had taken three or four bottles of Peruna. I am stronger than I have been since I was quite young. God bless you and your medicine forever. I can not tell you all. My letter is too long already, but I will say Peruna cured me. I never saw or heard of anything half so good. I can never thank you enough for your kindness. In cases of la grippe it works like a charm. It cured my baby when other medicines failed. She was real bad with la grippe."—Mrs. M. L. Griffith.

Mrs. E. E. Thomas, Alpha, Mo., writes

"I have used your Peruna and Manalin. I had been doctoring for several years, but kept getting worse. One day a neighbor woman brought me your book, the "Ills of Life," and wanted me to take your medicine. I told her that I had given up all hope of ever getting well. I had tried so much medicine. My neighbors thought I was nearly dead with consumption.

"Finally I concluded that I would make a last trial. So my husband got me a bottle of Peruna and Manalin. I commenced taking them according to directions. That was two years ago. A year ago last November I gave birth to a ten-pound baby boy, who is well and hearty, and I am doing my own housework. I can never give Peruna too great praise. I think it is the best medicine I ever heard of."—Mrs. E. E. Thomas.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

A YOUNG MOTHER'S LETTER.

Mrs. W. McRoberts, writes to Dr. Hartman from Delano, Miss., the following:

Delano, Miss.

Doctor S. B. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio:

Dear Sir—"I feel perfectly well of catarrh. I did as you directed me to and took Peruna and Manlain. The third of March I gave birth to a 10-pound baby girl and we are both well and happy. I am very thankful to you, and Peruna saved my life. I recommend it to everyone and can't praise it enough.

"I send you my own and my baby's picture. She is so sweet and good,—she is a Peruna baby. I have such good health now. I do all my housework and take care of my baby, and feel so good.

"There are three or four of my neighbors using Peruna now, since it did me so much good. They were just run down, and they think it is fine. It is so good to give strength."—Mrs. W. McRoberts.

MATTER OF QUALITY

Rather Than Price Which Prompts Objections to Asphalt.

St. Paul Testimony Is Vastly In Favor of Brick.

Property owners on East Superior street, between Sixteenth and Twenty-third avenues have been assured that asphalt will not be considered in the forthcoming street improvements unless the asphalt trust sees fit to make Duluth a price that will be considerably lower than the figures on bituminous macadam and vitrified brick.

However, the property owners seem dissatisfied with this assurance, and say that it is not the expense they are objecting to so much as the quality of paving. They want a material that will not keep the street in constant need of repair, and when it does have to be repaired will not be hard and soft in spots.

While the selection of paving material is left to the choice of the city officers the property owners have expressed a preference for bituminous macadam.

The East Superior street owners are not the only persons fighting against asphalt. Recently it was proposed to use asphalt in paving Mississippi street in St. Paul. In regard to this improvement the Pioneer Press of yesterday says:

"A number of the property owners appeared before the board and protested against asphalt and in favor of brick.

"Not only in cost but in wearing qualities brick was deemed more desirable by the residents. Asphalt, they say, has to be repaired as soon as it is laid, especially in a street which is subject to as heavy traffic as Mississippi, while brick is much more durable, as has been shown by the pavement in Broadway from the beginning of the proposed work to the river. That has been laid for three years and has never had a cent of repair on it, it was argued, and is still as good as when it was laid."

In view of the present condition of the permanent revolving fund, it is not likely that the paving between Sixteenth and Twenty-third can be started before autumn. By that time the people will have an opportunity to judge between bituminous macadam and sheet asphalt, as the former is being laid on Nineteenth avenue east and the latter will probably be down on Superior street between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues by that time.

WOULD GET DULUTH MONEY

St. Paul Scheme to Separate Duluth Merchants From Some.

An emissary of a St. Paul publishing house is looking for easy money in Duluth. The Saintly City field does not yield sufficient revenue to gratify the desires of the house, and a raid upon Duluth merchants has been designed.

The form which this scheme for extracting Duluth money for the benefit of St. Paul takes, is the publication of a police manuel. The agent of the house is calling upon Duluth merchants, claiming to be acting with the approval of Chief Troyer, and exhibits the form of the manuel to be issued and asks for advertising evidently governing the amount he tries to get by what he believes the firm can be induced to pay. Some have refused him, but others are said to have gone in for as much as $100 cash.

The merchants who have refused to go in express surprise that the Duluth police should themselves be connected with such a scheme, for it is intended solely for the personal benefit of this outside concern.

OBJECT TO PHOSPHORUS

Its Use Will Be Prohibited In German Matchmaking.

Berlin, April 22.—Interior Secretary Von Peradwsky-Weyner speaking in the Reichstag today during the discussion of the second reading of the bill forbidding the use of white or yellow phosphorus in matchmaking after Jan. 1, 1908, said that to reject the scientific proof of the ruinous effects of phosphorus vapors on the human bone system was "to refuse to see the sun on a bright day." Phosphorus, he claimed, not only caused necrosis sometimes three or four years after a workman had left the match factory, but it was hereditarily transmitted, so that whole families were afflicted and again transmitted necrosis to their descendants. So subtle were the effects of the vapors that bones were fractured without the person being aware of the fracture at first.

Herr Wurm, Socialist, moved that the law become operative Jan. 1, 1905.

The opponents of the measure sought delay, expressing doubts regarding the value of the patent process acquired by the government and offered to the match manufacturers, which was tested during thes reichstag recess by a commission which reported favorably on it.

For Unlawful Arrest.

Alexander P. Turner has entered suit in the United States court to obtain $5000 damages and $120 expenses from M. J. Reilly, of Crow Wing.

In the bill of complaint the plaintiff claims that the defendant unlawfully and maliciously charged him with obtaining money under false pretenses. He further claims that Reilly procured his arrest in the city of Brainerd on the above charge, which was afterwards proven to be false, and that while he was under arrest Reilly extorted from him the sum of $100 as a condition of release. This money Turner wishes to recover, together with $20 which he claims was expended on attorney's fees, and also asks for $5000 damages for his unlawful arrest.

IT'S NOW EGYPTIAN LACE.

History is being made to repeat itself just now in the revival of Egyptian lace of seven centuries ago. An examination of this lace shows it to have been made by a similar process to that employed in the drawn work now so fashionable, says the Brooklyn Eagle. All that is required to make this lace, which can be imitated so as to produce exactly the effect of valuable old lace at a trifling cost, is a piece of heavy, unbleached linen and some coarse linen thread the same color. After outlining the pattern on the linen, every alternate two threads should be drawn in each direction, so as to have a network of squares of two threads in the groundwork. Care must be taken not to draw any threads in the pattern itself; they must be carefully snipped with a pair of scissors all around the pattern, cutting two and leaving two uncut alternately. Then, over-sew all the threads, making a cross-stitch where they intersect each other and taking two stitches between each cross-stitch. The pattern outlined may be either elaborate or simple geometrical figures or conventionalized leaf and flower designs.

BETTER THAN "TRULY RURAL."

I have a suspicion that in inventing the word "publicitician" the subtle Richard Watson Gilder was not merely seeking to enlarge and improve the Century Dictionary, says a writer in the Brooklyn Eagle. Mr. Gilder, as editor of the Century Magazine, knows the value of woman's good opinion. He has always striven to be her staff and succor in her laudable endeavor to uplift degenerate man. Does it not seem possible, therefore, that this invention is intended to aid her in determining whether her husband has really been detained at the office until 3 a. m.? If he can say "publicitician" at that hour she may be sure he has not been out with convivial friends.

WILL CONNECT WITH SOO.

Canadian Pacific Will Get Into Twin Cities.

Announcement has been made from Montreal that the Canadian Pacific railway will build a branch south from Winnipeg to the Glenwood extension of the Soo road. This will give a through line from Minneapolis to the Manitoba capital, and the Canadian Pacific will abandon its plan of building into the Twin Cities, which it is said it has seriously contemplated. The action, it is stated, was prompted, on the part of the Canadian road, because of the large amount of business going from the states into Manitoba. This gives the Soo line a straight pathway into Winnepeg, and also into Manitoba points that will use the lines coming into this country. There has been no territorial agreement with the other roads and active competition is looked for.

FREIGHT CHANGES.

S. L. Moore's Death Will Cause a Number.

The death of S. L. Moore, general freight agent of the Northern Pacific road, has already caused the speculation among railroad men as to who his successor will be.

At the time of his death J. B. Baird was the first assistant general freight agent, though his title failed to indicate it, he having charge of the oriental business of the road.

Local railway men believe that Henry E. Still, assistant general freight agent on the Duluth short line will receive a promotion, as it is practically a settled thing that the successor to Mr. Moore will be the general freight agent within a very short time.

The third, or other assistant general freight agent is S. G. Fulton, whose territory is at the Pacific coast end of the road.

What is in store for Mr. Still is a matter of interest in Duluth, where he is popular among the business men and employes of the road.

PRODUCTION OF "CARMEN."

Nothing Left Undone to Assure Its Success.

The final rehearsal for the opera, "Carmen," given by George Tyler and his pupils, takes place tonight. Mr. Tyler has gone to the expense of having five rehearsals with the orchestra; whereas the usual custom is to have but one, and there should result an entertainment with a minimum of uneven spots. It is claimed the production will far surpass any amateur effort heretofore seen in Duluth, for the reason that, regardless of cost, every detail will be on a scale almost professional. For instance, the costumes are direct from Tams, New York, and are traditionally correct down to the smallest item. Heretofore, in amateur grand opera efforts, scant attention has been given to the chorus work, but in "Carmen" the chorus is expected to be above reproach, both in singing and action, this resulting from three months and a half of intelligent and faithful rehearsal under experienced instruction. Mrs. McAuliffe as "Carmen" will surprise her friends, notwithstanding her already well-earned reputation. Miss Rena Smith as Micaela has a part that seems to have been written for her alone. Mr. Applehagen as Escamillo is but little short of professional. Messrs. Cyril Tyler, J. Giddings, Louis Dworschak and Misses Elizabeth Bailey and Allie Piper will all do well, judging by rehearsals; while Don Jose in the hands of the veteran operatic tenor, George Tyler, will be a revelation, so his enthusiastic friends claim. He certainly should know the part to perfection, having played it nearly 100 times in America and Europe. The advance sale of seats assures a packed house.

SCHOOL DISTRICTS.

County Board to Consider Some Divisions.

The board of county commissioners is in session this afternoon for a hearing on the applications which have been made for new school districts in various parts of the county. It is an adjourned meeting of the board from the regular monthly meeting held a few weeks ago, so that other business of importance, should there be any, will also receive consideration.

One of the most important matters that will come before the board will be the matter forming a new school district in District No. 22. This is the district which includes Virginia and Eveleth and between the citizens there has been a controversy relative to the proposed division and formation of a new district.

At the last county board meeting there was a petition from Albert C. Miller and fifty-five others for the formation of a new school district comprising all of township 59-16 in the town of Solway. A hearing will probably be had on this petition today.

POSTOFFICE ROBBED.

Burglars Were Successful at Michigantown, Ind.

Frankfort, Ind., April 22.—The safe in the postoffice in Michigantown was blown to pieces with dynamite and the contents stolen, shortly before 1 o'clock this morning. The robbery was committed by two masked men after they had held up Dr. Zinn, who was passing the postoffice. The men bound Zinn and threw him into the corner of the room ten feet from the safe. Citizens fired on the robbers but they escaped. Dr. Zinn was not injured by the explosion.

TAXATION OF MORTGAGES

Provided In Bill Introduced In the Wisconsin Assembly.

Madison, Wis., April 22.—A new bill providing for taxation of mortgages and mortgaged property was introduced by the committee on assessment and collection of taxes in the assembly today. In substance it provides that the value of property affected by a mortgage, less the value of the mortgage, shall be assessed and taxed to the owner of the real estate, and the value of the mortgage assessed and taxed to the owner of the mortgage in the assessment district in which the real estate is situated.

In the senate the so-called trust resolution was concurred in today after being amended so that legislation, if necessary, may be had by the next legislature.

A bill providing that no judgment for absolute divorce shall be entered until the expiration of one year from the filing of findings in the case was passed.

The ad valorem railroad taxation bill was advanced to a third reading.

BAD FOR KELLY.

Court Admits Ante-Mortem Statement of Cayley.

Butte, Mont., April 22.—Judge McClernand decided to admit in evidence the alleged dying declaration of Dr. H. A. Cayley, who, in a statement made to the county attorney on Oct. 16 of last year, accused J. W. Kelly of having shot him. Counsel for Kelly made a determined effort to prevent the statement going to the jury, contending in the main that it had not been shown that the declaration was made under a belief of impending death, as the law requires.

ASKS FOR A WARSHIP.

Washington, April 22—Because American interests at Monte Cristo, San Domingo, are endangered by the revolutionary gunboat Valencia, the United States consular agent there has cabled the state department asking that an American man-of-war be sent to the relief of the United States interests. The cruiser San Francisco, now at Pensacola, will probably leave today for San Domingo, whence she will proceed to Monte Cristo.

London, April 22.—The appointment of the prince of Wales as president of the royal commission which is to represent Great Britain at the St. Louis exposition will be made at the special request of King Edward, who thought he could thus best demonstrate his personal interest in the exhibition and his cordiality towards America generally. John Redmond, the Irish leader, was invited to be one of the two Irish members of the commission, but his many engagements necessitated a declination.

POSTUM COFFEE

COW SENSE

People Get Willful

A cow or horse or even a dog will refuse to eat or drink what the animal knows to be harmful, but mankind will persist in pouring in coffee even after having been fully assured that it is steadily killing him. Once in a while they wake up and do the sensible thing.

A lady says: "Why will people wait as long as I did, when it is so easy to save oneself the suffering caused by coffee drinking? After using coffee several years I discovered that I was breaking down nervously. I consulted several doctors, but in spite of everything steadily grew worse.

"One physician advised me to quit coffee, and I tried quitting by the use of will power, but every time it was a miserable failure.

"My stomach was in dreadful shape, and I was unable to sleep at night, nervous prostration set in and I became barely able to drag about.

"One day while visiting a minister's wife, a motherly old lady, she proposed to give me a cup of coffee, the kind she had been using three times a day for three years. So she brought out a cup of the most fragrant, delicious beverage. It was coffee and it was not coffee. I tried it and was eager to know how it was made.

"She said: 'Five years ago I was affected much as you are, but I quit drinking coffee and began using Postum Food Coffee, and that produced the result you see and restored me to health.'

"She said a lot more, and when I went home I got a box of Postum and began using it. Such a soothing effect took place and I began sleeping nights and felt a relief from my awful nervous tension. Gradually and surely I got well, and now I feel as strong and healthy as a woman should at my age, with all my oldtime energy restored. I earnestly entreat all coffee drinkers to change to Postum. What is the use of suffering day and night because of some paltry coffee, when one has but to leave it off and use Postum to be well, and I think any one will agree with me that health is worth everything else—money, property or fame." WILL SELL HIS GOATS.

James McArthur Finds Them Too Troublesome.

Drinking sour milk on Seventy-ninth avenue west, a few fine Angora goats once more got their owner in the municipal court this morning. The owner of these animals is James McArthur, and about every time a goat sticks its head through the fence to eat an over-ripe tomato can, some of Mr. McArthur's good neighbors hasten to the city hall and get a warrant charging him with letting goats run at large on Seventy-ninth avenue west contrary to an ordinance of the city of Duluth.

As a result Mr. McArthur has become so accustomed to appearing in court and paying a fine that he, too, starts for the city hall whenever he sees a court officer wink at him.

However, it is likely that the neighbors will have trouble getting him in court again, as he announces that he will dispose of the band of goats the first of May. This morning he was fined $1.

FOUGHT BLOODLESS DUEL

But German Medical Students Went to Jail.

Berlin, April 22.—Two medical students, Hoeme and Witt, have been sentenced by the criminal court to four months' imprisonment for fighting a bloodless duel with pistols. Hoeme claimed that Witt purposely jostled him in the street and the duel followed. Three shots were exchanged at fifteen paces in the Grunewald at 2 o'clock one morning. Neither of the duellists was touched.

UP TO THE AGENTS

What Will Be Done With Suspended Land Entries?

Proof of Twenty-Four Cases Have Arrived From Washington.

The proofs of the twenty-four stone and timber entries which were suspended at the instigation of Special Agent O'Conner have been returned from Washington. It now lies with Special Agent Colter, who has replaced Mr. O'Connor at the local office, whether the cases shall be laid before the federal grand jury or merely be tried before the register and receiver of the local land office.

The entries were ordered cancelled at the advice of Mr. O'Connor and thirty days allowed in which the entrymen might ask for hearings of their cases. This was done in nearly every case. The papers have now been returned from Washington with instructions to confer with the United States district attorney as to the advisibility of laying the matter before the grand jury before a hearing is given before the register and receiver.

The twenty-four entries are said to have been made in the interest of Swallow & Hopkins, lumber dealers of this city.

Should the matter go before the grand jury, the entrymen would have to answer to charges of perjury as in making a stone and timber claim the entryman must swear the land is purchased with his own money and for his own benefit.

SIGNS MUELLER.

Van Praagh Secures Former University Man.

The Duluth baseball team has just secured a pitcher that promises to be one of the crack twirlers in the Northern league. He is Mueller, the big pitcher of the University of Wisconsin, who was lately declared ineligible for college work on grounds of professionalism.

Mueller has been sought for by several of the larger league teams. He has a pitching record that a veteran twirler would be proud of and Manager Van Praagh has great expectations of his work in the new league.

RECOVERED THE MONEY

Train Crew Chased Gang of Highwaymen In Engine.

Cumberland, Md., April 22.—Four highwaymen were chased four miles along the Baltimore & Ohio tracks last night by an engine crew, while their victim, rescued from almost certain death, sat in the cab and guided the pursuers.

Robert McDonald went to Connellsville in search of work. While on his way to the shops he was attacked by four negroes, who knocked him senseless and after robbing him threw his helpless body across the tracks. An engine stopped just before it reached the body. He was taken in the cab and the engine started at full speed. One mile east of Dawson the four negroes were sighted and the train crew arrested them. McDonald identified the men and the money was recovered.

OUSTER CASE DISMISSED.

Columbus, Ohio, April 22.—Attorney General Sheets had formal entries of dismissal made today in the cases brought in the name of the state against the new Pittsburg and five other coal mining companies to oust them from entering into an illegal combination. The entry in each case is "this case is settled and dismised without record and at the cost of defendants."

A DISAGREEMENT.

Gloversville, N. Y., April 22.—An effort to settle the strike of the glove cutters in Gloversville and Johnstown today resulted in a disagreement.

BUILT OVER.

Food That Rebuilt a Man's Body and Built It Right.

By food alone, with a knowledge of what food to use, disease can be warded off and health maintained, also many even chronic diseases can be cured. It is manifestly best and safest to depend upon food to cure rather than too much drugging.

A case in point will illustrate. A well known man of Reading, Pa., Treas. of a certain club there says: "I have never written a testimonial letter but I have been using Grape-Nuts about a year and have recovered my health, and feel that I would like to write you about it for the case is extraordinary.

"For five years I was a sufferer from a dreadful condition of the bowels; the trouble was most obscure." Here follows a detailed description and the condition certainly was distressing enough (details can be given by mail.)

"Nothing in the way of treatment of drugs benefited me in the least and an operation was seriously considered. In May, 1901 I commenced using Grape-Nuts as a food and with no idea that it would in any way help my condition. In two or three weeks time I noticed an improvement and there was a steady gain from that time on until now I am practically well. I don't know how to explain the healing value of the food but for some reason, although it has taken nearly a year, I have recovered my health and the change is entirely attributable to Grape-Nuts food, for I long ago quit the medicine. I eat only Grape-Nuts for breakfast and luncheon, but at my night dinner I have an assorted meal." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

BUTTON GAME OF KIOWAS.

Prophet's Sleight of Hand Almost Caused a War.

Out in Oklahoma live the Kiowas, once fierce and warlike Indians, but now an agricultural people with farms and schools, says the New York Sun. A favorite game among them is called "Do-a." It is something like the white children's game of "button, button, who's got the button?"

Men, women and children can play this game, but the men and women never play it together, and neither do the boys and girls. Each sex plays by itself. The Indians call it a medicine game, because some of the players become such expert sleight of hand performers with the kiabo, as the "button" is called, that they do things which, to the Indians, seem like magic, and anything pertaining to magic the red man calls medicine.

The Indians who assemble to play Do-a sit in a circle around the fire in the center of the wigwam, or if they play it in a house they squat in a circle on the kitchen floor. One half of the circle plays against the other half, each side having a leader who begins the game and directs its progress.

The leader of one side takes the kiabo, which is a little stick wrapped in a piece of fur and small enough to be concealed in the palm of the hand. Putting his closed hands together, with the kiabo concealed in one of them, he raises them above his head, places them behind his back or clasps them across his chest, all the time singing one of the peculiar Do-a songs, which go with the game, and in which all the other players join.

As he does this he tries to pass the kiabo from one hand to the other, or to the hands of one of the other players on his side, without being caught by the players of the opposite party.

All the time his hands must keep time in their movements to the song which is being sung. When one of the players of the opposing party thinks he knows where the kiabo is he shouts "Tsoq," which means "That," and jerks his thumb and index finger toward the hand which he thinks contains the little joker.

If he guesses right, he scores a certain number of points. A tally is kept by means of a bundle of little sticks, painted green, each player laying aside a stick for each point which he gets.

The player who guesses right takes the kiabo himself and goes through the same performance as the first man, but singing a different song, and so it goes on for hours, the side which has the greater number of points at the close of the game being, of course, the winner.

The playing of this simple game, with its songs and laughter, and the swift, dextrous movements of the hands of the players, makes an animated and noisy scene, in which the Indians greatly delight.

Sometimes, when a number of the Kiowas are encamped together, games will be going on at night in several wigwams at the same time, in some wigwams the women and girls playing it, and in others the boys and men.

Far into the night the choruses can be heard, the high-pitched voices of the women in one wigwam making a striking contrast to the deep tones of the men in another.

In the winter of 1881-82 a memorable game of Do-a was played by the Kiowas and Kiowas-Apaches, which came near causing an Indian war.

A Kiowas boy, named Datekan, which means Keeps-his-name-always, had become so expert at the game that all the tribe admired his play, and stood not a little in awe of him because of his wonderful way in which he could handle the kiabo. The Indians declared that he could make the little stick pass from hand to hand among the players invisibly, while he held his own hands stretched out before him; that he could even throw the kiabo up into the air and make it remain there until he stretched out his own hand and caught it.

He really was only a slight-of-hand performer and much mystified the Indians. He was getting to be a young man and aspired to be the leader of the Kiowas—also to live without work. So, when the great winter camp of the Kiowas and the Kiowas-Apaches was pitched by the Washita river, he announced that he could beat any man in the combined tribes at Do-a. Among the Apaches was a youth named Daveko, or Eyes-that-kill, who was also something of a great Do-a player. The two chose sides and, in the midst of a great gathering of the tribes the game took place.

Keeps-his-name-always was the winner and at once became a great man among his people. Now the Kiowas, in the days when herds of buffalo roamed over the great plains of the West, instead of living in one place as they do now, used to wander over a vast extent of territory, fighting with other tribes and hunting. When the buffalo became extinct they had to settle down, but they always longed, as they do today, for the return of the herds, and they accepted a belief that the buffalo originally came from a cave underground, and that he is not extinct now, but merely has been driven back under the earth by the white man.

Keeps-his-name-always had so impressed the tribe by his victory in the great game that they would do anything he told them to and believe anything he said. Taking advantage of this, he declared to the Kiowas that he had had a vision in which he was directed to bring back the buffalo, and that he would do so the next summer.

Of course, they gave him food and blankets and everything else he wanted in return for this good news, and when summer came they built him a great medicine lodge.

Changing his name to Paiepte, which means Buffalo-bull-coming-out, the prophet proceeded to make medicine—that is, to go through a lot of strange ceremonies, which, he said, would cause the buffalo to appear. Meantime all the tribe had to do exactly as he said, and they brought him so many presents that, after making medicine for a year, he became rich.

By that time the Indians began to say that Buffalo-Bull coming-out could play the game better than he could bring back the buffalo, and, seeing that it would be dangerous to continue his little game any longer, the young man announced that some one had not done exactly as he had told him to, and, consequently, the coming back of the buffalo had been put off for five years.

He then settled down to enjoy his riches and play Do-a. But all play and no work is an unhealthy for an Indian as it is for white boys, and Buffalo-bull-coming-out died before the five years were up.

When the five years had gone a Kiowa named Palmgya, "In-the-middle," who, as a boy, had watched Buffalo-bull-coming-out when he played his great game of Do-a and had seen him make medicine in the succeeding summer, announced himself as the successor of the great player and medicine man, and called upon all the tribe to assemble at a certain camp in order not to be involved in the destruction which was about to overtake the white men.

He said he had a medicine which would make the bullets of the white men fall harmless from him and his followers, and that he would not only bring back the buffalo as the great Do-a player had promised, but would bring a whirlwind and a great fire to destroy the white men.

The Indians wanted to take the warpath, but Captain Hall of the army went with a small escort of soldiers to the hostile camp and told them that if the things which In-the-middle prophesied took place at the time he said they would, all right. He had nothing to say. But in the meantime the Indians would better keep quiet or he would send the soldiers after them.

They agreed to wait until the day which In-the-middle set for the destruction of the white men and the return of the buffalo, and when that time came and nothing happened they broke up their camp and returned to their former manner of life.

But In-the-middle had grown rich meantime through the offerings of blankets, purses and other property, which the Indians had brought him, and, at last accounts, the successor of the great Do-a player was still living in a house he built for himself on the banks of the Washita, with nothing to do but play Do-a.

Matching jackpots is a form of mine gambling that is keeping a lot of downtown folks busy these days. It's simple enough, says the New York Sun.

Suppose five men are matching quarters. Every one flips his coin and uncovers it. If there are four heads and one tail or four tails and one head, the man with the lone tail or the lone head takes the money. If any other combination of heads and tails present itself it's a jackpot and every one "sweetens" with another quarter. That is, the second match is for half a dollar. That's kept up until some man has the lone head or the lone tail, and he takes the pot.

With four men it is rarely that the pot will have to be sweetened more than three times, but with five playing and a quarter ante the winner is likely to take $8 or $10 out of a single pot.

A chestnut burr pincushion is an odd one, and, hanging from a bracket gas fixture in a small reception room, says the Brooklyn Eagle, it is attractive enough to be harmonious among its handsome surroundings. The burrs are of stuffed mirror velvet of a rich shade of green, and into them are stuck small pins in bristling array. Three of these burs are used, and one simulated open burr. This is made by first cutting out a form of buckram, like an orange quarter wiring it and covering it afterward with cream satin for the inside and green mirror velvet for the outside. By aid of the wire these quarters are bent into a carved shape, like the originals. The open burr, from which the chestnuts are supposed to have dropped, looks very natural, grouped with the closed burrs, and the three reproductions, fastened to a stout twig, constitute a special fetching ornament in a room done in green.

Executive Board Instructs Miners to Return to Work.

Pending Adjustment of Differences By Conciliation Board.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 22.—The executive boards of the three anthracite districts of the United Mine Workers of America, in convention here, issued instructions yesterday that all mine workers now on strike or locked out, return to work immediately, pending an adjustment of all differences by the board of conciliation provided for by the anthracite coal strike commission.

District Presidents T. D. Nicholls, of Scranton; W. H. Dettry, of Hazelton, and John Fahey, of Shamokin, were selected as the miners' representatives on the board of conciliation. The board is to consist of six members, three appointed by the operators and three by the miners.

The miners' executive boards held two long sessions yesterday behind closed doors. When the meeting adjourned President Mitchell said he had nothing to say beyond the instructions issued to the men, except that he expects the coal companies to appoint a similar conciliation committee so that the grievances complained of can be adjusted as soon as possible.

The instructions to the men are as follows:

"To All Members of the United Mine Workers of America in the Anthracite Coal Fields:

"Gentlemen—The executive boards of districts Nos. 1, 7 and 9, having under consideration the situation in the anthracite region, have, after careful consideration, concluded that the best interests of our organization will be conserved by immediate resumption of work at all the mines where strikes or lockouts are now in force and the reference of all matters of dispute to the joint board of conciliation provided for in the award of the anthracite coal strike commision. In order that adjustments may be facilitated, we have selected the presidents of districts Nos. 1, 7 and 9 to act as our representatives on the board of conciliation, and we have decided to notify the presidents of the various coal carrying railroads that we are prepared to meet the representatives of the coal companies at the earliest possible date for the purpose of considering and adjusting all questions at issue growing out of the interpretation or application of the award. In pursuance of this action all mine workers are advised and instructed to resume work immediately and to continue all work in order that the differences may be adjusted in the manner as prescribed by the strike commission.

"In behalf of the executive board of districts Nos. 1, 7 and 9,

"T. D. NICHOLLS,
"President District No. 1.
"W. H. DETTRY,
"President District No. 7.
"JOHN FAHEY,
"President District No. 9.
"JOHN MITCHELL,
"National President."

President Mitchell has appointed the Rev. T. R. Watkins, of Scranton, to be a national organizer for the United Mine Workers of America. He is the only miner-preacher in the anthracite regions.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Negaunee Visited By Three Fires Within Eight Hours.

Negaunee, Mich., April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fire and water wrecked the interior of Thoren's tailor shop and Mitchell Bros.' grocery last night. For awhile it seemed as if the entire street would go. The loss is from $5000 to $9000. This morning Hagberg's bakery was damaged by fire to the extent of $500, three fires in eight hours.

Edward Gaafeney, aged 70 years, and one of the oldest residents in Marquette county, was found dead in bed this morning.

Houghton, Mich., April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Joel Reippa, the saloonkeeper at Atlantic mine, who sold liquor to Eric Heikkya, 19 years old, was sentenced to sixty days in jail by Judge Streeter of the circuit court for selling liquor to a minor. Heikki shot his brother-in-law Jacob Pekola seriously wounding him in a drunken row in Reippa's saloon a week ago Sunday. To the surprise of every one, Heikala pleaded guilty to the charge of assault with intent to murder and will be sentenced later. Pekola is still in a critical condition.

Mrs. May Molesworth, of 628 Wright street, Englewood, Ill., accompanied by her brother and 6-year-old son, arrived in Houghton yesterday afternoon to claim the body of her husband, John H. Molesworth, who committed suicide after trying to kill Mrs. Bridget Mahar, the mother of the girl who rejected him. Mrs. Molesworth was grief stricken at the tragedy that ended her unhappy married life. She denied that she had been divorced from her husband, but said he had not lived at home much, working about the country and contributing little to her support. Last Thanksgiving she said when Molesworth was deeply in love with Miss Mahar, he threatened to kill her and their son if she did not consent to be divorced so he could marry Miss Mahar. Mrs. Molesworth wished to meet Miss Mahar, but although she showed no bitterness toward the girl the authorities did not allow her, fearing possible harmful consequences. Through the help of friends Mrs. Molesworth was enabled to ship the body to Englewood for burial.

Charles J. Hodge, originator and inventor of a device, called a jig, for the washing of mineral or ore, has filed a bill in the United States circuit court, praying the western district of Michigan, praying that the Portage Lake Foundry and Machine company be restrained from making and selling devices which he alleges are infringements on his patent.

Calumet—After being mined, trammed and hoisted, a stick of giant powder in a large section vein rock exploded while passing through the crushers in No. 2 shaft of the Calumet & Hecla mine. The building was filled with flying missiles. Five men miraculously escaped death. David Spence was injured.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Minot Mine Owner Killed By Falling Down Shaft.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Minot—William J. Cunningham, owner of the Cunningham lignite mine, west of here, pushed an empty hatch over the tipple at the mine Tuesday, and fell with it to the bottom, 40 feet below, being instantly killed. Mr. Cunningham was a prominent mine owner and was considered wealthy. He was 56 years old and unmarried.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls.—Elections were held Tuesday in many leading cities and towns in South Dakota. Party lines were drawn, Republicans being generally successful. No particular significance is attached to this, however, as contests were waged on local issues, such as license, etc. Bonds for $150,000 were voted for new school house, water work system and other purposes.

Lake Preston—Robert Coulson, living northeast of this city, died at the age of 43 years, of a nervous trouble. He was one of Kingsbury county's most prominent and prosperous farmers. He came to this county in 1880 from St. Charles, Minn. The funeral was held from the Congregational church. He leaves a wife and three children.

The question of issuing $7000 bonds to complete the waterworks will be voted on at the regular election to be held May 5; the license question will also be an issue.

Rev. N. A. Stubkjaer of the Lutheran church, who a short time ago resigned, has decided not to leave. His congregation would not accept his resignation.

The Dakota Central Telephone company will build a farmers' line south a distance of twelve miles, connecting other directions will also be built soon.

Salem—William Marsha, Sr., met with a painful accident that may cost him his eye. In cutting a wire a piece flew into his left eye.

The young son of Nye Phillips of Sioux Falls and another boy started west to kill Indians. A phone to the Salem city marshal stopped the boys. They were on their way to Aberdeen.

Woonsocket—Mrs. John T. Kean, wife of South Dakota's former lieutenant governor died at Palo Alto, Cal., and her remains were brought here for interment.

Evarts—Three train loass of steers have been placed with farmers east of the river this spring, who have not heretofore been in the stock business.

THE STAGE.

Without a villian, without any deeply laid plot and without any of the features of the modern problem play, "York State Folks," presented at the Lyceum last evening, relies solely on the accuracy of the local setting, the faithful portrayal of the various characters and the simple story of village life which might well happen in any community, to please its patrons, and it succeded. Voiceferous curtain calls were given the entire company at the end of the fourth act.

The story of the play is very simple, telling of the estrangement of two old friends through a dispute concerning the entrance of a railroad into the village. Their reconciliation comes in the last act. Interwoven is a pretty love story in which the son and niece of the two old friends are the principals. The last scene of the play is a very beautiful one. It pictures the vision of Myron Cooper, the old organ builder. The wedding of the young couple has taken place, he has been reconciled to his old friend and his organ, the work of his lifetime has been sold. It is the anniversary of the wedding and funeral day of his bride which had occurred forty years before. The scene shows the old man asleep before an open fire in the foreground, while at the rear appears the view of the interior of a church with the choir boys singing the anthem "Rest, Rest to the Weary." It forms a very effective ending to the simple and beautiful story.

Ray L. Royce as Myron Cooper and James Lackaye as Simon Peter Martin, owner of the wagon works and the heaviest taxpayer in the village, were easily the favorites of the audience. The beautiful character of the old organ builder and the stubborn but honest old wagon-maker were excellently portrayed.

Randolph Currie as Frank Martin, the son of the wagon-maker, made the best of a rather difficult role. Lem Dunbar, a prosperous trader, had the audience with him from his entrance on the stage. Mrs. Sidman, the widow of the Dramatist who wrote the play, was a most charming Emeline. Miss Kate Jackson as the Widow Miller fitted her role well and her two children Jack and Sadie were delightful.

The minor characters of the play were excellently portrayed.

The scenery and stage settings were of the finest, the beautiful lane scene with the fireflies and the church in the distance being especially good.

The play will be repeated this evening.

The Ferris Comedians will produce for the last time at the Metropolitan tonight "The Octoroon," which has scored a success the past two nights. "The Octoroon" is a play similar to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and in some respects better. The vaudeville features are above the average this week. Beginning tomorrow night How and Hall's great play, "A soldier of the Empire" will be the bill. Next week has been set aside as the week for the big double show, when in addition to the regular plays there will be given an indoor circus.

Is a Member of Regular Yale 'Varsity Crew.

New Haven, April 22.—Stuyvesant Fish has been installed at No. 6 in the regular varsity eight of Yale, taking the place of Miller, who has been dropped to the second boat.

For two years the son of the Illinois Central railroad president has accepted the drudgery that goes with a season's training for a dim prospect of finally wearing a "Y." He won his class numerals last June by rowing in the freshman race against Harvard 1905. All winter he has been on the varsity squad, but had been kept on the second crew.

ROCK ISLAND BUYS

Ten Blocks In the City of Galveston, Tex.

Galveston, April 22.—Ten city blocks on the bay front were sold today to the Rock Island by the Galveston City company. The deal was consummated by General Attorney M. A. Low of the Rock Island and the deed was made out in his name, and the consideration $100,000, paid to Eugene Hawkins, secretary of the City company. The Rock Island held an option on these ten blocks, which adjoin the Southern Pacific tracks in the southern part of the city for sixty days, from Feb. 24. Whether the Rock Island intends building its own line into Galveston, or coming in over one of the roads now built, is not known. However, the purchase of the wharf property would indicate that the Rock Island will improve for docks and establish independent terminals in this city.

HAS LARGE CUT

Sawmill at Nickerson Has a Big Annual Output.

Not Long Before Company Will Complete Operations There.

The Delong & Chamberlain sawmill at Nickerson, Minn., closed down last Saturday for a week's repairs before completing the company's contract for the year with the Scanlon-Gypson company, a concern for which it has been sawing for some time. The mill is to be started up again next week and run until the latter part of July, when, after a short interval of inoperation, it will manufacture lumber steadily until the following spring.

Delong & Chamberlain have been sawing in the Nickerson district for the past four years and have had a yearly output of about 45,000,000 feet. The company will complete its operations there in about a year and a half, when the mill will probably be moved out to the Pacific coast, where the company has timber interests identified with those of the Scanlon-Gipson company, the Brooks-Scanlon company and kindred concerns.

The mill at Nickerson has been running about ten or eleven months in the year, the company being provided with a hot pond for winter operation. About 6,000,000 feet of logs have been banked at the small lake on which the mill is located, and it is expected that a supply of logs about equal to the mill's daily consumption will be brought in by rail over the Minnesota & North Wisconsin road during the next month. The logging road runs back into the timber country about ten miles, the terminus being not far from Holyoke. It is owned by the Scanlon-Gipson company and operated by the contractors that are getting out the logs.

Operations in white pine in the northern part of Pine county were started some years ago when the Nickerson Bros., then of St. Paul and Minneapolis, bought a large tract of timber about the place afterwards receiving their name. The timber was bought cheaply, for the reason it was damaged at the time of the Hinckley fire. The fire damage was not so serious as was anticipated, however, for the purchase and succeeding operations not only laid the foundations for the wealth and successive large timber enterprises of Nickerson Bros. at the Pacific coast, but it has been a profitable venture to the interests which have succeeded them at Nickerson.

Besides the sawmill, Delong & Chamberlain operate a large planing mill at Nickerson. The Scanlon-Gipson company maintains an office and superintendent at Nickerson in connection with its large lumber shed, and the car shipments of lumber from that point have been quite heavy this spring. The company was delayed in its shipments last winter because of the car shortage. It is estimated that the stocks on hand in the yards at Nickerson are somewhere in the neighborhood of 45,000,000 feet.

The bulk of the large piling used at the Great Northern ore dock extension at Allouez bay came from Nickerson this past winter, and shipments of the bik square timbers used in the construction of the superstructure are being made from Nickerson every week.

It is rumored that certain Minnesota contractors are figuring on putting in a portable sawmill below Nickerson and north of Sandstone, with a view of sawing the dead and down timber. That district, like many others in Northern Minnesota, is said to be well covered in parts by logs and timber that were cut or resulted from windfalls some years ago when pine trees were a drug in the lumber market and the loggers took out only the best logs and those which could be most easily reached. Instances have been known where the venture of cutting the dead and down timber on cut-over lands into the cheaper grades of lumber and into shingles has been a profitable one, because of the higher prices. The enterprise would be of great advantage to prospective farmers, who would find the land better cleared for them when ready to begin operations.

DECISION IS WISE

So Says Receiver Smith of the Swamp Land Ruling.

Settles the Status of the Field Notes as Evidence.

"The decision of the secretary of the interior in the swamp land case was a wise one," said Receiver Smith, of the local land office, today. "We either had to accept the field notes or throw them aside. It was not right that the matter should go on in the way it has been doing for the past few years, and the worth or uselessness of these field notes should be determined. The secretary's decision settles it permanently.

"The decision was the most important one that has been handed down from the land office for years. It will dismiss a great number of contests that are now pending before the local office. Those contests which have already been decided by the local officials, however, will go their natural course. Another exception to the rule is in the case where a contestant can prove settlement on the land. In such cases he can bring a contest which will go through the regular course unaffected by the decision of the secretary.

"I think the decision will meet with the commendation of all who have studied the question. Even supposing the field notes were not absolutely accurate and that some of the land secured by the state was not more than half swamp, there would be no injustice done anyone but the federal government in accepting these field notes as correct.

"In land which is as yet unsurveyed it will increase the importance of an absolutely correct survey for the decision extends, of course, to the unsurveyed lands. We have a number of unsurveyed towns in Lake and Cook counties which come within our district and when the survey of these is ordered special attention will have to be paid to the swampy or non-swampy character of the land."

HAS STRUCK ORE.

John Morrow Has Find on Niagara Property.

J. M. Morrow, who has been conducting drilling operations on an 80-acre tract in southeast quarter of section 24, 57-22, has struck iron ore. No estimate has been made of the amount of ore, but the deposit is believed to be a large one as seven holes have been drilled in it. The tract is part of the lands controlled by the Niagara Iron company and on it Mr. Morrow holds an option.

The ore is said to run from 55 to 60 per cent metallic iron and is low in phosphorus.

The find is in the same locality the ore discovery made by E. F. Sweeney not long ago. The Oliver-Snyder interests took over 80 acres from William Prindle in the same section.

VAST SUMS

Being Wagered on Unique Race of Brokers.

London, April 22.—London stock brokers here have arranged an extraordinary pedestrian tour. A hundred members have entered for a walk from London to Brighton, a distance of fifty miles, on May 1. A series of valuable prizes will be awarded to the best pedestrians in various classes. So important an event has the walk become that a petition is being generally signed requesting the managers to close the Exchange the day after the walk. May 2 May 1 being an established Exchange holiday. Immense sums are being wagered on the walk, one unique wager is that a noted fat broker will be unable to walk from London to Brighton in 24 hours. Interest in the novel contest in the financial district is intense. As the public is keeping out of the market the brokers find time hanging heavily since the organization of the strangest sport ever known on the exchange.

Mary McNellis Denied Papers From Her Lawyer.

New York, April 22.—Mary McNellis, who was defeated a year ago in a suit she brought to recover $150,000 from United States Senator W. A. Clark, of Montana, for alleged breach of promise of marriage, applied to Supreme Court Justice MacLean for an order requiring Gen. S. F. Kneeland, who was Mrs. McNellis' lawyer in the suit, to deliver up all the papers, letters, photographs and other exhibits which were submitted to Referee J. L. Bishop at the trial of the case.

Gen. Kneeland made an affidavit to the effect that he had a lien on the exhibit and papers for services he had rendered the plaintiff.

Justice MacLean denied the plaintiff's application.

LECTURES ON BROWNING

Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus Discusses the Great Poet.

Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus, of Chicago, delivered a very scholarly lecture last evening at the First M. E. church on "Robert Browning, the Poet." It was freely interspersed with quotations from Browning's works, illustrating the ideas which the speaker desired to convey.

Dr. Gunsaulus assigns the place of Browning in literature close to that of William Shakespeare, and classes him in learning as far above the bard of Avon. His knowledge of science, art, history and almost every conceivable subject was the wonder of all to whom the great fountains of his knowledge were unfolded.

The friendship of Tennyson and Browning was pictured and a comparison of the two made. He likened Tennyson to Raphael, his poetry having the beauty, tenderness and sweetness found in the Raphael canvases. Browning was the Michael Angelo of poetry, strength, power to do, breadth of conception of loftiness of idea, characterizing his work.

An interesting metaphor was his reference to art as a hand of five fingers. The fingers are architecture, painting, poetry, eloquence and sculpture. But where is music? Music is the life blood that pervades them all. All art is music. In the beautiful design of the architect, the canvas of the artist, the inspiration of the poet, the eloquence of the orator and the beautifully molded marble of the sculptor there is always harmony, music running through all of them.

THE CURLING CLUB MEETS

Annual Election of Officers—Club In Good Condition.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Curling club was held last evening at the Board of Trade. The annual reports of the officers of the club were heard and were very satisfactory to the members. The club has no floating debt, and there remains but $1000 due on property worth $7000. During the past year the club paid $500 on the debt.

The following officers were elected: President, George F. Mackenzie; vice president, J. E. Catlin; secretary, Alex MacRae; treasurer, Donald Morrison; chaplain, Rev. T. H. Cleland; director, W. E. Magner; representatives to the Manitoba branch of the Royal Caledonian club, I. Pitblado and James McDiearmed; umpire, Roland Smith.

The thanks of the club were extended to the Manley-McLennan agency for the handsome prizes given this year.

An effort is to be made to devise some means of bringing the play down for the Manley-McLennan agency trophy earlier in the season. As it is played now, each rink plays every other rink before meeting Superior. That brings the play down for the prize after the two cities meet so late in the year that it is generally impossible to get good ice for the games. A committee to suggest a revision of the rules was appointed, consisting of A. H. Smith, J. H. Upham and C. H. Thornton.

BALLOT FOR THE NEGRO.

President Hadley of Yale Expresses His Opinion.

New Haven, April 22.—That the North was in error in giving the Negro the ballot when it did was the opinion expressed by President Hadley of Yale in his lecture in the Dodge course on "Citizenship." President Hadley said of the award of the ballot to the Negro:

"It was not the fault of the Negro; it was the fault of those who gave him the ballot without previous preparation. The same thing was true in Italy before that, and in Russia. The North did not recognize this at the close of the war. They had recognized the dictum that all men are born free and equal. When the North recognized the condition which prevailed in the South it acquiesced in the suppression of the Negro vote. The fact that the Negro vote was restricted showed that it was inevitable. I shall not attempt to predict the outcome, but one thing should be said:

"The error of those who said thirty years ago that the Negro could be given the ballot before he was prepared for it was no greater than that of those who today think that those rights can be withheld from him after he has developed and is ready for them."

WILD, OLD TIME

At Annual Bowl Contest at the Pennsylvania U.

John Armstrong, a sophomore, is badly injured, perhaps dying, in the university hospital. He had been lying under a struggling mass of students for ten minutes. Being unconscious he was unable to protect himself from the heels of his friends and foes.

A dozen or more students were seriously enough injured to be taken out of the fight, but Armstrong was the only man who had to go to the hospital. Three thousand men, women and children looked on and cheered the combatants.

CASS LAKE PEOPLE

Seek to Prevent Building of Court House.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of Cass Lakers went to Walker to attend the district court this morning. It is expected that an injunction will be asked for to restrain the Walker people from building the county court house for which bonds were voted. Cass Lakers allege that there were illegal votes. Another case interesting to the people is the case of the state against the International railway to restrain it from charging over 3 certs a mile. At present the charge is 4 cents and it costs $1 from Bemidji to Blackduck.

He says: "Hope is the sheet anchor of the human family;—if we had not possessed it we might not have maintained a loosing business for so long a period, there is something besides hope now in sight and it becomes every citizen of Cass Lake to bend his energies to recoup his past losses by prompt and effective action."

BRIDGE BURNED.

Traffic Cut Off on Section of Burlington.

Winona, Minn., April 22.—The large bridge of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy road over the Black river, at Trempealeau, Wis., a few miles below Winona, burned early last night, causing a loss of about $100,000 and suspending all traffic on the Burlington south of here. The Burlington limited and the early evening passenger trains crossed the river here and ran over the Milwaukee road to La Crosse. The bridge was about 250 feet long and was entirely destroyed. The fire is supposed to have originated from sparks dropped by a passing engine. It will probably be two weeks before trains can again run over the road south of here.

TRUST IN SPAIN

Being Formed By Cane and Beet Sugar Manufacturers.

Ninety Per Cent of the Firms Have Joined It.

Washington, April 21.—(Special to The Herald.)—"After the loss of the island of Cuba, attention was turned to the possibility of producing beet sugar on an extensive scale in Spain," says Consul-General Julis G. Lay in a communication written to the state department from Barcelona. "The prospect of a lucrative investment attracted capital, and large factories were erected and wide tracts of country were devoted to the cultivation of the beet. Overproduction quickly ensued, and stocks of sugar have been accumulating year by year, with little probability of any improvement in the condition of the trade or chance of the surplus being disposed of in foreign markets. Manufacturers of cane and beet sugar have, therefore, decided to endeavor to form a trust to control the production and regulate the sale of sugar in this country. Negotiations have been going on for some months, but thus far with no tangible result, although according to the latest reports 90 per cent of the sugar manufacturers have joined the combination.

It is feared by many that the ultimate aim may be the securing of a monopoly for the sale of sugar, in return for a yearly payment to the state, as it is argued that the success of the trust depends entirely upon some seuch security against future tariff alterations. It is this fear that has aroused a widespread opposition to the proposal, and strong protests are being sent to Madrid from all parts of Spain. The manufacturers of products into which sugar largely enters are especially interested in preventing the price from being increased, and the general public, who now pay the equivalent of about 10 cents per pound for ordinary loaf sugar, do not view with favor a scheme which will probably result in enhancing the cost of this article. On the other hand, those who are working for the formation of the trust maintain that their object is not to increase but to cheapen the cost of sugar by selling direct to the consumers. They point out that while the public is paying 140 to 150 pesetas ($19.09 to $21.42) per 100 kilograms (220.46 pounds), the dealers are buying from the mills at 95 to 100 pesetas ($15.50 to $14.20), and that the large margin of profit here shown might be divided between the trust and the public. Foreign sugar under the present tariff costs here 120 pesetas (17.13) per 100 kilograms, but the trust, they say, would be able to advantageously supply the consumer at the price of 115 pesetas ($16.42.)"

United States Consul H. W. Harris sends an interesting letter from Mannheim on the subject of agricultural implements in South Germany:

"Not only are American mowers, harvesters, and hayrakes in use in all the farming districts of South Germany, but our smaller agricultural implements, such as forks, garden and lawn rakes, hoes, shovels, spades, and hand potato diggers, have also rapidly grown in favor and are now on sale in nearly every local hardware store. The lighter construction and better shape of American tools are conceded; and here in Germany, where so much of the farm work is done by hand, these articles should continue to find a ready market.

"I have never seen in this district any of the convenient apparatus commonly employed in the United States for spraying fruit trees, vines, and other vegetation. The sprayers in use are primitive in construction, consisting essentially of a watering can, with hose and nozzle attached, carried by the operator, the weight of the water furnishing the pressure. American spraying pumps and other similar apparatus should be in demand.

"As is well known, Germany produces vast quantities of potatoes and is coming more and more to depend upon this crop. They are frequently grown over large areas and are for the most part planted and dug by hand, the latter operation being assisted by means of an ordinary plow. An American engaged in selling harvesters in Germany informs me that he has had several inquiries as to the prices and efficiency of the potato planters and diggers used in the United States. He is of the opinion that in some of the territory over which he has traveled, American planters and diggers, drawn by horses, could probably be sold in paying quantities.

"The same gentleman says he has had frequent inquiries as to windmills for pumping water and operating small feed grinders. Such windmills are rarely seen in this part of Germany. In view of the fact that most of the farmers live in villages, it is not probable that the mills would come into such general use as in most parts of the United States. The field, however, would seem to invite the attention of manufacturers who have agencies for these mills in other parts of Europe.

"Weighing scales of the convenient forms employed in warehouses, freight houses, groceries, mills, etc., are not in use here. In this class of appliances there would seem to be an opening for our manufacturers.

"In making tools and implements for the German trade, it should not be forgotten that durability is a greater virtue in Germany than it is in the United States. Tools frequently go into unskilful hands, and a degree of heaviness is not so objectionable as are breakage and need of frequent repairs. The wood used in handles should be well selected, and the parts subjected to special strain made strong."

MOUNTING OF GUNS

On War Vessels Frequently Proves to Be Improperly Done.

Repairing of Battleship Maine Will Be Watched With Interest.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 22.—(Special to The Herald.)—Naval experts will pay close attention to the repairing of the battleship Maine, which will be done at the Cramp shipyards at Philadelphia, where she was constructed. This vessel, the latest to be launched of the greater fighting machines of the navy, and only placed in commission within the past few months, typified, it was believed, the highest development in the art of building war vessels up to that time. That the mounting of its guns should have proven defective is disappointing to all interested, regardless of the cost, whether due to a mistake in the plans or not. It is confidently expected, however, that in the progress of the repairs much valuable information will be gained as to the proper mounting of guns on war vessels. It is well known that as the length of the recoil of a gun is shortened the strain becomes more severe, and the parts sustaining the strain must be correspondingly strengthened That they were not so braced in the Maine is quite as likely to be due to inadequate provision in the plans as to faulty construction. Intimacy of the closest character necessarily exists between the gun and its mount, and an increase in the caliber or range of the former calls for a change in the latter to meet the new requirement.

A failure to properly adjust the carriage to the gun is nothing new in naval annals, and the accident to the guns on the Maine has recalled to ordnance experts the fate of the gun mounts on the Brooklyn. Scarcely had Commodore Schley hoisted his flag on the Brooklyn in Hampton Roads, prepartory to his departure for the West Indies at the beginning of the Spanish war, than, in the firing of a broadside salute, the mounts of the 5-inch guns were upset and displaced, so as to render extensive repairs necessary. Time did not suffice to remove the Brooklyn to the Cramp yards, where she was built, so that she was taken to Newport News, and work on her continued night and day until she was pronounced fit for duty. But still the mounts were insecure, for in the battle of Santiago all the 5-inch guns used on the Brooklyn were again similarly disabled.

Conflicting views are held of the reported damage to the bows of the Maine. Accidents to boiler tubes are of common occurrence, and all ships using the water tube boilers carry with them extra tubes so that as weaknesses develop in the original tubes they may be replaced by new ones, which may be done by mechanics of ordinary skill. In the case of the Maine, however, exceptional interest attaches, as the reparing of her tubular boilers so soon after she was placed in commission, furnishes Rear Admiral Melville, chief constructor, an additional argument against the use of the Niclausse boilers, with which the Maine is equipped. A contest of vast importance to the boilermakers has been in progress in the navy department for some time. Similar contests have been waged in the naval establishments of Great Britain, France and Germany, the prizes being of great value. All the water tube boilers are protected by patents, and the official endorsement of the government means millions of dollars to the firm manufacturing the boilers which receive such endorsement. Aside from the fact that it would mean a virtual monopoly of furnishing the boilers for all vessels built for the government, the standard set by the navy in all its requirements is so high that the business of furnishing boilers for the merchant marine would naturally follow.

The English admiralty recognized the grave responsibility attaching to an official endorsement in requiring any certain type of boiler to be used in the British navy, and after examining and testing thirty-six types, reported that none of them showed such unquestioned merit as to justify its recommendation as a standard for naval use. A particular test was made of the Bellville, but the committee confined its choice for large vessels to the Niclausse, Babcock and Wilcox. Durr and Yarrow. The committee compared the merits of the cylindrical and water tube boilers and reported that while the superior economy of the cylindrical boiler is unquestioned, from a military point of view, that is, the necessity of making steam quickly, the water tube boiler must be deemed more suitable for naval purposes. In order to meet all emergencies, therefore, the committee recommended a mixed battery of boilers of both types, the cylindrical for steaming at ordinary speed, and the water tube boilers for raising the speed quickly.

In the United States navy the water tube boiler is preferred, and Admiral Melville strongly favors the Babcock and Wilcox boilers. His opposition to the Niclausse boilers is as pronounced as his advocacy of the "B and W.," and when the specifications for the new 16,000-ton battleship recently contracted for were drawn, he secured the insertion, almost at the last moment, of a clause requiring the use of the Babcock and Wilcox boilers. A fierce contest ensued, for the manufacturers of the other boilers felt an injustice had been done them in shutting them out from competition by prescribing the use of a particular kind of boiler, and the Howenstein, Niclausse and others struggled for recognition. The bidders also protested against being compelled to install the "B and W." boilers, for as the makers of this type were thus given a monopoly, they were enabled to charge what they pleased. It is said the "B. and W." boilers on the new battleships will cost the contractors, the New York Shipbuilding company and the Cramps respectively, nearly $90,000 more than if the Niclausse type could be used.

Contractors for war craft have almost uniformly maintained that as they are required to guarantee the speed of the vessel they construct, they should be entitled to choose the type of boilers to be used.

It may be reasonably expected that Admiral Melville will use the accidents to the Niclausse boilers in the Maine as an evidence of the correctness of his conclusion that this type is inferior to the "B. and W.," and as a confirmation of his refusal to permit the Niclausse boilers to be substituted for the "B. and W.'s" in the new ships.

The opponents of the Niclausse boiler sought to make capital out of the reported failure of the Maine on her official trip to make the required speed of 18 knots, the preliminary report giving her a fraction less than that speed. It was shown later that the drifting of certain stake boats carried her slightly out of her course, and the revised figures gave her the official speed of 18 knots, and, it is believed, she could make 18½ knots under favorable conditions.

It was pointed out, however, that "accidents" to machinery have been known to happen before, and that when the navy is opposed to a certain type of gun, vessel or machinery, its undesirability is pretty certain to be demonstrated in time.

STUFFED THE PAYROLLS

Three Trusted Employes of Illinois Central Road Arrested.

Chicago, April 22.—Charged with stuffing the company's payrolls by means of bogus pay checks, three men holding responsible positions with the Illinois Central railway, have been simultaneously placed under arrest and were held to the grand jury. The total peculations from the corporation, it is thought, will amount to many thousands of dollars. Had not an Italian who tendered a check to Treasurer Titus of the company become frightened and run out of the office, the stuffing of the payrolls might have gone on for a long time undiscovered.

The employes under arrest are: D. J. O'Hearn, Charles O'Hearn and Mark Walsh. The two first named are road superintendents, and the third is a section foreman. All were in charge of a big number of men.

Treasurer Titus of the company was the first to suspect that the payrolls were irregular. Three months ago an Italian called at the treasurer's office and presetned a time slip for his check. He was asked his name, and having forgotten the name he had been told to give, became confused and darted out of the office. This caused the investigation, which resulted in the arrest of the three men named. The men had been under surveillance for months, their movements being traced by detectives. It is said the method utilized by the culprits was to place fictitious names upon the payrolls and, having the authority to make out checks, give them to friends to present to the treasurer of the road. Men who had been discharged, but whose names were never forwarded to the company, were among those used in securing the money.

Walsh and the O'Hearns have been employed with the Illinois Central road for a number of years and always bore good reputations.

SHOT IN HIS CELL.

Father Attempts Vengeance on Daughter's Assailant.

Towanda, Pa., April 22.—William Barnes, of Luther's Mills, 45 years old, attempted to kill Charles Brooks, who is in jail charged with assault upon Anna Barnes, the 14-year-old daughter of William Barnes. Barnes and his son, Frank, 16 years, went to the jail. After being admitted to the corridor, the boy handed his father a revolver. Barnes stepped to the grating of Brooks' cell and fired two shots. Both took effect, one in the left breast and the other in the left hand. Barnes and his son were arrest, charged with attempted murder. The boy was later discharged and the father was admitted to bail.

No good house keeper ever neglects Spring cleaning. With plenty of soap and water, hard scrubbing and scouring, sunlight and air, she soon gets rid of all rubbish, musty odors, germs and microbes, and the dust and dirt that have accumulated during the long winter months. But when the house has been put in order, and the premises cleared of all old plunder and trash, the great majority of house keepers feel that Spring cleaning is over, and forget that their systems may be in a worse condition than the house and that the bad feelings, debility, loss of appetite, nervousness and sleeplessness from which they are suffering are due to neglect of the more important and necessary work of Physical house cleaning. A clean house does not insure against disease, but a clean system does The poisons and humors engendered within the body, the waste matter that is clogging the system and contaminating and vitiating the blood, are far more dangerous to health than the dirt and dust of our homes. In the winter time we give free rein to our appetites and eat more and oftener than is for our good. We inhale the polluted air of badly ventilated offices and rooms, take little or no exercise, and our bodies become a veritable hot-bed of disease-bearing germs, and our blood is loaded with impurities and poisons of every conceivable kind; and no wonder that Spring time is so often Sick time and finds us in such poor physical condition, with vitality slowly wasting away, our digestion impaired, the liver torpid and all the bodily organs over-worked and out of repair. Unless our systems are given a thorough cleaning, and the blood purged and purified, the simplest malady may develop into some serious disorder or end in chronic invalidism, and often the pent-up impurities, poisons and humors break out through the skin, and all through the Spring and Summer you are tormented with boils, itchy rashes, sores, bumps and pimples, and all manner of ugly pustular and scaly eruptions.

Physical house cleaning should begin with the blood. It must be purified and strengthened, and when a stream of pure, rich blood is turned into all the nooks and corners of the system, the rubbish and disease-producing poisons are washed out, and the congested channels and avenues of the body are opened, and Physical house cleaning is made thorough and complete. S. S. S. cleanses the blood of taints and poisons and expels the waste and rubbish from the system. It is to the system what soap and water are to the house. Nothing else so quickly removes the stubborn, deeply-rooted poisons and humors that are destroying the purity of the blood and blocking the avenues of health and life

POSTAL OFFICIALS

Claim War Department Has Done Them Injustice.

Washington, April 22.—The officials of the office of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department are exceedingly wroth over what they claim to be slight put upon them by the war department in giving out a statement regarding the use of official envelopes by the adjutants general of the various states in making reports to the war department as authorized under the Dick militia law. In the statement given out by the war department it was made to appear that the postmaster general had referred the matter of the use of official envelopes by the adjutants general to the assistant attorney general for the postofice department on receiving a request for an opinion from the secretary of war and that the assistant attorney general did not adopt, according to the published statement. The officials of the postoffice department state that the postmaster general did not overrule or refuse to adopt any part of the opinion, but that, on the contrary, he had forwarded the full opinion without comment or criticism to the secretary of war. They believe that they have been placed in a very bad light by the statements given out and desire to right themselves, even going to the extent of offering to show copies of all correspondence in the premises, including the letter of the postmaster general in transmitting the opinion of the secretary of war.

INSANE OVER RELIGION.

Chicago Man Refuses to Talk or Eat.

Chicago, April 22.—Carried away by religious fervor, Charles Hyde, 133 Thirty-fifth street, took a vow two weeks ago that he would abstain from eating or talking for a month. When threatened with imprisonment if he did not eat, he left his house and, without clothes, ran to a barn, where he remained hidden until late in the afternoon. Then he returned to his residence, but has not eaten or spoken.

Policeman Lodge was called to the house Sunday evening and found people there beating drums and clanging cymbals in an effort to "drive out the evil spirit," as the mother of Hyde explained "He is posessed of a demon," said some. "He is insane," said others. Hyde was wasting away, but prayer and noise had no effect on him. The police summoned Dr. Isaac Friendman, and after his efforts to make Hyde talk had been unavailing he took a stout string and drew it tightly about the patient's throat. His breathing checked, Hyde gasped out: "Stop that!" the first words he had uttered for two weeks. The young man is a bookkeeper, 24 years old. His mother, Mrs. Mary Hyde, said he had been having these spells for a long time.

"He has often refused to eat or speak," she said, "but he was never so bad as at this time. He is deeply religious and is doing penance by keeping silence."

GRANT CANCELED.

British Columbia Government Yields to Public Pressure.

Vancouver, B. C., April 22.—The British Columbia legislature has hastily passed a bill to cancel the grant of East Kootenai coal and oil lands made to the Columbia Western railway for the Canadian Pacific railway.

It is contended the grants were made in error and that no subsidy is due. The lands at the lowest present value are worth $5,000,000, more probably $10,000,000.

The government was forced to cancel the grants under the strong public pressure voiced in the house. Otherwise it would have been thrown out. The conduct of provincial ministers has caused the strongest comment and the grossest incapacity or worse is freely charged.

BILL DEVERY

May Be Candidate For Mayor of Gotham.

New York, April 22.—The general and executive committee of Tammany hall will meet immediately upon the adjournment of the legislature, and it is stated that W. S. Devery will ask for recognition, which, if refused, will make him an avowed candidate for mayor. There is no change in Croker's and Murphy's program—Devery himself is to be kept out of the executive committee. His delegates, however, will be allowed to sit in the general committee, as the law guarantees them that right, and it is not improbable that there will be a compromise so that Devery's district, the Ninth, may be officially represented in the executive committee. Dr. W. J. Stewart would be acceptable to the Murphyites.

Devery's associates say that he will present himself at the general and executive committees and demand recognition. Refusal of recognition then will afford him a basis for a new action against the leaders. If he is again defeated in the courts he will take his fight to the primaries.

It can be stated on the highest authority that Devery's friends will run him for mayor on an independent ticket if he is turned down by Tammany. His friends have conferred with the leaders of the Social Democratic party, which this year will nominate by convention. Devery is liked by Daniel De Leon and others in the Social Democracy. If they should run him for mayor he also would run on an independent ticket after securing his nomination by petition.

Daniel F. McMahon probably will be re-elected chairman of the executive committee, and it is a good guess that Patrick Keenan will succeed John McQuade.

"I will not accept a certificate of election," was the answer given by District Attorney Jerome when he was asked if he would accept the fusion nomination for mayor this fall. "It is said your friends have been suggesting you as a proper nominee," he was told. "No friend of mine has been authorized to boom me for mayor. I don't want it, and I do want to remain in this office."

CLUB IS FORMED

To Aid Workers By Silent Meditation.

New York, April 22.—Gathering each day during the noon hour to sit in silent meditation and send out spiritual mental waves, which, it is hoped, will give relief to those who cannot leave the stress and worry of business cares, more than thirty members of the Noon Day club held its first session at the home of Mrs. G. I. S. Anderson, the chairman, at 54 West Thirty-seventh street, yesterday.

After the lecture Sunday Mrs. Anderson stated that for seven years she had been promoting this advanced form of religious teaching to a circle of pupils, but not until recently did she decide to make the matter public.

"We seek to unfold the spiritual being of a person, first impressing them that 'all is within,'" she said. "We believe we can be of great help to those who away from us are struggling with life's problems if we sit in silence and send out to their assistance our spiritual thoughts. Any one is welcome to come here during the noon hour and partake of our silent spiritual repast. Many persons will thus be enabled to establish their equipoise and go away better fitted for the remaining work of the day. We expect to establish these 'silent centers' all over the city in the homes of our members."

HUNDREDS OF RATS

Attacked Brave Officer In Sewer Searching For a Boy.

Little Jimmie Gray Found In an Unconscious Condition.

Philadelphia, Pa., April 22.—A boy's dare nearly cost a boy's life when "Jimmy" Gray, a lad of 14, was rescued unconscious from the slow waters of Hart sewer. Gray and his "bunch" were playing around the corner of Oram and Venango streets when "Al" Baily, captain of the "Fishtown Invincibles," dared Gray to walk a block in the sewer, where the boy had often gone after lost baseballs. Gray insisted that he had run all over the sewer and was not afraid, but did not want to take chances on getting his Sunday suit wet. The banter started by Baily turned the whole crowd on to Gray, and the little fellow finally took the chance.

The sewer at the juncture of Oram and Venango streets is twenty-two feet deep, and on account of the recent severe storms was filled with water to the height of five feet.

The ooze ran slow, but the pressure was too great for Gray, who felt his strength fast leaving him as he tried time and time again to clamber up the slippery sides of the old sewer. He shouted for help, and the boys, peering down the manhole, heard his cries growing weaker and weaker and then they ceased. Baily ran to the police station, three blocks away, and Sergt. McConnell started for the scene with a squad of men. They took grappling irons and ropes with them, but when they reached the opening there was no need for either. The case needed a strong, brave man who could swim.

Big Bill Swartz volunteered to go into the sewer for the boy and he was lowered down into the dark, foul hole. He shouted to Gray, but no response. It was too dark to see. The stream of sewage made progress slow and breathing hard, but Swartz passed on and on until he, too, was lost in the hole.

Try as he might he could not make headway and his calls for Gray were unanswered. His life was now in peril. He turned and finally reached the manhole above Oram street, where he found a rope dangling down into the sewer. He signaled to the policeman above and was soon hoisted to the surface, where he quickly revived.

He then insisted upon making another try for Gray, and, running two blocks down the street, tore up another manhole and fairly dived in after Gray. The rats nearly ate him alive. Scores of them fell upon him, and a hundred marks show where their teeth reached. He fought them off and started on his errand of mercy. He finally touched Gray's body, 100 feet from the manhole. The boy was unconscious. Swartz threw him over his shoulder like a sack and finally landed him on the sidewalk. Gray and his brave rescuer were hurried to the Episcopal hospital. Gray may die.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT

Wants Talk of War With Germany Stopped.

Chicago, April 22.—A Washington special to the Tribune says: Before leaving Washington President Roosevelt strongly intimated to the officers of the army and navy that they should stop discussing a probable war with Germany.

President Roosevelt has not muzzled the officers of the two fighting arms of the country, but he deprecates a useless discussion of a subject which is certain to cause bad feeling, if nothing else.

The president does not relish the disposition on the part of the newspapers which have frequently predicted a war with Germany.

It is a curious fact that since the Dewey-Von Diedrichs incident at Manila and the Venezuelan incident, the one pet subject of discussion among the army and navy officers has been a war with the kaiser's government. It has been touched upon with some feeling. The naval strength of the two countries has been compared and the fighting abilities of the crews and the generalship of the officers and the possible scenes of battle have been discussed freely.

Recently Admiral Dewey was interviewed on this topic, and his opinions have the endorsement of practically every officer and man in the navy and the army.

Germany always was the nation with which a prospective war would be had. No other European nation was considered in this respect. So persistent were conversations that the president decided it was best for both countries that they should cease. His attitude was not dictated by any fear of Germany, but he did not consider it good taste for the officers constatnly to talk of war with a friendly power and to make comparisons unfavorable to that nation.

TO RENAME AVENUES

Proposition That Is Being Advanced By Some Individuals.

Argument Is That Under Present System Confusion Occurs.

Poetic names are now being urged for Duluth avenues in the place of numerical designations.

It has been suggested that Third avenue west be called Shenandoah avenue, and that Fifth avenue west be called Washington avenue.

The plan would mean the changing of names of practically every avenue in Duluth, and many say that the change of names would be a great inconvenience, though they admit that Third avenue west and Fifth avenue west are names not calculated to inspire poetic sentiment.

The idea of changing the names of avenues seems to have originated with persons interested in the "city beautiful movement," at least the suggestion is said to have had its source there and it is recommended that historic American names, Indian names and the names of American cities could be used.

They assert that "South Sixteenth avenue east," for instance, takes up entirely too much valuable space when written and does not sound well when spoken. These objections apply to almost all the avenues according to those back of the innovation.

The scheme has not been formally presented to the city officers, but several that have been approached regarding it have rather discouraged the movement, saying that it would require two years to make the change and have things adjusted again. Some of them think, however, that the original naming of streets and avenues in the city was a mistake and that names and not numbers should have been applied in the first place, but consider it too late to make the change now. Their belief that it was a mistake is based on the confusion that sometimes arises as to streets and avenues.

The present system has its warm champions, however, who think it the best possible system.

MAY STAY IN JAIL FOR LIFE

Unless Released By His Relatives or Gives a Bond.

New York, April 22.—William McShane, of 424 Henry street, Brooklyn, who was committed to Raymond street jail on Jan. 5 in default of a $1000 bond to keep the peace, is there to stay indefinitely. McShane was committed on complaint of his family that he was a dissolute character and had threatened to kill his eldest sister, Catherine.

The father of the prisoner, Owen McShane, a wealthy mineral and soda water manufacturer, of 124 Harrison street, is an invalid. Since his wife died in October last his household has been under the care of his daughter Catherine.

"We did not have my brother sent to jail without good cause," said Miss McShane to a Sun reporter. "He was constantly threatening to kill us, and used language before the children that was shocking. I think we will let him serve his full term."

According to Magistrate Tighe, McShane may be kept in jail indefinitely, unless he is released by his relatives or appeals to a court of record, when he must declare his intention to furnish the bond and ask release on a promise of good behavior.

It was said at the district attorney's office that the proceedings are regular, and that young McShane might be kept in jail for the rest of his life if his relatives so elect.

SPANISH BONDS

Now Selling Higher Than the British Consols.

New York, April 22.—In 1898 Spanish bonds, because of the war with the United States, sold below 30. British bonds in the same year touched a maximum of 113⅞, having gained on an average more than a "point" a year since they were "converted" in 1888.

Relieved of her expensive war in two hemispheres, Spain soon found her credit unexpectedly and greatly improved. Last year her bonds rose to 91¾. Britain meanwhile had also enjoyed a "little war," and her securities, tremendously swelled in volume by the cost of killing, last year led the Spanish 4s by only two points, and have lately declined below 90, well beneath the Spanish maximum.

Who would have predicted in 1898, asks the World, that Spanish bonds would in five years "cross" British consols on the chart of prices? But some "victories" cost more than some "defeats."

A TRESS OF HAIR

By Mrs. Gen. Pickett.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

You think reporters tell everything.

That's because you don't know anything about it. The fact that we make our living by telling things, is no indication that we are so sordid-souled as to sell every story we happen to meet.

You may have seen that paragraph in the Post some time ago.

"A man was picked up on the beach this morning and taken to the morgue, under the supposition that he was dead. After a time he recovered, sat up on the slab on which he had been lying, unwrapped from his wrist a lock of golden hair that had been concealed by his cuff, looked at it, sighed, put the tress into his pocket and went away."

Now, you may understand that a paragraph like that is a curiosity provoker. The man who could read between the lines, and turn in that story, would be on top of the press, wouldn't he?

I wrote that item, and when it was finished my mind was made up that some day the story should be completed. It never had been for the public, and it would not be now, but for the fact that you will keep it as an inviolable secret.

The next day after that item appeared in the Post I was sitting in my office when a card was presented bearing the name of "Miss Ione Rogers." I took my feet down from the top of the desk, extinguished my cigar and put the remainder of it carefully away for future reference (it was now my last of real Havanas that had been given me by a man who wanted a congressional boom started for him), put on my coat, tried to smooth my rumpled hair and failed, and said:

"Show her in."

I never saw a prettier girl. Of course I shall not attempt to describe her. The effort would end in ignominious failure, and you wouldn't know any more than you do now. I could only say that she had golden hair and blue eyes and a fair face, and you would say that you knew scores of girls like that. But you don't. You never will know one like her. Nature does not furnish duplicates of masterpieces. Her hair—it was as if all the sunshine that floods the world on a day in June had been condensed to make that wondrous mass of waves and coils and curls that shimmered over her head.

She had a paper in her hand, and pointed out the paragraph about the man with the lock of hair.

"I have been told that you are the one most likely to know about this item," I wrote it."

"Do you know the name of the man?"

"I am sorry to say that I do not."

"Could you find him?"

"I am trying. We think he was washed ashore from the ship that burned on the water two nights ago."

"That is what I think."

She hesitated a moment as if doubtful as to whether she should confide in me or not.

"I was on that ship, too."

"You!"

"Yes, why not? I wasn't hurt; that is, not much. Frightened? Oh, yes. Who would not be frightened between that flaming world of fire above and that rolling world of water beneath? How small a tiny human atom feels poised on that brief instant of time between the flame and the sea. Then the plunge into the darkness and—all is over!"

Her eyes were tense with terror. She seemed to be gazing into the darkness of which she spoke.

"When I awoke from that dream of blackness I was on a cot in a hospital, having been pulled ashore by a man who fainted from exhaustion and fell upon the beach as soon as we reached land. I was unhurt except for a wound in the head where a lock of hair had been pulled out, probably by my rescuer, who must have tangled his hand in my hair in the effort to grasp me. When I saw that piece in the paper it seemed to me that there was my preserver, and also my hair, and, what more natural than that I should seek to thank the one and recover the other?"

"He did not look as if he intended to surrender his souvenir very readily, however incidental may have been its acquisition."

The laugh that rippled out from her red lips had a strangely musical sound for that office, which was more accustomed to shouts for "copy" and the thud of bootjacks and other missiles projected toward the "devil," than to a girl's sweet laughter.

"I fancy he will not be inseparably attached to a souvenir of an occasion upon which he dragged a drowning woman out of the water, and was carried to the morgue in reward for his philanthropy."

"I promised to let her know if he should be found. Urged on by the memory of those wonderful eyes, my efforts to find the man with the lock of hair redoubled.

It is discouraging how seldom you find anything in this world by looking for it. You sometimes find things, but it is when you are looking for something else or not looking for anything in particular. I think the reason that so few people find success in life is that most people spend their time and strength in looking for it. If they would only stroll along leisurely it might throw itself in their way unsought.

Thus it was natural that I should find the missing man one morning when I was passing across the park bent upon an interview with Senator Spondulicks on the shin subsidy bill. He was meeting me on the road that curves around the clump of acacias. I stopped and barred his way.

"Good morning. I am glad to see you. Not only on my own account, but because a fair lady is interested in meeting you."

"A lady? I fear you mistake. No lady could possibly be interested in me."

"Not even if you had plunged into the water and dragged her away from death?"

"That is nothing to merit a thought. I have seen a dog do as well."

"For some reason she thinks it is worth a thought."

"She is very good."

The conversation seemed barred at this point, and I looked at him. He was worth a look, now that the shadows of the morgue were lifted from him, and the sunlight and exercise had brought a glow to his face. Tall, well formed, dark-eyed, brown-visaged—altogether he was as handsome a young fellow as I was ever likely to meet in a morning stroll through the park.

"She may be good, but I am not. My desire to find you was a wholly selfish one."

"That is another peculiar circumstance."

"That I should be selfish?"

"No. You are probably only human. But that you should suppose that, being found, I could serve you in any way."

"You might tell me your story."

"My story?"

"The rescue—the lock of hair, and—and everything."

"Oh, I see. You are the man who wrote me up for the papers. I know several of you fellows. Personally, you are charming, and your society is all that could be desired. Professionally—I take the opposite side of the street when I see you coming."

"Just add the two members of the proposition, strike an average, and tolerate me long enough to tell me what I want to know."

His intention of departure became so insistent that I should probably have lost him, had not Miss Rogers come around the acacia curve. She recognized me and bowed, and my man, looking at her as she was passing, seemed suddenly petrified into a statue. Scenting my story about to develop before my eyes, I seized upon my opportunity.

"Miss Rogers, you remember that I promised to let you know when I found our man. Will you pardon me if I introduce him now?"

She turned with a smile of greeting on her lips. It faded away in a look of astonishment—astonishment mingled with a kind of terror, and, I thought, with a subtle suggestion of gladness in it—a gladness that neither lips nor eyes would speak, but which seemed to glow in the deep heart of her life as the light of a whole summer of suns unrecognized in the heart of a crimson rose.

"You?"

A quiver seemed to thrill through his form as he stood erect and looked at her.

"Yes, I. If you had known it was I, you would not have tried to meet me. You would have known that we have met too often—too often for my peace, though it can matter little to you. I saw your face as it lay on my arm when we reached shore. I did not know when I plunged in after you. I would have tried just the same but should probably not have succeeded. The sight of your face would have taken away all the strength with which I fought the waves for you. Had I not seen your face, the little coil of hair clinging to my hand would have told me who you were. It seemed to hold the life of the olden time and to twine around my hand as in memory of the past. Had you known it was I you would, perhaps, have drowned rather than have let me touch you."

"Oh, no, Wallace, I would not. I—"

She held out her hands imploringly.

Frightened by the situation which I had heedlessly created, and fearful of missing the senator and getting into a row with the political editor, I went on my way.

That evening Wallace Collier invited me to dine with him at his club. Over the wine he told me the story that lay between the lines. I remember that he made a very pretty story of it, but I am only an ordinary, every-day kind of newspaper fellow, and don't know anything about pretty stories unless some other chap tells them. In my commonplace language it is like this:

When Wallace came home from Heidelberg he met Miss Rogers, just from a convent school in France. The first time they met they knew they were in love. So absolute was their knowledge of that potent fact that they were soon engaged to be married.

The statement of the poet about the course of true love has never commanded my confidence. Poets have a habit of generalizing from insufficient premises. I have seen many cases in which the course of true love was as smooth as sailing over the calmest lakes on the laziest of summer days. This proved to be one of the cases to which substantiate in unobservant minds the hasty asseveration of the poet. "The little nit within the lute" soon appeared and the music of the love-song became suddenly mute.

At that time the war with Spain began and Wallace Collier marched away with a fixed resolution to die on the field. Of course he didn't. There is always a stray bullet skirmishing around after the man who clings to life, or, in default of that, a microbe, or a wind-blown brick from a tumbling chimney. For the man who is in the attitude of welcoming little attentions of that kind they show no partiality. Wallace Collier returned without a wound.

When the Maid of the North caught fire near the harbor he was on the shore and plunged in to give assistance to the passengers. The first one he reached was a woman. Her long hair floated out on the waves and he tangled his hand in it as he tried to grasp her. Clasping her firmly, he struck out for the shore, determined to save this life which might be so precious to some one. If in rescuing her he could give up his own life he would be doubly blessed. When he reached the bank he first saw the face of the woman he had saved, and the shock of surprise, combined with the weakness resulting from his effort, brought on a swoon from which he aroused to find himself in the morgue with a tress of golden hair twined about his wrist.

He would never have sought the woman he loved, and who owed her life to him, but accident, assisted by my professional impertinence, had resulted in a meeting which had ended so happily that he wished to invite me to his wedding the next week.

And oh, would I forget that I was a newspaper man and remember only that I was a friend, and keep his secret? I promised, and have kept it, and would not reveal it now, but that I know you will never tell.

Miss Alice M. Smith, of So. Minneapolis, Minn., tells how woman's monthly suffering is permanently relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"I have never before given my endorsement for any medicine, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has added so much to my life and happiness that I feel like making an exception in this case. For two years every month I would have two days of severe pain and could find no relief, but one day while visiting a friend I ran across Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound,—she had used it with the best results and advised me to try it. I found that it worked wonders with me; I now experience no pain, and only had to use a few bottles to bring about this wonderful change."—Miss Alice M. Smith, 804 Third Ave., South Minneapolis, Minn. —$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

Many women suffer silently and see their best gifts fade away. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes the entire female organism healthy.

A STRONG CIVIC SPIRIT.

The Denver Post says that in Kansas City "there is an ardent local pride which renders it unsafe to say a word against the ugly old town. To get along in Kansas City you must subscribe to the theory that it is the greatest place on earth. That spirit has been the potent and decisive bulwark of honest government." Undoubtedly this spirit of local civic pride, or jealousy of one's town's good name has been, indeed, powerful in developing Kansas City and other cities that have grown rapidly and become business centers of great importance. Not only has it conduced to honest municipal government, but it has given investors faith in the city and been potent in securing industries and attracting the attention of the whole country to the advantages possessed by the city.

Such a spirit would help Duluth and push it forward even more rapidly than it is advancing now. Geographical location and natural advantages are all important in the building of a city, but you must let the world know all about them and convince outsiders that this is the coming commercial metropolis of the Northwest. Faith must be shown by the citizens in their own city, and a strong spirit of local pride must be cultivated. Every Duluthian should lose no opportunity to let the whole country know that he believes Duluth is the greatest place on earth—that it is the best, most fortunate and most desirable city in the country. This will cause other people to appreciate the city, and what a lot of people believe strongly enough is certain to come to pass. Action is stimulated by belief and results follow action.

WHERE ARE WE GOING?

An expedition recently started to Chili from the Lick observatory in California which is likely to furnish some valuable information to the people of this terrestial globe, when it returns. According to Garret P. Serviss, in Collier's Weekly, whose article on the subject is very interesting, the principal object of this expedition is to find out where we are all bound; and that is something we would all like to know. Everybody has heard that the solar system is flying swiftly toward the north. It is a plunging flight that carries us more than 43,000 miles straight through the ether every hour of the day and night. It is a motion that has nothing to do with the earth's annual revolution about the sun, except as it prevents that revolution from carrying the earth back turn and turn to the same spot in space. In truth, we never get back to the same place. Every new year comes in with the globe at a point more than 300,000,000 miles nearer to a very bright northern star, named Vega, than it was a year earlier. As far as the evidence now in hand goes, the flight of the sun toward the north is as straight as that of an arrow, but the path described by the earth, since it is compelled all the while to circle round and round the flying sun, is a great spiral. And thus we sweep onward, moving continually into new regions, running through what perils nobody can guess—perhaps none at all—and impelled by a force as mysterious as that which drew the unfortunate ship in the Arabian Nights to be wrecked on the Mountain of Adamant. It is this strange voyage of the sun and its worlds through the unexplored ocean of immensity that the California astronomers have gone to South America to investigate.

The only way in which we become aware of the great flight of the solar system is by watching the counter motions of the stars. We are like people on the deck of a ship moving swiftly through a crowded harbor. The direction and velocity of our motion are indicated by the changes in the apparent positions of the other craft and the shores around us. Ships ahead of us, which we are overhauling, loom continually larger; those behind, which we are leaving, dwindle in the distance. This does not quite apply in the case of the stars, because they are almost infinitely far away, and the change in their brightness resulting from an approach to those in the north, and our retreat from those in the south, is too slight to be noticed even from year to year. But, luckily, the waves of light do the work for us. The light of the stars toward which we are going has its undulations practically shortened by our swift approach, and the light of those which we are leaving behind has its undulations practically lengthened, and the spectroscope not only detects these changes in the light-waves, but enables us by their means to measure the rate of our motion, and also to deduce its exact direct.

The astronomers and scientists must figure this thing out for us in detail and warn us when the time comes when we are liable to bump into anything in our path. The people will depend on them.

The regular spring cry for farm help is again heard in the Southwest. The farmhand supply has been steadily decreased in recent years, owing to the movement of farm workers to the cities, attracted by the shorter hours and means of recreation after working hours. The employing farmers must give shorter hours and higher wages if they would retain their help.

The United States board of geographic names in 1897 decided that the proper way of spelling the name of the Chinese capital was "Pekin." Now it has reversed itself and declared "Peking" the correct form. But the majority of people will probably continue to spell it in the simpler way.

A bill has been passed by the New York general assembly to abolish the grade crossings in the borough of Brooklyn, of which there are nearly 200. Grade crossings should not be permitted in any city.

THE SUBMARINE BOATS.

The Marine Review, published at Cleveland, is inclined to make light of the fulsome praise accorded the submarine boats of the navy which has appeared from time to time in the magazines of the country. From reading the glowing accounts of these war adjuncts one would think that they had achieved great success, but according to the Review the submarine boat is not worth the space that has been given to it. It would be difficult, indeed, says this paper, to outline any points upon which the submarine has been a success, except, perhaps, the single point that it has successfully remained stationary on the bottom of a body of water for a few hours. But even this is a doubtful honor, for the crew suffered great physical and mental fatigue, and it is a foregone conclusion that they were not in a warlike mood at any time during the experiment. The submarine is without practical maneuvering power and all the experiments which have been held so far justify this statement. To flounder about is not to maneuver. It has no defensive qualities whatever in itself and its offensive qualities exist largely in the over-enthusiastic imaginations of the public.

The submarines building in the United States are propelled on the surface by a four-cylinder gasoline engine of 160 horse power. They are propelled under the water by storage batteries, indicating 70 horse power. In the recent trials of the Adder and Moccasin in Iconic bay the storage batteries ran down in three hours and the total radius of action did not exceed 21 knots. Of what earthly use, asks the Review, could any such instrument be against a ship in motion? Moreover, when the submarine is being steered with her conning tower out of water she must have a perfectly smooth sea to have any sense of direction. In the trough of the sea she cannot see anything at all except the waves rolling over her, and on the crest the spray blinds the vision of the lens. It is admitted that crews connot live in them except for periods of a few hours without breaking down both physically and mentally. Living in them is intolerable, for they cannot be heated, nor can any cooking be done in them. Testimony is yet to be adduced that the submarine is anything but a naval toy.

DANGER OF SMOKELESS POWDER.

The recent disaster on board the Iowa whereby several men were killed by the bursting of a big gun in the forward turret calls attention to the dangers of using smokeless powder in the army and navy. While no one of the investigators into the Iowa and other recent accidents has said that he believed the new powder was responsible for the casualties, there is an underlying feeling that it may have been the cause. A couple of months ago one of the guns of the Massachusetts exploded, killing several men and injuring others for life. A few weeks later a 12-inch gun of the Iowa burst as it was being fired. In the meantime the 8-inch guns of the new battleship Maine were being tried, and the terrific strain resulting from the high pressure lifted the guns loose from their emplacements and wrecked the deck of the vessel. The cause of the explosion on the Massachusetts is still very much a mystery; it is practically certain that the 12-inch rifle of the Iowa burst because of the extraordinary strain resulting from the use of slow-burning smokeless powder; while it is known that the mishap on the Maine was due to the wrenching of the guns which were fired under heavy pressure with smokeless powder. In one or two of these cases the power developed by the explosive was way beyond what the powder experts had figured on. The impression is growing through the army and navy that smokeless powder cannot be relied upon, and that when a gun is fired with it it is liable to show twice the power that was calculated on. Grave questions concerning the safety of the rifles, ships and men are coming up, and a searching inquiry is now ging on in an effort to get more accurate information regarding the explosive power of the reserve stock of powder that is on hand and of the new material that is now being manufactured.

No one has yet found out anything definite about the lasting qualities of smokeless powder. The experience of the army and navy has been that the longer this kind of powder is kept the stronger it becomes. For some causes not yet discovered, the powder deteriorates with age by certain chemical changes and becomes possessed of tremendous energy. A few years ago, shortly after the adoption of smokeless powder in the army, a gun was tried at Sandy Hook with a charge of powder a couple of years old. The weapon was blown to pieces by the explosion, while the registering gauge was found to have run up to the limit of its capacity and then burst. An inquiry resulted in the discovery that the powder had undergone changes which had given to it enormously increased power. As a result of this experience, it was necessary to call in all the smokeless powder that had been issued and manufacture an entirely new stock, the various forts being for a time without enough powder to fire a round of shots. The capabilities of black powder or known absolutely and its power decreases with age. There are certain qualities in smokeless powder that give to it an awful power, and until these are thoroughly understood and mastered there will always be more or less apprehension on the part of officers in using it.

It would seem that with the uncertainty existing concerning the qualities of smokeless powder thorough tests should be made before its final adoption in the navy. The old powder was pretty good, and effective work was done with it.

CHANCE FOR ARCHITECTS.

As was stated as a probability in these columns some time ago, the government has finally determined to give the architects of the country an opportunity to prepare plans for a large number of public buildings, which under the old arrangement, would have been drawn in the office of the supervising architect of the treasury department. The policy in the past has been to let private architects draw plans for buildings costing $1,000,000 or more, but owing to the overworked condition of the supervising architect's office it has been decided to apply the same system to certain of the smaller buildings. Ninety-four postoffices, court houses and other federal structures are to be erected from appropriations made at the last session, and when they are completed Uncle Sam will own 315 buildings in different cities of the country. The plans for the new buildings will be drawn under the provisions of the Tarsney act, which requires that not less than five outside architects submit plans for each structure. Permission to submit plans may be obtained from the secretary of the treasury. The successful architect receives a fee of 5 per cent of the total cost of the building, but those whose plans are rejected get nothing for their trouble. This opportunity should not be neglected by the ambitious architects of the Northwest.

There may be some encouragement for unappreciated literary geniuses in the statement by the New York Sun that the publishers now clamoring at the front door of Booth Tarkington's rural home had a chance at "Monsieur Beaucaire," but passed it by. The story went the rounds before it found a publisher.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Capt. R. D. Pike, of Bayfield, Wis., is at the Spalding hotel on his way home from a winter in California. He is a veteran of the civil war, and a member of the Minnesota commandery of the Loyal Legion, in which organization he is an enthusiastic member.

Capt. Pike served with Lieut. Custer, afterwards brigadier general and the martyr of the Sioux Indian expedition in 1876, at the battle of the Little Big Horn, and was with him on the plains, hunting the festive red man more than ten years before the massacre.

"I was a member of the First Michigan cavalry and was in the Army of the Potomac, when I first saw Gen. Custer, then a line officer," said Capt. Pike last night at the hotel. "The cavalry from Michigan was afterwards grouped and known as the Michigan brigade, and Gen. Custer was in charge. At the battle of Five Forks Col. Maxwell was wounded in the leg, and the regimental surgeon amputated it at the field hospital there, and I was sent with the rest of the regiment to the West to fight Indians on the plains.

"After a year, in 1865, spent out on the plains, I was mustered out at Salt Lake City, together with the regimental surgeon and others, and came back East again. Some years afterwards I met the surgeon, casually, and promised him that some time I would drop off at Salt Lake City, that being where we were mustered out. The colonel died there and is buried.

"Time has slipped by until it covers a period of thirty-eight years, and as I was returning from California this time I dropped off to see the surgeon. When I knew him, at the close of the war, he was a doughty young fellow with a short-clipped mustache; today he is bent and old, with a long gray beard, and five grown sons, scattered all over the country. We had quite a reunion after being apart for such a long time. He is parcticing medicine there and is an old resident of the place now.

"It seems hardly so long a time has passed since we left the army out in Salt Lake City, but then time flies."

Capt. Pike is young and active and looks about 50, instead of a decade more. He will leave for his home in Bayfield in a day or two.

O. W. Blodgett, of Bay City, one of the extensive vessel owners of Lake Huron, is at the Spalding, taking care of the opening of navigation for his boats here and on other Lake Superior points.

Capt. Blodgett is a busy man when he is under way and his boats begin moving.

There are times when he is doing several score of things at once around the lobby of the Spalding, and besides holding momentary conferences all day, he is the recipient of telegrams about every sixty seconds.

The calls for the messages are so frequent that no one could live around the hotel for a second day without finding out that Capt. Blodgett was there, by the incessant calls that greet the ear.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Red hair is to temperament what alcohol is to wine.

When a man sits down to write a love letter the less brains he puts into it the bigger the success it will be.

You can never make a woman who hasn't wavy hair believe that one who has can be absolutely trusted with men.

Just because a woman loves her husband is no sign that she thinks he has the brains he thinks he has.

The woman never lived who doesn't believe that she is more beautiful than lots of other women she knows.

Wireless Telegraphy at a Standstill.

New York Tribune: Months have elapsed since Marconi sent messages across the ocean from Cape Breton and Cape Cod to Poldhu, and many weeks have pased since he went back from this country to England. In all the intervening time it does not appear to have been possible to transmit messages in the opposite direction. The courteous replies which royalty made to the communication of the governor general of Canada and the president of the United States came by the unpoetic cable, and other dispatches which have since been filed at the English end of the line have remained unsent. Just what the trouble is one cannot easily guess. Now that a connection has been granted with the British land lines no official obstacle remains, apparently. If there was a lack of steam power at Poldhu it ought not to have taken many days to supply that want. Can it be that there is any serious inherent difficulty in transmitting to the westward?

Luck of a Knocker.

Indianapolis News: After falling heir to $300,000 the woman who is striving in the courts to obtain reinstatement in a war department clerkship, from which she was dismissed by Secretary Root, ought to be in a position not only to forget and forgive, but to turn up her nose at the whole department push.

LAUGHING REMARKS.

Somerville Journal: Young men have the advantage, anyway. The girl with a homely mouth can't cover it up by growing a moustache.

Chicago Post:" You see," he exclaimed, "the market is overstocked with the only thing I've been able to acquire."

"What is that?"

"Advice."

Washington Star: "So the Count Fuscads wants your hand in marriage!"

"I don't know," said Miss Cumrox, thoughtfully, "whether it is my hand he wants so much as father's signature."

Philadelphia Press: Miss Ann Teek—One of my greatest treasures is a 5-cent piece which was given to me brand new from the mint on my fifth birthday.

Miss Reitz—I suppose rare old coins like that do become very valuable.

Chicago Tribune: "The people of your country, I infer," said the passenger with the foreign accent, "are confronted with a race problem."

"We don't call it a problem," the man with the loud waistcoat responded. "Racin' nowadays is a game."

Somerville Journal: "Angelica's father? He is an old pirate!" exclaimed George, bitterly.

"Are you justified in saying that?" asked his mother, gently.

"Of course I am. I had evidence only last night that he is a free-booter."

Washington Star: "Don't you think you had better try to keep these people from circulating untruths about you?"

"No," answered Senator Sorghum; "if I can create the impression that I am habitually slandered I reckon I will be better off."

Philadelphia Press: "I hear," said the boss, "that you've been kicking because you've got so much to do."

"Well—er—yes," replied the clerk, "I did think—"

"Well, we'll have to give you so much more to do that you won't have time to kick."

WE LIKE HIS STYLE.

When Theodore is in our midst, we'll load him with applause.
His welcome will be honest goods devoid of warps and flaws;
We'll greet him with a grip of hand more eloquent than speech
And show him that we think he is a presidential peach.
There'll be no bending of the knee, no
fawning at his feet,
No exhibits of matchless beauty strewing flowers in the street.
But ever face will flash on him an honest
Western smile
In honest Western way because we like his Western style.

He once was reckoned one of us before he fell from grace.
The Western sun has burned the tan into his fearless face.
The Western breezes oft have sung to him their lullabies
As in his blanket bed he lay beneath the Western skies.
The Western storms have often tried his royal Western nerve.
But never from their rudest blasts has he been known to swerve.
And when he hits our camping ground,
the people, rank and file,
Will greet him with a whoop because we like his Western style.

Our Western eyes will look behind that mass he has to wear Called "presidential dignity" and see the comrade there,
And through that mask we hope to see
within his eyes the blaze
Of Western fire that sparkled there back in his Western days.
No party will be recognized in welcoming our guest,
But all will bunch together and will do their level best
To make a record-breaker of our hearty welcome while
He spreads his blankets in our camp, because we like his style.

What the Steamboat Does.

Washington Star: One day little Archie, 3 years of age, saw a railroad for the first time, and he did not know what to make of it. He ran to his mother and said:

"Oh, mamma, is that a steamboat looking for water?"

DEACON BAGSHOT'S BONNET

By Hayden Carruth.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Says Pickelson, looking at me as I sot in his store by the stove, says he: "Jeb Hatch, you do seem to know everything that's going on in Hawleyburgh, and that's a fact. Now wot's the rights of all this talk 'bout that bonnet Deacon Bagshot got for his wife—I hear various and mizellaneous and nonagreeing stories."

"Pick," says I, "I leave gossip to them as takes pleasure in the same. I'm no talker, and you know it. I don't have to take no course in these here physical culture schools with the big arm muscles to be able to keep my mouth shet. Not, however, that I'm no wonderful phenomenoh, fit to be showed afore the crowned heads of Europe, as can keep my ears shet. Them are always open, "Pick," says I, "but these here lips are hermetrickly sealed on gossip." Then Pickelson went back and begun sprinkling the brown sugar and didn't say no more, and I kem home and am going to write out them facts in connection with the bonnet, it being my igee to sell 'em to the noospapers.

You see, old Deacon Bagshot took a notion to go down to New York for a little visit. Hadn't never been there before. Few of us has. Dangerous place. Wot with them there cable cars, chasing each other 'bout a foot apart, and them elevated cars hopping off the track and the engine exploding on the sidewalk like a torpeter, and the oughtohmowbeels getting their backs up and running away, and the policemen a-swinging their clubs, and these here greengoods men waiting for you and scandalously overcharging you, and the whole place dug up holler with tunnels, it's no place for an honest man.

However, old Deacon Bagshot said he had business there and he was a-going, Mrs. Bagshot 'lowed she'd go along, too. "Now, Mercy," says the deacon, "you don't want to get no such romantic notions into your head. You just wait till I go down on pleasure some time, and you shall go along. This time I'm going on business. I shan't have time to fool around none. You just stay to home and I'll fetch you back something—most anything you say in reason."

"Why," says Mrs. Bagshot, "I ain't overly sot on going. Expect I'd get scart our o' my wits. But I thought I'd just like to pick me out a new spring bonnet and have the latest thing for once in my life—down at the store I do believe they get further and farther behind the style every year."

"There, now, don't you say another word," says the deacon. "I'll get you a bonnet—latest thing."

"Why, what do you know about bonnets?" says Mrs. Bagshot.

"Well, no great heap, that's a fact," says the deacon. "But I'll just go to one of them big stores and I'll tell the manager that I want the latest thing in bonnets for my wife, and he'll know just wot to give me."

The end of it was that she said all right and he started off.

Well, now, it ain't for me to say, me not being no talker, nature having certainly give me a way to keep still, but just as certainly having neglected to provide any trapdoor for my ears. I can't help knowing a thing or two. As which the deacon did stay a week longer than he let on he should and his business called for. That he did certainly take along $12 more than his expenses could possibly eat up, counting in the extra week. That he did certainly get home dead broke and without a red cent in his pocket. That he did certainly look thin and drawed when he got back, and his eyes was red. By which, putting two and two together and getting the result, and none to carry, and proving the whole operation, and looking up the answer in the back of the book, I do find that the deacon had been having a gay time in New York, and losing sleep and drinking shandygaff and stuff and smoking cigars. All of which I don't say a word about, but which I know well enough.

Well, when the deacon at last appeared in the buzzum of his fambly you better believe Mrs. Bagshot looked at him some. "You ain't here, are you?" says she, regular sarcastic.

"I didn't forget the bonnet, Mercy," says the deacon, not letting on as he heard her outrageous observation.

"Well, you took time enough to think of a whole millnary store," says she.

"It cost," says the deacon, "like all get out, but I was bound you should have a good one. It's the latest thing. They'll be cheaper after awhile," and the deacon sot the pasteboard box on the table.

Mrs. Bagshot opens the box and takes out the bonnet, and holds it off and looks at it. "Well, now," she says, "it looks a little old-fashioned to me."

"Oh, of course it is in a general way," says the deacon. "All the old fashions have come around again."

"Yes, that's so," says Mrs. Bagshot.

Then she gets up and tries it on before the looking glass and says she: "Well, maybe the way it comes up around my face is rather becoming, but I don't think blue is the color for me exactly."

"They're all bloo this spring," says the deacon. "Why, good land, Mercy, that's an imported bonnet right from Paris."

"You don't tell me," says the wife, taking it off and holding it at arm's length, being some scandalized, as well she might be, Paris being such a wicked place. But she put it back on and said she reckoned the color would do well enough, after all, and that if it was the latest thing it must be all right, and that she would wear it, even if it did come from Paris, with all its tarnation wickedness.

Well, we may be some in the woods, and fashions and them things may penetrate into our midst slow, but when we do get hold of something new we just take right to it 'specially our women folks do. Of course there was some talk at first when it got noised around that Mrs. Bagshot had got a bonnet from Paris, and there was them that said it was scandalous, not only on account of Paris with its b'iled down and concentrayted wickedness, but on the p'int that the deacon couldn't afford to buy no such expersive contrivances. But the first Sunday Mrs. Bagshot put it on and sailed right down front at church and sot there firm and cool's a toad under a cabbage leaf, and that settled it—every woman wanted one just like it. Not another word about the wickedness of Paris or the expense. They just all made a dead set at their husbands for a bonnet like it.

Well, if you're a married man you know how it is when a woman gets her mind sot—might's well throw up your hands and surrender. Which the men done, and come to the deacon and asked him where they could get some more bonnets of just that particular breed. But the deacon he shakes his head and says it can't be done, that being a special importation and there being no more of the kind in the kentry. Which satisfied the men unannermous, but only made the women rampage all the harder. And Mrs. Polkberry and two or three others ap'inted themselves a committee to wait on the deacon and rastle with him on the subject.

She catches Lim at home. Mrs. Polkberry does, and says she:

"Deacon," says Mrs. P., "so you think there couldn't be no more of them bonnets got, do you?"

"Ah, no, Mrs. Polkberry," says the deacon, smiling sort o' superior like. "I took the entire importation. Bound Mercy should have the best, you know, she having been a dutiful wife and raised a large fambly of young 'uns, and fetched 'em through the measles and them infant ailments successful."

"But don't you think more bonnets like her'n could be imported?" says Mrs. Polkberry.

"Well, now, that might be," says the deacon, looking sort o' far away and an igee seeming to come into his mind. "That might possibly be managed. I s'pose I might perhaps if I was to go down to the city again mebby get some more of 'em brought over to the kentry, you see."

"Could you give us any notion of the cost?" goes on Mrs. Polkberry.

"Well, now, speaking of cost," says the deacon, still mighty thoughtful and deep, "it might be a rigit smart sum, though mebby not more'n 'bout $5 apiece, say, if I got sev'ral, or around sev'ral somewhere, more or less," and all the time him looking out the winder and doing some mighty close figgering inwardly. "Reckon I might agree to get 'em for a passel of you at five apiece if I went down and seen about it pussonally," him still thoughtful.

Well, the women wan't a bit flabbergasted by this, but said they'd take 'em, and the deacon promised to start the next day. And Mrs. Bagshot brought out her own bonnet and was a-trying it on again, and the women was ad-admiring it, when in walks Cynthia Ann Clark, darter of old D. J. K. Clark, just come up on the stage for spring vacation from the Watertown Female Academy, and she ooks at the bonnet and says she: "Well, I declare to goodness, if you ain't got one of them Salvation Army bonnets with the label took off!"

And Mrs. Bagshot she riz up, and the rolling pin being right handy, and she being a firm woman which had raised a large fambly and fetched 'em through them there complications of childhood successful, she just brought the deacon one with the said rolling pin, him looking guilty and showing by misface that he knowed wot the bonnet was all the time; and him I may add for the next week living at the General Jackson hotel, she not allowing him to come near his own fireside, and Doc Tucker saying that two pounds more steam behind the pin would a-fractured the deacon's skull sure as guns.

All of which happened, but none of which I talk about at Hawleyburgh, not being no hand at gossip, but having the use of my ears, one on each side of my head, as aforesaid.

Roar of the Old Maids.

Kansas City Star: The old maids' convention now being held at Rochester, N. Y., has severely criticised President Roosevelt's "anti-race suicide" speech and has practically told the chief executive to mind his own business. Miss Amelia Higginson, president of the convention, said: "He can safely leave the question of babies in the hands of the patient, self-sacrificing women of this republic." Perhaps this spinster is right, but it would be obviously unsafe to leave it to the old maids' convention.

EXODUS OF JEWS

From the Old World to the New Is Wonderful.

Problem of Races That Is Confronting New York City.

New York, April 22—Leo N. Levi recently delivered an address before the Sons of the Covenant, this city, relative to the Jewish problem now confronting this city, which is exciting widespread attention from thinkers, philosophers and practical philanthropists of the race.

There is a wonderful exodus from the old world to the new, of such a general character that, in the language of Mr. Levi, it "promises soon to change the habitat of the Jews to the Western hemisphere," and he asserts that there are now "more Jews in New York than have been together at any one time and place since the destruction of Jerusalem."

By far the greater part of these immigrants are from Russia, but still Galicia, Roumania and Hungary are largely represented. They have settled on the east side of the city, changing its appearance so much that today it looks more like a foreign city than one founded in America. Even as far back as fifty years ago the Jews of this city were without cohesion, if not really discordant, for the Spanish and Portuguese Jews held themselves aloof from the others, as if they were of a superior type. Mr. Levi says of their various characteristics that the English Jews were "insular in their ideas," the German Jews resented the arrogance of the Spanish and Portuguese, and small groups were formed, each jealous and in a measure hostile to the other. Notwithstanding their factional differences to the outside world, they remained a peculiar people; the Gentile never failing to remind them by his manner that they were Jews. This prejudice still continues, and the only way to remove it is to surrender their religion, which, Mr. Levi says, they will never do.

The mission of the Sons of the Covenant and of other Jewish orders and organizations is to provide for the common protection and advancement of the whole race, a work needing much systematic and organized effort, because immigration is throwing on this community a volume of Jewish poverty and of alien ignorance of American conditions. Quoting Mr. Levi literally:

"A million Jews in this country and the tremendous annual accessions to their numbers must be guided and welded into an ultimate civilization which shall be alike adorned by patriotism and the traditional virtues of Israel. The poor, the widows, the orphans, the sick, the ignorant and the down-trodden must be looked after, congested districts must be relieved, homes established, evil tendencies checked, virtues implanted and restored."

It was David Blaustein who described the Russian Jews as "intellectual," the Galicians as "emotional," the Roumanians as "frivolous" and the Hungarians as "imaginative," for with the Russians the highest thing is Jewish scholarship, with the Galicians "piety," while the Roumanians believe in the enjoyment of life, leaving the Hungarians to dream, invent and study. The Jews now pouring into the east side do not regard themselves as among the "submerged, ignorant speakers of an outlandish gibberish;" but, on the contrary, they refer to the uptown Ghetto, where dwell the rich and fashionable Jews, as the special abode of Jewish ignorance, while they, themselves, in their own Ghetto, represent learning and illumination.

The Russian Jews are divided by empire lines, those from the west of Russia speaking Yiddish almost universally, while those from the south talk Russian oftener than Yiddish, and are less scrupulous in the observance of the Jewish religion. From their ranks many Nihilists are drawn. Those from the west come from Jewish communities which have their own marriage and divorce laws, and they are restive because of the difficulty in keeping their own Sabbath and their racial and religious independence. However, they are the best educated, and from their ranks are drawn the men who go to American universities and become scholars of the highest standing.

The Galicians are also strong, and they are so exclusive that the Galician children are not sent to the public schools, but are taught (10,000 of them) in 297 Jewish religious schools where the prayer-book is the principal textbook used, and where but 300 girls attend on the ground that "girls do not require religious knowledge," and there is no other instruction. It is the pleasure-loving Roumanians who patronize the four Jewish theaters on the east side, and have brought into existence the cafes so abundant now in that section of the city. Although there are 350 synagogues on the lower east side, only two of them are Roumanian, showing that the Roumanians, as asserted by Blaustein, are "indifferent to religion."

In this respect, however, they do not differ materially from very many Jews of New York city not of their nationality.

YOUNG LADY PLIED SWITCH

On His Back When Vickery Came to Marry Her.

Fairburn, Ga., April 22.—A unique effort at getting married occurred at Mong, in this county. Arthur Vickery, a young swain of the neighborhood, was very much smitten with the charms of Miss Mary Johnson, a daughter of a prominent and well-to-do citizen.

Vickery decided to get married to the young lady of his choice, and he accordingly procured a marriage license from Ordinary W. S. Mc Lain, of this county, and, calling on Justice W. J. Scarborough, of Mong, to perform the ceremony, the would-be-bridegroom and the justice proceeded to the residence of the bride.

Arriving there it was found that the young lady knew nothing of the proposition that she was so soon to become a bride, and she entered a positive demurrer to the visitor's petition and proposition.

The young lady's father also vetoed the matter and for a while there was a commotion. The irate and indignant father offered the would-be son-in-law the alternative of taking a sound thrashing, to be administered by the young lady herself, and then leave the country, or worse consequences.

The young man chose the former and the young lady was accordingly provided with a good hickory switch, which she proceeded to "lay on" the young fellow after the most approved manner. The young man is now in exile, and doubtless thinks marriage is a failure.

ONLY TWO LEFT

Of Men Who Carried Martyred Lincoln's Remains to Grave.

Six Removals and Reinterments of Body of Lincoln.

Washington, April 22.—Monday was the anniversary of the funeral of Abraham Lincoln, which occurred on April 20, 1865. Of the distinguished men who carried to the grave all that remained mortal of the martyred president but two remains in life, and in a short cycle of time they, too, will be gathered to their fathers.

One of the two survivors is a resident of Washington, Henry G. Worthington, who at the time represented the comparatively new state of Nevada in the house of representatives. The other is former Representative Coffroth of Bedford, Penn. The latter is getting along in years, but is still active in the practice of law in his home town. Several years ago he was mentioned in connection with the Democratic nomination for governor of the Keystone state, but his party took up another standard bearer.

Worthington is still active, although time has whitened his hair and beard. He is a familiar figure about the capitol when congress is in session, and he is possessed of a fund of reminiscences which he can relate with rare interest. Worthington was with the filibuster Walker on one of the latter's expeditions. He was a member of the legislature of California in the days when Grant lived in the Golden state, and they became warm friends there.

A glance at the official list of the pallbearers at the funeral of Lincoln will show how death has wiped out a small army of men who were famous in these United States a third of a century ago. The list as prepared by the government at the time follows:

Senate of the United States—
Lafayete Foster, Connecticut.
Edwin D. Morgan, New York.
Reverdy Johnson, Maryland.
Richard Yates, Illinois.
Benjamin Wade, Ohio.
John Conness, California.
House of Representatives—
Henry L. Dawes, Massachusetts.
Andrew Coffroth, Pennsylvania.
Green Clay Smith, Kentucky.
Schuyler Colfax, Indiana.
Henry G. Worthington, Nevada.
Elihu Washburne, Illinois.
United States Army—
Gen. U. S. Grant.
Gen. H. W. Halleck.
Gen. W. A. Nichols.
United States Navy—
Vice Admiral D. Farragut.
Rear Admiral W. B. Shubrick.
Gen. J. Zelm, Marine corps.
Civilians—
Orville S. Browning, Massachusetts.
Thomas Corwin, Ohio.
Simon Cameron, Pennsylvania.

Since the interment of the remains at Springfield, Ill., on May 4, 1865, there have been six removals and reinterments of the body of Lincoln. On the latter date the casket was placed in the public receiving tomb at Oak Ridge cemetery. During the summer of 1865 a temporary tomb was built on the hillside, a few rods from the site of a proposed monument, and the remains of the president removed thereto, on the 21st day of December of that year. The construction of the monument was so far advanced that on Sept. 19, 1871, there was a second removal of the casket to the catacomb therein, which was intended for its permanent resting place.

On Oct. 15, 1874, the monument having been completed, was dedicated with appropriate and imposing ceremonies. From that time the casket was, as it had been since 1871, contained in a white marble sarcophagus within the catacomb, through the iron grating doors of which it was in full view of visitors. On Oct. 7, 1878, an attempt was made by vandals to steal the body and hold it for a large reward. The attempt was fortunately thwarted, and the two villains were in due time arrested, tried, convicted and sent to the penitentiary.

After this attempt it was deemed prudent that the remains should be taken from the saracophagus and secretly interred, far within the inner chambers of the monument, and six feet beneath the surface of the earth. That was the third removal. Mrs. Lincoln having died before that date, her remains were interred beside those of the president. After the lapse of several years another and presumably final removal was deemed fitting, and accordingly the earth beneath the marble floor of the catacomb to the depth of six or seven feet was removed, a large vault walled up and overarched with brick. The casket of the president and Mrs. Lincoln were transferred thereto, and the whole covered to the depth of four or five feet with solid concrete, upon which the marble floor of the catacomb was relaid. That was the fourth removal.

From that time until March 10, 1900, the bodies remained undisturbed, when the fifth removal became necessary, as the earth, to the depth of twenty-five feet beneath the entire structure, down to the solid rock, was removed and the monument rebuilt upon enduring foundations. When the work was completed a sixth removal, and the final one, was made, and the "pathetic dust" of our martyred president, with his wife, three children and the grandson who bore his name, were consigned to their final earthly resting place.

On this last occasion, which took place Sept. 26, 1901, in spite of the protest of his only living son, the body of Abraham Lincoln was exposed to light in the presence of a small assemblage of men and women. The metallic coffin that for more than thirty-six years had contained the ashes of the president was forced open and each of the party present gazed on what was left of the features.

Just who was responsible for the opening of the casket in spite of the avowed opposition of Robert T. Lincoln it is difficult to ascertain. It was generally admitted by those present, however, that the opposition to expose the body met with a vigorous protest, and it was only after considerable discussion that such a course was resolved upon. Then, it is said, everyone in the assemblage was pledged to secrecy regarding the procedure.

It was admitted by several of those who witnessed the exposure that it was much more shocking than had been expected. In fact, it was generally agreed that had all the grewsome features of the project been anticipated, the plan would have been abandoned. To the surprise of everyone, when the features were exposed they were as white as chalk. This unexpected disclosure served to further increase the agitation that had been caused, and after a short exposure, the coffin was sealed again.

LIVES IN PERIL FROM TURKS

Mme. Tsilka Tells Why They Fled From Macedonia.

New York, April 22.—Mme. Tsilka, the companion of Miss Helen Stone during their captivity of 172 days in the hands of Bulgarian brigands, is the guest of Miss Judd, a former schoolmate, at Summit, N. J. This is Mme. Tsilka's first visit to America since her release from captivity.

"We came to America because of the conditions that prevail in Macedonia, which render it extremely dangerous for a person of intelligence to remain in that country," said Mme. Tsilka. "A revolution of the Christians against the Turks is in progress, and the latter have a perfect horror of all persons known to have in their possession any considerable number of books, without regard to what the books contain. We have a large library in our home in the city of Kortche, and this fact directed suspicion against my husband, and we were satisfied that the Turks would arrest him without reason at the first opportunity.

"My brother, Constantin Stephano, who is a graduate of Yale college, went to Turkey from America last fall for the purpose of visiting his parents, and while there the Turkish government ordered his arrest because they were informed that he had been seen examining some maps. He is still in jail and will probably be held a prisoner indefinitely. All of this fear is due to a suspicion that every intelligent person is in league with the revolutionists.

"Miss Stone and myself would not, I think, have been released by the brigands but for the fact that they were afraid that a stronger band would come along at any minute and take us and secure the ransom that had been offered for us.

"The government made no serious attempt to stop the work of the outlaws after the experience of Miss Stone and myself, and I don't believe that anything will ever be done either to restrict or stop it. A large proportion of the army is in sympathy with the brigands, and I know of instances where soldiers sent to capture the outlaws have instead held meetings with them in the mountains, enjoyed their feasts and divided with them the money paid as ransoms for captives."

SIGNING MEN

Manager Van Praagh Getting Players For Ball Team.

Two From Ashland Team ---Ball Park Will Be Fine.

Rapid progress is reported in preparations for the opening of the Northern league season.

Manager Van Praagh says the Duluth players will report here for preliminary practice two weeks from tomorrow.

Yesterday, Leonard, the Ashland catcher, and Armstead, the Ashland third baseman, signed Duluth contracts and will be given a thorough tryout. A good catcher is especially desired now that it seems certain that Kline will not sign.

In the department of twisting slants, Manager Van Praagh promises several pleasant surprises for the people of fandom. Just who these pitchers will be is not known but they will probably be under contract within a few days.

The new ball park will be about the finest on the circuit. Plans and specifications for the grand stands and bleachers have been completed and proposals for the construction will be received at any time. It is likely that the grounds will be ready for practice by the time the players report and while the formal opening will be reserved until the first home game of the league schedule, Manager Van Praagh expects to play a series of exhibition games with strong local amateur nines.

A new feature may be added to the games here this year—the new grounds will not be as large as the old Oneota driving park and it may be possible to drive the ball over the fence occasionally for a home run. This will be a difficult proposition, however, and there is talk of offering a prize for the first Northern league player that does it.

Indications are that there will be an entire new team to represent this city. The old players that have been wearing the Duluth uniform for past three or four seasons are not responding to the contracts very enthusiastically and seem to desire their private business and trades rather than leave the shop and store for the season's junketing over the league circuit.

However, there is no lacking of promising material for every mail brings Manager Van Praagh inquiries from apparently fast men that say they will furnish the best of references.

SEEDING IS PROGRESSING

Government Crop Reports From Two Spring Wheat States.

Seeding is in progress in the grain-growing districts of the Northwest and in some sections is more advanced than last year. The crop report for North Dakota for the week ending Monday, is as follows:

Compared with last year, the season is more advanced than it was then, although complaints of this season being backward are general. Wheat seeding is now in progress in all parts of the state, being more advanced in the southern and eastern portions than in the western and northern ones. The weather has been very favorable, the soil is generally in excellent condition and more land is now available for cultivation than is usual at this time.

In some few places, rye and oats have been sown, but as a rule, but very little else than wheat has been put in.

Grass is starting well in all parts of the state, having been retarded by cool weather, but the latter part of the past week having turned much warmer than it has been, accompanied by good showers over considerable of the western portion, has promoted a rapid growth.

The Minnesota report says:

In the exreme southeastern counties of the state the rains of the previous week continued till the 14th; elsewhere there was dry weather till the 18t... when light rains began in the southwestern part of the state, becoming general during the day, except in the Red River valley. The mornings were cool till the 17th, with freezing temperatures. After that date the temperatures were moderate. Except in the southeast, where the early part of the week was wet, the weather has been very favorable for all farm work, and the seeding of wheat was general till the 18th, though work was hindered somewhat in the early mornings by frozen surface soil. Considerable oats and barley have also been seeded. Most of the seeding has been done on the high and light lands, as the heavy soils and flat lands are still wet. In a few places in the southwest, the early sown wheat, oats and barley are beginning to come up. Clover, winter rye and wheat, and small fruits seem to have passed through the winter well. The pastures are becoming green, but the amount of nourishment afforded by them is still small.

ANOTHER ONE ON MACHEN

Secret Order That Set Aside a Standing Postal Law.

Washington, April 22.—The Bristow sleuths who are investigating postoffice department scandals have unearthed a secret order promulgated by General Superintendent Machen of the free delivery, which set aside one of the standing postal laws. The order required postmasters to prepare and post in their offices lists of all patrons of rural free delivery routes, and those who made the discovery claim that the order was made at the instance of large mail order houses who for years have sought to set aside postal laws which provide that neither postmasters nor members of postmasters' families may furnish lists of names of persons receiving mail at their offices.

The inspectors have discovered that the order in question was prepared in Mr. Machen's office under date of Dec. 10, 1902. It was signed by First Assistant Postmaster General Wynne, who says he affixed his signature under a misapprehension. It did not make its appearance in the correspondence division until Feb. 13, two months after it was signed. The order has never been published in the Postal Guide or Daily Bulletin, although such orders or modifications are generally issued with considerable formality and carefully classified for the purpose of modifying the regulations when the code is revised. It is claimed by the inspectors that this violation of the postal law was made only after mail order houses had tried in vain to secure a repeal of the rule prohibiting the publication of lists by the authorized officials. Mr. Machen, when questioned concerning the order, admitted that it originated with him, but asserted that he did not know that it repealed one of the standing laws of the department.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE

Of Schwartz From Caboose Which Was Telescoped.

Miles City, Mont., April 22.—Carl Schwartz, of Forsyth, had an almost miraculous escape in a collision which occurred at Hathaway, twenty-two miles west of here, when the engine on an extra train east ran into the caboose of another freight. The caboose and four cars were burned.

Schwartz was asleep in the caboose when he heard someone call to him to jump. The trainmen all got off, but he was too late and started for the front of the car just a moment before the engine struck, knocking the stove down and sending everything inside flying after him.

The engine went almost the entire length of the car, and Schwartz was pinned fast while fire began to blaze about him. His feet were fast, but he slipped out of his overshoes and managed to get loose. The only injury he received was about the hip, and that is not serious. It took about five hours to clear away the wreck.

PIONEERS GOING AWAY.

Lived In Minnesota For Past Fifty Years.

Anoka, Minn., April 22.—Andrew Roe and two sisters, Miss Sylvia and Miss Mary Roe, aged 90, 82 and 78, residents of Maple Grove Hennepin county, for the past fifty years, have decided at last that Minnesota winters are too rigid, and left yesterday for Washington state, where they will start a fruit farm. There are many old people in this vicinity who are grandmothers and grandfathers now, who went to school in the '50s to Miss Sylvia Roe. She taught the first school north of Minneapolis, and was teacher in the first frame school building in Osseo, Hennepin county.

CURES CATARRH

"Hyomei the Most Wonderful Cure for Catarrh Ever Discovered," Says Mayor Yard.

Do not try to cure catarrh by taking drugs into the stomach; it cannot be cured in that manner. The only way in which this too common disease can be cured is through a direct application that will kill the bacilli of catarrh and prevent their growth.

Hyomei is the only known method of treatment that accomplishes this. It is the simplest, most pleasant and the only absolute cure for catarrh that has ever been discovered.

Thousands of unsolicited testimonials have been received from the most prominent men and women in the country who have been cured by this remarkable remedy. Ministers, bankers, lawyers, even eminent physicians have sent strong testimonials as to the remarkable powers of Hyomei to cure catarrh.

Former Mayor Emory M. Yard, of Trenton, N. J., writes: "You have my permission to say that I believe 'Hyomei' to be one of the most wonderful cures for catarrh and throat trouble that has ever been discovered. In my case the effect has been marvelous. I enclose you money order for two outfits for friends of mine to whom I have recommended 'Hyomei' and who I am anxious shall have the benefit of this remarkable panacea."

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, consisting of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei to last over a month. This will effect a cure in ordinary cases, but for chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh, longer use is necessary, and then extra bottles of Hyomei, (a month's treatment) can be obtained for 50 cents. It is not alone the best (it might be called the only) method of curing catarrh, but it is also the most economical.

S. F. Boyce has so much confidence in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrh that he will, for a limited time, sell this medicine under his personal guarantee to refund the money if the purchasers can say that it did not help them.

HANNA ON LABOR

Ohio Senator Makes a Hit at a Columbus Banquet.

Replies to Speech of President Parry at New Orleans.

Columbus, Ohio, April 22.—Senator Hanna was last night the guest of honor at a banquet tendered the delegates to the convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers that is now holding its twenty-eighth annual session here. He was invited as the chairman of the Civic Federation to speak about the National Civic Federation and its work, but he took occasion also to reply to the recent annual address at the New Orleans convention of President Parry of the American Association of Manufacturers on the relations between organized employers and organized labor, in which his audience was so sympathetic as to respond in unusual demonstrations of approval. There were 350 plates turned. After addresses by J. D. Morgan, state inspector of shops, and Joseph Bishop, secretary of the Ohio board of arbitration, Senator Hanna was introduced shortly before midnight and spoke as follows:

"Mr. Toastmaster and Members of the Amalgamated Association, President Shaffer and the Brigade of Lead Pencils (laughter and applause): First let me thank you most heartily for this cordial and kind reception, and let me further thank you for the privilege as well as the honor of being your guest tonight. I have always felt that when the time might come that men in the strife and contest of life could be made to see that there is no difference in the brotherhood of men, the beginning of the end would be in sight. You have accorded me as a toast "The Civic Federation and Its Work." The Civic Federation was organized about five years ago in the city of Chicago. Its purpose was the discussion of economic questions by distinguished men of the country for educational purposes. Some one connected with that organization conceived the idea that a more practical effect could be given to the work by inaugurating different bureaus that should deal with different industries and different business methods.

"The industrial bureau of the Civic Federation was conceived about three years ago. Very soon after that I was invited to become a member. Before doing so I wanted to know the object and the methods to be pursued by that organization. I wanted to know the basic principles upon which they proposed to operate, and when I found that the men engaged in the organization were composed of leaders of labor organizations co-operating with public-spirited men professedly with the intention to do all that was possible to human agency to better the conditions of labor and bring into contact the employer and the employe, looking to the mutual benefit of each, I became satisfied that if those principles were adhered to, if the men engaged in that work were in earnest, that great good might be accomplished. Having become satisfied upon those points, I joined the organization. Briefly, I will give you simply the preface to our constitution and by-laws."

Here the speaker read the preface to the constitution and by-laws of the Civic Federation, at the conclusion of which Chairman Bishop arose and pinned upon the lapel of the senator the badge of the Amalgamated association.

"Mr. Toastmaster, I accept the insignia, accept it as a gift which I shall honor and respect, and, I hope, deserve my initiation as a member. (Great applause.)

"Briefly to recount what has passed in the last two years and a half I simply want to say that from the outset I found those who are engaged in this work to be earnest, honest and faithful men. I found, on the part of those representing the labor organizations, twelve men, and the men representing the employers, twelve in number, and another twelve which we term our 'upper house,' chosen from distinguished public men, who were not directly interested in the employment of industrial labor, the object being in that distribution of force to bring together in common interest those who represented every phase of industrial life. Those selections were made with care and consideration as to the character of the men chosen, not only for their interest in this great problem, but their interest in the cause of humanity. (Great applause).

"Our first year's work was principally of organization, and yet the conditions of the country soon brought us face to face with problems and gave us the opportunities to test the zeal and the interest of those engaged in the work. There was no faltering, no hesitation to grapple with any problem, but an earnest desire that we might earn for ourselves the confidence of the whole people by honest and disinterested treatment of the subjects before us. I knew, then, as I know now, that we had to combat with prejudices which had grown up in the management of our industrial affairs between the employer and the employe; I knew that the great public at large were doubting as to the practicability to say that the press of the United States, without an exception to my knowledge, wished us God-speed in the work. (Great applause). And, while many people expressed their doubts and many thought that we were undertaking a work so stupendous and so full of difficulties that we could not succeed, never for one moment were we interfered with in the work. (Great applause).

"Subsequently, events have proven that instead of looking possible or probable failure in the face, every month and every year has brought good results which have encouraged those of us who are performing the services, so that today, my friends, I am glad in this presence to be able to say that we are not only encouraged in the work thus far, but encouraged far beyond our fondest hopes in the outlook for the future. We start with the motto of the Golden Rule; our basic principles are founded upon right and justice among men. (Applause).

"We start from the standpoint of a determination to accomplish that which will be best for all, the employer and the employe. We start with a determination that no matter what the obstacle, no matter what the difficulties that can strew our pathway, feeling that we are right, and with earnest desires to do that which is right, recognizing the mutual interest which is embodied in this proposition, we are going forward encouraged at every step we take. I say a mutual interest, because you cannot separate the interests of these two great factors which underlie our development and prosperity, one as necessary as the other, one equally important each to the other. I am glad, brothers—(at this point the speaker was interrupted by tumultuous applause)—to have this opportunity to pay tribute to the Amalgamated association, to have known it intimately since the day of its birth; I am glad to pay tribute to this old veteran, who was its first president—(great applause as the speaker placed his hand upon the shoulder of Toastmaster Bishop)—and to those who have followed after. Two of them are here tonight to speak for themselves, and I am glad, further, to have the opportunity to say that the underlying principles of the Amalgamated association have been my text, the guiding spirit of all the work that I havee ver undertaken in the interests of labor. (Great applause).

"In other branches of business, notably the United Mine Workers following that example, we have had for five consecutive years absolute peace and comfort. I advocate the doctrine, recognizing the fact that you cannot separate the interests of the employer and the employes; there must be a common ground upon which the employer and the employe can meet in friendly terms, with the determination to do what is right, and feeling that that is the solution of the whole question the Amalgamated association were the pioneers in this work and their conservatism—mentioned by the toastmaster tonight—has been the foundation of their success. Pursue that policy, my friends, meeting conditions as conditions change; meet opportunities as opportunities offer for your own advancement, for your own betterment, but always with a spirit of conciliation and conservatism and you will be leaders representing labor in this great movement. (Prolonged applause.)

"With but one notable exception I want also to publicly state that in the experience of the last two years, when those methods have been pursued, there has not been a failure—not one—not a failure. Now is it not encouraging after such success in two short years—is it not encouraging to all of those who have this great interest at heart, to go on with this work?"

"There are many who criticise, many unbelievers and doubters as to the fruition of this great question, but my reply to them is that the men who at long range criticise and doubt the future of a settlement of this great question only demonstrate their ignorance. They do not know the workings of it.

"As an evidence of that, with your permission, I want to allude to the recent utterances of the president of an organization known as the Manufacturers' association. I have nothing personal against Mr. Parry. I have the highest respect for that organization, because I know a great deal about its personnel, and I know that it is composed of liberal, high-minded men. I say that it is unfortunate that that question should be considered in so public way, in so drastic a way, by one who from his own statements does not understand the question. (Prolonged cheering.) It is stated thus (reading) organized labor knows but one law and that is the law of physical force—the law of the Huns and vandals, the law of the savage. All its purposes are accomplished either by actual force or by the threat of force.' That is not true. (Applause).

"In controversion of these statements I am able to bear witness for facts that within the last two years in connection with this work of the civic federation it has been demonstrated that this question in the interest of organized or unorganized labor has required more thoughtful and careful consideration from all classes of the American people than ever before.

"I honestly believe that the majority of that very organization stands exactly in that position."

"There is no part of business nor transaction in which everybody is agreed and satisfied. It is beyond the power of human nature—we are all selfish—to expect that in every transaction, in every business of life there should be an exact agreement. Just in proportion to a man's to earn for himself a betterment of condition there will be a strife on part to attain it, and as far as that encroaches upon those on the other side of this question, who are working for some object, there will be a natural resistance. But there is always a neutral ground, always a mutual place, where these great forces can meet and at least consider the situation. There has been in connection with these labor troubles and disturbances many things I cannot condone.

"It is perfectly natural that in times like these of unrivalled prosperity and of organization of new societies of labor, organized for the same purpose, with the same desire to better their condition, but unacquainted and inexperienced in the application of it, mistakes shall be made. I cannot nor do I believe that there is a man within the sound of my voice who will condone any violation of the law, any interference with personal rights of his neighbor, but in all communities, in all countries, among all shades of people, we will find men who are not considerate, either of the moral or legal law, to the extent that they do not transgress.

"But we can make it better, and as we make it better we lay the foundation which will result in better conditions for all classes. (Long continued applause). This is a work of education. This organization with thirty years' experience having had the benefit of that experience is more competent and better fitted than those who have lately come into the movement.

"It is not fair that because overt acts have been committed by irresponsible parties to say to such an organization as this, 'we condemn you because there have been individual cases—perhaps too many of them, those in the interests of labor, whether organized or unorganized, have persued a policy antagonistic to social and moral laws.' (Applause).

"It is not within our province to condemn in a wholesale way this great movement because of those conditions, but rather it is a duty—a sacred duty for us to use all the efforts and influences in the circles of labor and in the ranks of capital to bring about a condition of things which will prevent the occurrence and reoccurrence of such conditions. Why, my friends, there is nothing in religion that appeals more strongly to human nature than a determination on the part of every good man to do all in his power to benefit his fellow man and society.

"And I say shame shame upon the man or men, in the face of the spirit of our institutions; in the face of our high educational opportunities, in the face of the spirit of this government and its people, who rise up and say, 'I am better than thou,' and condemn those who, not having in their early environments those opportunities of education and enlightenment and who go astray in the pursuit of their own interests, to condemn all their fellow men who are honestly and earnestly working for the benefit of themselves and their families, whether in organized labor or outside of it. (Continued applause). On the other hand is it not more civilized like, seeing the faults and the mistakes of others, knowing what our opportunities can be made if we will, to extend the hand of fellowship and brotherhood and say, 'you have done wrong, but we will help you to do right.' It is not part of those who represent capital from the standpoint of better advantages, recognizing their duty that they owe to the body politic, to condemn a principle, to condemn a policy because mistakes have been made, therefore I say shame to a man who would teach the public and misrepresent the facts," (Long continued applause).

Mr. Hanna frequently read from President Parry's address before the convention, taking exception to many of the statements made by the latter and causing great applause when some of his deductions penetrated the pleasant anticipation of his auditors.

North, South, East and West it's proclaimed the best.

ROUNDING UP THE REDSKINS

Maj. McLaughlin Calls In Red Lake Indians For Talk.

Crookston, Minn., April 22.—Maj. McLaughlin, who during past years has negotiated the greater number of the successful treaties with the Indians, is at present on the Red Lake reservation. He went to the Red Lake agency on Saturday, and at once sent out runners to collect the scattered members of the Red Lake band together for the purpose of laying before them the provisions of the amended treaty, the work of the last congress, to which their signatures re necessry before it can become effective and the eleven townships on the west end of the reservation can be opened for settlement.

The Redskins at this time are scattered in the sugar bush and about the lake on their spring hunt, and the work of getting them together will require at least a week.

Maj. McLaughlin has set Friday as the day for the first council, but he does not expect them to get together and get down to business before Monday of next week. He will be joined at the agency at that time by Fred A. Dernis, of this city, who has been with Maj. McLaughlin on several occasions when treaties were negotiated and the matters will be reduced to writing for the Indians to sign.

Heretofore the negotiating of treaties has been a matter in which he major has been allowed some discretion, but in the present instance the matter has been gone over by both parties to the agreement separately and unless the Indians are inclined to sign the agreement to cede their lands under the amended treaty nothing can be done.

Maj. McLaughlin does not yet know what degree of opposition to signing the agreement has been stirred up by the action of Acting Indian Agent Scott, and this will certainly influence the matter.

I will require at least three weeks' time to get a line on the conditions, and perhaps longer.

THE MERGER CASE.

How It May Be Expedited In Supreme Court.

Washington, April 22.—Attorney General Knox and Assistant Attorney General Day, who has charge of the Northern Securities case, had a long conference yesterday, presumably relative to the government's action when the appeal reaches the supreme court. Neither would say anything about the conclusions reached, however. Judge Day said that inasmuch as the case had not reached the supreme court and as it might never do so, he had nothing to give out about the department's future actions.

Under the rules of the supreme court the appeal which was filed by the defendants in St. Paul yesterday can be filed in the supreme court next Monday, that being the regular day for filing motions under the rules of the court. It is probable that a motion will be filed to advance the case on the docket so that arguments may be presented this term, which ends the last Monday in May.

The government may not submit this motion until the following Monday and it is expected that the defendants will acquiesce. The court's attention may or may not be called to the new expediting law which was passed at the last session of congress but it is probable that the request for advancement will be based on the importance of the case alone. If the arguments are submitted this term a decision may be looked for early in the next term, which begins the second Monday in October.

CANNOT ARREST DUNLAP

While He Remains on the Government Reserve.

San Juan, P. R., April 22.—The police have not been able to arrest Captain Andrew Dunlap, U. S. N., commandant of the naval station here, against whom a warrant has been issued for bringing in liquors without paying duty, because the naval station is a government reserve and Captain Dunlap remains on it. The police have been standing at the gate of the station since Monday afternoon. Capt. Dunlap refuses to come out or to permit the police to enter. The first time the naval officer leaves the station he will be arrested. It was thought this morning that Capt. Dunlap would leave the station voluntarily but it is now probable that he will not do so as long as the police remain outside.

Commander G. W. Mentz, U. S. N., and Robert Giles, against whom also warrants have been issued on the same charge, have been arraigned and have pleaded not guilty. A preliminary hearing will be held before Justice Bazan, a native, but because of the inability to apprehend Capt. Dunlap the date for hearing has not been set.

P. V. Mohun, paymaster U. S. N., for whom there is a warrant out on the charge of illegally bringing in liquors, is in the United States and will be summoned later through the government.

SULTAN WAS AWAY.

Gen. Davis Did Not See Jolo's Sovereign.

Manila, April 22.—Gen. Davis has returned here from the Jolo archipelago. He did not see the sultan of Jolo, as the latter went to Singapore three days before Gen. Davis' arrival. The sultan's absence compels a temporary abandonment of the negotiations for the abrogation of the Bates treaty.

Gen. Davis reports that nine-tenths of the Lanao (Mindanao) Moros have accepted American sovereignty and pledged peace and friendship. Representatives of forty towns north of the lake professed allegiance to the United States before Major Ballard Monday. Peace is assured until an attempt is made to abolish slavery. It is believed that would unite the Moros in opposition to the Americans.

The head hunters inhabiting the Sierra Madre mountains have made a raid in the province of Neueva Ecija, Island of Luzen. They beheaded four natives. A force of cavalry is pursuing the raiders.

SHOWS THE CITY

Purpose of Observation Cars Suggested By the Commercial Club.

Are Established For the Benefit of Visitors In City.

Inquiry has been made since the Commercial club meeting of yesterday as to a more definite meaning of the "observation cars," with reference to which a committee was appointed to confer with the street railway company.

The idea is understood to have been suggested by Duluthians who have been visitors in Denver, Col., where such cars are in daily operation.

In Denver a car bearing the sign "Seeing Denver" is run over a route from given points, in the morning, that gives tourists a comprehensive view of one part of the city, and in the afternoon is run over another route that gives visitors a fine view of the remainder of the city. A charge of 25 cents is made for each round trip, which consumes, probably, two to three hours, the car running about twenty-five miles on each trip.

One of the important features of the observation car in Denver is the attendance of a guide, or lecturer, who is stationed in the front end of the vehicle and through a megaphone gives the tourists a brief description of various points of interest which the car passes.

The idea of having an observation car on the street railway system at the head of the lakes during the tourist season has been received with favor by nearly all of the local people to whom it has been broached. While it is not known just what stand the street railway officials will take in the matter, it is believed that they will be disposed to give the matter a trial if the proper influence is brought to bear. It is understood that the idea of an observation car here is not alone with the idea of showing Duluth to visitors, but that it might be run across the bay and about West Superior, spending the forenoon on one side of the bay and the afternoon on the other.

The argument that is being used by friends of the idea is that many of the excursionists who come here every summer do not know what car to take to see a certain point of interest to which they have been directed, and are sometimes confused in transferring from one line to another. The observation car idea would do away with all confusion and it is believed that visitors would gladly pay 25 cents or even more to take a car which would take them to all the points of interest and have a guide explain them en route.

EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

At Richmond, Va., Promises to Be Great Success.

Richmond, Va., April 22.—Delegates to the educational conference continue to arrive on every train, and as to numbers and interest it is already clear that the gathering will be a success. The first meeting will take place at 3:30 this afternoon and the formal opening occurs tonight.

Among the delegates is Dr. Lyman Abbot, who this morning gave an interview on the negro question. He said among other things:

"I think, in the main, the relations between the blacks and the whites in the South are better than they are in the North; that doors to industrial relations are more open to the negro in the South than in the North; that if he is industrious, honest and reasonably intelligent, he has, on the whole, a better chance in the South than in the North; and to put the whole thing in a few sentences, if I were a negro, I would rather live in a Southern than in a Northern state.

"I must add the qualification," Dr. Abbot continued, "that probably there are exceptional communities in the South where the negro is subjected to exceptional prejudices, and possibly exceptional communities in the North where he would enjoy exceptional privileges."

BODIES IDENTIFIED.

Names of Four Lost In Wreck Are Known.

Salamanca, N. Y., April 22.—Four bodies of the passengers who were killed in the wreck on the Erie road at Red House, last Monday, were identified today. They were Mrs. Sarah A. Moore aged 82 years; Mrs. Nellie N. Wilson, aged 48 years, and Dora Lynch, aged 11 years, all of Manning, W. Va. The identification was made by Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Krusen, of Shingle House, Pa., whither the three were bound. Mrs. Moore was the mother of Mrs. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson was the mother of Mrs. Krusen. The Lynch girl was a niece of Mrs. Krusen. The identifications established by means of a watch case found near the bodies. Relatives of Frank M. Barbite, a traveling salesman, who lived at Medina, Ohio, claimed the fourth body, identifying it by means of a pair of cuff buttons. Only one body remains to me identified.

ORDER OF DEFAULT

Entered Against Chicago Packers By Judge Grosscup.

Chicago, April 22.—A formal order of default was entered by Judge Grosscup today against the packers who have failed to answer the government's anti-trust bill. The final order of injunction was not entered against the defendants owing to the absence of District Attorney Bethea from the city. It is expected that the packers will appeal when the final order is entered.

MINES CLOSED BY STRIKE.

Denver, April 22.—A special to the News from Sheridan, Wyo., says that both mines of the Sheridan Coal company at Diedz, four miles west of here, are shut down as the result of a strike. About 200 men are out. The miners have only recently become organized and a demand was made by a committee representing the union for recognition. Superintendent Kennedy declined to treat with the committee. No grievance was presented to him. It is reported that a large amount of money is being expended in organizing the coal miners in this state.

BARK IS MISSING.

San Francisco, April 22.—The French bark Duconedic, now out 119 days from San Francisco, for Sydney, has about been given up as lost. Reinsurance on her is now quoted at 85 per cent. The vessel has not been heard from since she left here. It was thought that she might have put into Papeete for repairs, but the steamer Mariposa, which has arrived from that port, reports that the Ducouedic had not touched there.

BEGINNING OF WORK

Construction of Coke Ovens at West Duluth Commenced.

Barnett & Record Company Driving Piles For Foundation.

Work has been commenced on the construction of the coke ovens in connection with the plant of the Zenith Furnace company at West Duluth. The driving of the pilings on which the docks will rest has begun. The contract for the pile driving is held by the Barnett and Record company.

The driving of the piles is the first step in the additions contemplated. On the docks the coke ovens will be constructed. The work will be rushed, as the contract with the city calls for the furnishing of gas by Jan. 1.

There are to be twenty coke ovens constructed on the latest plans at a cost of about $8000 each, and the total cost of the additions which have been planned will be between $300,000 and $400,000.

West Duluth's other new industry, the Duluth Crushed Stone works, is also rapidly pushing the construction of its plant. Foundations of the new buildings are now being laid. Sidetracks have been put in and a large crew of men is at work erecting the buildings.

It is not yet known when the plant will be in readiness to operate. Mr. Green, the new superintendent, who has recently arrived from Chicago, is in charge of the work of construction.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Cloquet Farmer's Experience With a Maddened Bull.

"I had a narrow escape yesterday from serious injury and perhaps death from a maddened bull," said Richard Everett, a farmer living near Cloquet, who was in West Duluth today on business. "The animal has never shown itself dangerous before. It is a young thoroughbred Jersey about 3 years old. I have kept it in a small lot fenced off by itself this spring. Yesterday I went into the enclosure to secure an empty waterpail which was lying there. The animal for some reason became enraged and dashed at me. I was but a few feet from the fence and lost no time in reaching it. I was not quite quick enough to escape entirely, and have a badly bruised leg where the brute got me with one of his horns.

"The fence was fortunately a strong wire one, and the animal was brought to a sudden stop. It will teach me not to trust too implicitly to the good nature of a bull in future."

ARBOR DAY OBSERVED

Special Exercises Held In Different Cities of Nebraska.

Omaha, April 22.—Arbor day was observed throughout Nebraska and by the schools was given special attention. Banks were closed although business was not generally suspended. At the schools in this and other cities the afternoon was generally given up to tree planting, and teachers explained the significance of the day.

At Nebraska City, the home of the late J. Sterling Morton, special exercises were held. At Lincoln, Governor Mickey and the state officials planted trees from Arbor lodge, the home of Mr. Morton, on the state house grounds and set apart an enclosure to be known as Morton circle. The circle was commended to the care of successors in office by the resolution signed by the state officials.

To perpetuate the memory of the "Sage of Arbor lodge" and founder of Arbor day, the Morton Memorial association, formed a year ago, has undertaken the erection of a monument of Mr. Morton, for which the children of the state have contributed $4000. The monument is now being built, and the association expects to dedicate it within a year.

DUKE IS FIRM.

Will Not Re-Employ Men Who Caused Trouble.

Somerville, N. J., April 22.—A committee of the strikers on the estate of James B. Duke, president of the American Tobacco company, had a conference with Mr. Duke today. Mr. Duke told the committee that he would not under any circumstances re-employ the men who had caused trouble at the farm. He agreed to increase the wages of the stonemasons and they returned to work. The other strikers are still in an angry mood, but they have gone quietly to their homes.

AN ALL NIGHT CONFERENCE ON CHICAGO RAILROAD OWNERSHIP

Six Amendments Were Adopted to the Lindley Bill But When the Measure Came Up In the House It Was Postponed For Later Action.

Springfield, Ill., April 22.—After an all-night conference an agreement was reached at 4 o'clock this morning upon amendments to the Lindley street railroad municipal ownership bill, which are intended to make it a compromise measure in lieu of the Mueller bill. The conference was held in a room in the Leland hotel and there were present Representatives Lindley, Chanahan, Morris, Chipperfield and Nohe; Aldermen Benet, Mayor and Eidemann, of the local transportation committee, Graeme Stewart, Congressman Lorimer, Col. Frank Lowden, George W. Hinman and Edward Logan Reeves. Edwin Smith, special counsel for the city of Chicago, was present during the early part of the conference, but would not consider any compromise proposition, insisting upon the Mueller bill or nothing. Every phase of the question was gone over in detail and six amendments were at length unanimously agreed upon, and on motion of Mr. Stewart, Chairman Lindley was instructed to offer them in the house and to move to table all other amendments.

Early this morning the Chicago municipal ownership delegation had a meeting with Aldermen Benet, Maver and Eidemann, and submitted the proposed amendments. After a brief discussion it was decided, without a dissenting vote, to stand for the substitution of the Mueller bill as amended. This was done on the understanding that if the house passes an unsatisfactory bill an effort will be made to amend in the senate to confirm as nearly as possible to the Mueller bill. The Lindley bill was a special order in the house this morning immediately after the reading of the journal. Lindley moved to postpone the bill until 2 p. m. today. Immediately there was a demand for the nays and ayes. During the confusion Speaker Miller put the motion to postpone a viva voce vote and declared it carried.

UNIVERSITY ARRIVES ON A TRAIN

Chicago, April 22.—A university in transit reached Chicago this morning, over the Chicago Rock Island Pacific road, was transferred to the Northwestern tracks at Sixteenth street, and thereupon proceeded to Glen Ellyn for permanent location. Four baggage cars and two passenger catches brought Ruskin university, its equipment, its president, its one professor and its sixty students from Trenton, Mo., to its new suburban residence. A summer hotel at Glen Ellyn has been remodeled for university purposes. The school to be located there will be the center of the Ruskin university system of co-operative associations and socialistic institutions established by Walter Vrooman. Professor George McArthur Miller and Professor W. A. Rickenbrodt the only two members of the faculty who accompanied the students.

DENTIST PAYS FOR PULLING TOOTH

Cumberland, Md., April 22.—After an exciting trial a jury has awarded Mrs. Isabel Whitehurst $150 damages against a firm of dentists. Mrs. Whitehurst sued for $3000 damages. Mrs. Whitehurst had gold crowns put on her teeth by one of the dentists, for which she was to pay in installments. The work proved unsatisfactroy, and she made complaint to the firm. She testified that she was invited to occupy the chair by one of the dentists who, without warning, pulled out the teeth in question, saying he was taking back the gold that was not paid for.

GIRL IS ABDUCTED BY YOUNG MEN

New York, April 22.—Charles P. Shellberg, a watchmaker, reported to the Gerry society that his 15-year-old daughter, Fanny, had been abducted by a gang of young men.

"I am here now, a living man," said Shellberg, "but whether I will be alive tomorrow or not may be decided by the toss of a penny or humor of the next member of the gang who meets me on the street. Almost every time I step outside of my doorway I am cursed and villified, and often some burly member of the gang has grabbed me by the throat and, with a curse, warned me that my life was not worth the snap of my finger if I did not move out of the neighborhood.

"Your wife and your daughter can stay here, but you get out of here," said one of the ruffians to me recently. For the past two months I have been sick. My child has been employed in a factory. During my illness she was sent to board with a woman, and through her became acquainted with members of the gang. When I took her away from this boarding house she left me and I have not seen her since. If the gang can conceal her from the police and agents of the society I fear that she will be lost to me."

MULEY MOHAMMED IS EMPEROR

Madrid, April 22.—A special dispatch from Melilla, Morocco, says Muley Mohammed, the sultan's brother, has been proclaimed emperor at Fez.

Advices from Ceuta, Morocco say that Kabyl tribesmen besieging the port of Tetuan have sent an ultimatum to the Pasha in command of the sultan's forces, demanding the dismissal of the tax collectors and saying that otherwise they will attack Tetuan. The Pasha refused the demand of the Kabyls and appealed to all men capable of bearing arms to assist in the defense of the town.

A dispatch from Tangier, April 17, said the sultan had again offered the crown to his brother, Muley Mohammed, who had refused it.

It was added in a dispatch from Melilla the same day that the sultan, accompanied by his brother, had started for Teza, the headquarters of the Pretender, and that great excitement prevailed at Fez.

Tangier, Morocco, April 22.—Muley Arrani, an uncle of the sultan, arrived here today from Melilla with the customs officials and all the government customs property. Melilla has been abandoned by the government.

EXCEPTIONS IN POKER.

Playing By Rule Alone May Bring Loss.

"One of the things that make me tired," said the gray haired, young-looking man in the club smoking room, according to the New York Sun, "is to hear any man undertake to lay down a hard and fast rule by which a poker player should be guided in his play. It is easy enough to formulate a rule that will sound well, and will perhaps work well enough in four cases out of five, but the player who will allow his judgment of any particular situation in the game to be demonstrated by a rule when he strongly suspects that the situation is an exceptional one has yet a great deal to learn about playing poker.

"Some of the sayings, though, that pass current among players sound well enough to lead the average man into thinking that a rule may be founded on them. One of the most specious of these is that a hand that is good enough to raise on."

"Of course, the saying is founded on a fact, and is elementary truth. If your hand is not the best, it is not good enough to call on. If it is the best, of course, it justifies a raise. But the difficulty is that a man never actually knows until the show-down whether his hand is the best unless he happens to hold a royal flush, and a literal application of a rule founded on this saying would therefore reduce a player to the single alternative of laying down his hand if he didn't feel strong enough to raise. And that would take a good deal of ginger out of the game.

"It isn't often that four kings are beaten by four aces outside of the games you read about but seldom see, in which some professional gambler deals the cards and gives each player just what cards he has made up his mind to give him beforehand. I'm not saying that professional gamblers—some of them—can't do that very thing. In fact, I've seen it done, but what I do say is that it is not done frequently. The gambler who does it lays himself open to the strongest kind of suspicion, and he isn't likely to select such exceptional hands as four kings and four aces for a trial of his skill unless the circumstances and the play are both very much out of the ordinary run. He is much more likely to give his antagonist moderately strong hand, such as a flush, and deal himself a full or a higher flush.

"But I have seen four kings beaten by four aces in a game that was above suspicion. In fact, I saw it only a few nights ago in a friendly game in one of the best known clubs in New York, where no professional player could by any possibility gain admittance, and where no trickster, professional or not, could long escape detection.

"The game was not a very large one, for there was not more than $15 on the table, and there were five players in the game, but it was for table stakes, so that the play was as keen and hard and cautious as if it had been for more money. The players were not rich men, and the stakes were big enough to mean important money to them.

"There was a jackpot of $2.50 on the table when one man they called 'Gene opened it for the size of it right under the guns. The next man dropped out, and the next, whom they called Harry, made it $5 to draw cards. He had, as it appeared, aces and fives, and his raise was good poker, according to my understanding of the game, though it looked like almost anything else in the light of subsequent developments.

"The raise was enough, at all events, to drive the next man and the dealer out, leaving the struggle between 'Gene and Harry, with the odds presumably in Harry's favor. At least, he had shown strength, while 'Gene had only declared that he had openers, which might or might not be good enough to justify him in standing the raise.

"'You'll have to come again, Harry, if you want to play against this hand,' he said, as he saw the raise and threw five blue chips more into the pot. Blue chips were a dollar.

"'It's a good deal like taking candy from the baby,' murmured Harry under his breath, but taking good care that 'ene should hear him. 'But,' he continued, 'I can't see your $5. I only have $3.50 in the game.' And he pushed that forward with an air of great cheerfulness, though his confidence in aces up was by no means as strong as it had been.

"As a matter of course, that reduced the play on that pot to a showdown, and did away with all possibility of bluffing, so 'Gene said rather gleefully, as he pulled back his $1.50 rake-off, 'You'll have to beat three kings, Harry. Give me two cards.

"He did not show his three kings, nor the two he had drawn, when he spoke, and Harry looked at his aces up with considerable more doubt than he had had before. Of course, there was a possibility that 'Gene was holding up a card to a pair, in which case his own hand would be strong even without the draw, but it did not seem probable. 'Gene was not likely to say such a thing about three kings unless he really had them, and he would be exceedingly likely to draw to the strength of his hand on a showdown. Moreover, his raise back after being raised was an indication that he had at least three of some sort, in which case aces up would be worthless. Anyhow, Harry decided, and I think any poker player would say it was wise, to throw away his pair of fives and draw three cards to his aces, and he did so.

"Then 'Gene turned over his cards, and exclaimed, with some natural exultation, 'Now you'll have to beat four kings!' He had caught the fourth one, sure enough, in the draw.

"'Well,' said Harry with a drawl, 'maybe I can beat four kings. Let's see.' And he exposed his pair of aces and then turned over, one at a time, the three cards he had drawn, which he had not yet looked at himself.

"The first was a seven spot, and the four kings looked even bigger than they had, but the next was an ace.

"'Any propositions?' he asked, jokingly.

"'No,' said 'Gene, also jokingly, 'I don't think I have anything to offer. I reckon the kings are good, yet awhile.'

"'I didn't know but you'd like to split the pot,' said Harry, 'but if you don't want to, I'll have to take it myself, I guess.' And he turned over the other ace. 'I told you,' he said, after he had caught his breath again, 'that it was like taking candy from the baby.'

"It was one of the extraordinary things that happens sometimes, and 'Gene, as any superstitious player would expect, went broke soon after. If he had been as superstitious as I am he would have cashed in immediately after such a hand.

"There was another play in the same game, not half an hour later, between two others, whom they called the Baron and the Colonel, though neither title was genuine, which was almost as remarkable and involved a much greater winning to the Baron than Harry had made on his aces.

"The Colonel had had a remarkable run of luck for five or six rounds, and had driven two or three players to the boneyard, while his own chips accumulated till he had some $50 on the table. He is a man who believes in backing his luck when it comes, and finding a four-flush in his hand when the Baron opened a jackpot he came in. The others were afraid of his luck more than they were of the Baron's openers, and they all stayed out.

"There was no raising before the draw, and the Baron took two cards, holding up an ace to a pair of queens. The Colonel took one card and caught a diamond, filling his flush; so when the Baron bet a white chip he promptly raised it $4.

"The Baron looked at his cards, and then with a great flourish slammed a tall pile of blues on the table. 'I raise you,' he exclaimed, with such bravado that it was hard to tell whether he was bluffing or not.

"'How much is there?' asked the Colonel, cautiously, and counting the chips, found he had been raised. Then he studied.

"Now there was a case to test that rule. The Colonel's hand was certainly good enough to call on, for he had a flush against a two-card draw, which he might naturally assume to indicate three of a kind. Of course, if threes were bettered his flush was worth less, but it looked too much like a bluff to make it wise to lie down. So he called, and it seems to me it was good poker to call, though he lost, for the Baron had caught a third queen and a second ace.

"Of course a man who believed in the rule would say that this play proved the soundness of it, for the Colonel's hand was not good enough to raise on. But I wouldn't have called him a good player if he hadn't called."

THE LAWN PRIZES

Women's Council Delighted at Commercial Club's Appropriation.

Lawns Cared For By Employes Will Probably Be Barred.

The members of the Women's council of Duluth are quite enthusiastic over the action of the Commercial club in appropriating $100 of the club funds for the purpose of prizes for the best lawns in the eight wards of the city. This morning Secretary Preston, of the club, informed Mrs. J. L. Washburn, president of the council, of the action taken by the club and she expressed the appreciation of the ladies of the council in the interest taken in civic work by the commercial organization.

The prize money will be turned over to the council to arrange the details of the contest and a meeting will be held by the ladies this week to attend to the matter.

Already inquiries are coming in from various parts of the city relative to the conditions that will govern the contest, but these cannot be made public until the Women's council gets them ready.

The scheme of offering prizes for the best lawns has been tried very successfully by civic organizations in other cities and a great deal of interesting rivalry has been brought about that resulted in great good to the general appearances of the residence portions.

In view of the fact that there are wealthy people in every city who can afford to keep employes, who do nothing else but care for their property, including lawns, the suggestion has been made and seems to be quite favorably received by the ladies, of limiting the contestants to people whose salary does not exceed a certain limit. It is claimed that by this limit an inducement would be offered to people of limited means who would not have an incentive if they knew wealthier neighbors could hire men to do nothing else but beautify their lawns. It is believed that aside from personal pride the prizes offered will be a great inducement to the smaller householders.

The prizes of nursery stock which will be additional prizes will also be very desirable to any one of the contestants who may enter.

THE "POST CHECK."

Growing Demand For This Form of Currency.

Committees of congress have considered with favor a bill authorizing a postal currency for which its advocates claim a wonderful combination of flexibility and versatility, and it will become a law probably at no distant date, says Collier's Weekly.

This bill proposes to reprint all government paper money of denominations of $5 and under, except national bank notes, in the form of post-check notes. Lines are to be printed on the face of the notes in addition to special devices. When these lines are left blank the notes circulate from hand to hand like the present currency. When they are to be remitted by mail the lines are filled in with the name of the payee, and a 2-cent postage stamp is attached in the corner and canceled. The note in this condition is payable only to the person named. It no longer circulates as currency, but is redeemable at any money-order postoffice or national bank, and is thence forwarded to be treated as mutilated currency—sent to the nearest subtreasury for reissue, free postage and registry being stipulated for this process.

Everybody realizes the danger of sending currency through the mail, yet most persons venture the experiment frequently. The demand for a convenient, safe means of remitting small sums discloses that there are but three methods now available, each in some respects faulty. First, a money order, which requires a trip to the postoffice, and a complicated process. Second, the mailing of coin, which is obviously undesirable. Third, and worst of all, the use of postage stamps.

An idea of the saving of time this innovation might effect can be gained by a glance at the operation of what is now our safest method of making remittances by mail. Fifty millions of postal money orders will be issued in the United States this year. Probably 30,000,000 of these will call for less than $3 each. Assuming that the remitters have spent an average of half an hour in going to and from the postoffice and waiting there, the time consumed equals the labor of 5000 men for one year.

Thus the productive energies of 5000 people per annum are wasted in procuring pieces of paper used in making safe remittances—with a similar, but less serious, loss of time in collecting the orders. All this would be saved if one could take from his pocket a post-check bill ready to be filled out, stamped and confidently entrusted to the careful hands of our postal employes.

An objection that the post-check would confuse the functions of the postoffice and treasury departments is combated by its advocates. If paid post-checks can be treated as mutilated currency, there can be no conflict. Nearly 600 treasury employes in the office of the auditor for the postoffice department now handle and audit 50,000,000 money-order vouchers annually. No confusion arises from this connection, and the post-check accounting would be much simpler.

There would be no confusion of the currency system of the country, it is claimed, since only the form of printing the bills is changed—not their character as treasury notes, silver certificates, etc. A kindred proposition to issue post-checks as a fractional currency is held in abeyance, awaiting the result of the experiment now being urged.

C. W. Post, a wealthy and public-spirited citizen of Michigan, originated the post-check plan. He has assigned his patent to the United States without a pecuniary recompense. He avers that nineteen out of twenty letters covering small remittances contain stamps, loose silver, etc., while one contains a money order. Hence he infers that something forces these unsafe forms and that only very persistent buyers remit at all. Newspapers and book publishers are especially injured—their letters are filled with stamps and loose money, while many would-be patrons are lost. Mr. Post estimates the present annual volume of these small remittances at $2,000,000, which would be vastly increased if better facilities existed. Thousands of influential newspapers vehemently advocate the post-check as a measure of relief, and scores of thousands of people have petitioned congress in its favor.

Observations as to time to be saved the people by post-checks were made above. The saving of unrequited labor to the government is equally striking. The 30,000,000 small postal orders issued and paid this year yield no revenue, since the entire fee of 3 cents is absorbed by the issuing postmaster as compensation, or more than covered by clerk hire. Ten millions of them will be paid at New York and Chicago—most of the remainder at other large city offices. High-salaried clerks at these paying offices fill out the 800,000 columns of statements, giving detail as to number, issuing office and amount of each order, foot up the dreary, interminable columns and forward the statements, with the 30,000,000 small vouchers, to the auditor's office in Washington.

Here 100 clerks with average salaries of $1200 first check each voucher by the statement, verify the footings and note discrepancies. The 30,000,000 vouchers then go to the "round tables," where skillful men distribute them by states of issue. Another set of employes assort them into towns, in alphabetical order. Still another set arrange them numerically in each city or town. Then only are the 30,000,000 small orders ready to be "checked" by the statements of the issuing postmasters. The necessity for both these checkings is seen from the fact that thousands of errors or attempted frauds are detected every day in these accounts. The orders are then tied in bundles, labeled, and all kept in accessible form for seven years.

All these 60,000,000 manipulations in the paying postoffices, as well as the 90,000,000 checkings in the auditor's office, are inevitable for the reason that these postal orders, small as they are, must always be treated as vouchers—a necessity which the plan of treating paid post-checks as mutilated currency would entirely obviate. And it must not be forgotten that all these millions of manipulations and checkings are done without a cent of net compensation to the postal revenues in reimbursement.

The desideratum of cleaner paper currency of the small denominations would be an incidental advantage of the post-check system. This would be particularly appreciated in the West, where much of the circulating medium is ragged and filthy. The rapid resumption and reissue of "checks" would renew them frequently.

Although no absolute prediction can be made in advance of the success of such an experiment, there would seem to be merit in the claim that this plan is well worth trying. It is the simplest, most promising yet proposed for meeting an urgent demand.

If the people find no use for the bills as "checks" they will continue to circulate as money until worn out, as at present, and no one will be injured. If they are used as checks, the revenues from postage stamps attached will abundantly repay all expense incurred, and a great public convenience will be assured.

The Storage Of Furs And Woolens.

In this climate it is never safe to pack away winter clothing much before May. April's sun is warm and beguiling, but sleet and piercing winds are likely to follow the finest day. It is at this season, however, that the housekeeper must be on the lookout for moths.

Before the last of April the tineids, to locate them scientifically, are all house-hunting, for May is the month in which they deposit their eggs.

The most expensive tailor-made gown, the richest of furs, the baby's soft flannel blankets and embroidered petticoats, the dress coat, the velvet hat with its sweeping plumes, are none too good for their housing, which must also provide abundant and toothsome material for the larvae to whet their mandibles on.

With the depositing of the tiny eggs Mme. Moth's mission in life is accomplished; but the larvae, who make their appearance in June, enter at once upon the programme mapped out for them from the beginning—transforming the materials of their dwelling into soft jackets for themselves. With such vigor do these dull white caterpillars carry on their appointed tasks that within a week the most expensive garment may be ruined.

Clean Garments Before Storing Them.

Cedar closets, malodorous moth balls, tar paper, camphor, tobacco, what not, are all powerless to stay the course of nature if the garments are put away with the eggs already deposited. On this account the greatest care must be taken to see that all garments to be stored are absolutely clean and free from moths or eggs when put away. Furs must be well aired, not sunned—for the ardent beams of a hot spring sun are more disastrous to a fine seal garment than a whole winter's wear—then thoroughly beaten with a slender switch or cane that will reach the skin itself. A regular fur comb can also be used to advantage. If soiled about the neck, cleanse with the fine white sand that can be obtained at the bird stores. Heat this in the oven until it is as hot as the hand can be borne in it, scatter it through the fur, beat lightly with a switch and finish by brushing both up and down with a little whisk broom. This will give luster to the fur.

If there are pockets turn them inside out, brush, then turn smoothly back again. The cleaning thoroughly accomplished, the garment is ready to pack or hang away. If room is abundant a special dark closet may be given up to the keeping of furs. In this case paper it all over, top and bottom, with tar paper, covering this with a second coat of newspaper to prevent sticking. Here the garments may hang without crushing or wrinkling, and from here they can readily be taken out once a month and examined. Failing a closet, a clean, tight barrel or a chest whose interior has been carefully pasted over with tar paper and newspaper will answer very well. If reduced to the extremity of a pasteboard box, fold smoothly and pack in square newspaper bags, for the moth has a rooted aversion to printer's ink.

Lay the article to be packed on one clean sheet of newspaper, cover with another sheet and seal the four sides, leaving no opening even as large as a pinhead. Before sealing put in a few pieces of gum camphor or any of the numerous moth preventives, care being taken to wrap them in tissue paper or sew them in bags to prevent direct contact with the fur and consequent discoloration. Write the name of the garment on the outside of the package, lay in the box, cover and wrap in newspaper with an outside layer of tar paper.

Unbleached Cotton Bags.

Bags of new, cheap, unbleached cotton, made a little longer than the article to be protected, are advised for large garments that are to be hung away. Have the bags stitched closely, turned and stitched again, and left long enough at the top to be turned and tied down.

All woollen garments must be thoroughly brushed, aired and cleansed before packing away, for spots of any sort are seized upon by moths as specially delectable.

An excellent cleansing fluid that should always be kept on hand for sponging spots comes in well at this time, and may be made in quantity to last through the year.

Shave fine one-quarter pound of white castile soap, pour one quart of soft water over it and let it soak over night. In the morning set on the back of the stove, where it will dissolve, but not boil. Then take four or five quarts of soft rain water or distilled water, put in the soap and stir through it, then add one ounce of liquid ammonia, one-quarter ounce spirits of wine and one ounce of ether. Shake and bottle. Shake each time before using.

Spread the garment to be sponged on the ironing board, protecting the cover by a thick newspaper; make a little rubber of stockinette or any soft cloth, dip in the fluid and rub the soiled spot. This will be found almost invaluable for cleaning the spots from men's heavy clothing. Woolen dresses that are to be made over in the autumn should be ripped up, brushed and sponged or washed in soap bark. If the latter, boil five cents' worth of soap bark in a quart of water, strain through a cloth and add sufficient hot water to cover the goods. Pour another quart of water over the bark, and give it a second boiling for the rinsing water. Wash the goods, sousing it up and down and sopping in the hands. Rinse in the water from the second boiling of bark, shake and hang up to partially dry. Have the irons heating, and press the goods on the wrong side while still damp.

Be sure the barrel, chest or dry goods box into which garments are to be packed is thoroughly clean, dry and moth proof. Have memorandum book at hand, into which may be entered the list of things in the order packed. Lay the heavy winter overcoats and flannels at the bottom and follow by the lighter articles. When the box or chest is full, sprinkle camphor or moth balls through it, between the packages, cover the top with several layers of newspaper, then put on the cover or paste a double thickness of newspaper over the top, taking care that no single aperture is left for the entrance of the enemy. If free from moth eggs when put away the contents of the packages will come out fresh and sound in the autumn. Garments hung in a closet should be inspected once or twice during the summer.

EMMA PADDOCK TELFORD.

An American Sonnet.

David Christie Murray, the English novelist, says he discovered in this country the most ideal bit of practicality imaginable. He was visiting an old college chum in Cambridge, Mass., whose wife was Russian. They were entertaining a few friends, among whom was George Kennan, the traveler and writer on Russian and Siberian social conditions. A thoughtful-looking young man was introduced to the company as one of the club's rising young poets. His first book of poems had just been published, and he was in that unsettled, expectant state of mind, awaiting its reception at the hands of the reviewers and critics. With him was a demure, modest little wife, from whose expression it was easily seen she was wonderfully in love with her poet husband.

The little woman, to all appearances no doubt the most insignificant member of the party, kept her eyes riveted on her husband's face. When he looked interested she beamed; did he laugh at some anecdote she smiled at him; was he serious a moment she looked concerned. Murray says while putting his coat and hat on in the hall as the party were about to make their adieus, never dreaming of being an eavesdropper, he overheard the little woman whisper in an eager manner: "Bert, dear, slip one of the publisher's circulars of your 'The Season's Odes' into Mr. Murray's pocket. Perhaps he'll order a copy and speak to others about it, and also say a good word about it over his signature and help sell an edition."

Murray says he afterward secured a copy of the book. He read it and found not only that it was much wanting in every element that makes for success, but that the poetic feeling which no doubt inspired it had not found poetic expression, and that it was doomed to make one of the thousand or so books which every year are consigned to the limbo of silently ignored things. But, all the same, he preserves and cherishes this little book and treasures it as a bibliomaniac's find. "The wife's eager anxiety that her husband's book should be read and appreciated and making so innocently the practical suggestion is an American sonnet in itself."

In these days, when dress plays such an important part in life, the choosing of the style, color or fabric that is becoming is a serious matter. No longer is it possible to say to one's self or one's dressmaker, "I will have a white or a black gown," and thus end the question. If a woman wants to be well gowned she must needs make up her mind that considerable thought and time, as well as money, must be spent to secure the desired result.

The choosing of a simple little white frock will, for instance, make it necessary to look over countless different varieties of white fabrics, thick and thin, rough and smooth, dull and bright, cloths, laces, silks, velvets, and so on indefinitely. The gowns of the transparent fabrics always seem especially well suited to the summer season, and in summer a heavy evening gown always seems quite out of place, and this season the manufacturers have apparently recognized that fact and have no end of charming transparent materials from which the choice can be made. Mousseline de soie and chiffon, under new names and with some new variation in effect, continue to be popular, and are made up in white, black and all the delicate shades of color. Accordion pleating, side pleating, box pleating and tucks in straight or bayadere effect are still in style, and the skirts made in these styles have either no trimming at all, bands of lace entre-deux, bands of velvet, satin or moire ribbon, medallions of lace in fine applique on the material, or with only rows of chiffon ruching in clusters of three, five or seven.

The skirt with deep shirred yoke is thought smart, but is not always becoming, and the lace yoke is much safer for most figures. A yoke on the lower part of the waist as well as the top of the skirt gives a princess effect, and, if the line is brought well down in front, is almost without exception becoming.

Always becoming and effective are the lace gowns, but especially attractive for summer, and for dinner and ball gowns there is nothing prettier. The new fad (new this winter) of making up the lace gown over an underskirt of accordion pleated spangled net adds greatly to the cost, but at the same time adds marvellously to the beauty of the gown, for the shimmer and sparkle of the spangles seen through the lace are charmingly effective. The net or tulle must be of the sheerest possible quality and in accordion pleating, and the finer the lace the more effective the gown. In making up these two materials the plain skirt is the best, the flounced or ruffled skirts being too close to show the spangles on the chiffon or net.

Embroidered lace gowns are elaborate in design and extremely beautiful in many instances, but fortunately for the majority of womankind there are also many designs that are quite simple and not necessarily expensive. Silk net gowns are very charming and are made up plain or with lace or embroidered applique and insertions. There are no end of so-called robe gowns now to be found that have the embroidery and insertion woven into the material, and sometimes the cost is less when these pattern robes are bought, but, as a rule, there is more individuality in the gowns when the material and trimming are bought separately.]

Muslins of all kinds and descriptions are very smart this year and are made up for both day and evening wear. The flowered silk muslins are to be found in bewildering variety and at a wide range of price. They are in some respects the cheapest of all the thin materials, for they do not require much trimming, and one of the most popular fads is to line them with some color in strong contrast. A dark blue flowered silk muslin made up over either bright red or yellow gives the effect of a much handsomer material than when lined with the same color, all the pattern being thrown into such bold relief by the contrasts in color. A black and white or gray and white over yellow or orange is an exceedingly smart combination and makes the gown look as though it were made of black and white lace rather than of plain muslin. The silk muslins should, of course, be used for this purpose, although there are a great many exceedingly fine ones in the cottons and linens; but for some unknown reason the plain effects, with quantities of lace and embroidery, are thought smarter, and so the price asked for the figured patterns is less. A great many of the dressmakers use lawn linings instead of silk for their gowns, but they are not so effective as the silk and the gown lined with the lawn does not look half so expensive. Curiously enough, the more expensive muslin and lace gowns look better made up over lawn than silk, and in consequence one rarely finds at the expensive establishments gowns made up in this fashion. To be sure, there is always silk. A princess combination of corset waist and petticoat is one to wear under all thin gowns, but no silk linings are thought necessary. It is these details of fashionable dress that are so puzzling and that makes clothes seem so complex and expensive to the uninitiated.

Can You Live On 25 Cents A Day?

In a lecture at the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences the statement was made recently that sufficient raw food material for the production of health and energy could be purchased anywhere in the United States within reach of a railroad for 25 cents per day per person. This has given rise to much comment.

In order to understand the main point, it is necessary to consider the definition of food as that which when taken into the system builds up or repairs tissue or provides energy in the form of heat or muscular power. It is important that food should please both eye and palate, especially the latter, but pleasure or sensation is not the purpose of food. We eat to live is a terse way of saying that primarily the object of food is that of the fuel in the steam engine.

The cheapest fuel will be that which supplies the most heat for the least money, as the cheapest food is that which supplies the most nutriment for the least money. There is, however, a distinction to be made between the cheap and the economical in most commodities. It is possible to conceive of a thing cheap in price, yet not economical. The most economical fuel for the engine is that which supplies the most energy with the least waste and for the least money. So the most economical food is that which at the least price is best adapted to the needs of the eater. Whatever view is taken of the pleasures of the table it remains an irrefutable fact that the primary need of the eater is nourishment. The dangers of overfeeding are no less in result or frequency than those of malnutrition. This must be comprehended in order to make the arguments for the 25-cent dietary quite plain.

The scarcity of a desired article raises its price; therefore, those food materials will be cheapest which are most easily and abundantly produced, as wheat, corn, beans, peas, etc. Cost of transportation naturally affects market price, and closely allied with this is the higher price of perishable food. That oranges should cost less in the midst of orange groves than 500 miles away from them, and that the grocer or fruitseller must guard against loss by freezing or decay in his margin of profit are self-evident. In buying the raw material there is a waste in certain foodstuffs—that is, a quart of whole, good milk represents the entire amount of nourishment a quart of milk can furnish, but a pound of meat, including both meat and bone, will furnish only the nourishment of the available part. Thus, in buying the waste of material has to be considered as a factor of cost. Hothouse or out-of-season foods cost more than those in season, while fads or fashions often dictate price.

Enough Food Can Be Bought for 25 Cents.

It probably would be granted wherever the wages of workmen were known that there are many persons living in different parts of this country who live on a dietary costing from eight, nine or ten to fifteen cents per day per person. There are many more living on twenty, twenty-five and thirty cents per day per person. In the first case the number of available food materials is limited, and palatability, flavor and the desirable variation of diet lie in the hands of a probable wage earner who is far too apt to be deficient in both skill and ingenuity in cooking. The German woman, who knew and used eight different kinds of dumplings with which she varied her stews, thereby reducing the meat bill to a minimum, was an artist. The actual fact is that sufficient raw food material to nourish human machines can be purchased for the amounts given. This being granted, the point is, "Can any one do it?"

Perhaps it is too sweeping to say that any one cannot do it, but it is safe to say that there are cases where it would be unwise to try. Where more can be used for food—that is, where the family exchequer allows—it depends for the most part on the attitude one assumes toward food. If you regard food as a means to a greater end: if you can and will recognize that as your food builds up your physical body, the result of what you eat reacts upon the nervous system, forming mind and probably character; if you believe that temperance, which involves self-control, in food is as necessary as temperance in other things; if, desiring to reach your highest efficiency you realize that it depends primarily upon the food you eat, you can enjoy living on twenty-five cents per day. The greater number involved in the experiment the greater the ease with which it is done, or the more variety it is possible to purchase.

Sixteen Girls Proved It Could Be Done.

To a certain extent it involves sacrifice, particularly where one has been accustomed to pampering the appetite. At this season of the year the list of raw foods would not be an extensive one, and unless the cook had knowledge and skill the bill of fare would be restricted. In the experiment cited in the lecture sixteen girl students made out the bills of fare which they were willing to eat, and which would furnish the right proportion of food substances for proper nutrition. The foods include fruits, oranges and apples as the only fresh fruits, the others being prunes, prunelles, &c. Cereals were served every morning, as well as baked beans or codfish, boiled eggs, bacon, hash, creamed dried beef, on the different mornings, and there was some hot bread, muffins or toast and coffee, cocoa or milk. The luncheons were good, one being hashed chicken on toast, fried hominy, cookies, apricots, tea; another, vegetable soup, omelet, brown betty with cream. For dinner they had soup, meat or fish, such vegetables as lettuce, onions, carrots, stewed tomatoes, beets, potatoes, peas, lima beans, &c. The desserts included chocolate pudding, suet pudding with sauce, cottage pudding, lemon jelly, ice cream, &c. The dishes given indicate the healthy variation and the limitation of available materials for the price.

It can be well done with a good cook. It will be only one-fourth as easy with four persons as with sixteen, and with twice that number it will not be as easy again. It is merely a question of providing proper nutrition instead of catering to the palate alone; but if one had been living on seventy cents per day it would be an unwise experiment to cut it to the amount given at once. This would have to be reached by degrees.

Misplaced Philanthropy.

Mrs. O. E. L. DETCH, of Chelsea square, is, without suspecting it, frantically philanthropic. She never sees a pudgy little nose flattened longingly against the confectioner's window that she does not, out of a stinted allowance, tender its owner a pittance with which to indulge his desires.

Recently Mrs. Detch encountered, in the doorway of a bakery, a particularly small individual of the masculine gender, whose chubby face had, for her, by reason of a wistful air perceptible through the grime upon it, an irresistible fascination. She succumbed. From a bag of pastry which she had a moment before purchased she produced a luscious, fat knuckled lady-finger and handed it to the boy. As he pounced upon it with ravenous appetite, she exclaimed to Mrs. Baker, the shopkeeper:—

"Poor little fellow! He has, to all appearances, been turned from home by a hard-hearted mother and left to starve in the street! I would like above anything to look for one second into that callous woman's face!"

"Please, ma'am," ventured the particularly small individual, bucking out of the door, "you can if you wants to; that's her behind th' counter. I'm Jimmy Baker!"

THE WHEAT MARKET

Chicago and New York Strong Markets—Duluth Unchanged.

Considerable May Flax Is Changed to Lower—Prices Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 22.—Chicago and New York were the strong markets this morning so far as the May option was concerned, Minneapolis and the local market dragging more. Chicago advanced ¼-⅜c and New York ⅜c, while Duluth was unchanged and Minneapolis ¼c lower.

The gossip was generally bullish. A bad crop report from Germany stimulated the bulls and small receipts further aided them. One Minneapolis mill was reported as selling 75,000 barrels of flour yesterday. There was a decline of ½d in the Liverpool market. The bearish factor there was reported to be large Manitoba offerings. Rains closed ½ to ¾c higher. An estimate of Argentine shipments this week is for 2,400,000 bushels.

Primary receipts of wheat were 301,000 bus., last year 203,000 bushels. Shipments 478,000 bushels, last year 229,000 bushels. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 169,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 84 cars, and at Chicago 35, a total of 119 cars, against 138 last week and 135 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼ to ⅜d lower. May corn in Chicago closed ¾c higher and May oats ⅛c higher. Primary receipts of corn were 395,000 bushels, last year 183,000 bushels. Shipments 345,000 bushels, last year 179,000 bushels. Clearances were 517,000 bus.

Wheat was quiet on the Duluth board. May opened ¼c up at 76⅝c, sold at 76⅝c at 9:25 and fell off to 76⅜c at 10:07. From there it rallied to 76¾c at 10:40, and then fell again to 76¼c at 11. It rallied slightly, selling at 76⅝c a few minutes before the close and then closed at 76½c. This was unchanged from yesterday.

Cash sales were 5000 bushels. Cash prices were unchanged at ¼c over May for No. 1 northern and 1¼c under for No. 2.

Flax trading was fairly active, the greater part of it being the changing of May lines over to July. About 300,000 bushels was transferred in this way. The difference at which the change was made was 1¾c, but it became difficult finally to change at this difference and at the close it had widened to 2c. May was slightly stronger early, selling ¼c up to $1.10¾ but it fell off to $1.09¾ and closed there, a decline of ¼c.

There was an advance of ½c in oats to arrive and on track.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat, to arrive, No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 76¾c; No. 2 northern, 75¼c; May, No. 1 hard, 78½c; No. 1 northern, 76¼c; July, 76¼c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Bullish Sentiment Gives Wheat Prices Slight Advance.

Chicago, April 22.—There was a bullish sentiment in July wheat today, and opening prices were a shade to ⅛@¼c higher at 72¼c to 72⅜c. The early strength was due to relatively firm cables considering the break here yesterday, and to small receipts. Buying by commission houses caused a further advance to 72⅝c. There was but little trading in May, but that option followed the July in its upward tendency, advancing to 73¼c during the first half hour, after opening unchanged to ¼c lower at 72⅝c to 72¾c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 84 cars, which with local receipts of 35 cars, 5 of contract grade, made a total of 119 cars, against 138 last week and 135 last year.

The market was only moderately active throughout the day but a firm feeling prevailed influenced by bullish foreign advices and a good export demand. After selling up to 73c, July closed 1⅛@¼c higher at 72¾c. May closed ¼@⅜c higher at 73¼c after touching, 73½c.

Bullish crop advices and small receipts caused firmness in corn and opening prices on May were ¼c higher at 44⅛c, while July was unchanged to ¼c higher at 44⅜c to 44½c. There was a good trade in both May and July which with small offerings, caused a further advance, May reaching 44⅜c and July 44⅝@¾c. Local receipts were 27 cars, with 2 of contract grade.

The market continued firm and May closed ¼c up at 44¾c. July was up ⅛c, at 44⅝c.

Oats opened firm in sympathy with other grains at 34⅝c, yesterday's closing price for May and on buying by scalpers and covering by shorts, advanced to 35¼c. The early demand was due to small receipts and bullish crop advices, conditions being still unfavorable for seeding in the southwest. Local receipts were 68 cars.

Trading in provisions were dull and the opening prices were lower on weakness in the hog market. The only feature was selling by outside interests and there was little change in prices during the first hour. July pork opened 5c lower at $17.55, lard was off 2½@5 to 7½c, at $9.77½, to $9.80 and ribs were down, 2½@9.77½.

Close: Wheat, May, 73⅝@¾c; July, 72½c; September, 68⅛@¼c. Corn, April, 44¼c; May, 44¾c; July, 44⅞c; September, 44⅛c. Oats, April, 34½c; May, 34¾c; July, 31⅝@¾c; September, 28¾c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: A wheat break of 3½c is trying under many circumstances for the people who are in the market. When such a break comes in a twinkling and when stop loss orders cannot be executed, the market becomes an especially uncomfortable one for both the speculator and the commission man. Yesterday's wheat experience was about as mean a one as could be imagined and decidedly the most uncomfortable since the advance in the May began from 71¾c in March. Brokers were reciting their experiences long after the close, and those who had stop loss orders to execute had the sorriest stories to relate. One who had 50,000 bushels May wheat to stop at 78½c could not get it off until the market was 2 cents under his stop loss price and before he reported the trade to his office the market was back up again above the selling point. That was only one of the long list of troubles. It was generally believed the smash in the price was caused by the liquidation of a May line held by a local bull, who had his wheat through Hulbut, Warren, Tregs-Montgomery, Milmine, Wrenn and others. This selling began around 79c and as there was a good deal, it finally filled everybody up and there was no demand. This was a matter of stop loss people and instantly everything was confusing until the Armour people became the support. Valentine tried to support the market himself but the confusion was too great and he was compelled to leave the pit and send in commission men. He hurried in so many brokers and they took the wheat so fast the recovery causing as much excitement as the decline. The crowd had been rather apprehensive of a break largely because the weather abroad was so much improved and because the prices in England and the continent were so lacking with sympathy with the advance here Monday. This early expectation of weakness was, however, quieted temporarily by the extraordinary decrease in the world's visible.

The official German crop report makes the wheat condition 3.3 and rye 3. Last year wheat was 2.3 and rye same. In the German system of crop reporting No. 4 means bad, No. 3 a little better, No. 2 means good and No. 1 means perfect. Some damage reports are being received on Russian crops.

The "open board" in Chicago has announced that No. 3 wheat and No. 3 corn will be received on contracts in case of corners. On the open board today the close of May wheat was 76⅝c while on the regular board it was 78¼@¾c.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was steady and on the whole firmer. The volume of business is extremely small. The Armour operations in this market are out of proportion both to the stock and the general volume of trade. For the time being they dominate the market to the exclusion of legitimate influences. A fair export business is reported at the seaboard. Cash markets in the West are about unchanged. Broomhall cables that Liverpool was somewhat depressed from large offerings of Manitoba wheat, also that abundant rains had fallen generally in southeast Russia and that crop prospects are much improved. Cable advices are that the weather is much improved both in France and Germany during the past few days. Our Northwest correspondents say that wheat seeding is progressing under particularly favorable conditions and promises to be completed ten days earlier than usual. Farmers' deliveries in the Northwest are still small but in the Southwest are liberal. Estimated cars, 20.

Corn—Market here was firm. Continued cool weather, together with the strength in oats caused covering of pit shorts. There is nothing large in the cash situation either in supply or demand. Speculative operations were also of a general character and on a moderate scale. Estimated cars, 50.

Oats—Market was active and on the whole strong. There was a general commission house business in July oats on the rather slow conditions for seeding. A good many shorts covered today and gave some strength in May and July. Under present conditions, however, we are still of the opinion that July oats are high enough and should be sold on the strong spots. Estimated cars 100.

MARKET IS STRONG

Copper Demand Active Enough to Absorb All Offerings.

Walker Continues Bullish on Copper Share Values.

George L. Walker in his weekly review of the copper market says:

Copper is stronger. Lake is selling at 15⅝ cents, electrolytic at 15⅛ and casting at 14¾ cents. The buying demand has continued to be retarded somewhat by unsettled financial conditions; but has yet been sufficiently active to absorb all offerings. Leading men in the trade state that there is no spot copper in sight, and that practically all producers are sold out from two to three months in advance. Consumers generally admit that they have no surplus stocks of copper on hand, and predict that the price of the metal will hold around 15 cents for some time to come. The demand for copper from British, German and French consumers is steadily increasing.

Persistent efforts have been made of late to cause the copper market to have the appearance of weakness, the object being to hasten the decline in copper share prices. That powerful interests have done all that could be done to encourage the liquidation of speculative holdings of copper stocks will be question by no one. These efforts have undoubtedly been rewarded to a considerable extent in the stock market; but, despite the very general alarm felt in business circles, there has continued to be an active and strong demand for copper. It is declared that millions of pounds of copper were sold last week, while the financial disturbance was at its height, at 5 cents or a fraction higher per pound; this as a rule for future delivery. Another trade authority states that there has not been a time in the past month that 100,000 tons of electrolytic copper could have been bought for immediate delivery at 15 cents per pound. The fact that there is an absolute scarcity of electrolytic copper is now fully apparent.

The part recently played by the New York Metal Exchange is being severely criticised. Copper was offered down on the exchange at 14 cents at a time when real consumers were bidding 15 cents and paying as high as 15¼ cents. The difficulty apparently lies in the fact that the Metal Exchange has never yet come to be recognized as a factor in trade, neither sellers going there to sell nor buyers to buy. Traders who had been long of copper on the Exchange, therefore found it hard work to find buyers who would relieve them of their responsibility, and consequently offered prices down. At the same time there were people at work who were interested, from a stock market standpoint, in forcing copper quotations down. And their brokers were sent out among small consumers to offer very large lots of copper at 14 cents per pound. This misrepresentation helped to depress the price of Amalgamated and other coppers, and also contributed to the decline in copper quotations on the London Metal Exchange. The managers of the New York Metal Exchange have taken prompt action to prevent a repetition of these questionable proceedings, and the quotations sent out by the Exchange will in future be more reliable.

The Union Metals Selling Co., the American Metal Co., Mr. John Stanton, Phelps-Dodge interests and Calumet & Hecla people all express the belief that copper will remain as high as 15 cents for some time to come, probably during the remainder of the year. Two of these high authorities predict that copper will average as high as 15 cents for at least two or three years to come. At any rate the experience of the past three or four weeks has furnished every possible evidence to prove that the present market price of the metal is legitimate, that the real buying demand is stronger than the power of the manipulators, and that the consumption of copper continues to exceed its production.

COPPER SHARES.

The prices of copper mining shares had a further decline early in the week, reaching almost as low as they sold on 11½ cent copper. The only reason for the selling continued to be, that some railroad corporation interests over in New York were at war, that some promoters, located in the same city, and in other cities, had printed more new railroad and industrial and shipping securities than they could sell; that business in general was too good and required too much money for its continuance; that the crop outlook was too favorable, suggesting the possibility that there may be a scarcity of money next fall when the movement of the crops begins; and that disaster was being brought about by this great excess of prosperity which was weakening the accounts of traders and forcing them to sell their copper stocks.

The result of the result is that copper stocks have been cheaper this week than at any previous time in the past decade. There never was a time when copper mining companies were earning as much as at present that their stocks could be bought nearly so low as they can now. The best of the coppers are actually selling as low now, with copper above 15 cents, as they should sell on an 11-cent copper market. Despite the long continued decline in the prices of the stocks listed on the New York stock exchange, the best of the railroad securities are still high compared with the coppers.

Every factor in the situation is favorable to a boom in copper stocks. Earnings are sufficiently heavy; there has been no speculation in the stocks for a long time, and consequently there are practically no weekly margined accounts; they are not favorably affected by the Northern Securities decision; and all of the copper mining companies together are not selling for much more if as much as one of the railroads, the Atchison, hence copper share speculation will tie up comparatively little money. The present has every appearance of being the chance of a life time to buy and secure bi profits.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 22.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 16@4 points and ruled active and stronger on better cables than expected with Manchester reporting a more promising outlook and weather in the cotton belt too cold for the crop. North Shore Boats Will Try to Make Port Arthur.

Ice Breaker Badly Needed In the Canadian Port.

The White Line steamer Mabel Bradshaw will make the first trip to Port Arthur and Fort William Thursday morning.

"We don't know whether she can get in or not," said an officer of the company today, "but she will make the attempt."

The Booth steamer America will not make her first trip until May 1.

The ice is still of considerable thickness in the harbor at Port Arthur and no boats have arrived or departed yet this season. The people of the two Canadian cities are complaining bitterly of the need for an ice breaker. They claim that with an ice-breaker at work navigation could have opened two or three weeks ago, but there are still no signs of a break up of the harbor ice. At the commencement of the week there were several vessels lying on the edge of the ice pack waiting for an opportunity to make their way to the docks.

The steamer Bransford left yesterday from Duluth for Port Arthur light for grain.

An earlier opening of navigation at Port Arthur would also be of benefit to Duluth, as the trade between the two cities is growing rapidly and the lake is the only other means of communication between the two points.

DREDGEMENS' STRIKE SETTLED.

Chicago, April 22.—Settlement of the strike of dredge and crane men which has tied up work in the harbors of the Great Lakes, was effected yesterday. The employes grant the demands of the men for the payment of the Chicago scale for all work done out of this city on current contracts. It was the refusal of the members of the union to work for less than the Chicago scale that resulted in the strike. Men who were to be sent to Waukegan to work in the harbor there were asked to accept a wage of twenty per cent less than that paid in Chicago. They refused and a general strike was the result.

MAY REOPEN HOSTILITIES.

Toledo, O., April 22.—A reopening of hostilities between the Licensed Tugmens' association and the Great Lakes Towing company is threatened as the result of the appointment of Capt. William Rafferty, of Cleveland, as mate of the tug Saugatuck. Tugmen here claim that it is a violation of the agreement that the tug combine is not to discriminate against the men involved in last year's strike. Manager Nagle denies the alleged discrimination and says the combine can hire anyone who is a member of the Licensed Tugmens' Protective association. He claims there were no competent men here. The tugmen will to Grand President Carle.

the unanimous support given by the governing committee, and thus encouraged the building committee continued its efforts.

S. I am grateful also to the members of the governing committee for their liberal attitude and for their confidence, because without this it might well have been impossible to complete this great work, whereas now and today, we may truly say that our dreams and our boldest expectations have become a magnificent reality.

As I look about me in this distinguished assemblage and note the presence of many of the great leaders in the world of finance, commerce and industry, and as I contemplate the gigantic strides that have been made in the development of the wonderful resources of our great country, and as I meditate upon the marvellous growth and expansion of our institutions and of our trade and when I realize the commanding position of our people in the family of nations—and when, looking backward, I call to mind the fact that the first sessions of the Stock Exchange in the days of 1792, were held under the historical buttonwood tree in front of the old Tontine Coffee house in lower Wall street, and that, for nearly seventy-five years thereafter, its sessions were held in various hired premises, until about thirty-seven years ago, it occupied its own, comparatively modest, building, which is now replaced by this superb new home which we are dedicating to the uses of our association today, then, gentlemen, I tell that the transition from the small beginnings in the early days, to the New York stock exchange of today, is but one of the many astounding changes that typify our onward march toward supremacy and give lasting and monumental expression to the unexampled progress and prosperity with which our beloved country has been blessed.

Our great city has been adorned with various edifices of exceptional beauty, that bear silent, but convincing testimony to our progress and advancement in the arts and sciences, and now we have added this imposing structure to the number. May we not modestly claim for it that it is rivalled by few—if any—and surpassed by none of the great buildings which have been erected during recent years?

When the beautiful, gigantic group of marble statuary, as designed and modeled by America's greatest Sculptor, shall have been placed in the Pediment on the Broad street facade, this then fully completed new Stock Exchange building will ever stand as an example of architectural dignity—massive and impressive—ponderous, but not pompous—fascinating in its boldness— perfectly harmonious in its interior and exterior relations; in short, a building exquisitely effective, but unique in character.

The beginning of the Twentieth Century could not have been marked by better and more enduring monuments, for they embody and represent the finest genius of the architect and the sculptor; the noblest examples of decorative art; the highest skill of the constructing engineer and of the builder, and the best talent of the artisan.

The magnificence of our new home is only in keeping with the magnitude of our business. As in this, so also in the methods by which we adjust and settle our daily transactions, and in the extraordinary facilities afforded by our own stock exchange clearing house, we may well claim first place among the exchanges of the world; having reached it, let us maintain it. Let us always remember the objects of our association as laid down in the very first article of our constitution, namely: "To maintain high standards of commercial honor among our members, and to promote and incul

A Striking Freight Handler Is Arrested for Trespass.

Contractors Claim to Be Getting Plenty of Men.

Despite the fact that non-union men are being brought in from Minneapolis to replace the striking freight handlers on the Northern Pacific docks, the best of order prevails.

Yesterday the strikers claim to have induced thirty of these men to give up their jobs, by means of quiet argument which took place between the depot and the dock.

The union also paid the fare of some of those men back to Minneapolis but claim that that is entirely too expensive a proposition.

Today another batch of non-union men were brought in from the Twin Cities. When the strikers' delegation sought to board the train and talk to the men they found the doors locked. Instead of getting off at the depot the cars were backed around to the docks and the men were guarded by special officers to see that none of the union freight handlers got near them.

M. L. McLaughlin, one of the members of the union, got a little too close to the dead line and he was arrested for trespassing on private property.

In court Mr. McLaughlin entered a plea of guilty and was fined $5 and costs. It is probable that the next arrest made on this account will be elected by the union.

Knudsen & Eden, the firm having the Northern Pacific freight handling contract say that the work of loading and unloading package freight boats is now well organized and that they do not fear any further inconvenience from the strike.

The contractors are boarding the non-union men in cars down near the dock and today complaint was made to the health department that the refuse and garbage from the eating cars was a menace to the public health. The complaint is said to have been made by one of the union men.

Staunton, April 22.—The report from St. Louis that Lieutenant Governor Lee, of Missouri, whose presence is desired by the grand jury investigating the legislative bribery charges was in this city reached here today. An examination of the register of the leading hotel shows that John F. Lee and two ladies were there last Saturday and remained until Monday afternoon, when they went to Clifton Forge and there took the westbound train for Cincinnati. While here Mr. Lee and his companions spent their time sightseeing. Mr. Lee is described as a fine-looking man about 35 years old. He had a sandy moustache and pleasant manner and said he was a St. Louis lawyer.

EDICT ISSUED

To Reorganize Financial System of Chinese Empire.

Pekin, April 22.—An imperial edict just issued orders Prince Ching, the grand secretary, to reorganize the financial system of the empire by establishing a monetary standard for the entire country and starting a mint at Pekin to supply the provinces with uniform coinage. This step, which is due to Japanese influences does not necessarily mean that the scheme will be carried out. Former edicts have been nullified by the indifference of the Pekin officials and the opposition of reactionary viceroys.

HEAVY JUDGMENTS

Entered Against Street Railway Companies in Chicago.

Chicago, April 22.—Three judgments aggregating $1,000,000 in favor of the Guaranty Trust company of New York, were entered against the Chicago Union Traction company, the North Chicago Street Railway company and the West Chicago Street Railway company in the state circuit court today.

Rumors of the appointment of a receiver for the Union Traction company, caused a severe break in the price of that stock on the local exchange today, the preferred selling from 36 down to 27½. At the same time the West Chicago City railway broke to 65, these prices being low records for both stocks.

NO WORK UNTIL SATURDAY.

Then Men Must Work For Nine Hours.

Ashland, Pa., April 22.—When the mine workers reported at the collieries today in compliance with the instructions issued by the leaders yesterday, they were told there would be no work for them until Saturday, when operations will commence if the men are satisfied to work the nine hours, as required by the company.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 22.—President Mitchell, the district presidents and board members of the United Mine Workers met in executive session today to complete the arrangements for the adjustment of the mine workers' grievances. They expect to complete the work today, and President Mitchell will return West tonight, unless he decides to go to Toronto. He sent notices to the presidents of the coal-carrying roads today that District Presidents Nichols Fahey and Detter had been appointed as the miners' representatives on the board of conciliation, and asked that they make their appointments as soon as possible, so that a meeting can be held.

PLOWED UP SKELETON.

Old Murder Mystery Cleared at Sioux City.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 22.—A thirty-three year old murder mystery was cleared up today when the skeleton of Sol Roberts, who disappeared in March, 1870, was plowed up near this city. The dimensions of the skeleton coincide exactly with the description of Roberts. The community has always believed that Roberts and a German girl were murdered by a homesteader, named Anderson, who sold all his property and left. Roberts was employed by Anderson and his skeleton was found near Anderson's old place.

When a Renumerative Price Is Charged For Coal.

Coal Company's Attorney Roundly Scores the New Yorkers.

New York, April 22.—Hearing on the complaints of William R. Hearst, against the Pennsylvania and other railroads was continued today before the interstate commerce commission. Counsel for the complainant continued his argument.

Mr. Shearn, counsel for the complaint, called for all the contracts entered into between the Lehigh Valley road and the Lehigh Valley Coal company, explaining that he expects to prove by them the differences between the actual price of carriage charged to the independent companies. He said the contracts will show that the Lehigh Valley Coal company is to receive for all its coal 65 per cent of the price realized by the coal at tidewater. Judge Campbell of the Reading and Mr. Kerr of the Ontario & Western protested that no such conditions obtained on their roads.

Mr. Shearn said the contracts would show the creation of a monopoly that the coal companies have no power over the output of their mines because they can only get rid of the quantities the railroads are willing to take from them, and the railroads will not handle the coal in sufficient quantities to reduce the price to the consumer. Analysis of the contracts, he said, will show that they are really contracts for the carriage and not for the purchase of the coal.

"These companies," he said, "brought the coal to the tidewater for $5 per cent of the price of $5 per ton and then turned it back again to the coal companies to be sold for $12 to $15 per ton.

"Where do the complaints come from?" interposed Judge Campbell. "From the independent companies? No. From the owners of the palatial Central park, the crowded tenement and the business buildings in the lower part of the city? Yes. If the price of coal is reduced, will your rents be reduced? Not a bit of it. Cheaper coal is the hysterical demand of your newspapers, but of the thinking public. We will show the people of New York the facts. We will show this commission for more than a quarter of a century the people of New York have wrung the bowels of the coal regions of Pennsylvania, practically getting their coal for nothing and whining like a pack of whipped dogs when a decent remunerative price is asked by the miners. Here is where the surplus comes and here the coal is cheaper than anywhere else. You pay less than I pay in Philadelphia. You don't pay enough and I am going to appeal to the commission to order the rates on coal to the tidewater advanced."

"We appreciate very much," Mr. Shearn replied, "the courteous words of the representative of the divinely ordained agent of God in the coal regions. The people of New York, of Albany, of Buffalo, and of Boston were grateful for the comparison with whipped dogs, because they objected to being robbed."

"I think the hearing is going beyond even the wide limits we purpose to allow," put in Chairman Knapp, of the commission. Mr. Gowan, of the Lehigh Valley company made a long argument against the request to produce the contracts called for. Mr. Shearn asked the commission to order the production of the contracts. Mr. Gowan denied the existence of any such contracts as Mr. Shearn described.

Mr. Kerr argued that the contract in question is a matter of bargain and sale; that title to the coal passed at the breaker and the question of transportation—the only question of which the commission has authority—is not involved.

The commission decided that the Lehigh Valley railroad should produce the contracts demanded. Counsel refused.

W. W. Boss, representing the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, also refused a similar demand. He declared that the road was taught at the mine and that consequently the question of transportation does not enter into the contract and the commission had no jurisdiction. Counsel for the other roads declined to produce their contracts. The commission certified the point raised to the United States circuit court, where a decision will be rendered.

WHERE THE HORSE KNEW

The Mountain Pony Found the Way Out.

There was a peculiar meeting at one of the horse chutes down at the yards last Thursday afternoon. It was one of those affairs that raised human nature in the eyes of persons who happened to witness it. It was distinctly human and distinctly pathetic, says the Kansas City Journal.

A train load of stock had just been rolled into the yards, and was being shunted and jammed about the maze of tracks by an officious little switch engine. Finally a couple of the cars were cut out of the train, and, receiving a backward kick from the engine, slowly rolled toward the entrance to one of the pens.

When they came to a standstill a stylishly dressed young man was seen running swiftly up the track and after the cars. He was in a hurry for keeps, and took the platform at a bound just as the door of the car was opened and the horses began to hobble stiffly out of their confined quarters.

He stood as close to the big guard as the guard would allow and eyed each animal as it passed down the gangway toward the pens. At last the car seemed to be empty, and he turned away with a sigh and said: "I would have bet my head I heard her call me."

The guard looked around and smiled a withering sort of a smile, and asked the young fellow if his lady friends usually rode in horse cars. There was no answer at first, but the young man finally pulled himself together and explained that it was a horse he was looking for.

"Well, here's one for you that is a beaut," said the guard as he walked into the car and started toward the chute leading to the mountain pony of an uncertain buckskin color.

As he came out into the sunshine leading the animal the young man set up a wild shout. "Thats her! thats her!"

In an instant he was over the barred gate and was stroking the nose of the pony, who showed that he was not a stranger by unmistakable signs of recognition and delight.

"How much do you think they want for her?" he eagerly inquired of the guard.

"Search me," was all the reply he received from that individual when he made the inquiry.

Finally he was directed to the consignee of the horses and completed the terms of the sale in jigtime.

At this juncture the guard returned, and edging close to the young man who had displayed such an interest in the scrawny little beast, said:

"What are you going to do with her? Start a breeding farm or a racing stable?"

Before the young man could answer the switch engine snorted up the track again and coupled to the empty cars with a bump. When the distraction of moving the cars had subsided the guard turned to the buyer of the pony and said: "Well, how about it?"

"I think a whole lot of that little mare," said the purchaser, "and I guess I have a right to think as I do. You see, when the Rock Island was being built through New Mexico, about two years ago, I was dead broke—had some trouble with the old man and was traveling for my peace of mind. I struck Tom McCarthy, who had a construction contract on the railroad near Santa Rosa, and he gave me a chance as timekeeper.

"We had a tough bunch of Dagos numbering about 400 working on the grade, and the camps where they were quartered were separated from headquarters at distances of two or three miles for a stretch of, perhaps 20 miles. I only took the time once a day, and made the trip up one day and back the next. This old mare was the horse I rode.

"She was born in those New Mexican mountains, and when it comes to knowing the deer trails and mountains she had it on any man I ever heard of.

"Now, I'll tell you why I bought her. I don't think she is fit for much as a work animal, and I guess McChesney and Hermis and a few more might beat her if it came to a race, but I surely would not trade her for all the racers you could crowd into one of these cars.

"It always had a kind of an idea that a dog was far and away more intelligent than a horse, but shortly after taking my position with McCarthy and becoming acquainted with old Dolly here I changed my opinion.

"One morning in June I started on my long ride to the outside camp. The sun shone hotly and the brown and yellow hills seemed to waver in the quivering air. There is no blue on earth like the color of a June sky in New Mexico, and, in spite of the heat on the table lands, that of the higher reaches of the trail was like wine and music, and as we ambled along up a steep and rocky trail I sat on her back and dreamily thought how good it was to be alive.

"About an hour after this delightful reverie I came to with a start to find that I had overlooked six of my men somewhere behind me. The trail at this point was about two feet wide, and ran along the side of a canyon that extended up into the blue air as straight as the side of house and plunged off into a little stream 500 feet below at an angle of probably 45 degrees. The trail was above the grade, and the men had been engaged in clearing the way for the muckers and rock men. Strange to say, wherever it was possible for the roots to take hold the gradeway was well covered with chaparel and manzanita. The men had hung on by their eyebrows and chopped away the shrubs. These shrubs had fallen by their own weight and lay in piles some forty feet below the gradeway.

"I called to the old mare to turn, and somehow she managed to do it in a little wider portion of the trail that was right ahead of me. Beyond me the trail following the side of the canyon, turned sharply inward toward the main body of the mountains, and as I turned to find the missing men I saw the foreman of the gang wave his hand to me. I waved back and checked him and his men on my book, thinking that the signal was merely intended to call my attention to his presence. Then I rode on in the direction from which I had come.

"'Hey, Jim,' he called, 'we've fired the bush, and it's going like a race horse.'

"The trail was wider here, and I at once turned the mare again and started back, but when I again brought the main mountains in view I saw to my horror that the first foreman who hailed me had fired the brush in the ravine in front.

"The flame leaped a hundred feet in the air on each side of me and cut off the trail and all possible means of escape. The rock went straight up in the air at least 200 feet and down like a toboggan slide 500 feet. The trail was never wider than six feet, and in some places was so narrow that my knee scraped the mountain in passing. Presently the old mare began to grow nervous, and I leaned over and surveyed the scene below to find the reason.

"The reason was there all right, and when I caught the acrid smell of burning manzanita right under my nose I realized that I was up against the real thing with hearty emphasis on the real.

"Of what happened then and immediately afterward I have no very distinct recollection, but McCarthy, who saw the whole proceeding from the other side of the canyon, says that the old mare stood on the trail and paid no attention to my urging, either with quirt or spur. He says she quietly surveyed the fire ahead, the fire behind and the fire below, and then deliberately backed to one of the platforms of the trail and stood with her nose to the mountain side. Every once in a while she would cast a look forward and back and then over the side of the mountain. By this time the flames almost reached the trail from the brush below, and the smoke was overpowering.

"Still she did not move. Scorching hair and blistering skin did not seem to affect her, and she appeared to be doing the double turn funeral pyre right.

"When I had entirely given up she turned around to me one last time and said, just as clearly as you could: 'Well, I guess it's up to us, but here she goes. Look out—now.'

"She just said now—and I grabbed her with my knees and pulled leather as if I had never been across a horse before.

"She beat all the McChesneys on earth in her flight across that trail into the flames and smoke of that chimney at the junction of the spur and the mountain.

"Deper into it, until I felt the skin on my face shrivel and sting.

"For a tenth of a second she wavered, and I said, 'Now I lay me,' but she was through the worst of it, and in an instant more I was lying on the mountain side less most of my clothes, but not fatally hurt.

"Dolly did not have an unsinged hair on her body, and during the time I lay in the hospital at Santa Rosa she was turned out.

"The new timekeeper did not want such a singed beast.

"I could not find her when I finally recovered, but in the meantime I had made my peace with the old man, and I started in again as timekeeper. The old mare I gave it up and returned home.

"For the rest of her life she is going to wander around knee deep in bluegrass fields. No hand but mine shall touch her if I can help it, and I guess I can."

So saying the young man patted the buckskin neck of his new purchase and the little old mare rubbed her nose on his sleeve and playfully nipped his arm.

ELEVEN KILLED IN TERRIFIC EXPLOSION AT STAR OIL PLANT

The Entire Office Force of Minneapolis Concern Lose Their Lives.

The Plant Was Totally Annihilated By Explosion and Fierce Fire.

Minneapolis, April 23.—The Northwestern Star Oil company's plant in the milling district blew up a few minutes before 12 o'clock and a fierce fire is now raging. The plant was totally annihilated and several lives have been lost.

Two injured men have been taken to the city hospital, and it is certain that the bodies of several are in the seething caldron of flames. The fire will be confined to the walls of the brick building.

It is now believed that eleven persons lost their lives in the Northwestern Star Oil plant explosion. That number are unaccounted for, but the ruins are too hot to permit any search. The entire office force, apparently, was killed. Following is the list:

Dead or unaccounted for:
W. H. DAVIS, president.
C. H. DOWNS, general amnager.
W. S. MITCHELL.
JACOB DOMM.
COL. HAROLD COLBORN.
DAVID DACEY.
JOHN SPETONSKY.
JOSEPH LAFLEUR.
J. E. JACOBSON.
MISS CARRIE RECORD.
MISS ELLA M. ROUNDEY.

The injured: James Livingston, Edward Fink, Will Larson, Walter Scott, Joe McGinty and Joe Dronick.

All are badly burned about the hands or face. Scott has a broken rib and Larson a bruised leg. All will recover.

No explanation of the cause of the explosion is yet available, and none of the injured are able to throw any light on it. Its force completely demolished the large oil tank and the smaller ones that surrounded it, as well as the brick office building, in which were W. H. Davis, who was the president and proprietor of the concern; C. H. Durrin, his manager; Stanislaus W. Mitchell, cashier; Jacob Domm and Caroline A. Record, bookkeepers; H. C. Colborn, clerk, and Ella Roundey, stenographer. Dacey and Jacobson were foremen, Lafleur and Spotanske laborers. A number of the workmen were uninjured and escaped from the seething mass of flames. Glass was broken and damage done in surrounding houses and buildings within a radius of several blocks.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE

Elects Charles A. Bonaparte of Baltimore as Its President.

Clinton R. Woodruff of Philadelphia Is Again Chosen Secretary.

Detroit, Mich., April 23.—The first business taken up today at the second session of the annual meeting of the national municipal league was election of officers. The report of a nomination committee was adopted without debate as follows:

Honorary president, James C. Carter, New York; president, Charles A. Bonaparte, Baltimore; first vice president, Charles Richardson, Philadelphia; second vice president, Samuel B. Capen, Boston; third vice president, Thomas N. Strong, Portland, Ore.; fourth vice president, H. Dickson Burnes, New Orleans; fifth vice president, Edmund J. James, Chicago; secretary, Clinton Rogers Woodruff, Philadelphia; treasurer, George Bornham, Jr., Philadelphia; executive committee—Horace E. Dealing, New York, chairman; William G. Low, Brooklyn; George W. Guthrie, Philadelphia; Harry A. Garfield, Cleveland; Hector McIntosh, Philadelphia; William Bancroft, Wilmington; Dudley Tibbits, Troy, N. Y.; John A. Butler, Milwaukee; Oliver McClintock, Pittsburg; Harry T. Atkins, Cincinnati; Albert B. Hart, Cambridge; John Davis, Detroit; James L. Blair, St. Louis; J. Horace Macfarland, Harrisburg, Pa.; David H. Lawrence, Dubuque, and Elliot Hunt Pendleton, Cincinnati.

After the election, a paper on "Municipal Situation in the Philippines" was read by Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, of the University of Wisconsin. This paper was based on an article prepared by Capt. Edwards, chief of the insular bureau of the war department and was in part as follows:

"The conditions in the Philippine islands are such that the establishment of municipal institutions closely modeled upon those of the United States would be very inadvisable. Nevertheless, it is in the municipalities that the natives will have to receive their first training in self-government. Under the Spanish regime the fiscal autonomy of the rural and urban municipalities was exceedingly limited; a concentrated control prevented all spontaneous activity. Consequently, although by reforms introduced during the last decade the Spanish government established a form of representation resting on a high suffrage qualification, the real power remained centralized, and the local authorities are looked upon as useful chiefly in the collection of taxes.

"The military rule of our army in the Philippines was remarkable for the manner in which the military organization was adapted to civil government, as well as for the fact that the system of local government provided everywhere for popular representation and election, with a moderate property or educational qualification. The simple institutions established by the military, together with the better parts of the Spanish system, have been made the basis of the present organization of local government as it was provided for in the "Municipal Code," Act No. 82 of the Philippine commission.

"The most remarkable feature of this code is that it does not distinguish between urban and rural municipalities. It comprises all under one system of local government, which comes nearest to our county system, but rests upon the Spanish division of the country into pueblos or towns.

"The city of Manila occupies an exceptional position, being governed under a special charter. The government of Manila is modeled on that of Washington, D. C.; for the officers are appointive, not elective, and the insular government pays one-third of all the expenses of the city. This arrangement is due to the fact that Manila, as a great commercial center and the seat of government, exhibits rather anomolous characteristics, and could not well be classed with the ordinary urban or rural municipality of the islands. The government is in the hands of a muni-

FIRE ON THE FRIESLAND.

Liverpool, April 23.—Captain A. P. Feld of the Red Star liner Friesland, which arrived here yesterday from Philadelphia, reports that fire broke out in hold No. 3 when the steamer was three days out. The hold contained cotton, tallow, paraffin wax and rosin. After an hour's work the crew subdued the outbreak. There was no panic on board.

AWFUL SLAUGHTER OF BRITISH TROOPS BY CRAFTY SOMALIS

Col. Plunkett's Entire Force Practically Wiped Out In Fierce Fight.

Ammunition Gave Out and the Soldiers Were at Mercy of the Enemy.

Aden, Arabia, April 23.—The British transport Harding arrived here today from Berbera, the capital of Somaliland, East Africa, and confirmed the report of a British defeat in Somaliland. The officers of the Harding say that ten officers and 180 men, out of a total British force of 220 men, were killed recently in an engagement with the Somalis.

London, April 23.—The war office today received from Brig. Gen. Manning in command of British forces in Somaliland, a dispatch dated twenty miles westward of Galadi, Somaliland, April 18, as follows:

"I rgeret to report that flying column under the command of Col. Cobbe, which left Galadi, April 10, to reconnoitre the road to Walwat, had a most serious check, April 17. On the morning of April 17, Col. Cobbe was at Gumburru, forty miles westward of Galdi, and decided to return to Galadi, owing to the serious difficulty in finding the road to Walwat and to the shortness of water. He was about to leave his camp, when firing was heard in the direction of a small party under the command of Capt. Olivey, which had been sent in a westerly direction to reconnoitre.

"At 9:15 in the morning Col. Cobbe dispatched Col. Plunkett wih 160 men of the second battalion of the King's African rifles, forty-eight of the Second Sikhs and two Maxim guns, for the extrication of Capt. Olivey, if necessary. As a matter of fact Capt. Olivey had not been engaged. Col. Plunkett, on joining he detachment, continued to push on.

"At 11:45 Col. Cobbe heard a heavy fire in the direction taken by Col. Plunkett, and at about 1 in the aftrenoon a few fugitives coming in reported that Col. Plunkett had been defeated with loss.

"The news has been fully corroborated since and I have to report the total loss of Col. Plunkett's pary with the exception of thirty-seven Yayos, who have arrived here.

"The latest information extracted from the fugitives is to the effect that Col. Plunkett pushed on after the enemy's force to the open country seven miles westward of Gumburru, where he was attacked by a very strong force of mounted troops and the enemy's infantry, who attacked at close quarters. He kept back the enemy until he had no more ammunition, when he formed a square and charged with bayonets in the direction of Col. Cobbe's camp. He moved some distance in this manner, but a great many men, including Col. Plunkett himself, were killed or wounded by the pursuing enemy.

At last the enemy's infantry overwhelmed the square and annihilated them all with the exception of the thirty-seven fugitives above mentioned."

The dispatch closes with a list of the "officers and men missing, and no doubt killed in action," namely: Col. A. W. H. Plunkett, Capts. Johnston, Stewart, Olivey, Norris and McKinnon, and Lieuts. Gaynor and Bell, all of the King's African rifles; Capt. Vizey, of the Second Sikhs, Capt. Simms of the India medical staff, two white privates, 48 men of the Second Sikhs and 124 men of the African rifles. The two Maxim guns were also lost.

Another dispatch from Gen. Manning, who, immediately on hearing of the defeat of Col. Plunkett, started for Gumburru with 460 men, says further information reached him from Col. Cobbe to the effect that the latter, with 220 troops, was encamping, with plenty of food and supplies and four days' water. He has about 1000 camels and does not think he can withdraw from his position without assistance, because the scrub is thick and the enemy's forces seem likely to act on the offensive.

Gen. Manning adds: "I march again directly and expect to arrive at Gumburru tomorrow at noon. I shall accomplish the extrication of Col. Cobbe with as much transport as possible and return to Galadi. I can only carry sufficient water for the march to Gumburru, returning directly. I shall therefore be unable to advance against the enemy if the latter holds back."

WELL KNOWN FARMER TURNS OUT TO HAVE BEEN WOMAN

Had Worn Men's Clothes For Twelve Years and No One Had Suspected Her Identity—She Came Originally From Massachusetts.

Madisonville, Ky., April 23.—Aaron Park, a farmer who died suddenly at his home in Muhlenberg county, about twelve miles west of this place, yesterday, was discovered to be a woman, whose name is Mrs. Fred Green. She came to Muhlenberg county about thirteen years ago with a small child. She was dressed in men's clothes. She has lived in one house on a small farm for the entire time and her disguise had never been suspected. Mrs. Green told a neighbor who was with her before she died, that her home was in Massachusetts and that she had assumed men's garb because she could make a better living than she could do otherwise. The only known living relative of the deceased is her little daughter Carroll.

HIGH PRAISE FROM CONSUL

Glowing Tribute to United States From British Official.

London, April 23.—The British consul at Chicago, W. Wyndham, in his annual report on Chicago and the whole consular district, gives a glowing account of the great and increasing prosperity thereof and pays high tribute to American methods. He expresses the opinion that the progress of the country is largely due to "the opportunity both in business and in employment in this large young country, the encouragement given to workmen, the rewarding of merit, the intimate acquaintance of the heads of firms with the work of their subordinates, the keen enthusiasm shown by the workmen in the interests of their employers and to the absolute fearlessness on the part of the business man in venturing on experiments either in machinery or system that may be brought before him."

Mr. Wyndham urges the importance of a careful study of the business and manufacturing methods of the United States and the adoption of those which are suitable to the country where trade is sought for. He considers that such a study is indispensable to holding trade where English merchants are active. This study must, however, be prolonged for several months and a short stay of a day or two in the big cities, so often deemed sufficient by European visitors, is "worse than useless, as any one not accustomed to their ways at first only sees the bad points and learns nothing."

ANNIVERSARY OF EMERSON

Call Issued Asking That It Be Properly Recognized.

Chicago, April 23.—A call for the recognition, in the pulpits of America, of the one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Ralph Waldo Emerson, born May 25, 1803, was issued today by the Rev. Jenkin Lloyd Jones, general secretary of the congress of religion. The call says:

The influence of Emerson has long since become the heritage of all reading and thinking people. First and always, as Matthew Arnold called him, "the friend and helper," of those who would live in the spirit," we cannot fail to realize with gratitude the great and beneficient influence upon our present moral and religious conceptions of Emerson's thought.

Ministers of all denominations are invited to observe Sunday, May 24, 1903, or any near date that may be convenient as the Emerson centenary, either by preaching sermons reflecting the thought, appropriate to the occasion, of our common indebtedness to Emerson, or in such other manner as may appeal to their judgment and taste."

The call is signed by a number of prominent ministers in all parts of the country, including the following named: H. W. Thomas, D.D., Chicago, president congress of religions; Edward Everett Hale, D.D., South Congregational church (Unitarian), Boston; Josiah Strong, D.D., president eLague for Social Service, New York; Francis G. Peabody, D.D., dean of the Divinity school, Harvard university; Henry Churchill King, D.D., president Oberlin college, Oberlin, O.; R. Heber Newton, D.D., Stanford university, Cal.; F. W. Gunsaulus, D.D., president Armour institute and pastor of Central church, Chicago; Elmer H. Capen, D.D., president Tuft's college, Massachusetts; E. Benjamin Andrews, D.D., chancellor Unversiy of Nebraska; Burris A. Jenkins, president of Kentucky university, Lexington, Ky.

HANDSOME YOUNG WOMAN DIES AT HOSPITAL---HUSBAND SKIPS

Had Taken Poison and Was Taken to Hospital Where She Died—Her Husband Who Had Watched By Bedside Suddenly Disappeared.

New York, April 23.—After suffering terrible agony for more than five days, Mrs. L. B. Moorehead, a mysterious young woman of great beauty, is dead in a Brooklyn hospital.

Although it was known that the young woman had taken poison, presumably with suicidal intent, no report was made of the case to the police until a late hour last night. In the meantime the husband, who had watched at the bedside of his wife since she was taken to the hospital, had disappeared and all trace of him has been lost.

According to the information gathered by the coroner, Mrs. Moorehead took poison last Friday while in a fit of pique following a quarrel with her husband at the Hotel St. George. He immediately gave the alarm, a physician who was called saw that there was little chance for the woman's recovery, and he ordered that she be taken to the hospital. Moorehead kept repeating to the physician that he must save the woman, intimating that if she died he was ruined. In the hotel it was understood at first that the husband had said his wife had attempted suicide after a little quarrel with him. But later he changed his story, saying that she had taken poison by mistake.

VANDERBILT WENT TO ENGLAND TO SECURE MARRIAGE LICENSE

London, April 23.—William K. Vanderbilt has returned to Paris. His recent visit to London was connected with procuring a special marriage license. There is much discussion as to whether a license could be issued under the circumstances. It was said that the ecclesiastical court could not refuse, whatever its feelings in regard to divorced persons, but it was added that it could delay matters probably a fortnight by requiring the production of documents which would have to be obtained from America. At the archbishop of Canterbury's office it was said that the archbishop has the undoubted right to refuse a license. No application, however, has yet been received from Mr. Vanderbilt. For an ordinary license one of the parties must live in any parish here for three weeks and have the bans read out in church on three successive Sundays. The French formalities require a residence of six months.

A TRUCE ON THE FEEDING RANGES

Lander, Wyo., April 23.—No further trouble in the Sweetwater country is anticipated this spring. The cattlemen have decided to permit sheepmen to use their leased lands and certain other tracts, but this fall will make a determined stand against the further encroachments of sheep in the Sweetwater country. The truce was decided upo nonly after lengthy discussions among the cattlemen, who are willing to give the flockmasters time to find other ranges during the coming summer. At one time the situation was alarming and a clash appeared unavoidable, but both factions used considerable diplomacy. It is feared there will be some sheep driven back and others slaughtered in isolated districts, but the authorities are doing everything possible to prevent trouble.

DETECTIVES TO WATCH ENGRAVER

Philadelphia, April 23.—Secret service operatives will shortly arrive to shadow Max Seitler, an expert heraldic engraver. Not that Mr. Seitler has done wrong, but he is about to recut the great seal of the United States and the government during this process employs a greater force of inspectors to keep an eye on the single workman than in the construction of a $5,000,000 battleship. The firm to which the contract for the seal has been let was compelled to name the engraver when it bid for the work. This exaction is required so that the necessary protection may be afforded to the design which is expected from Washington in a few days for the guidance of the engraver. The new seal also will be carefully guarded. The present seal has become so worn by years of constant use that the new one will be completed to replace it as soon as possible.

FIRST DEAF MUTE STRIKE ON RECORD

Chicago, April 23.—At a signal from their business agent, 150 deaf mute electrical workers in the Automatic Electric company's works yesterday inaugurated the first deaf mute strike on record. Three hours later the plant, employing almost 1000 persons, was closed down. A strike was declared in four departments of the plant simultaneously, but the action of the mutes, who are the most skillful workers of the company, decided the officers to suspend operations for a time. The mutes are members of the Telephone and Switchboard Workers' union. They were paid the union scale, but joined with the brass workers, metal workers, polishers and buffers and platers in a strike for a shorter work day.

MANY CATHOLIC DIGNITARIES MEET

Washington, April 23.—Assembled today at the Catholic university is one of the largest bodies of dignitaries of the Catholic church ever assembled in America. At 10 o'clock the annual meeting of the archbishops—the most distinguished ecclesiastical body of the church—convened in Mahan hall. The deliberations of the body were presided over by Cardinal Gibbons and were participated in by all of the archbishops, except two or three, who unavoidably were detained. The archbishops had under consideration many questions affecting the Catholic church in America. In addition to Cardinal Gibbons and the most reverend archbishops, many of the bishops, clergy and ecclesiastial students of the country are at the university to attend this afternoon the laying of the cornerstone of the proposed apostolic mission house. This ceremony will occur at 4 o'clock. Cardinal Gibbons will bless the stone and Archbishop Keane will deliver the sermon. The occasion will be a notable one in the history of the university.

A WILD OLD TIME IN THE LEGISLATURE OF ILLINOIS

A Great Row Marks the Proceedings In the House of Representatives Over the Municipal Ownership Bills—A New Speaker Is Elected.

Springfield, Ills., April 23.—Wild disorder marked the proceedings today in the house of representatives over municipal ownership bills. Adherents of the Mueller bill, indignant at Speaker Miller's ruling in favor of the Lindley bill attempted to pull the speaker from his chair. The speaker raised his voice above the turmoil and declared the house adjourned. Thereupon Representative Murray, a Mueller bill man, called for the election of a speaker pro tem. Charles Allen, of Vermilion, was selected, but had difficulty in forcing his way to the speaker's chair. The aisles were thronged with a crowd so excited that it was almost a mob. Eventually he made the passage, and Henry Bellig was made clerk. It was found exceedingly difficult, however, to accomplish business.

The municipal ownership fight now in progress here is the most exciting which the state capital has witnessed in many years. Chicago sentiment is said to favor the Mueller bill and Mayor Harrison, Graeme Stewart, the recently defeated candidate for Chicago's mayoralty chair, John M. Harlan and others of influence have been here several days working for it. The Lindley bill, the municipal ownership measure favored by an active minority, has, however, been forced ahead. Yesterday the speaker arbitrarily refused a roll call on a motion to postpone consideration of the Lindley bill, although a majority of the house demended the roll. The postponement motion was declared carried, amid the protests of the majority. The postponement was desired by the Lindley forces.

It was 11:20 when Speaker Miller announced that the Lindley municipal ownership bill was a special order on second reading. The bill was read. Then Mr. Lindley was recognized and offered the amendments formulated at Tuesday's conference. Before these were read he made a statement to the house concerning them. Speaker Miller then ordered the amendments read. The first amendment was read and then the speaker started to put the question of its adoption to a viva voce vote, the house was thrown into disorder. A large number of the members were on their feet, some of them standing on chairs, a few on their desks, demanding a roll call.

"The amendment is adopted," said Speaker Miller, bringing down his gavel.

"You're a liar," retorted Mr. Allen. There was now a fresh outbreak, members shouting "Mr. Speaker," "Mr. Speaker," "roll call," "roll call."

Above the din Mr. Sherman, as he seized his "kitchen chair" and placed it on his desk in front of him, could be heard shouting: "The speaker ignores the rules of the house. The chair is not in order."

The second amendment was then read. The uproar was deafening as the speaker started to put the question of adoption, "as many as favor,"—the rest of the sentence being entirely lost. All the while the demands for a roll call continued. The speaker declared the amendment adopted, although his decision could be heard scarcely three feet from him. The third amendment was read and in the same manner declared adopted. By this time a perfect pandemonium prevailed. Many members had seized billbooks and were pounding their desks, while Mr Cummings, from his seat in the front row on the Democratic side was vigorously wielding a board.

The fourth amendment was declared adopted. When the reading of the fifth amendment was completed personal violence against the speaker was threatened. A number of ladies were sitting on the couch behind the speaker's desk.

"Will the ladies please move out from behind?" shouted Mr. Allen.

"Get them out, shouted Mr. Sherman. "Get the ladies out. Don't act the coward."

In the uproar Mr. Lindley was heard to move the previous question on the bill. The speaker put the motion and although he could not be heard, the movements of the gavel indicated that the motion had prevailed.

FELL FROM WINDOW.

A Cincinnati Capitalist Meets With Sudden Death.

Cincinnati, April 23.—J. D. Lehmer, aged 86, a prominent capitalist, was found dead on the ground in the rear of his home, 332 Broadway, this morning, where he evidently had fallen from the second story window. Mr. Lehmer's estate is estimated at $5,000,000. He held considerable property in Chicago. He had been for some years unable to attend to business.

PENSIONS GRANTED.

Washington, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following pensions have been granted: Original—Horace R. Weisse, Brainerd, $6. Increase—John R. Bean, Anoka, $12.

TO BENEFIT COLONISTS.

San Francisco, April 23.—Owing to the requests of many colonists who are coming to California to live, the Southern Pacific and its connections have decided to make a low tariff on household goods in small lots shipped from the East.

FITZSIMMONS HAS NOTHING LEFT

Chicago, April 23.—A dispatch to the Chronicle from New York says: After more than 200 battles, covering a period of nearly twenty years, Bob Fitzsimmons, the old man of the prize ring, supposed by his friends to be worth at least $100,000, declares that he has no money left and that the house at Bath Beach, which was owned by his wife, represents his entire wealth. As Mrs. Fitzsimmons died without making a will, the title to this property passes to her children, and "Lanky Bob" is left with a life interest only. If Fitzsimmon's statement to his lawyers is accurate all he has to show for his years of fighting is the right to live in a house for the rest of his life.

INJURED IN APARTMENT HOUSE FIRE

Chicago, April 23—Three persons were injured and sixteen families were driven to the street early today in an apartment house fire at 263, 265 and 267 Thirty-fifth street, which totally wrecked the structure.

The injured: Mrs. Gertrude Stiles, probably fatal; Mrs. William Linder, badly burned; Mrs. Gottfried Sowitch, badly burned about face while rescuing child of Mrs. Linder.

The fire started in the basement of the building and had gained such headway when the firemen arrived that a general call for engines was sent in. Most of the tenants were caught while asleep, and barely had time to reach the street in their night clothing. Neighbours made them comfortable until friends and relatives arrived and took them to their homes. The loss on the building was $25,000.

OFFICERS FIGHT BAND OF OUTLAWS

Phoenix, Ariz., April 23.—News has reached here from Tucson to the effect that Deputy United States Marshal Utting and posse, who left for the Gunsight country on the Mexican border a few days ago to arrest smugglers, encountered a band of outlaws composed of some whites and renegade Papajo Indians and Mexicans, and that two Indians were killed. No details are obtainable and nothing has been heard from Utting. It is feared he has either been killed or taken prisoner. A posse of citizens will organize tomorrow to go in pursuit, and Capt. Rynning of the Rangers will get all his available men and accompany them. The posse will probably include twenty men.

WILL GO AFTER TOUGH BOYS

Gang That Make a Practice of Insulting Women.

Insulting language used by a crowd of boys toward women and children has caused prominent Second ward citizens to petition the mayor for police protection in that district lying between Fourth and Ninth streets and Third and Fourth avenues east.

The petitioners say that every night from about 6 o'clock until 11 a gang of boys invade that neighborhood, using vile language in the hearing of and sometimes to the women and children that happen to pass them.

The mayor and Chief Troyer held a consultation this morning, and there is every indication that the gang will meet up with trouble in the near future if the practice is continued.

As for furnishing an extra police officer for that district, the mayor says that it is almost an impossibility with the present condition of the police department fund—the appropriation not being sufficient to put on additional men this year.

Plumbing Ordinance Unsatisfactory To Several Interests.

Discussed at Meeting Of Real Estate Men And Others.

What Duluth builders and real estate men want eliminated from the new plumbing ordinance, is:

The clause compelling specifications and inspections of slight alterations, as the putting in of a bath or removing one; and the fees accompanying.

The compulsory improving old plumbing, when alterations are made, according to the recent plumbing regulations.

The provision regarding heavy leader pipes.

The provisions regarding vent pipes on old plumbing.

They welcome an ordinance that will compel:

New plumbing to be made after regulations prescribed; the filing of detailed plans for it and the inspection of the work, with fees accompanying;

Reasonable measures for sanitary conditions.

Real estate men, builders and plumbers, wrangled over the new plumbing ordinance at a meeting held at the Builders' Exchange yesterday afternoon. B. Silberstein was chairman of the meeting.

The real estate and building men argued in favor of amendments of the recent plumbing ordinance enacted by the city council, under which Inspector Rigdon is now acting.

The Journeymen Plumbers' association and the inspector contended that the regulation of the plumbing to make the sanitary conditions of Duluth's residences almost perfect, were proper and right.

The ground upon which objection to the ordinance was made was that the general alterations of plumbing in buildings erected some time ago, should not be so closely governed as the new work; that the compelling of people to file specifications and submit to inspection, with fees accompanying as prescribed, would be ruinous to the small builder, practically prohibitive for him to attempt to make improvements on his present plumbing or to put in new sanitary arrangements into his buildings.

"There will have to be a change, said N. J. Upham, one of the foremost in the meeting. "We must come to it. After all the poor man is the one who will suffer through this ordinance. The rich man who builds houses to rent will collect his money back in the rent, but the poor man is left out in the cold, whether he rents or builds."

The meeting was largely attended, and among those who spoke in favor of amending the ordinance were N. J. Upham, Jerome E. Cooley, E. D. Field, W. B. Silvey, J. D. Stryker, E. G. Wallender, B. Silberstein, T. W. Hoopes and others.

Inspector Rigdon and E. G. Strum, the representative of the plumbers, spoke against any change in the ordinance.

The contention of the real estate men and the plumbers was that the prices of plumbing under the ordinance made it almost prohibitive to contemplating home builders, and when taken together with the other materials which are so expensive in Duluth, it has practically caused building to come to a standstill. Those present nearly all talked, and the gist of their statements was that the prices of materials and building in general in Duluth has produced a standstill to the work, which cannot be overcome without some change in conditions. The first thing to remedy would be the plumbing ordinance.

Inspector Rigdon said that while he appreciated the need for the amendments to the plumbing ordinance, he felt that the regulations should be laid down in such a manner that when judgment required some builders could be forced to put in proper plumbing. He said that he believed it was just that some discrimination be left to the inspector, who would use horse sense and see that no one was downtrodden.

He was commited in his statement by the real estate men, who said that if the ordinance specifically required fees and plans and inspection in trivial cases, it would be his duty to enforce the ordinance, and that he would be given no discretion there.

Mr. Strum, representing the plumbers, made a plea for the sanitary plumbing ordinance, asserting that strike regulations were needed to keep the plumbing in the shape it should be. He averred that no leeway should be given the builder, and then the plumbers should be held responsible for the uniformity of all plumbing in the city.

The other side believed that leeway was necessary, and they prescribed a more lenient ordinance, which will permit the change of a sink or a bath in a building, without the great expense of plans and inspection.

"The tests are another costly thing," said Mr. Upham, "and on a $100 job, it will cost the builder somethimes as much as $30 or nearly one-third of the cost of building."

The discussion was a lengthy one, and at the close the chairman was authorized to appoint a committee of five to look over the ordinance and draw up a report embodying suggestions regarding the objectionable clauses in the ordinance, and any recommendations it may see fit, which will be submitted to a meeting to be held in the near future.

GOING TO THE FUNERAL.

Railroad Men To Attend S. L. Morse Obsequies.

A party of Duluth railroad mn, who have served under S. L. Morse, late general freight agent of the Northern Pacific, expect to go to St. Paul tomorrow to attend the funeral, which will be held at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

Richard Eva, formerly general agent of the Northern Pacific, was in the city today, and will probably attend the funeral, as he was a close friend of the deceased when the former was general agent for the company here.

Discussion is still rife regarding the filling of the position of Mr. Morse. The next in succession is Assistant General Freight Agent Fulton, of Seattle, but railroad men are inclined to believe that Assistant General Freight Agent Baird will be given the position, that having been the disposition of a similar case on the Great Northern, when W. W. Broughton was appointed general freight agent a few weeks ago.

MAY BE REPRESENTED.

Duluthian May Go on the Editorial Excursion.

Considerable sentiment is being developed among the members of the Commercial club in favor of a representation of Duluth interests on the annual excursion of the Minnesota Editorial association, which will be run to Washington and Baltimore next month. It is argued that the opportunity offered to do missionary work for the Zenith City is one that should not be lost, especially as the members of the excursion are likely to be guests of Baltimore business men, who are at the present time heavily interested in Northern Minnesota investments.

Secretary A. L. Preston of the Commercial club is the only resident member of the Editorial association, having been elected an honorary member last summer when the association paid a visit to Duluth and were entertained by the Commercial club. The benefit of that entertainment has already been felt, for Mr. Mitchell, of the Minnesota state commission for the St. Louis exposition, was among the editors entertained here, and the knowledge he gained of the immensity of the interests of this city and county on his trip last summer caused him to use his influence with the commission in giving the city an opportunity of recommending to the commission the extent and character of the exhibit to be made at the exposition from this section of the state.

While there have been no definite arrangements made, it is not improbable that the club may send Secretary Preston on the editorial excursion fully equipped with literature and ways and means of advertising Duluth. The expense of the trip will be comparatively small.

Historical Lectures

At High School Assembly Hall.
By MR. CHAS. W. SEYMOUR.

SUBJECTS—

Friday evening, April 24.—8 p. m. Frederick the Great.
Monday morning, April 27.—9 a. m. Pizarro.
Tuesday evening, April 28.—8 p .m. Marie Antionette.
Wednesday evening, April 29. Julius Caesar.
Thursday evening, April 30. The Passing of the Spaniard.

THE SEYMOUR LECTURES

On Historical Subjects Charming All Who Attend.

The course of historical lectures now being delivered by Charles W. Seymour, under the auspices of the board of education, have been most favorably received and largely attended. His treatment of the great characters and scenes of the past is such that all thought of history being anything but a most charming diversion is dispelled.

The past rises before his listeners like a beautiful picture, and one seems in reality to see London as Thomas a' Becket saw it. Bagdad stands out in its splendor as the uwalled city of the Caliph, not needing any support of its pre-eminence, the help of myth, fable or the thousand and one nights. Charlemagne is so wonderfully pictured that his title of great is unchallenged.

Rome and her legions are brought so vividly before us that one almost feels that he might have lived and seen Rome in her greatness and been witness to the marches and triumphs of her unparalleled soldiers, and with Caesar dead at the foot of Pompey's statue, it is realized for once what a truly great man had fallen. This particular lecture upon Caesar so delighted its hearers that Mr. Seymour has been prevailed upon to repeat it, which will be next Wednesday evening, when all interested in the possibilities of oratory, word-pictures and facts are invited to hear him.

The evening subjects still to be presented are "Frederick the Great," "Marie Antoinette," "Julius Caesar," and "The Passing of the Spaniard."

An attendant at the lectures says:

"The citizens of Duluth are truly fortunate in the opportunity given them of hearing these famous and enchanting lectures, and it may be long before a like treat can be offered. They come nearest to being the royal road, the learning of much without effort, the presenting of knowledge as beautiful music, that we have ever seen or heard."

COAL IS GOING OUT.

Several Hundred Carloads Are Shipped In a Week.

Several hundred carloads of coal have been shipped out of Duluth within the past week, a large amount of coal having come in on the boats, and the freight and coal cars having been much easier to secure. The coal being shipped is mostly bituminous, and is being used for power purposes in the inland cities. The shipments of coal listed for next month will be large, and the car situation is such now, one of the local railroad agents said this morning, to warrant the volume of transportation by next week to be as great as a year ago.

WORK OF LAWMAKERS.

Legislature Passed Four Hundred and Three Laws.

St. Paul, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Minnesota law supplement, containing the general laws passed at the 1903 session, was issued this morning. There are 403 chapters and the supplement is twenty-four pages, thoroughly indexed. Of the 403 laws, 150 are senate files and 253 house files. Of the laws enacted 71 relate to cities and villages, 25 to counties, 19 to county offices, 25 to district courts, 23 to school and education, 13 to probate courts, 7 to banks and banking, 9 to corporations, 11 to crimes and criminals, 7 to elections, 12 to insurance, 27 to real estate, 21 to roads and bridges, 14 to taxation, 6 to railroads and 5 to public libraries.

IS GETTING DATA

Commercial Club Working For Fond du Lac Train Service.

Claim That Business Done By the Road Pays Well.

The Commercial committee appointed by President McGonagle to confer with the Northern Pacific company relative to the establishment of a better train service between Duluth, New Duluth and Fond du Lac, has already begun the collection of important data bearing on the subject in the way of the amount of freight and passenger business which the mixed train each way has been doing between the points mentioned, the cost of putting on another train, etc. As soon as the details are complete the committee will take the proposition before the railway officials. The movement for a better train service to New Duluth and Fond du Lac has now received not only the indorsement of the people of those localities directly to be benefitted, but also the Commercial club, the city council, the Duluth jobbers and some of the local officials of the road. The committee feels quite sure that if the proposition of the increased train service is put before the higher officials of the road in the proper light it will receive more favorable consideration than has hitherto been accorded it.

It is claimed that investigations already made show that the freight business between Duluth and New Duluth is a paying one to the Northern Pacific Railway company, that the freight receipts of the New Duluth station are about $4000 per month, while the freight collectable on the shipments from that point are in the neighborhood of $6000 per month.

It is to be urged to the railway company that the mixed train service now in operation is wholly inconvenient and inadequate. The mixed train leaves Duluth in the morning and after reaching Fond du Lac and New Duluth makes the return trip immediately, the trip back consuming from two to four and six hours, according to the amount of switching necessary. Passengers from Fond du Lac or New Duluth who come to Duluth on the train are compelled to remain over until the next day before making the return trip.

The argument that has thus far been made from railroad circles that an improved service would not pay, is not received with any great degree of credulity by those interested in the project. It is claimed that not only do the freight receipts show the business from the St. Louis river points to be good, but there are other industries which would be induced to begin operations were they assured of the adequate train service.

LEE COMING BACK.

St. Louis, April 23.—A special dated Bloomington, Ills., to the Post-Dispatch, from a staff correspondent on board a Chicago & Alton train enroute from Chicago to St. Louis, says: Lieut. Governor John A. Lee, who has been a fugitive from the St. Louis and Cole county grand juries for the past week, is speeding towards St. Louis. He is coming back to tell what he knows about the distribution of boodle in connection with the anti-alum legislation. He left Chicago at 5 a. m. on train No. 1 of the Chicago & Alton, which is due to arrive in St. Louis at 6:12 o'clock this evening.

Floater Found.

Late this afternoon the body of a man was found floating in the Sixth avenue west slip. It was tied up to the dock awaiting an investigation by the authorities, and at 3:30 no person had been able to identify the unfortunate.

Chief Troyer Explains.

With reference to the police manual for which advertisements are being solicited in the city, notice of which was made in The Herald yesterday, Chief Troyer says that it is to be published by a reputable concern that has made a practice of that sort of thing and is to be for the benefit of the Police Relief association and that the police force of the city has nothing to do with it.

NORTHERN PACIFIC DIVIDEND.

TO MAKE A TEST

Another Freight Handler Is Arrested For Trespass.

The Freight Handlers' union will make a test of the "trespass arrest" policy that has been employed by the Northern Pacific railway in keeping strikers away from the non-union workers.

This morning a third arrest was made, when the company's special police arrested Joseph Perry while he was walking on Northern Pacific property between First and Second avenues west.

Mr. Perry was arraigned in the municipal court and entered a plea of not guilty. Had he been locked up, habeas corpus proceedings would have been instituted to secure his release.

In order to prove that he was trespassing on Northern Pacific property, it is necessary for the prosecution to secure valuable papers showing the ownership of the land, and these papers are in New York city. They were wired for this morning, and it is expected that they will reach Duluth in time to take up the hearing before Judge Windom early next week.

It is said that Associate City Attorney Holmes, who will prosecute the case will, if necessary, have the assistance of some of the best legal talent in the employ of the Northern Pacific company, and the strikers too, will be represented legally.

Today the strike is about as usual. There have been no outbreaks of disorder and about the same number of non-union freight handlers are at work as yesterday. There have been some desertions and some additions to the non-union crew.

The health authorities investigated the report against the alleged unsanitary conditions existing around the boarding cars of the non-union workers and say that the complaint was unfounded.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

St. Paul, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—While sitting at the breakfast table in her home at 159 Smith avenue at 7 o'clock this morning, Mrs. Henry Lee fell forward dead, the result of apoplexy of the heart. Mrs. Lee leaves a family of five children, besides her husband, who is head of the tailoring company bearing his name.

Toronto, Ont., April 23.—The funeral of Sir Oliver Mowat was held yesterday and it was the most imposing ever seen in this city. Delegations from nearly every town and society in Canada attended, as did the premier, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, with most of the cabinet ministers and many members of parliament. The legislature, of which the dead man was so long the leader, was present in a body. Bench, bar, church and military were numerously represented, while the civilians followed in thousands. The flowers sent were piled up in many rooms.

BASE INGRATITUDE

Of Woman Whose Husband Saved Her Imprisonment.

Perth Amboy, N. J., April 23.—Twenty years ago John Crampa, who has just been buried here, was living with his wife in Neutia, Hungary. She was accused of stabbing a man, a former admirer. Crampa confessed to the crime to save her and went to prison that she might remain free to care for their children. After serving ten years he was set free. Then he found that his wife had been living with another man all the time he was in prison.

Crampa came to America and spent the last of his life in New Jersey.

RURAL MAIL SERVICE

Logansport, Ind., April 23.—Taxes are being collected by a new method in this county. Since the rural mail routes were established County Treasurer Obenchan has hired stenographers, and every day letters are mailed to farmers along the rural routes calling attention to taxes due and requesting that the debtors procure money orders of the rural carrier. The plan is proving successful, many farmers availing themselves of the opportunity of paying taxes without driving to town during the busy spring season. It is estimated that about $5000 daily is collected in this new way.

L. D. Kitchell, northern passenger agent for the Great Northern, will go to Sault Ste. Marie and Michigan cities looking for business this afternoon, and will not return to Duluth until next Tuesday.

Mrs. M. A. Fedje, of the Osborne flats, left today over the Omaha for Pittsburg, to visit friends.

George M. Smith, city agent of the Northwestern line, will leave for St. Paul this evening.

J. H. McFadzean, city passenger agent of the Northern Pacific, left this morning for a trip to the range towns.

Thomas Owens, of Two Harbors, superintendent of the Duluth and Iron Range road, was in the city yesterday.

THE INDEPENDENT Ferry Line

will start running Saturday morning on last year's schedule. First boats leaving each side of the bay at 7:15 a. m., stopping at Fifth avenue West three minutes later, making a thirty minute service all day. Boats leave Lake avenue Slip and Tower Bay Slip.

COAL OFFICE CHANGE.

Thomas V. Collins to Leave the P. & R. Company.

Milo Phillips, formerly city salesman for the Philadelphia and Reading Coal company, has leased the Sargent docks in Duluth, and will act as the local representative of the company this year. The dock is located at the foot of Sixth avenue west.

Thomas V. Collins, who has been with the Philadelphia and Reading company for the past twelve years in Superior and Duluth, will leave the company. He has not made any announcement of his future plans, though it is likely he will take a position in a similar line of work to that he now pursues, at Minneapolis.

It has been rumored that the coal company would close its offices here May 1, but this is unconfirmed and offices may be maintained as in previous years. The company has been able to get no docks here this summer, leases having expired on the Sargent dock.

The Philadelphia and Reading Coal company has been operating offices in Duluth for the past eight years, and the location has been in the St. Louis hotel building.

Mr. Collins' announcement that he expected to leave Duluth shortly after May 1, which is but a week from now, caused considerable surprise both here and in Superior. He has been popular among his business and personal associates, and has shone as an amateur actor and singer in the local talent productions, and is cast in "Carmen," which is being presented this evening.

CANVASS FOR THE FUNDS

Baseball Subscription Are Being Solicited Among Business Men.

The management of the Northern Baseball league started out on a systematic canvass of the city this morning to raise the subscription fund necessary to make the baseball game a component part of the summer's entertainment for young and old, citizen and stranger.

The lists have been passed around in a desultory manner up to this time, and there was a ready response from the business interests, but no concerted effort had been made to raise the stipulated sum required, $2500.

The lists out today are being generally signed and the management is of the opinion that it will require but a short time to fill out the sheets with the requisite number of signers.

There were no new players signed today, and the schedule, which is due here almost any time, has not been arranged as yet.

Manager Van Praagh is letting contracts today for the construction of the grand stand, and intends that work shall begin upon it at the outside, early next week.

In the blanket will be woven this legend:

"Theodore Roosevelt, elected an honorary member of the Albuquerque Commercial club, 1903."

BACK FROM RANGES

Geological Party Returns From the Great Iron Country.

Report On the Vermilion Range Will Soon Be Out.

The party of geologist students and geological survey men from Wisconsin, Illinois and Canada returned from the ranges this afternoon at 3:40 o'clock, over the Great Northern road.

They spent last night and today at Hibbing and were at Biwabik the night before. The party was directed over the route by Professor Leith of the geological department of the University of Wisconsin.

Tuesday was put in on the Vermilion range under the guidance of J. Morgan Clements, of the government geological survey, with headquarters now at Madison, Wis.

Mr. Clements returned from the Vermilion and left the party yesterday, and has been working on some proofs and corrections of maps of the Vermilion range here in the city since, talking with mining men and explorers from that range.

"The party, which includes some Canadian investor," said Mr. Clements, "was well satisfied with the trip. The students were given a chance to get some idea of practical field work and make their own notes, which will be compared with those of the geologists who have been on the government work for some years. It is the only way to give them any practical knowledge of the work.

"I have resigned my position as an instructor in the University of Wisconsin, and will also resign my position on the government geological survey as soon as the report of the investigations of the Vermilion range, upon which I am working now, are finished. I will then open an office in New York as a practical mineralogist. By the way, if there are any people in Duluth who are interested in the surveys and reports on the Vermilion range, they may procure announcements of the forthcoming report by writing me at Madison, and sending the names of any of those who want them.

"The reports on the Vermilion range will be out soon. The text and matter is all up and the proofs are corrected, and the work is only being held through delay in the map making section of the government printing office. However, they are hurrying this out and it may be done within a few weeks.

"I have made several investigations of the Vermilion range, and this volume will be the fifth on that district. It will be volume 45 in the series of geological reports of this section of the country."

Mr. Clements was in the Bisbee, Ariz., district and made a survey there, the report on which will not be published for some time to come. He is much interested in that country and confident of the fulfillment of the expectations of mining men who believe there are immense bodies of ore there.

The party of geological folks stopped in Duluth only a short time and took the South Shore train at 5 o'clock for the Michigan country, where observations will be made on the iron and copper ranges there.

WOULD HAVE MAIL CARRIERS

Woodland and Duluth Heights Petition the Department.

Postmaster Fisher received notice this morning from Congressman Bede that the matter of the extension of the free delivery service to Woodland Park and Duluth Heights has been referred to the postoffice department.

Petitions from these districts were forwarded to Mr. Bede by the postmaster. The Woodland Park citizens ask that the sub-station be retained and that they be given a carrier.

The Duluth Heights residents also petitioned for a free delivery, but were willing to allow the sub-station to be done away with. One carrier from the main office could handle the mail for the district.

According to the present arrangement the residents of these districts are compelled to go to the sub-stations for their mail. The announcement that several carriers would be added to the local force aroused in them the desire to share in the benefits of the increased force of carriers, and the petitions were the result.

"The matter will have to be decided by the postoffice inspector," said Postmaster Fisher, and the local office will be notified when the decision is made. It will likely be several weeks before we receive the decision."

MEAL TIME DRINKS

Should Be Selected to Suit the Health as Well as the Taste.

When the coffee toper, ill from coffee drinking, finally leaves off coffee the battle is only half won. Most people require some hot drink at meal time and they also need the rebuilding agent to build up what coffee has destroyed. Postum is the rebuilder, the other half of the battle.

Some people stop coffee and drink hot water, but find this a thin, unpalatable diet, with no rebuilding properties. It is much easier to break away from coffee by serving strong, hot, well-boiled Postum in its place. A prominent wholesale grocer of Faribault, Minn., says: "For a long time I was nervous and could not digest my food. I went to a doctor, who prescribed a tonic and told me to leave off coffee and drink hot water.

"I did so for a time and got some relief, but did not get entirely well so I lost patience and said: 'Oh, well, coffee isn't the cause of my troubles and whet back to drinking it. I became worse than ever. Then Postum was prescribed. It was not made right at first and for two mornings I could hardly drink it.

"Then I had it boiled full fifteen minutes and used good cream and I had a most charming beverage.

"I fairly got fat on the food drink and my friends asked me what had happened I was so well. I was set right and cured when Postum was made right.

"I know other men here who use Postum, among others the cashier of the Security bank and a well-known clergyman.

"My firm sells a lot of Postum and I am certainly at your service for Postum cured me of stomach trouble." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

ANTWERP GRAIN MAN

Visits Duluth Market In Interest of His Firm.

Joseph Van Hissenhoven, of Antwerp, Belgium, arrived in Duluth this morning and is at the Spalding while in the city. He is here to make contracts for flaxseed, and also for other grain, he represents the Comptoir Commercial Anversois of Antwerp, one of the largest linseed oil concerns on continental Europe.

"I will be in Duluth only for today, but expect to close some deals for purchases of linseed. This evening I leave for Winnipeg, where grain of all kinds will be contracted for. I will probably contract for some grain in Duluth," said Mr. Van Hissenhoven.

"No, I know nothing more than what I have read in American newspapers regarding the strikes at The Hague. I left home in February and have been all over the East and South since. I came here from New Orleans."

Mr. Van Hissenhoven was educated in an English college and speaks the language well. This is his first trip to America, and he is enthusiastic over the things he has seen since coming here. He leaves on the Great Northern tonight for the Manitoba capital.

To Change the Name.

Permission has been received from the commissioner of navigation at washington by the owners of the steamer Bloomer Girl to change the name of the little steamer to Silver Spray.

"Bloomer Girl" has become obnoxious to the owners as a name, and permission was asked to change it.

There are already three steamers named Silver Spray sailing on the great lakes. Their ports of registration are Buffalo, Marquette and Sandusky.

APPROPRIATION WAS TOO SMALL

St. Paul, April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—The last legislative session cost the state exactly $172,613.56. The legislative appropriation was but $170,000, and there is therefore a deficit of $2613.56. Of this amount $2042.16 is on warrants issued by the house and $570.40 is on senate warrants. The shortage affects twenty-seven persons holding these warrants. Even the "high moguls" of the legislature are caught. Dr. Babcock has $30 "coming" and Lieutenant Governor Jones has $10 due; Secretary Sam Langum holds claims against the state amounting to $230, and the state owes Chief Clerk Julius Schmall $240.

The persons holding the warrants must either wait for two years or have their warrants discounted at the banks.

THE FERRY SCRAP

Contest Over the Contract Is Becoming Very Warm.

Partisans of Both Boats Are In the Field.

The Park Point ferry service contest is getting hot.

Friends of the Estelle and of the Carrington are all out coming to blows over the relative merits of their respective boats.

People that do not have occasion to use the ferry and have never seen rivals for the ferry contract are drawn into the argument and get as excited over it as a summer cottager from Oatka.

Tomorrow morning the Estelle will be pulled off the Park Point run temporarily and will go in the dry dock for an overhauling. The Sarah Smith will take her place.

The Carrington has many staunch supporters that are urging her claims to the contract even if she does cost $5 a day more than the Estelle.

Friends of the Estelle say that as soon as she comes out of the dry dock she will be just as staunch as the Carrington, and will be better in some respects as they claim a greater draught for her.

The city officers have two sets of petitions, one favoring the Carrington and the other the Estelle, or rather, one against the Estelle and one for her.

Capt. S. E. Burnham made an inspection of the Estelle this morning and afterwards speaking of her seaworthiness he said:

"I was surprised to find the boat in as good condition as she is after having heard and read so much of her. I have been in the boat building business for thirty years, and think the Estelle is in really good shape for a craft that has seen the service she has. One small siphon was sufficient to clear her of all water from leaks."

Both are well known in the Duluth-Superior harbor. The Estelle is said to be thirty years old and the Carrington about twenty-seven but both have practically been rebuilt several times.

AT WEST DULUTH

New signs are displayed on the West Duluth cars today. The signs are painted on a blue background with white letters and are very handsome. They all read "West Duluth Extra," and some wonderment has been expressed as to the meaning of the sign.

The West Duluth cars now run to Third avenue east only. The old West Duluth and East End line has been done away with during the time that East Superior street is being paved.

A new line has been put on for the accommodation of the East End people, running from Twenty-third avenue east to Eighth avenue west.

There was some confusion caused this morning by the new signs. People in the East End desiring to go to West Duluth waited for a car without the sign "To Eighth Avenue West Only," and in some cases several cars passed before they realized the change.

The "West Duluth Extra" sign was also confusing to a number of people here, and in many cases the car was allowed to go by, the people believing it was pulling in at Twenty-sixth avenue.

TO RUN ALL SUMMER.

Hurd Refrigerator Works Not to Close Down.

For the first time in many years the Hurd Refrigerator factory in New Duluth will continue running throughout the summer months. It has heretofore been the custom to run the factory only during the winter season, during which time a sufficient stock is accumulated to supply the spring and summer trade. This summer, however, the plant will continue in operation, and as soon as this year's trade is supplied, will commence working on a stock for next year.

The Hurd refrigerator plant is a very important asset to New Duluth, and its operation during the summer months will mean much to the town. From fifty to seventy-five men are employed.

BUSY MEN

Should Weigh This Question and Profit By a Duluth Citizen's Experience.

A lame or aching back is a handicap.

Drive the ache away and make work a pleasure.

Learn what backache means.

Learn that the backache is kidney ache.

Learn how to shake it off.

Read how a Duluth citizen did it:

Mr. L. Schneider, of 224 Sixth street west, employed at the Fifth avenue grocery, says: "I had a dull, persistent aching in my loins and if I stooped or lifted anything heavy it became sharp and piercing. Although often very tired at night I could not rest well as I soon became lame and sore from lying in one position. The secretions from the kidneys were irregular and unnatural. I tried different remedies, but they did not do me much good. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended I procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store and commenced the treatment. I began to get better right away and after using one box felt splendid.

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y. Sole agents for the United States.

"That makes simplicity a grace." —Ben Jonson

The old craftsmen as well as the old poets found the truest grace in simplicity. In like manner is oftentimes most graceful when most simple. It is not necessary to incur great expense in order to adorn one's home with the best examples of Gorham silverware. Even the most inconsiderable articles of household use or personal adornment are pre-eminently graceful in design and admirable in workmanship.

FUNERAL AT NIGHT.

At the Oneota cemetery last evening there was witnessed the novel sight of a funeral by lantern light.

Mrs. Hill, mother of Mrs. O. E. Fisher, died very suddenly at the home of Mr. Fisher in Skibo Wednesday. The body was brought to West Duluth for burial last evening, arriving over the Duluth & Iron Range road at 6:30. The funeral took place from the depot, and the remains were taken to the Oneota cemetery, about twenty friends accompanying the body. It was nearly 8 o'clock when the cemetery was reached, and the interment was made by the aid of a lantern, the friends looking for the last time on the coffin by lantern light, and then wending their way silently home from the darkened cemetery.

James Carey, the "home run hitter" of last year's team, will be out with the West Duluth nine next Sunday when the game with the Duluth Heights' team is played. He will cover left field. Other changes may be made in the make-up before Sunday. Manager Mickesh is determined to win the game and no efforts will be spared to put the strongest possible aggregation in the field. The game will be played on the grounds of the Duluth Heights team.

The regular weekly practice will be held this afternoon on the home grounds.

Tonight the Ferris Comedians will produce at the Metropolitan Howard Hall's great romantic drama, "A Soldier of the Empire," a play that made a run for 500 consecutive nights in New York city, where it was one of the biggest successes. It will be handsomely costumed, as well as being finely scened. "A Soldier of the Empire" is expected to be one of the strongest plays the company has undertaken. The specil scenery and costumes to be used in its production arrived here from Minneapolis yesterday. The specialties will also be given as usual at tonight's performance. Mr. Tim Clark, a new member of the company, will make his first appearance tonight.

WATER FOR PITTSBURG.

New York Syndicate Would Furnish Filtered Article.

Pittsburg, April 23.—W. A. Shoemaker representing a New York syndicate is in Pittsburg with a proposition to lease the waterworks of this city for a term of fifty years. Mr. Shoemaker says, $2,000,000 is back of the enterprise.

It is proposed to provide Pittsburg with filtered water, instal meters and to pay the city at least $500,000 a year for operating the water system.

The city will be given an option to take back the plant at the end of ten years if the service is not satisfactory to the tax payers.

SHERIFF TO ACT

Will Be After Delinquent Taxpayers In a Few Days.

Law Instructs Him to Seize Property and Sell It.

The delinquent personal property list which was turned over to the clerk of courts of St. Louis county April 5 by the country treasurer, is being checked over by those officials today and will be placed in the hands of the sheriff for colection either this evening or tomorrow morning. Under the law the sheriff is instructed by a warrant issued from the clerk of court to seize any personal property of the delinquents, and after due advertisement, to dispose of the same at a public sale, the proceeds to be used in paying the delinquent taxes and the costs which accrue on the service of the warrant and the seizure.

After the sheriff has made all collections or seizures possible, the remaining list of delinquents will be turned over to the board of county commissioners, and that body will determine and cancel such delinquent taxes as in its judgment is not collectable, and through due process judgments will be obtained against the balance of the delinquents.

There is quite a large list of delinquents to be turned over to the sheriff, but it is likely that some who have been waiting for the last moment will pay their taxes rather than risk a seizure by the authorities or be compelled to pay additional costs. The costs in some cases will amount to more than the tax assessed. As soon as the delinquent list is placed in the hands of the sheriff the taxpayer will become liable for the costs in addition to the assessment.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Negaunee Miner Killed By Heavy Fall of Ground.

Negaunee, Mich., April 23.—(Special to The Herald.)—Chas. Stampera, aged 32, married, and a well known Finnish miner, was killed by a fall of ground at the Queen mine yesterday afternoon.

Escanaba—The recently organized Municipal league, of Escanaba, has launched a campaign which aims to secure more industries for the Sandy City. It already has its eye on several, among which are a tannery and a wagon and sleigh factory, and there are prospects that the latter, at least, may be corralled.

Menominee—The mill of the J. W. Wells Lumber company started Monday. There are about 2,000,000 feet of logs on hand.

An exploring outfit was unloaded at Talbot, Menominee county, last week and work will now be commenced to explore for copper, indications of deposits of this metal having been found in several places in that vicinity. Considerable interest has been manifested among the farmers in connection with these finds, and the valuation of their lands has been boosted.

Newberry—Patrick Mehan dropped dead in the sitting room of the McLeod house at Newberry last Wednesday evening. He had just come out of the dining room and was seen to suddenly stagger and fall. When help reached his side life was found to be extinct. Mehan was a well-known character about town, and had worked in the lumber camps about Newberry for many years. The whereabouts of his relatives, if he had any, is unknown.

St. Ignace—The debris left by the fire at the St. Ignace blast furnace is being cleared away preparatory to rebuilding operations, it having been decided by the company to resume making pig iron as soon as possible. The furnace can resume work without a stock house and get along very well for the summer. Of the large quantity of charcoal, first reported as destroyed, fully two-thirds has been saved by keeping many streams of water playing on it.

Hancock—The Dakota Central Telephone company will build a farmers' line south a distance of twelve miles, conecting with the Oldham exchange.

NATURE'S OWN CURE.

Hyomei Cures Catarrh Without Dangerous Drugging of the Stomach.

Not until Hyomei was discovered has it been possible to truthfully say that a remedy for catarrh was known.

This remedy is breathed through the Hyomei inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and during that time every particle of air taken into the air passages and lungs is impregnated with the germ killing and health giving Hyomei. It is the only treatment that cures catarrh.

Stomach drugging often causes disordered digestion or brings on some other diseases and never makes a permanent cure of catarrh. Hyomei not only kills the germs in the throat and nose, but penetrates to the minutest air cells in the lungs and enters the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood. It frees the mucous membrane from poisonous microbes and gives perfect health.

A complet outfit costs but $1.00 and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for more than a month's treatment.

S. F. Boyce has so much faith in the merit of Hyomei that he agrees to return the money to any purchaser who may be dissatisfied.

YIELDING PRICES

In Evidence In Foundry and Steel Making Iron.

Buyers Have Not Responded to Any Great Extent.

Cleveland, April 23.—The Iron Trade Review, discussing market conditions in its current issue says: Yielding prices for foundry and steel making pig irons are in evidence, though without any considerable response as yet from buyers. Finished lines share to a greater extent than for weeks in the inactivity in pig iron, yet mills are in the main too far sold upon important products to warrant the expectation of any material changes in prices this year. Little willingness is shown by consumers of foundry iron to place orders for the second half, and while the position of the furnaces is that buying must soon set in, since only about two months remain on present contracts, there is no assurance that the commitment will be for a period of months. The market is in such shape that there is no incentive to buy for six months unless under guaranty against decline. It is reported that the quotation of $16.50 Birmingham on Eastern shipments of No. 2 foundry, as made by association furnaces, has been made on Central and Western shipments in the past week by sellers not included in agreement. Meantime there is no change in the attitude of the leading Southern sellers, though in the Central West some offers by Northern furnaces are reported below the $21 basis for No. 2 foundry which has generally obtained in recent months on second half deliveries. Pittsburg reports a sale of 10,000 tons of Bessemer iron for the second half at $19.05 valley furnace, or $20.50 Pittsburg. Iron is freely offered at $19.75 at furnace for this delivery. There is good inquiry for steel, but following the Pittsburg sales of domestic steel reported a week ago, the market has been rather quieter. Sales of 7000 tons of Bessemer billets, deliveries running to September are reported at $26.50 Youngstown. Independent sheet and tin plate works have been buyers of domestic steel in the past few weeks and inquiries for foreign steel are pending. German mills quoting $29 at Eastern ports for Bessemer bale. Deliveries cannot be had, however, for from three to six months. The project to combine independent sheet mills in the Central West is still being worked on, options running to September. Expected buying of bars by agricultural implement works has not materialized and the disposition of some of these buyers is to await developments.

MANNHEIM ORDINANCE

Much Favorable Comment Heard For the Stable Measure.

The Mannheim ordinance prohibiting the building of stables on streets without the consent of a majority of the owners of property in the same block and the block on the opposite side of the street is creating a great deal of interesting talk not only in municipal circles, but among property owners generally.

From general expressions heard the ordinance meets with strong public approval. It aims to have all barns, stables and ice houses built on alleys instead of streets—prohibiting such a structure within seventy-five feet of a street unless a majority of the neighboring property owners sign a petition for such a stable or unless the council gives special permission by a two-thirds affirmative vote.

Within the past year or so barns have been built out on the street lines in residence districts and the owners of adjoining property claim that the values of their holdings have decreased greatly, as it is difficult to get good tenants to occupy a house next to a stable.

The Mannheim ordinance drafted by the senior alderman of the Third ward is designed to specially remedy this and give neighborhoods the right to say whether they want a stable out on the street line or not. It has had its second reading in the council and will probably be brought up for passage next Monday night.

There is also some objection to the ordinance. Persons say that if passed it will prohibit the building of livery barns in the city. Mr. Mannheim says not, that it will simply prevent the building of barns in residence neighborhoods unless the barns are back on the alleys where they should be.

The author of the ordinance points out that if a livery barn is desired in any suitable locality it will be easy to get special permission from the council for the building.

SKELETON OF ROBERTS

Who Disappeared Forty-Three Years Ago Found.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 23.—A thirty-three year old murder mystery was cleared up yesterday when the skeleton of Sol. Roberts, who disappeared in March, 1870, was plowed up near this city. The body had been buried under a fence, which was moved last year, and was but a foot under ground. The dimensions of the skeleton coincided exactly with the description of Roberts.

The community has always believed that Roberts and a German girl were murdered by a homesteader named Anderson. The girl came from Germany with a large sum and disappeared two days before Roberts did. A trunk of her clothes was afterwards found in the house, two days after Roberts disappeared.

Anderson sold all his property and left, never having been seen since. Roberts was employed by Anderson and it has been thought he was killed because he knew of the girl's murder. The body was found near Anderson's old place.

FOLK ASKS AID

Of Federal Government to Arrest St. Louis Millionaire.

St. Louis, Mo., April 23.—Circuit Attorney Folk is taking steps to enlist the aid of the state department in bringing about the return to the United States of Ellis Wainwright, the millionaire president of the Wainwright Brewing company and stockholder in the Suburban Street Railway company, who has been abroad ever since his indictment here several months ago on a charge of bribery in connection with the passage of the municipal assembly of a valuable franchise bill for the Suburban Railway company. When Wainwright was indicted he was traveling in Egypt. A few weeks ago he returned to Europe from the region of the Nile, and since then spent much of his time in Paris and on the Rivera. Mr. Folk is very eager to get Wainwright back here before his (Folk's) term of office expires, and as he has reason to believe that Wainwright has no idea of returning voluntarily to the United States for along time to come, at least, Mr. Folk will try to induce the Washington authorities to have Wainwright forcibly returned.

Manager C. A. Marshall of the Lyceum theater returned from a meeting of the members of the Northwestern Theater Managers' association late yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Marshall was confirmed as president of the organization, to which place he was temporarily elected some weeks ago. There were several additional theaters voted into the membership, though the Winnipeg circuit, belonging to Con. P. Walker, has not yet been given a place.

The fourteen houses which now make up the circuit include the Michigan towns on the South Shore road, Green Bay, Appleton, Oshkosh, Fond du Lac, Sheboygan, in Eastern Wisconsin, and Janesville, Madison, La Crosse and Eau Claire in the northwestern. This practically completes the circuit originally considered.

Mr. Marshall says the formation of the circuit has resulted in several new houses being erected through Wisconsin and Michigan, and lots of money is ging into the show business in this part of the country, which means, of course, easier access to Duluth for all theatrical organizations.

In speaking of the summer opera company which will be put on at the Lyceum theater this summer, Mr. Marshall said:

"Business interests of Duluth have cause for self-congratulation in the hearty support that the general public have accorded the organization which is soon to present standard and comic opera. There is a close affinity between the trade and the theaters of a great commercial city.

"The more varied and the more attractive the entertainment offered the visiting buyer, when his day's work is finished, the more apt is he to repeat his visit.

"Duluth's commercial supremacy is unquestioned, so, also, is that of the theaters and places of amusement. The result of one or the other is a large floating population that brings with it a share of the many thousands that pour annually into her coffers from all parts of the Northwest. All else being equal, the buyer is apt to go to the market which offers the most attractive entertainment, and in the case of Duluth, a very considerable portion of the income of her theaters is supplied by this same floating population. The business men of younger towns, by using every means in their power, will do well to encourage really meritorious enterprises such as the Northwestern Opera company, which is to open a summer season of opera at the Lyceum, Duluth, Minn., beginning Monday, June 8."

THE FIGHT OVER

Eveleth and Virginia Settle School District Controversy.

Tax Abatement Matter Comes Before County Board.

The Virginia-Eveleth school district division controversy was amicably settled between the delegations from the two range cities, at the county board meeting yesterday afternoon, after some time had been spent in discussing the matter to the county commissioners. Each city had a legal representative present besides the members of the delegations.

After the agreement was reached the county board passed a resolution creating District No. 39 from District No. 22, which will include all township 57 and sections 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and 33, 58-17.

By the terms of agreement between the delegations from Virginia and Eveleth, the latter city will have two of the schools in the old district, one at the city of Eveleth proper, and the Fayal school. Eveleth is to assume the $13,500 of remaining indebtedness on the Fayal building and also 69 per cent of the remaining indebtedness of $7000 on the Virginia school, making a total indebtedness assumed of $18,300. Virginia will pay the remaining 31 per cent of indebtedness.

All moneys, funds and credits of school district No. 22 are to be divided and apportioned as follows: All funds on hand and to be collected from taxes levied in the year 1901 and prior years are to be divided between school districts Nos. 39 and 22, and all funds on hand will be divided in the following proportions: To school district No. 39, 69 per cent thereof and to school district No. 22, 31 per cent. The county auditor and county treasurer are to make the division and apportionment of the moneys, funds and credits in accordance with the resolution.

The resolution making the division and embodying the terms of the agreement was drawn up by Assistant County Attorney Crosby. H. C. Fulton representing the Virginia people, and N. B. Arnold representing the Eveleth interests.

In the delegations present at the hearing were J. H. Hearding, F. C. Talboys, G. A. Whitmen, J. C. Pool, of Eveleth; Dr. Harwood, of the Fayal mine location, and A. B. Coates, W. H. Eaton, Capt. Parmalee, D. E. Coppernull and R. E. Bailey, of Virginia.

Mr. Coates had filed an affidavit in opposition to the proposed division of the old district to form a new district, and Mr. Fulton claimed, among other things, that the territory to be taken off contained two school houses, that this was contrary to law. He claimed the petition was not signed by a majority of the freeholders and that when district No. 22 was formed ten years ago, Virginia was then the important part, the Eveleth mines not being assessed at that time.

Mr. Fulton said the Virginia people were about to erect a new school building and that it was not fair for the Eveleth people to secede in order to escape their share of the bonded indebtedness that must be incurred after the Virginia people had stood their share of the indebtedness for the Fayal school.

The affidavit was afterward withdrawn with the consent of the commissioners.

For the Eveleth interests, Mr. Arnold argued that the objections raised by the Virginia people were technical and claimed that double dealing on their part entitled them to no consideration before the board. He urged that for all practical purposes the Eveleth and Fayal schools are under one management and run in connection with each other, hence should not be separated.

J. H. Hearding, of Eveleth, gave a brief history of the formation of school district No. 22 and several of the other members of the two delegations took an active part in the discussion, which grew rather warm at times. Finally Mr. Hearding, after a conference with his associates and with the Virginia people, announced the agreement, along the lines of which a settlement was made of all difficulties.

A petition for a new school district in the town of Solway, signed by Albert C. Miller and others, was presented and a hearing was set for May 3.

It is understood that there is another school district division fight brewing in the town of Stuntz. At the regular April meeting of the board of county commissioners a petition was presented from the village of Chisholm, asking that it be set aside in a new district. The petition was tabled until a further investigation by Commissioner Connors. The commissioner said yesterday that there was every indication of serious opposition to the division of the old district for the formation of a new one.

After disposing of all matters relating to school districts, the board of county commissioners passed a resolution providing that the board will consider the applications for abatement of taxes and assessments upon property in the city of Duluth where the total amount of the taxes and assessment liens exceed the present assessed valuation of the property, but in all cases at least five years' taxes must be due. Property owners will be required to settle 1902 taxes in full and on a basis of one-half the amount of 1902 taxes for each other year for which the taxes are due.

The resolution was introduced after Assistant County Attorney Crosby had reported the result of his visit with City Attorney Oscar Mitchell at the state auditor's office. He said that after the state auditor had fully understood the urgency of some such action he outlined an abatement that he would accept and which is identical with that given in the resolution.

Commissioner Patterson and Chairman Morcom voted against the resolution. Mr. Patterson held that by passing the resolution the county board was hanging out a shingle announcing that it was favorable to tax settlements with some of those people who have been trying to get out of paying their taxes, and that it was a bad precedent.

Commissioner Kauppi, who has been an ardent advocate of the abatement of the taxes on West Duluth property so long delinquent, urged that the property was dead property as it now stands and that the only way to get it back on a tax-paying basis is to abate the delinquent assessments. As the matter now stands, each owner of delinquent property which will come under the resolution passed, will have to make application to the board of county commissioners for an abatement of his taxes, and the board, if it deems best, will recommend the abatement to the state autditor.

REPLY TO CHARGES

Made By Assistant Treasurer Williams of Chicago.

Washington, April 23.—William P. Williams, assistant treasurer of the United States at Chicago, who recently had frequent conferences with Secretary Shaw in regard to the affairs of his office, has filed a written reply to the charges recently made against him. These charges were never regarded by the secretary as very serious in character, involving, as they did, technical complaints against his administration. For instance, it was said that he carried on the books of the assistant treasurer's office for some time a shortage of $900, owing to the acceptance of short-weight coins. Mr. Williams has convinced Secretary Shaw that he was carrying this shortage merely as a sort of suspense account, and that there was no intention to defraud the government in any way. The Illinois senators are anxious to have a successor to Mr. Williams appointed, but the reasons for the desired change are declared to be of a political character.

WARE JUST AS BAD AS EVANS

Says Dryenforth Regarding the Commissioner of Pensions.

Washington, April 23.—There is much dissatisfaction with the administration of the pension office under Commissioner Ware, according to R. St. G. Dryenforth, of this city, commander-in-chief of the Union Veterans' union, a national organization with an organized membership in various states.

Mr. Dryenforth, in a caustic interview, said that the administration of the pension office as affecting the rights of veterans had not improved since Henry Clay Evans was given the best political office within the gift of the president. Officers of the Union Veterans' union declare that just as many claims are rejected now as formerly, and that a systematic movement has been instituted to drive the veterans out of office and politics, replacing them with younger men.

In consequence of this feeling a national organization is being formed by Gen. Dryenforth to force the election of delegates to the new Republican national convention who will see that a plank is adopted compelling more liberal treatment of the veterans in the way of preferment in appointments to office, and, if possible, force the party to appoint to the commissionership of pensions men approved by the veterans. Campaign commissioners are at work in New York, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey, Massachusetts, West Virginia, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri and other states.

UNION OF COACHMEN

Is Likely To Be Formed In Chicago.

Chicago, April 23.—Coachmen in various stables of the city have caught the fever of organization and are clamoring for some labor leaders to form them into a union. They have suddenly discovered that they have grievances that cannot be offset by their gorgeous suits and the position of honor at the tail end of a swell turnout.

"Buttons," the bell boy, has his union. "Hostler," the stable-man, is a member of a union which controls 2000 men. Even "Bridget," the maid, has joined the army of union labor. But the coachman has remained without affiliation.

"Buttons," obeying the orders of his union, refuses to open and shut the carriage door. "Hostler" will no longer do aught but clean the stables and harness. "Bridget" has taken the stand that a man without a union card is no man at all. Now the coachmen have decided that the only solution is a union.

When their representatives came to Organizer Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation of Labor he at first refused to listen to them, but finally agreed to take up their case, if they would get twenty bona fide coachmen to promise to be charter members of the first union of its kind in the country.

IMPURE MILK

Cause of Typhoid Epidemic at Stanford University.

Palo Alto, Cal., April 23.—Bad milk from one dairy in this city is declared responsible for the 100 cases of typhoid fever at present existing in Stanford University and in this city. The dairy held to blame has been closed and other dairies under suspicion have been made to cease business temporarily, and the health authorities now claim to have the situation well in hand.

So far only two deaths have resulted from the epidemic, but of the 100 patients twenty are said to be in a serious condition and even if no more cases appear more fatalities are believed certain.

GOVERNOR RAMSEY DEAD.

The whole Northwest will learn with deep regret of the death of ex-Governor Alexander Ramsey at his home in St. Paul after an illness which began last February, shortly after his last visit to Duluth on business connected with an iron mining company in which he was largely interested. Despite the fact that he was 88 years of age, Governor Ramsey until recently walked the streets of St. Paul in the pride of a magnificent physique and glowing with a perfection of health rarely vouchsafed a man of his advanced years. His was a commanding personality, and the grand old veteran whose winter of life sat upon him in the lightest, if the frostiest, kind of style, was a conspicuous figure wherever he went. Retired from public life for many years, Governor Ramsey passed the last years of his life quietly and unostentatiously pursuing the ordinary avocations of life, conducting himself as a man of business and devoting his spare time to the State Historical society and other organizations with which he was connected.

The history of his distinguished career reads like a novel, and within its scope lie the most important events of the United States within the memory of living man. He had been honored by the state of Minnesota and the nation, and performed distinguished service as governor of the territory and of the state, as United States senator, and as secretary of war in the cabinet of President Hayes. The territorial government of Minnesota was declared fully organized June 1, 1849, with Mr. Ramsey as the first governor. When Minnesota was admitted as a state of the Union, in 1858, Gen. H. H. Sibley, the Democratic candidate, was elected governor, defeating Mr. Ramsey, who was the Republican nominee, but two years later Mr. Ramsey reversed this by defeating Governor Sibley for re-election. Governor Ramsey was not only the war governor of Minnesota, but the first governor in the Union to offer state troops to the federal government at the opening of the civil war. In 1863 he was elected United States senator and served two terms. In 1879, Governor Ramsey was called to the cabinet of President Hayes to succeed George W. McCrary, of Iowa, as secretary of war, and filled that position until President Garfield was inaugurated, when Robert T. Lincoln took the war portfolio. Appointed in 1882 on the Edmunds commission relating to polygamy, Governor Ramsey served four years and then resigned and retired finally to private life.

Having made a fortune in real estate investments in St. Paul, Governor Ramsey passed his declining years in ease and comfort, taking special pride in his library, which was one of the finest in the state. Having fully enjoyed more than the usual number of days allotted man, Governor Ramsey has passed away, leaving a public and private record that will ever remain a bright page in the history of the North Star state.

MARK HANNA AND LABOR.

President Parry of the Manufacturers' National association has made a caustic reply to Senator Hanna's criticism of his attack on the labor unions at the recent annual meeting of the association. It is not necessary to endorse Mr. Parry's views on the labor question in order to agree with his well-worded criticism of the rather remarkable attitude assumed by Mark Hanna, and the evident attempt of the Ohio senator to curry favor with the labor organizations for political purposes. As Mr. Parry well says, Mr. Hanna's rushing to the rescue of organized labor is a somewhat astonishing spectacle, but then it is not so astonishing when, as is pointed out, it is remembered that Mr. Hanna is in the midst of a trying campaign and was recently defeated in his own city of Cleveland by Tom Johnson.

Mr. Hanna was not noted for his friendship for labor before he entered the political arena, and it can hardly have been forgotten that when he became conspicuous in the campaign of 1896, the labor leaders denounced him as one of the bitterest enemies of organized labor. As a business man and employer of labor, he was regarded as a persistent opponent of labor unionism. But as a politician, he has undergone a strange metamorphosis. Senator Hanna apparently entertains views entirely different from those that were held by the head of the firm of M. A. Hanna & Co., and is now ready to kiss the hand that hesitated not to smite him in 1896. Perhaps Mr. Hanna has really experienced a change of heart and has seen a new light on the labor question. Perhaps he is sincere in his new professions of ardent love for the workingman and honestly believes that labor unions and their tenets are all that could be desired, but if he had taken this stand before he became a politician or would now retire from politics to devote his efforts to spreading the gospel of conciliation preached by the Civic Federation in which he is the leading spirit, there might be more faith in his sincerity.

FOREIGN PARCELS POST.

After a long series of negotiations it seems that a parcels post agreement between France and the United States may be perfected. As a matter of fact the agreement has been made and all that is necessary is the formal arrangement. Parcels to be carried by post between the two countries will be limited to four pounds six ounces, instead of eleven pounds, as is the maximum weight for packages carried by posts between various foreign countries. While this arrangement is common between European countries, Germany is the only country on the other side of the Atlantic with which the United States has a parcels post treaty. Similar arrangements exist between the United States and Mexico, Venezuela, Chili and the British colonies in the West Indies.

The various express companies have been strongly opposing the negotiations with France, for they will lose a good deal of business when the two governments agree to carry large packages by mail. The reduction in the weight of parcels to be thus transported was made as a concession to the express companies.

There is no reason why parcel post arrangemente should not be made with every country where ordinary postal exchanges exist. It would prove a great convenience to many who have relatives living in the old countries and especially during the holidays. The next international postal congress will be held next year in Rome. The United States will be represented by one voting delegate, but will doubtless send several representatives. At that congress the question of reducing the postage charge on foreign letters will come up. Two or three propositions will be made; one to increase the weight to be carried by a 5-cent stamp from one-half an ounce to either three-fourths of an ounce or one ounce; another to reduce the charge to 4 cents a half ounce. This government will favor any of the propositions except that increasing the 5-cent rate to three-fourths of an ounce. Another subject that will be discussed is the scheme to provide an envelope on the principle of the double postal card by which a person in one country can furnish his correspondent in another country with the means to prepay a reply to his letter. The envelope is to carry two separate stamps, one of which is to be cancelled on the outgoing trip, while the other when presented to the local postmaster, will be exchanged for a 5-cent stamp of the kind issued in that particular country. At the end of each quarter there will be a settling of accounts by all the countries in the agreement.

There is still a great chance for improvement in the postal arrangements between foreign countries and the United States, and the public will welcome anything which will improve existing conditions.

THE TORNADO REGION.

There are many people in the United States who view the approach of the tornado season with alarm, and the destructive winds of the past few weeks which caused death and disaster over an extended territory have not served to quiet their fears. Duluth and vicinity is practically immune from the tornado, being favored in that respect, as in many others, which make the city so desirable a place of residence the year round. Take the country over, there have been a few tornadoes every month in the year, but they are more plentiful in the spring and summer time. According to the records of the United States weather bureau, more than 500 of the 800 recorded by the bureau occurred between April 1 and Aug. 1. During this period the earth is heating rapidly and the mixing of the warm layer of air nearest to the ground with the cold strata above, gives rise to disturbances which under favorable conditions develop into tornadoes.

According to Willis L. Moore, chief of the weather bureau, the tornado area in the United States lies between the Allegheny mountains and 100th meridian, and south of the 45th parallel, the latitude of Minneapolis. In this district a combination of three atmospheric conditions is favorable to the formation of tornadoes. As a foundation there must exist a low pressure area, in which, however, the barometer need not register much below normal. The temperature at 8 o'clock in the morning must be about 70 degrees and there must be excessive humidity. When this combination occurs in April, May or June, there is likely to be trouble in the region from 300 to 500 miles southeast of the center of the area of low barometer as shown on the weather map. On May 27, 1896, the day of the St. Louis disaster, these conditions of weak air pressure, and excessive heat and humidity were so marked that at 10 o'clock in the morning the weather bureau sent out danger warnings over Missouri and Eastern Kansas.

The tornado itself is usually from 100 to 1000 feet in diameter and its motion is toward the northeast or east. Unfortunately the data concerning this distinctive type of storm are so scanty and the knowledge on the subject so meager that even when the dangerous conditions are present, the place where the whirl will develop cannot be forecasted. Chief Moore regards the cellar of a frame building as the best place of refuge, although a narrow ditch may answer the same purpose. It is to be noted, for consolation, that the weather bureau records show that only about 150 persons a year are killed by tornadoes, whereas about 300 are struck by lightning. A person, therefore, is in more danger from thunder storms than from tornadoes. But the people of Duluth are glad to be out of the tornado belt and prefer the few thunder storms that visit this region.

PUNISHING WIFE BEATERS.

Wife beating is growing very unpopular in New York since the culprits have been vigorously punished for their misdeeds. In the past it has been almost impossible to punish the average wife beater of the large cities properly, without inflicting serious hardship on his family. If the man was imprisoned, his family suffered or starved during his absence. This difficulty has now been cleared away. A short time ago a hard-headed and soft-hearted philanthropist established a fund for the maintenance of families whose bread-winners were being punished. As much as $7 a week can be given to large families. Consequently the city magistrate no longer feels compelled to let a brutal husband go free upon a promise of good behavior, which he promptly breaks the next time he gets drunk. Wife-beaters are sent down to the island for long terms, and put to severe labor. "We see to it that wife-beaters have no easy time of it on the island," says the warden. "Everyone of them who is able to work—and I've noticed that wife-beaters and men who abuse their mothers are generally the most able-bodied prisoners we have—is shipped off to Riker's island, where we are making extensive improvements. They unload gravel scows, empty heavy ash barrels, break rocks and do manual labor of the hardest sort. They don't want to come back, and I don't believe we shall have many repeaters."

This plan has advantages over the whipping post of olden times, the restoration of which has been advocated by many as the only fit punishment for the human brutes. However not to be too hard on the men, there are many cases, doubtless, where the wife-beater may be able to plead mitigating circumstances. For example, a brawny Irishwoman called the other day at the workhouse office on Blackwell's island and inquired how her husband, who was serving sentence for wife-beating, was getting along. "I want to know," she explained, "is he workin' as hard as he says he is?" "Well, he's breaking rocks for the breakwater on Riker's island, up the river a bit," said the official. "It's the hardest work we have, and wife-beaters always get it." "And what is he doing with the money he earns? You don't let him be sendin' it to any other woman, is it?" Her joy was great when she learned that he got nothing for his toil, and that it was all part of his punishment for beating her. "Just you wait," she said, with smiles; "wait till yees get through with him. I'll beat him into a pulp the first time he comes home. Do yees suppose he could have beaten me if I hadn't taken a drop too much myself—just by accident?" It may be truly said that there are wifebeaters and wifebeaters.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The radiant iridescence
Of the sun so luminous;
Scintillating, dancing, playful—
Such a joy for all of us—
Will no longer paint in splendid sheen
Nor soften on the walls of green
In the sun parlor. Gone its renown,
The Ping pong table's broken down.

Oh, young love's incandescent
Dream of happiness and bliss
Received a hard shock yesterday;
Their pipe went out like this:
While whispering the words of an old love song,
They broke the future chances of old ping pong.
The sun parlor's desolate and brown
For the ping pong table's broken down.

MORAL.

In the spring, youth's fancy lightly
Turns to love, I now recall.
But keep away from ping pong tables,
Or it will be a fall.

Miles Standish employed the honest John Alden to ensnare the precious heart of the lovely Priscilla—to his sorrow and ultimate loss, let it be said.

But do not be too harsh upon him, for there were no Spalding hotel, no sun parlor, no ping pong tables in those days. If there had been, he would have failed, just the same.

Just like the young railroad man and the young person of imperious mien, at the Spalding yesterday, who are responsible for the broken ping pong table.

In the sun parlor there used to be a good ping pong table. It was built and erected for those who liked the game; but the maker little thought that one day his masterpiece would be so ignominiously shattered through some idle talk of an ardent young man, whose talk made the young woman so tired she simply had to sit down, and then—crash, bang; the table was shattered.

But that part of it was all right. Nobody would have known, if the usual blunder hadn't been made. And that was funny.

It was apparent that the swain either didn't have the time or the inclination to proffer his inamorita any of the material sweets of his own selection, for they borrowed some candy from two small children who are stopping with their mamnia and papa at the hotel.

These youngsters, in every way the possessors of the characteristics of infants terrible, couldn't stay away after their bon bons had been divided, so they were poking their heads in the door when the crash came.

And you know how children are—well, they simply told everyone they saw about it; they thought it was a splendid joke, and perhaps it was.

But the future Jim Hill is very much embarrassed and the prospective heiress is giving matinee and evening performances of the blushing act, much to the enjoyment and entertainment of some seventy-five guests, who are of the outer circle of the inner circle of the "77" social set at this popular hostelry.

A happy pair, two lovers fair (?)
Sat down to bill and coo.
But during the discussion
The table broke in two.

Like the venerable John Miles, who has welcomed travelers at the entrance of the Plankinton house dining room in Milwaukee for a quarter of a century, until he is known to many thousands throughout the country, William Dawson, head waiter at the Spalding, has practically put in his life in this branch of the hotel work.

Be it ever so humble, a meal tastes better if there is somebody around to give the diner a glad hand when he goes into the eating hall, is one of Dawson's mottoes, and he devotes his time toward elevating mankind by making mental impressions that are transmitted by the sympathetic system to the digestive apparatus, thereby preventing dyspepsia and promoting happiness, and the welfare of the generation.

William Dawson has had a long experience in charge of large dining rooms and he says: "Lots of people think that the head waiter has nothing to do but stand at the door and look wise."

This he combats on the ground of actual experience, his proficiency in the study of human nature, and of his physiological observations. To say nothing of telling a hungry man from a perfunctory, or habitual or, as it were, a formal eater, he can spot the man who rushes in and shouts out a bluff about his waiting to catch a train, before he gets into the elevator downstairs.

To distinguish between a clergyman, a drummer and a tourist would be an easy job if clergymen all wore the garb of a priest, drummers checked clothes and hooked noses, and tourists mutton chop whiskers and leather leggings, like they do in the picture books. But they don't. To get a combination of that kind at one table would cause a riot. Because the hotel management is against riots on general principles and in this house in particular, is one of the whys that Dawson stands at the door. In a herd of a dozen or more Americans each clamoring to be in the dining room first the separating process is one that requires some quality of perception. Has he the quality? Well, there haven't been any riots up there recently.

That's the reason Judge Williams, Lieut. Deiss and Capt. Christy are seated at the same table. They all kick during the whole of the meal, and the conversation is agreeable to each. That is why Manager Emery and his chief clerk are at the same table; nobody else wants to hear their troubles. That's why lots of locations, are the way they are.

Jim Hill may frame up mergers and the president may stop coal strikes—but they must be properly fed. If there hadn't been proper management at the grand functions in Brussels the night before Waterloo, who knows but what the English would have been annihilated?

Therefore it was plain to see what the prosperity of Duluth owes to William Dawson, the man who sees that diners are properly introduced to their dinners. A model as a disciplarian, affable in his attentions, now you know who takes you in charge at the door. And further, beware that, if you be a clergyman, he makes no mistakes, and you can never break in the company of race horse men.

Rout of Yellow Jack.

New York Tribune: Thanks to American discoveries and American methods of suppression, yellow fever has been stamped out in Cuba, and is no longer a menace to the health of any part of the union. But southern cities are not entirely free from the scourge of smallpox. Vaccination should be carried out searchingly. By that means and by that only can relief be secured.

The Minimum Wage.

Boston Herald: Indiana has a minium wage law enacted in 1901. It provides that no one employed on work done by or for counties, cities or towns shall be paid less than 20 cents an hour. This act was passed at the demand of organized labor, and the purpose, of course, was to establish a standard minimum rate of living wages. While it was not believed taht the state could enact any law making a minimum wage in private business, it was imagined that municipal corporations could be required to pay a minimum wage or more for work done which would become a common standard. The supreme court of the state has pronounced the law unconstitutional, as being a proper interference with the liberty of contract. If the legislature has the right to prescribe and enforce a minimum rate of wages, it also has power to prescribe a maximum rate, and need not confine itself to wages, but proceed to fix the prices of corn and potatoes. The court concludes that counties, cities and towns stand upon the same footing as private or quasi-public corporations, and cannot be compelled to pay more than its market value for any property or labor.

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: From little lies great tragedies grow.

The pill of matrimony is easily swallowed when it is gilded.

When a man has proposed to a girl and been rejected she is the one that acts most disappointed.

A husband would know a whole lot more about his wife's figure than he does if he were her dressmaker.

A woman wants her love measured out to her just the way a man wants his salary paid him, regularly and in full.

Looks That Way.

Baltimore American: It actually looks as though Justice to Ireland would be among the other remarkable achievements of the twentieth century.

Cause of Traffic Congestion.

San Francisco Chronicle: Since 1896 the railroads of the country have been trying to solve the problem of handling a 43 per cent increase of freight with an increase of only 8 per cent in motive power and 14 per cent in car capacity. No wonder traffic on the lines is congested.

He Needed No More Reward.

New York Tribune: Caroline Earle White, the president of the Women's Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, distributes three costly medals every year to the three men who have done the kindest, bravest deeds in animals' behalf during the twelvemonth.

Mrs. White makes a brief address at these distributions, and what she says is always interesting. At a recent distribution she told a story.

"There is a certain society for the prevention of cruelty to animals in France," she said. "Men visit it each year to apply the medal it gives annually. Its president is a joker.

"One day a peasant came to this association and laid claim to the medal.

"'What have you done to deserve it?' asked the president.

"'I have saved a wolf's life, sir,' said the peasant.

"'What had the wolf been doing?'

"'It had killed my wife.'

"'Then,' said the president, 'you need no medal, for you are already sufficiently rewarded.'"

Eyes Hungry Only.

Exchange: Bobby ate his dinner with so good an appetite that by the time dessert was on the table he could eat no more. He sat silent and sorrowful and looked at the dainties on his plate.

"Why don't you eat, darling?" said his mother.

"Oh, mother," he cried, "because only my eyes are hungry."

Now Will He Be Inquisitve?

Philadelphia Ledger: Secretary Shaw asks why Democrats "would remove protection temporarily or permanently from monopoly produced goods." For the same reason that the present Republican administration removed the duty from enthracite.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

The Strategy of A Debutante

By K. J. Glanville.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Of course it was a daring improper thing to do, but in telling it afterward, Katherine said she felt exactly like one man would feel when another one had told a big fish story—the only thing to do was to lie a little harder—and she did it.

It happened this way. Katherine boarded an electric car bound for the country club, and as luck or fate would have it met four of her girl friends going to the club. The car was crowded and there the four stood swinging on the straps, giggling, swaying to every motion of the car, and attracting attention as only debutantes can.

They were all telling each other about the different theatrical people whom they personally knew, and as Katherine did not know any, she felt it all the more incumbent to mention some one big, and outdo them all by going "just one better."

"Do any of you know Field Strange?" asked Katherine, with assumed indifference. "What a pity you don't. I know him well, very well. In fact, he is an old friend of mine, and last summer we were quite chummy, for he spent a month at the same hotel as I did."

Carried away by the interested faces, she kept on, totally unmindful of the truth, fluently relating little incidents which, of course, had never happened, until she almost believed it was all true.

"What a chance, then, for us, for some one told me he was going to golf at the club this afternoon, and that is why we all met today—to have a peep at him—and now Katherine will introduce us. Won't it be elegant, girls?"

Poor Katherine! Where was all her glory now? Why had she met those four hateful things on the car? And why, oh, why, had she mentioned Strange? Any other name would have done just as well—much better, it seemed now. She wanted to sink through the floor—the car to run off the tracks—to die—anything but reach the club safely.

What was she to do? Those girls would exact an introduction if they saw Strange? Brilliant idea! She would leave them, pretending she wanted to pay a call.

"Girls, I am so sorry, but I must get off at the next corner to—"

"Not much you don't" said one girl, "you are to introduce us to your 'actor man,' and maybe he will give us his autograph!"

Katherine felt herself growing hot and cold—the floor seemed jumping up and down, and she knew she was talking silly, but she had to keep those four despised girls from seeing how she felt.

"Yes," the bell boy said, Mr. Strange was out on the course, and ought to be in almost any minute.

Katherine dragged herself to the porch and saw Mr. Strange coming up the hill. And those four saw him too.

"Now, then, Katherine, here is your chance to show him your fine taste in the way of beauty. Look handsome, girls!"

With rage in her eyes Katherine turned upon her tormentors almost on the verge of telling them she did not know him, but quick as a flash she determined upon a course of action, to uphold her boasting.

"Well, then, let me go to meet him, and prepare him for the array of beauty lest he be dazzled," and Katherine started down the hill.

Her breath came in short little gasps, and her knees seemed so "wobbly" she wondered if they would refuse to help her out, and just make her sit down.

On came Mr. Strange—sternness in every feature.

"Oh, moaned Katherine, "I know he has had a bad game. I can see it, and that will make it all the harder for me."

Her heart was beating almost to suffocation as she approached him and said: "Won't you please take off your cap, smile and shake hands with me? Please, real quick, then I will tell you why! I am not crazy, really, but—see those girls on the porch? Well, they were all talking about celebrated people whom they knew, and at random I selected your name, and did not ever dream of meeting you—least of all here! One of the girls told me you were here, and I must introduce you—and can't you see how it is? I thought maybe you would help me out. I almost lost my mind when I knew what I had done, but I can't tell them it was all a pure fabrication.

Strange laughed heartily at the story the girl had told him, and enjoyed the situation; it was just to his liking.

"Why, surely, I shall be glad to meet your friends and you must not worry any more about it. I promised to do all you ask me! But tell me, have I known you long, and your name, please, Is there anything on which you ought to post me?"

"O, but you are good! Well, then, you know me well enough to call me Katherine. I told them I knew you well, and that we spent last summer at Newport! That's about all. I can see you think I told a lot, but I 'laid it on thick' to get ahead of them."

Strange swallowed a couple of times as he eyed this odd girl, and followed her to her companions.

What a buzz they made! His autograph? Why surely. Four he wrote, and one extra one which was more than an autograph.

Katherine stood in their midst miserably calling herself names, but her end was accomplished. The "actor man" stayed and talked to them half an hour, and then pleaded an engagement. Katherine followed him to the door, thanking him, and telling him she was so mortified to think that he had met such an awful story teller in herself. "But," she said, "I would rather one man know it than those four girls!"

Strange assured her it was all right—indeed he had enjoyed it, he told her. And anyone to have heard him telling it that night, after the curtain had been rung down, would have believed it.

And the girl? Well, she went home and cried, and called herself some more names, and promised her dog the next time she told a story it would be a little one. Then she looked at the fifth bit of paper which Strange had given her:

"Plucky little girl," she read.

POINTED REFLECTIONS.

Baltimore American: It is bad enough for a man to have his skin turning to fish scales. But to be told that he has "dermitalis exfoliativa universalis" is too much.

Comic Cuts: Nell—Would you marry a man just because he happened to be rich?

Pess—Of course not. But, then, I would try awfully hard to get him to marry me.

Chicago Tribune: "You knew you were going to lose your money when you bet on that horse, didn't you?"

"Of course I did."

"Then what did you do it for?"

"I wanted to show 'em, by George, that I was a hot sport!"

Chicago Record-Herald: "How cultured an dpolished that Mrs. Kazamamms is."

"I know it. Whenever a person sings anything she always calls it rendering it, doesn't she?"

Philadelphia Press: "I believe I can truthfully say," remarked the self-complacent man, "that I have only one fault and that's a small one."

"Yes? Just like the hole in a nickel. It may be a small hole, but it makes the nickel no good."

Boston Transcript: Miss Stayler—Everybody says I don't look my age.

Miss Pertleigh—Of course you don't dear. It would be impossible.

Washington Star: "Why don't you try to write your name on the scroll of fame?"

"My friend," said Senator Sorghum very earnestly, "I have never yet seen anybody tearing leaflets out of the scroll of fame and getting them cashed at the bank."

HE BIDED HIS TIME.

There lived, one time, a shiftless chap,
who wasn't satisfied;
To settle down and plug along he never could abide.
He felt the fire of greatness burn within his eager breast
And knew himself cut out for deeds the highest and the best.
His spirit fairly fumed and frothed at cruel Fate's restraint;
Of favorless environment he ever made complaint,
But some fine day, he used to say, I'll set
the world afire;
It's not for me unknown to be when I do so aspire.

Each day our hero might have found some labor to pursue,
On every side stood waiting work for willing hands to do;
The neighborhood wherein he dwelt had crying need of men
To mow the lawns for instance, and to beat the rugs—but then
A man so keenly conscious of his real, inward worth
Could hardly care to tackle toil so tainted of the earth.
And so, to pass the time away until his chance should come,
He boarded with his mother when he wasn't drinking rum.

No doubt, good-natured reader, you opine and apprehend,
That this vain, shiftless person met a mean and sorry end.
The facts are these: He waited till the time, for us so sad,
When wagons run with gasoline became the reigning fad.
A sudden, wild demand arose for drivers,
men with cheek,
And Shifty got a handsome job at fifty bones a week.
The people stare where'er he goes; he's gained his great desire,
And every day he sets the world, or part of it, afire.

Legislative Persuaders.

Philadelphia Press: Thousand-dollar bills were so amazingly thick around the Missouri legislature that some of the members are actually forgetting where they got theirs just as the grand jury wants to know. A member of the legislature with a deficient memory is not rare enough to have any value in a collection of curiosities.

POISONED BY VACCINATION

Mrs. Mead, of East Eighth Street, Suffered for Over Twenty Years.

IMPURE VIRUS GOT INTO HER BLOOD.

Running Sore That Doctors Could Not Heal, Quickly Cured by Kickapoo Remedies.

[From the Salt Lake City News.]

There are people who do not believe in vaccination, and it is safe to say that Mrs. E. Mead, of 253 East Eighth Street, in this city, is one of them. Over 20 years ago Mrs. Mead was vaccinated as a preventative for smallpox. For some unknown reason the virus employed was impure. Whether it was contaminated by some blood disease or contained by accident some mineral poison is not known. At all events, Mrs. Mead soon exhibited all the symptoms of virulent blood poisoning. The spot on her arm refused to heal and soon became a cancerous eating sore that discharged matter.

Disfiguring eruptions and sores also broke out in other parts of her body, including her face. Physicians were consulted, far and wide, and prescribed medicines but in vain. Mrs. Mead had about given up hope of ever being relieved, when, most fortunately for her, she was induced to try Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and Salve. Already she is on the high road to recovery. Mrs. Mead writes:

"For over twenty years I have suffered from being vaccinated with impure virus. It manifested itself in my face and elsewhere, and with an eating sore that would not heal. I tried everything and never got any relief until I tried your Sagwa and Salve. I have now been using them four weeks and have been greatly benefited. I am so much improved that I know I shall eventually be cured."

In fact, however, the Kickapoo Remedies are infallible in any case of impure blood for whatever cause. These simple but wonderfully sure Kickapoo Indian remedies are made from roots, herbs, gums, barks and leaves, according to the original formulas secured from the Kickapoo Indian men.

Kickapoo Indian Remedies never fail to cure kidney, liver, heart or stomach troubles, rheumatism, impoverished or impure blood, constipation, catarrh or nervous disorders. They are nature's remedies, they contain no mineral poisons. They are pure, absolutely harmless, but wonderfully powerful in their effects against disease. Sagwa is sold in 50 cent and $1.00 bottles. Accept no substitute. Kickapoo Indian Oil (25 cents a bottle) should be in every household. It stops all pain. It cures bruises, earache, toothache neuralgia, headache and weak back. For external and internal use the Kickapoo Indian Remedies stand absolutely without a rival.

Organize Ball Team.

The baseball fever has reached the employes of the Gowan-Peyton-Twohy company and a baseball club has been organized. Thomas Kelly, who played with the Freimuth team last year, has been chosen manager. There is a wealth of good material including several stars of the first magnitude.

Games have been scheduled with teams from the F. A. Patrick company and the Kelley-How-Thomson company.

The employes of the First National bank have also organized a team and will be prepared to enter the amateur field this coming season.

TOD SLOAN'S WIFE ILL.

New York, April 23.—Mrs. James Todhunter Sloan, wife of the former jockey, is seriously ill with typhoid fever, says a dispatch from Paris to the Herald. Sloan says her condition is serious. Not many people know that Sloan is married, though the ceremony, he says, took place nearly two years ago. His wife was a Miss Hondu.

TEXAS OIL FIELDS

J. R. Myers Says They Have Settled Down to Business.

Thinks Galveston Will Never Recover From Its Catastrophe.

"The oil business has settled down to a steady gait in Texas," said Jacob R. Myers, who ran up from Houston and reached Duluth yesterday for a short visit, "just like the iron business has hit its gait up here.

At Spindletop about 35,000 or 40,000 barrels of petroleum are being taken out a day, where there used to be wells that yielded that much alone.

"The most recent fire cleaned out the derricks, which were as thick as they could be planted in the field, and caused a loss of about $800,000. Sixty derricks and pumping houses in one night was rather expensive, and annihilated the whole business above ground, including several companies, which were probably ready to go out of business anyway, and that afforded them a good excuse.

Mr. Myers will return to Houston the latter part of the week. He is getting things ready for a Northern trip this summer, but is not sure he is coming to Duluth for any part of his vacation.

"It's pretty hot down there," he said, "in the summer time, and I am not doing much of anything at present.

"Houston is the city of the South. It is now about 70,000—the same as Duluth or thereabouts—and booming right along. All our hotels are filled with people going in and coming out of the oil fields, just like those here are filled with mining men. It is all on the ground and all in one place, and not half in the air," he said, with a dry smile.

"I couldn't say that the Standard Oil company was a holder of property in the Texas fields," he continued, "but the fact that there are fields in Texas is pretty good evidence that the Standard Oil company is in the vicinity, for the presumption is that where oil is, the Standard will be found hovering around.

"The companies which have weathered the gale are building refineries and opening new fields. Things are busy, though the hectic flush has left the cheek of the oil men and they are in a more normal condition. New wells are being opened up at Sour Lake and at Saratoga and other places. The climate in Houston is fine, but hardly dry. It has rained almost every day since Dec. 1—but that's unusual."

Mr. Myers is not interested in the Texas City promotion any more, and says he has not been at Galveston for some months.

"I understand," he said, "that the canal back to Texas City will be finished early this spring, and the ocean craft will then be able to go back to Texas City. The place will then have a future. It is all in the future, and no one can tell anything about it definitely now.

"As for Galveston, it is about all in. Just take your Minnesota Point, for instance—it's very much like that—and let fourteen feet of water wash over it. The residents that escaped wouldn't be very anxious to go back, would they? None of the business part of the city, to speak of, has been rebuilt, and the residences have only been patched up so as to make them rentable or saleable. No, there is little chance of a revival for Galveston. If the commerce is there, Texas City has a chance, but, as I said before, Houston is the Southern city."

CULMINATION OF A FEUD.

Papular Bluff, Mo., April 23.—As the culmination of a feud Rube Hayes shot and killed John Jones and probably fatally shot Frank Jordan, near the village of Fisk yesterday. Hayes surrendered and has been brought to Poplar Bluff. He is a son of Judge John I. Hayes, of the county court, and has an excellent reputation. All the participants in the tragedy are married men with families.

ABOUT THAT COAT

You wear a coat. Why? To keep the cold out? No; to keep the warmth in. What of the body that has no warmth—the thin, poor body that lacks the healthy flesh and fat it needs?

For such we say that Scott's Emulsion provides the right kind of a coat. Why? Because Scott's Emulsion builds firm, solid flesh and supplies just enough fat to fill nature's requirements—no more. That means bodily warmth.

ANOTHER TEST OF TITANIC ORE

Johnson Process Will Be Tried Again In St. Paul.

Another public test will be given of the Johnson process of making steel with one smelt from black titanic ore next week at the Valley Iron works in St. Paul.

M. C. Littleworth, who is representing the work in Duluth, said this morning that the demands and inquiries made upon him for samples and information are great, and that he is having a large amount of the black ore taken out in Lake county, and it will be shipped to St. Paul late this week, if possible.

"We will make a ton of the steel this time," he said, "and will then be able to hand out a few polished bits to the people who want to look at it.

"I took the bar I have from the last smelt down to the Clyde Iron works to have it cut up into smaller bits, but the institution had nothing hard enough to make any impression on the steel billet.

"We put the bar under a fine emory wheel, however, and have polished it up so it looks like a piece of new silver, fresh from the silversmith. If the ore we are taking out now can be transported fast enough, we will run out the steel a week from Saturday.

"The process is thoroughly proven in our minds and we can get steel out in a way with the cupola furnace in the Valley Iron works' plant, so we decided to get out enough to hand around to any one who wish to have a piece."

Comment on the tests and the success claimed is general among mining men and skeptics are as plentiful as those who believe in the idea. Discussion is general, however, and there are a great many more people who desire to see the tests now than when the first ones were made.

The next batch of steel will be run out under the supervision of Dr. Lehnen, the chemist of St. Paul.

GOVERNOR RAMSEY

Passed Away at His Home In St. Paul Wednesday Night.

Minnesota's War Governor, Senator and Secretary of War.

St. Paul, April 23.—Alexander Ramsey, ex-governor of Minnesota, secretary of war under President Hayes, and for two terms United States senator from Minnesota, died at his home in this city last night, aged 88 years. Governor Ramsey had suffered since the middle of February from an attack of the gout, but was progressing favorably and his death came unexpectedly. He was surrounded at the last by his surviving relatives.

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Hon. Alexander Ramsey was born near Harrisburgh, Penn., Sept. 8, 1815, and was of Scotch decent on his father's side, though both his father and grandfather were native born Americans. Both, in fact, were born in Pennsylvania. His mother was descended from some early German settlers in the same state. The father, Romus Ramsey, was an officer in the war of 1812, and died when Alexander was about 10 years of age. His parents were well-to-do, thrifty and industrious people, and trained their son in the same manner.

After the death of his father, young Ramsey was adopted by a grand uncle, named Frederick Kelker, a prosperous merchant in Harrisburg. He worked first in the store of his uncle, then in the office of register of deeds and then as a carpenter. During all this time he was pursuing his studies, and when 18 years of age he entered Lafayette college at Easton, Pa., where he took a partial course. In 1837 he began the study of law with Hon. Hamilton Alricks, of Philadelphia. He completed his legal education with Hon. John Reed at Carlisle, and was admitted o practice in 1839, when he was 24 years of age.

He opened an office at Harrisburg and soon had quite a lucrative practice, devoting himself especially to the settlement and administration of estates. In this line of practice his excellent judgment and methodical manner of conducting trials made him very successful.

ENTERS POLITICS.

He first entered the political arena in the memorable campaign of 1840. He took a very active interest in politics, and was soon one of the most zealous and best known members of the Whig party in the state. He was chosen secretary of the Pennsylvania electoral college in 1840, and the following year was chosen chief clerk of the house of representatives in the legislature of his native state. This was the beginning of a political career that led him steadily forward and upward until he occupied some of the highest offices within the gift of the people.

In August, 1842, Mr. Ramsey was nominated for congress in his district, which was then composed of Dauphin, Lebanon and a part of Lancaster counties. He was elected, but after a warm fight in the legislature over the reapportionment of the state, the governor vetoed the bill, and the election, of course, was declared void. In 1843 he was again nominated for the remainder of the term of the Twenty-eighth congress, from the district composed of Dauphin, Lebanon and Schuylkill counties. He was elected and this time took his seat. This practically ended his career as a lawyer. He declined a renomination after having served two terms in congress, and in 1847 returned to his law practice, but only continued it for two years and during that period a large portion of his time was devoted to politics. He took an active part in the campaign of 1848 and was made chairman of the whig state central committee of Pennsylvania.

SENT TO MINNESOTA.

In April, 1849, President Taylor appointed Mr. Ramsey governor of Minnesota territory.

Governor Ramsey arrived in St. Paul May 27 of the same year and assumed the duties of his new office. Four days later the other territorial officers having arrived, he issued his first proclamation, declaring the territory organized and the machinery of law in operation. Then the hard work began. Governor Ramsey soon issued other proclamations, dividing the new territory into legislative districts, appointing county officers, ordering elections and arranging all the other details necessary to set the machinery of government going. In connection with his executive duties, the governor was ex-officio superintendent of the various Indian tribes residing within the boundaries of Minnesota, and was charged with the administration of various trusts. It was here his experience as a lawyer and national legislator stood him in good stead. He found abundant use for all the knowledge of law and government affairs he had acquired during his years of study and practice as an attorney and a member of congress. He had ample reason to rejoice that he had always been thorough in everything he undertook, and it was this characteristic thoroughness that enabled him to administer the duties of his office to the entire satisfaction of the general government and the people of the country over which he presided. With unbounded confidence in the future greatness of Minnesota, he left nothing undone that would aid in the speedy development of her magnificent resources.

He called the first territorial legislature together in September, 1849, just about four months from the time he took his seat as governor. There was a joint membership of twenty-seven in the two houses. Two rooms in a modest hotel on the banks of the Mississippi, known as the Central house, served as the senate chamber and hall of representatives. When they met in joint session to hear Governor Ramsey's first message, the dining room was pressed into service as an assembly hall. No galleries were needed. It is recorded by the historians that the message did not go into intricate political problems to any great extent, but it was full of hope and prophecy of a bright future for the new territory, all of which and much more has been realized. The legislature honored the governor by giving one of the first counties organized his name.

As soon as possible the governor took steps looking to the extinguishment of Indian titles to land in Minnesota, by treaty and otherwise. So successful was he that by treaties enacted at Mendota and Traverse de Sioux in 1851, he had 40,000,000 acres of what is now the choicest land in the state thrown open to the settler.

In the fall of the same year he visited the Red river country and concluded a treaty with the Northern Chippewas at Pembina, whereby he secured thirty miles of territory on either side of the Red river. In 1863 he concluded another treaty with these same Indians, whereby the entire Red river valley was thrown open to settlement. This was after the expiration of the first gubernatorial term, however, and he was then a United States senator.

Governor Ramsey's term as territorial governor terminated in 1853. In 1857, at the first state election, he was nominated for governor by the Republicans, and made a hard and gallant fight for the place, but the Republicans were defeated, and he went down with them. But it was only to rise again, for in 1859 he was renominated and elected by a handsome majority.

HIS SECOND TERM.

During the years following his administration was even more creditable to himself, if that be possible, than that as territorial governor. He was inaugurated Jan. 2, 1860, and upon taking his seat was called upon to face a state of affairs that gave the future of the state an aspect not nearly so bright as that presented when he delivered his first message as territorial governor. Great advances had been made in population and general improvements, it is true, but the state was heavily in debt, taxes were very difficult to collect, the Indians were troublesome and the great civil war was fast settling over the entire country. These, with numerous other difficulties, made the office a very trying one, to say the least, but Governor Ramsey proved equal to the occasion. His administration was most successful, and at the close of his first term the finances of the state showed a great improvement, while many of the other troubles within the state had been abated. But meanwhile the war clouds had been growing darker and the closing months of his term were even more trying than the first, but he was never for a moment discouraged.

In April, 1861, the cloud burst and the war was opened with the attack on Fort Sumter.

AS WAR GOVERNOR.

Governor Ramsey was in Washington at the time, and, hearing of Sumter's fall, he called on President Lincoln at once and tendered him a regiment of Minnesota volunteers to aid in suppressing the rebellion. This was before the issuance of the proclamation calling for troops, and Governor Ramsey was the first to make an offer of armed support to the government in its hour of need. The offer was accepted by the president. Governor Ramsey returned and soon had the promised regiment ready for marching orders. The governor did not stop here, but continued his work, and during the year five regiments were organized, equipped and drilled and sent to the front from Minnesota.

It was no light task to organize the regiments and see that they were properly officered, but the governor was equal to the occasion, and with one or two minor exceptions the officers appointed by him made creditable records, showing that in matters of ordinary business, his judgment was remarkably good. There were few governors who were equally fortunate in their selections of men for responsible positions. But, trying as these days were, there were others more trying ahead. Governor Ramsey was re-elected in the fall of 1861, and in entering upon his second term he faced duties that were far more trying than any he had experienced before, and that is saying a good deal, for there were few states, even in the South, where men were tried as thoroughly as they were in Minnesota. In the summer of 1862 came the heavy call for troops from the government. Five regiments were demanded at once, and in the midst of the work and excitement incident to the organization and equipment of troops came the news of the Sioux massacre in the western part of the state. This, of course, intensified the difficulties under which the administration was working, but the chief executive of the state proved equal to the emergency. He at once took the most energetic measures to put down the rebellion among the Indians, and so effective were they that in a very short time the Reds were completely subdued. Meantime the work of recruiting volunteers to aid in putting down the rebellion in the South went on as rapidly as could have been expected; in fact, more rapidly than there was good reason for expecting under the circumstances. The governor displayed remarkable tact and skill in restoring confidence on the frontier and in securing recruits for the regiments going South. Every call for troops from the general government was met promptly, and Minnesota furnished her full quota of volunteer soldiers for the Northern army, although the state was new and many of those who went to the front felt that they were leaving their families in danger of being massacred by Indians.

SENT TO THE SENATE.

In January, 1863, Governor Ramsey was elected to the United States senate. At the close of his term in 1869 he was re-elected for a second term of six years. In the senate he was no less zealous in the discharge of his duties than he had been in the governor's chair. He was at his post early and late, and never neglected any matter, however small, that was of any interest to the people of the state he represented. He was chairman of several important committees, among them those on postoffices and post roads and on territories. He was especially interested in postal reform, and gave the matter a great deal of attention during his term. He first introduced the bill for the repeal of the franking abuse. And, after some delay, congress was induced to pass the measure. In 1869 he visited France to urge cheaper international postage. This was not long afterward allowed by that country. Senator Ramsey was also in favor of any measure that he believed would benefit the section of the country in which he resided. He was not interested in Minnesota alone, but worked as faithfully for other section of the Northwest as he did for his own state. In fact, if there was anything he was never guilty of at any time it was narrow-mindedness in any form whatsoever.

He was a thorough patriot in every sense of the word, and never allowed any personal interests to interfere with his action on a measure that was for the good of the country at large. No member of either branch of congress worked harder for the general prosperity of the entire union than he, and none were more successful in what they undertook.

Senator Ramsey was particularly active in his support of measures for the improvement of the Mississippi river and its navigable tributaries, the aiding of the Northern Pacific railroad, assisting the territories of Dakota and Montana and the improvement of the trade with Manitoba, and many other measures for the benefit of the Northwest. He was a careful student in all things and had taken particular pains to thoroughly inform himself on the resources and needs of the section he represented. As a natural consequence any information he gave on that subject was regarded as coming from a competent authority and was listened to with interest by the members of congress and the officials at Washington. All reasonable requests made by his constituents for services or favors that he was able to grant received prompt and cheerful attention, even to the extent of spending much time and effort to serve them.

In connection with these services it may be said that Senator Ramsey obtained fully as many favors for his friends in the far Northwest as did any member of either house from the populous and more important political centers of the East. Such was his popularity at Washington that he had no need to rely on the political influence of a friend to obtain a favor for him.

The senator's broad views on national topics, coupled with his sagacity and entire honesty at all times in the expression of his convictions, and in his dealings with man in official as well as private life, and his extremely frank and cordial manner toward his associates gave him an influence in both houses that might well have been envied by any public man. This was the true secret of his success during his entire service in the national councils.

SECRETARY OF WAR.

Senator Ramsey's senatorial term closed March 4, 1875, and he then retired from public life to enjoy a period of well-earned rest for four years. In 1879 he was called to take the portfolio of secretary of war. He accepted the position tendered by President Hayes and entered at once upon the discharge of his official duties. He performed these duties for four years in a manner creditable alike to himself and to the nation, as well as to the state he represented in the cabinet. At the beginning of the Garfield administration he vacated his official chair and returned to Minnesota, but was not allowed to remain there long. In a very short time he was again called into public life by the passage of the Edmunds law restricting the powers of the polygamists in Utah and appointing a commission of five to carry out its provisions. Senator Ramsey was appointed a member of the commission and elected chairman by his associates. In the August following the commission he went to Utah and assumed the duties assigned them under the law. They did not take up their residence among the Mormons permanently, but made it a point to visit Salt Lake city two or three times a year, and their sessions were generally continued for two months, sometimes longer. The work of this commission is well known. They performed their work faithfully, and the result was, on the whole, very satisfactory to the people of the country. Senator Ramsey served two years on this commission and then retired permanently to private life.

MRS. RATH'S BABY

Tired Mother's Touching Story of Anxiety and Suffering.

Cuticura Brings Blessed Cure to Skin Tortured Baby and Peace and Rest to Its Worn Out Mother.

It is no wonder that Mrs. Helena Rath was taken sick. Single-handed, she did all the housework and washed, cooked and mended for her husband, Hans, and their six children. After a plucky fight to keep on her feet, Mrs. Rath had to yield, and early in 1902 she took to her bed. What followed she told to a visitor, who called at her tidy home, No. 821 Tenth Ave., New York City.

"I hired a girl to mind the children and to do whatever else she could. I couldn't stay in bed long. Sick as I was, it was easier for me to crawl around than to lie and worry about my little ones. So I got up after a few days, and let the girl go. I had noticed that she had sores on her face, hands and arms, but I paid no attention to that until Charlie, my youngest, began to pick and scratch himself. He was then ten months old, and the girl had paid more attention to him than to any of the others. Charlie was fretful and cross, but as he was cutting teeth, I didn't think much of that. Even when a rash broke out on his face I wasn't frightened, because everybody knows that that is quite common with teething babies. Several of my others had it when little, and I thought nothing about it.

"But the rash on Charlie's poor little face spread to his neck, chest, and back. I had never seen anything quite like it before. The skin rose in little lumps, and matter came out. My baby's skin was hot, and how he did suffer! He wouldn't eat, and night after night I walked the floor with him, weak as I was. Often I had to stop because I felt faint and my back throbbed with pain. But the worst pain of all was to see my poor little boy burning with those nasty sores.

"I believed he had caught some disease from the girl, but some of the neighbors said he had eczema, and that is not catching, they told me. Yes, I gave him medicine, and put salves and things on him. I don't think they were all useless. Once in a while the itching seemed to let up a bit, but there was not much change for the better until a lady across the street asked me why I didn't try the Cuticura Remedies. I told her I had no faith in those things you read about in the papers. She said she didn't want me to go on faith nor even to spend any money at first. She gave me some Cuticura Ointment—I think the box was about half full—and a piece of Cuticura Soap. I followed the directions, bathing Charlie and putting that nice Ointment on the sores.

"I wouldn't have believed that my baby would have been cured by a little thing like that. Not all of a sudden, mind you. Little by little, but so surely. Charlie and I both got more peace by day, and more sleep by night. The sores sort of dried up and went away. I shall never forget one blessed night when I went to bed with Charlie beside me, as soon as I got the supper dishes out of the way and the older children undressed; when I woke up the sun was streaming in. For the first time in six months I had slept through the night without a break.

"Yes, that fat little boy by the window is Charlie, and his skin is as white as a snow flake, thanks to the Cuticura Remedies. I think everybody should know about the Soap and also the Ointment, and if it is going to help other mothers with sick babies, go ahead and publish what I have told you."

MRS. HELENA RATH.

The agonizing, itching, and burning of the skin as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair, and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum,—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made them the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the civilized world.

PARRY TO HANNA

President of Manufacturers' Association Replies to Senator.

Unpleasant Truths Pointed Out to the Ohio Man.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 23.—"Mr. Hanna's rushing to the rescue of organized labor is, when you come to think of it, a somewhat astonishing spectacle," said D. M. Parry yesterday, when asked for his opinion as to the attack made upon his labor position by Senator Hanna at the banquet of the Amalgamated Steel Workers at Columbus.

"If everyone has enjoyed the speech of the senator as much as I have," continued Mr. Parry, "it certainly can't be claimed that he has not done his share in contributing to the era of general good feeling. Of course, I have no personal feeling whatever against Ma. Hanna, and I am glad to note that he has none against me, although I must confess that it is with some surprise that I read his declaration that I display ignorance in my report. But then, a good deal can be forgiven a man who is in the midst of a trying campaign, and especially when he has recently been defeated by a candidate like Tom Johnson. Now, if it had been the latter that had taken up the cudgels for labor, there would not have been nearly so much humor in the situation. It may be that Mr. Hanna is beginning at this late day to copy after the methods of the mayor of Cleveland—the man whom he has so long tried to defeat.

"In the campaign of 1896 the very men that Mr. Hanna now extols as the able leaders of organized labor issued a circular demanding in the name of 'all the wealth producers of the country' the remonitization of silver, and because he, the chairman of the national Republican committee, did all he could in support of the gold standard, he was lampooned and abused worse perhaps than any man before or since by these very men whose friendship he now so assiduously seeks. The genesis of Mr. Hanna from an energetic business man with a labor record not particularly distinguished for leniency into a political leader and finally a United States senator, who is the leading spirit if not the founder of the Civic Federation, is a remarkable instance of what the political bee will make a man do when it gets to buzzing in his bonnet. Who knows where the metamorphosis of Mr. Hanna will end? Is it possible that he has become a convert to all the leading tenets of trade unionism? It appears that he actually joined the Amalgamated union or whatever it was which he addressed. And his speech would certainly pass as an excellent one to mark an initiation into the order. As a good union man he may yet think it incumbent upon him to look with an indulgent eye upon Bryanism, and I am almost inclined to believe it an opportune time to make the suggestion that he be made the next running mate for Mr. Bryan. Bryan and Hanna—how is that for a ticket?

"Of course, I am aware that all this is not argument, but then there was very little argument in Mr. Hanna's speech. He takes up a paper which has met the endorsement of 98 per cent of the manufacturers of the country as being a fair exposition of the socialistic tendencies, and what Carroll D. Wright calls the damnable practices of trades unionism, and makes what I think the country will hold as a poor attempt to answer it.

"After the manner of a pettyfogging lawyer he picked out a couple of paragraphs of my report, held them up to ridicule, and then passed on to his own ideas as to joint agreement and the legal responsibilities of labor unions, evading all the main points brought out in my address. If there is anything more in Mr. Hanna's speech, I fail to find it.

"What has Mr. Hanna to say about fixing the wages by artificial methods? There is the root of the whole matter. If it is right that one class of workmen should have their wages fixed arbitrarily, then it is only just that the wages of all classes should be fixed in the same manner.

"I have heard it said that had it not been for Mr. Hanna and his civic federation the anthracite coal strike would have been settled without the crushing losses that fell upon the consumers of the country, but be this as it may, does Mr. Hanna agree that it was perfectly proper for the miners' union to demand a scale of wages out of proportion to the wages paid similar labor in other industries, and failing to get it to go on strikes, paralyzing orderly government in the mining districts and causing a shortage of the fuel supply that meant a loss of millions to industry and to householders throughout the country? How does Mr. Hanna make the report of the mining commission conform to his ideas of justice? That report, I believe, states that the wages of the miners were found to compare favorably with the pay of employes in other industries, and yet, despite this finding, the commission granted an advance of 10 per cent. I speak of this miners' strike because it is typical and because everyone knows about it, but there have been hundreds of other strikes which illustrate the same point and every victory that is gained is a signal for others to go on strike. The natural consequence is that we read in the daily press accounts of a constant succession of strikes.

"I am surprised to see that Mr. Hanna so flatly denies the proposition that organized labor is founded on the principle of force when every day furnishes its demonstrations in proof of my charge. The only reason why the anthracite miners received a wage scale confessedly out of proportion to what similar labor gets elsewhere is because they were able to compel its granting by force. They prove their power by going on strikes and preventing other men from taking their places, despite the presence of the entire national guard of Pennsylvania. The country was at their mercy and finally, as a measure of expediency it became necessary for the government to negotiate with them that peace might be purchased. Is this the kind of business Mr. Hanna now encourages?

"I wish it thoroughly understood that I am not against the individual workman getting the highest price for his labor that industrial conditions will permit, nor am I against organized labor per se. What I do oppose, however, is any system that seeks to pry up wages by the use of artificial methods or physical force strikes, boycotts, joint agreements, coercions, etc. I declare that the arbitrary adjustment of wagesis radically wrong. I declare that if one set of workmen is granted such an adjustment, equal justice requires that all such be granted a like adjustment. To give a few classes a dispensation from the operation of the natural law of wages is to assess a tax upon all the rest of the people, and amounts merely to a method of robbing Peter to pay Paul. If Mr. Hanna is not encouraging chaos in wage relations, what is he doing? I maintain that free industrial conditions are essential to the highest progress and that only under such conditions can the laboring classes hope to receive the highest reward for their toil. On account of the false economic ideas preached by the socialistic leaders of the laboring masses, I am well aware that the idea I here advance is not popular, but nevertheless it is true and I believe in standing for the right—come what may.

"I note that Mr. Hanna says that he is opposed to making the unions legally responsible for their acts, because they are composed of honest men who will abide by their agreement. This is about the first time that I have heard it intimated that anyone thought the unions would not keep the agreement they may enter into. I may be very ignorant on the labor question but it has always been my understanding that legal responsibility of unionism is considered desirable not because the honesty of the average member is doubted, but because that being a business institution the unions should bear the responsibility for the acts of its members, whenever it declares a strike that results in losses to business, damages to property or personal injuries to independent workmen.

"Mr. Hanna corralled the manufacturers of the country in the first McKinley campaign because of the fear of Bryanism. He led them into the McKinley camp because of this fear, but if he thinks he can ring-nose the manufacturers of the country on the labor issue and lead them into the camp of Gompers and his aggregation, I think he overestimates his strength and influence very much. The National Association of Manufacturers is not a political organization and will not be led by any politician. As long as I am president of the association it shall not be used as a kite to advance the interests of any politician or political party.

"The labor question is entirely apart from partisan politics and it is hoped that it will not be made the football of politics. The National Association of Manufacturers has taken a determined position that the factories of this country are to be operated without the dictation of labor agitators or politicians and I firmly believe that they will maintain that position to the last."

ALLEGED DISCRIMINATION

Favoring Wheat to Be Investigated By Commission.

Minneapolis, April 23.—The latest development in the flour mill situation is the announcement that the interstate commerce commission will investigate the discrimination against flour favoring wheat in freight tariffs, which resulted in the total suspension of the flour manufacturing industry of the Northwest. Millers look upon the announcement as the forerunner of relief, while the transportation companies seem displeased that the commission is to interfere.

Telegrams were exchanged yesterday between Minneapolis, St. Paul, Chicago and eastern points, looking to a conference to be held within a few days, perhaps in Chicago.

Only three mills resumed operations yesterday.

TO BE HERE MONDAY

Joseph Devlin Will Address People of Duluth at Armory.

Young Member of Parliament Will Discuss "The Irish Question."

The Duluth branch of the United Irish League of America is preparing to give the Hon. Joseph Devlin, M. P., a grand reception.

Mr. Devlin will visit Duluth on Monday evening next and will deliver an address on "The Irish uestion," which is today the foremost measure before the British parliament. The introduction of the Irish land bill in the house of commons will make the visit of Mr. Devlin of great interest at this time as he is a man well posted on the new bill for Ireland and will explain it in detail, setting forth what the new reform proposes to do for the tenant farmers in Ireland. Mr. Devlin addressed a large audience in Minneapolis Tuesday night and Governor Van Sant presided at the meeting.

The members of the local branch of the league feel highly honored at the coming of this bright young member of parliament and they propose to give him a warm reception as the accredited representative of the United Irish Parliamentary party. He has been sent by his party to this country to establish branches of the league, which is an auxiliary organization to the Irish National party. The platform of the league in substance is as follows: Full national self-government for Ireland; the abolition of landlordism in Ireland by means of a universal and compulsory system of land purchase; the putting an end to periodical famine in the distressed districts of Ireland; to insist upon the appropriation to strictly Irish national uses of the $15,000,000 at present annually exported from Ireland for the benefit of England, in excess of the contribution stipulated by the act of union; to secure the redistribution of the grazing ranches of Connaught and the reinstatement of the evicted tenants; complete educational equality for all creeds in Ireland; the compulsory extension throughout Ireland of the laws providing for agricultural laborers with cottages and one-acre allotments; the abolition of the right of the crown to challenge jurors in political cases, except for cause shown; the preservation of the Gaelic language as part of the struggle for the recovery of Irish national freedom. Any friend of Ireland can become a member of the league, no matter what his nationality or creed may be.

Mr. Devlin will speak at the Armory next Monday evening and the proceeds of the meeting will go into the Irish national defense fund, which is being raised to carry on the fight which the league has planned out in its platform. There will undoubtedly be a big meeting.

PLAY HIGH SCHOOL

Northern League Team Will Give High School a Benefit.

Teams Will Play an Exhibition Game on May 9.

Duluth's first chance to see the baseball team which will represent it in the race for the Northern league pennant will be on May 9, when the team will play an exhibition game with the high school nine.

The treasury of the High School Athletic association has been in a state of depletion since last football season, and Manager Van Praagh of the Duluth team has offered to donate the services of his team for a first-class exhibition game with the high school boys. All of the proceeds will go to the high school.

The Duluth team will report on May 5, and will have nearly a week of hard practice before they play with the students. The high school has a very strong team, and Cummings, pitcher and captain, is the fastest amateur pitcher in the state.

The game will be hard enough to give the leaguers a chance to show off the very best there is in them. Duluth fans who are anxious to see the team work and get an idea of what may be expected of them this season will turn out in force to see the game.

The high school has been at practice for a week and a half already and is playing good ball. Cummings will probably be supported by Potter, his old catcher in this game, and the best can be expected of him. Cummings occasionally pitched a game for Van Praagh's team when they were the old Duluth Fashions, and is quite as speedy a man as many of the league players.

His arm is better this year than it has ever been before, and the professionals will have to get their batting clothes on to make a one-sided game out of the contest. The high school men will also have the advantage of more practice together than the Duluth team.

A revival in baseball interest has occurred in Duluth since the granting of the Northern league franchise, and everyone interested in the future of this year's team is anxious to see the men on the diamond.

May 16 and 17 the Duluth team will play exhibition games with Stillwater, and May 20 the league season will open with a game at Fargo.

The high school boys are enthusiastic over Manager Van Praagh's generosity in offering them the entire proceeds of the game, and the athletic association will probably extend him a vote of thanks. The high school athletic treasury was $300 in debt a couple of months ago, and the students have been trying hard to raise the amount. A subscription among the boys brought about $150, and it is hoped that the remaining $150 can be raised in the game with the Duluth team and by an entertainment which will be given at the High School on May 22.

Multiplies your pleasures, divides your efforts, subtracts from your cares, adds years to your life. That's what Rocky Mountain Tea will do. 35 cents. S. F. Boyce.

VETERANS TO GO

To San Francisco For Their National Encampment In August.

California People Making Great Preparations For the Event.

San Francisco, April 23.—The thirty-seventh national encampment, Grand Army of the Republic, which is to be held in San Francisco during the week commencing Aug. 17, is destined to become one of the most notable gatherings—in point of numbers, magnificence and splendor—in the history of California, as well as in the annals of the fraternity. The people of San Francisco, and of all California, fully appreciating the fact that these veterans may never again gather in an encampment on the shores of the Pacific, will exert every effort to make this encampment the most memorable one in the history of the G. A. R. No other organization holds the affection of the people as does the one composed of the veterans, the defenders of the Union, of liberty and right. The veterans residing in California and Nevada arranged the preliminaries for the encampment, but all the people of California and of the Pacific coast are enthusiastic on that topic now, and are working hand in hand with the committees to make this encampment eclipse all former fraternal gatherings. From the governor of the state to the humblest citizen every one is imbued with the idea that San Francisco and California must give the veterans the most rousing welcome they have ever had. Merchants, manufacturers, farmers and miners, all are eager to make the visit of the veterans a pleasant and a memorable one. They are determined to show the visitors the famed beauties of this Western Wonderland, which must be seen to be appreciated. From every county and section of the state the choicest products will be brought to San Francisco and be placed on exhibition, that the visitors may feast their eyes upon them. Carloads of fruit—the most delicious in the world—fruit-bearing trees, the giants of the California forests, and other wonders that have made the Golden states famous, will be on exhibition throughout the city for the benefit of those who cannot visit every section of the state. The famous gardens of Santa Clara, Marin, Sonoma, Alameda, Contra Costa and other adjacent counties will furnish the material for the grandest floral display ever seen. Quartz and hydraulic mining will be demonstrated on miniature mines, and oil wells are to be bored in the city, in sight of the visitors.

The electrical display and the illuminations are to surpass even those which have made San Francisco famous during the Knights of Pythias encampment in 1902, and were considered the finest ever seen. It will be the grandest sight to behold the vast hosts of the veterans marching through the streets of San Francisco, beneath a canopy of flowers, and under garlands and domes woven of myriads of incandescent electric lights, turning night into day and making the scene one of fairyland. For the illumination and the decoration, though much of it is owned by the city and is given free of cost, and the flowers are donated, the legislature has appropriated $25,000 for that purpose, and the citizens expect to raise three times as much by voluntary contribution, to defray the cost of dressing the city in holiday garb.

The climate is the most agreeable that can be imagined. The temperature the year round is mild and pleasant. In August, with no rain, the thermometer registers 65 to 75 degrees, rarely a degree more or less, whether midday or midnight. Two hundred thousand visitors can be easily accommodated in the city at one time, and have been comfortably housed on two former occasions. Living in San Francisco is cheaper than in any large city in the Union and is good living at that. Fruit and vegetables grow in abundance the year round. There is no cold, hot nor an off-season in California. In August fruit can be bought from any street vender, enough for 5 cents to feed a family. Meat is plentiful and cheap, and of the very best quality. Rooms, good, clean, comfortable rooms, may be had in the residence part of the town at 50 cents to $1 per night, or $3 to $7 per week. All the hotels, lodging, boarding and apartment houses have agreed to charge the regular rates during the encampment. The railroad rates are the lowest for that occasion in the history of transcontinental traffic, and will include traveling over either route, coming and returning, with many side trips at a nominal cost.

BILLINGS GIFTS

Made By the Trustees of the Boston Man's Estate.

One Million Dollars Lent to Selected Objects of Charity.

Boston, April 23.—During the last three days checks to the total amount of more than $1,000,000 have been mailed by Thomas Minns, one of the executors of the estate of the late Robert C. Billings, of Boston, to 102 of the 121 institutions selected by Mr. Minns and Joseph S. Kendall, the other executor, in following out the desires of Mr. Billings to divide the residue of his property, after paying certain private and public bequests, among "charitable" institutions.

The checks, which were drawn upon eight banking institutions here where the executors had deposited the funds left in their care, were for various amounts, ranging from $1000 to $160,000, the latter sum being the amount given by the executors to the Boston public library and which is the largest gift ever made to this institution. All the checks were drawn by Mr. Minns, who was authorized by Mr. Kendall to take charge of this part of the work in settling up the estate.

The executors were instructed by Mr. Billings in his will to use their discretion in selecting the institutions and the amount they were to give to each. There is now in the hands of the executors about $300 000 to be apportioned among the remaining twenty-nine institutions and such others as they may decide upon in the future. Only recently Mr. Minns and Mr. Kendall decided to make a gift to the Boston Children's Aid society, and with the sweeping authority given them by Mr. Billing's will, they can take as much time as they care to in disposing of the residue.

Already word has come to Boston telling of the receipt of checks by various institutions. Exeter academy received $10,000 and the Teachers' Mutual Benefit association, of Boston, $8000; so it can be seen that all the institutions received substantial gifts. The executors are not willing to make public the amount given to each institution. They were guided in apportioning the money by the size, needs and work of each.

Robert C. Billings was an old Boston merchant, who amassed a fortune of about $3,000,000 in the dry goods commission business. He died on June 12, 1899, at the age of 82, at his home in Jamaica Plain and left no descendants. By his will relatives and friends were remembered, and the following public bequests were made: Harvard university, $100,000; Massachusetts Institute of Technology, $100,000; Massachusetts Institute of Technology to found the "Billings' Student Fund," $50,000; Museum of Fine Arts, $100,000; Massachusetts general hospital, $50,000; New England Hospital for Women and Children, $50,000; Children's hospital, $50,000; Massachusetts Charitable Eye and Ear infirmary, $50,000; Perkins Institute for the Blind, $25,000. The sum of $279,000 was divided among twenty-four other institutions and organizations in sums of from $2500 to $25,000 each.

In the will and a codicil Mr. Billings named Mr. Minns, Matthew Luce and Joseph S. Kendall as executors, and adds in the will that after paying the bequests named "any sum still remaining shall be disposed of by my executors, they using their best judgment and taste in doing so." By a codicil attached to the will, executed in 1895, Mr. Billings said:

"Whereas by said will I provided that any sums still remaining shall be disposed of by my executors, they using their best judgment and taste in doing so; now in order that said charitable trust may not fail for want of definiteness or any other cause, I give all the rest, residue and remainder of my estate to my said executors and the survivors or survivor of them and to his successor, in trust, nevertheless, to apply the whole or any part of the principal and income, in their discretion, to such charitable purposes as to them, or the survivors or survivor of them, or any administrator with the will annexed, shall seem proper, and for that purpose, I give to them the widest discretion and request that no surety shall be required on any bond from them, or either of them—and that they may take all the time they please in disposing of said residue."

After paying the bequests named by Mr. Billings the executors were puzzled to know among which institutions to divide the residue, which amounted to about $1,300,000. The will had been admitted to probate a short time after the testator's death, and before the executors had made up their minds what to do with the money in their hands two years and a half had passed by.

On Feb. 6, 1902, Mr. Luce died, and the task fell upon Mr. Minns and Mr. Kendall. They sat up nights talking the matter over and finally decided that they would be best carrying out the wishes of their friend if they divided the fortune among as many deserving corporations as was possible and still give each a fairly substantial sum.

They made a list of such institutions as they thought would come within the meaning of the word "charitable." 126 corporations being selected, and then a friendly suit was brought in the supreme court against Frank S. Billings, the testator's nephew, and Attorney General Parker, to secure a ruling as to whether the institutions named were proper ones to receive gifts, under the terms of the will. The only doubt about the list was in reference to these seven corporations: The Boston Teachers' Mutual Benefit association, the Bank Officers' association of Boston, the Franklin Typographical society of Boston, the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, the Animal Rescue league of Boston, the proprietors of the Boston Athenaeum and the Boston Public library.

The court, in its opinion, said in regard to the seven corporations:

"We shall not discuss them any further than to say that, upon the statements contained in the bill we see nothing to show that they may not be all treated as gifts to public charities under the liberal doctrine established by recent decisions of this court. We shall, therefore, assume that the particular facts stated in the bill are such as to warrant the executors in making these institutions beneficiaries."

Satisfied that they were proceeding safely in the execution of the trust, Messrs. Minns and Kendall went to work to decide upon the amounts to be given to each corporation, and having settled this question with reference to 102 of the number, they sent out the checks this week.

RUNAWAY CARS CAUSE WRECK

Fatal Accident on Spring Valley Branch of Omaha.

Spring Valley, Wis., April 23.—One man was killed and three others injured in a wreck on the Spring Valley branch of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad yesterday afternoon. A mixed freight and passenger train from Spring Valley to Woodville stalled on a hill two miles west of here and two cars were left standing while the balance of the train went over the ridge. A defective brake allowed the cars to get away and they started down the hill, soon attaining a terrific speed, colliding with another train coming up the incline. The end coach was completely telescoped. When the cars started to run most of the passengers in the coach jumped and escaped without injury. The train crew also, after doing all in their power to check the cars, jumped, so that only two persons remained upon the coach when the crash came. Several of the trainmen were hurt in jumping from the rapidly moving cars. The casualties resulting are as follows:

Killed:

E. C. STUHLFEEIER, St. Paul, passenger.

Injured: Adolph Simonson, brakeman, arm cut off and otherwise badly hurt. B. H. Joslin, Moline, Ill., passenger, arm broken and body badly bruised. James Mullin, pumpman, foot and head bruised and lacerated.

The dead and injured were taken to St. Paul on a special train. The grade where the accident occurred is said to be the steepest on the system.

ROOT DEFEATS KID McCOY

Affair Was a One Man From Beginning to End.

Detroit, April 23.—Jack Root, of Chicago, was given the decision over Kid McCoy at the end of the tenth round last night before a crowd that packed Light Guard Armory to its capacity.

The bout was a one man affair from beginning to end, McCoy never having a chance. Root landed at will with left and right to face and body and generally without a return.

The men weighed in at 3 o'clock, both tipping the scales close to 175 pounds. But Masterson was the referee.

The first round opened with light exchanges of lefts to body. McCoy landed left to jaw and cleverly ducked a vicious swing. No damage was done.

McCoy started the second with a left hook to the jaw a right to the head and right and left to neck and mouth. Near the end of the round Root landed a low body punch that sent McCoy to the mat and would have ended the bout had it not been for the gong.

Root opened the third with a right to the back of the head and McCoy went down and took the count. Root landed left and right to the body. McCoy again going down and taking the count. McCoy was very groggy and was holding to save himself.

From this time on Root landed as he pleased. McCoy's blows lacked steam and he appeared to be content with staying the limit. He braced up somewhat in the sixth, but was never dangerous. McCoy took the count in the seventh, eighth and ninth rounds and by holding managed to stay to the end.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Denison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

FACE LIKE AN APE

Hana, a Human Monstrosity, to Join Cole Younger's Show.

Woman Was In Charge of Him on Trip Westward.

Buffalo, April 23.—There was a ripple of excitement in the New York Central station, caused by the appearance there of a veiled object with two legs, like every human being, but with a face like an ape. Only two or three persons were allowed the privilege of looking under the veil, and they were railroad employes. The people in the big waiting room simply stared at the object and wondered what it was and why the face should be so heavily veiled.

Their curiosity was unsatisfied. The freak came into the waiting room accompanied by a country woman. They had come from the neighborhood of Penn Yan, but just where, it was impossible to learn. The woman, when questioned, said she could say very little about the freak, as she was under a contract which prevented her doing it. She described the freak as about 4 feet high, with the body and legs of a human being. The head, neck and arms, however, are those of an ape. The woman said the head was that of a perfect ape, and this was confirmed by the outlines of the head as seen under the veil. The head is covered with hair and this hair runs down over the body. It is long, like that of an animal. The woman would say nothing about the birth of the freak; was silent on the matter of its parentage and also as to the place of its birth. She said it was known as Hana.

This human monstrosity is able to walk, like any other human being, and, furthermore, it is able to talk. Its legs are shaped like those of a human being, but they bend forward, as if the object were accustomed to walking on all fours.

The freak was covered from head to feet with a cloak that hid the outlines of the body. Red stockings covered the lower parts of the legs. It wore no shoes. It looked as if it might be a boy or a girl about 14 years old.

The woman said she was taking the freak to Chicago to join the Cole Younger and Frank James United Historical shows. Twenty-five years ago Frank James and Cole Younger were two of the country's most noted outlaws. They belonged to that great band of robbers which was headed by the famous Jesse James, Frank's younger brother. Jesse was shot to death in his own house one day, and from that time on the gang became less of a terror. Cole Younger was one of the group that finally landed in prison and it was only recently that he was released on parole, on the condition that he should go outside the state of Minnesota. Frank James has been a free man for years, and has lived in St. Louis, where he has lived the life of an upright and honorable citizen. The past no longer counts against these men, and it lives only in their recollection. Recently they got together and organized a show, and it is understood that James will manage it. As stated before, it is to their show that the freak which stopped off in the Central station yesterday afternoon is being taken.

The woman has a ticket to Detroit, and when she was getting aboard the train for that city she picked up the monstrosity and threw it over her shoulder. It was then that the animal in the object was seen. The head was held up in a position just such as a dog would assume were a man to put him on his shoulder with the head of the animal hanging down on the back. The railroad men who saw the head of the freak say the face was that of an ape.

Hinman to William Joseph Corcoran, by an instrument of assignment which was duly recorded in said register of deeds' office on July twenty-fourth (24th), 1891, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., in book seventy-three (73), of mortgages, on page four hundred eighty-four (484) thereof, said William Joseph Corcoran having thereafter died, and the undersigned having been, by his last will and testament, duly appointed as executors of his estate, and a duly authenticated copy of the letters testamentary issued to the undersigned, as executors of his last will, upon the probate thereof, by the Judge of Probate of Suffolk county, Massachusetts, having been thereafter, and prior to the date of this notice, duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis county, Minnesota, such default, consisting in the nonpayment of the principal sum thereby secured, with interest thereon from November 4th, 1890, and also in the non-payment of taxes upon the premises described in said mortgage for the year 1891, and subsequent years, which said mortgagor had covenanted to pay in said mortgage, but which became delinquent and which said assignee of said mortgage was compelled to pay, and did pay, as follows: On February 20th, 1892, the sum of $6.46; on October 29th, 1896, the sum of $26.30; on August 1st, 1899, the sum of $41.15; on December 23rd, 1901, the sum of $11.71, on December 26th, 1901, the sum of $10.85; and on February 10th, 1902, the sum of $12.22; no part of which has ever been paid.

WHEAT IS HIGHER

Good Export Demand Reported From the Seaboard.

May-July Difference In Flax Established at Two Cents.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 23.—The wheat market was rather quiet today in Duluth, but active in Chicago and prices were strong. There was large export business, New York reporting as high as 135 loads taken. This is said to have been largely new winter wheat for summer shipment. A cable received by one of the exporters during the morning said that the English wheat duty amounting to about 3½c a bus has been removed. Other advices were that it will not be removed until July 1. Some wheat was worked from Duluth. The cables were higher, Liverpool showing an advance of ½d. That market was affected by the unfavorable Prussian report and bad weather in France. The Paris market opened 1½ to 2c higher and closed 1¼c higher.

Estimates of Argentine shipments this week vary, one being for 2,400,000 bus, and another for 1,605,000 bus.

Primary receipts of wheat were 268,000 bus, last year 160,000 bus. Shipments 548,000 bus, last year 406,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 514,000 bus.

Trading in wheat was quiet on the Duluth board. May opened ¼c up at 76⅞c and sold back and forth from 76¾c to 76⅞c for an hour or more and touched 77c at 11:05. It continued upward, selling at 77¼c at 11:50 and closing at 77⅛c. This was an advance of ⅝c. Chicago advanced slightly and Minneapolis ⅜c.

Cash prices were unchanged at ¼c over May for No. 1 northern and 1¼c under for No. 2. Sales were 7000 bus.

Flax trading was very light and there was an advance of ⅛c in both May and July. There was changing of May to July today at 2c difference and that was practically established as the changing price. Receipts of flax at Duluth today were 24 cars and at Minneapolis 10 cars.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat, to arrive, No. 1 hard, 79⅜c; No. 1 northern, 77⅜c; No. 2 northern, 75⅜c; May, No. 1 hard, 79⅜c; No. 1 northern, 77⅛c; July, 76⅝c. THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Strong With a Good General Demand.

Chicago, April 23.—Wheat opened strong today, with a good general demand. May being a shade to ⅛@⅜c higher at 78¼@⅜c and July 73c to 73⅛c, 1@c to ⅝c above yesterday's close. Offerings were light, and this, together with strength in cables and small receipts, caused an advance in the first half hour to 78⅝c for the May option. July selling up to 73⅝@¾c. The export demand was good and this, together with reported scarcity in the German crop, counteracted the effects of good weather in the wheat belt and imparted a firm tone to the market. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 125 cars, which with local receipts of 16 cars, none of contract grade, made a total for the three points of 141 cars, against 125 cars last week and 198 cars a year ago.

On good demand by commission houses May advanced to 78⅜c. Local traders, however, proved good sellers and the market eased off late in the session, the close being at 78¼c. July after selling up to 73⅜c, closed at 73c.

There was small trade in corn, May opening ⅛c lower at 44⅜@⅜c to 44⅝c, with July firm, unchanged to ⅛@⅜c higher at 44⅝c to 45@45⅜c. May shorts were the best buyers and under the influence of firm cables and small receipts May advanced to 44⅝c while July remained about steady at 45⅜c. Local receipts, 46 cars, with none of contract grade.

Corn advanced on good buying by shorts to 44⅜@⅝c for May, with July up to 45⅛c, but reacted on reports of large crop indications, closing with May at 44⅜@⅝c and July at 45⅜@⅝c.

Oats opened firm in sympathy with other grains with July ⅛c to ⅝c higher at 31⅝@32c. There was no feature in the trading, locals being inclined to buy on bullish crop reports and the market during the first hour remained steady around 32. Local receipts were 101 cars.

Provisions were quiet and showed some strength due to small receipts of hogs at the yards. July pork opened 7½c lower at $17.40 but soon rallied to $17.47½; July lard was 2½c lower to unchanged, at $9.70@9.72½, with July ribs down 2½c to 5c at $9.70 to $9.72½.

Close: Wheat—May, 78⅛c; July, 73c; September, 69¾c. Corn—April, 44½c; May, 44⅜@⅝c; July, 45⅛@45⅜c; September, 44⅜@⅝c. Oats—April, 31⅝c; May, 34⅜c; July, 31⅝@32c; September, 29c. Pork—May, $18.07½; July, $17.42½; September, $17.07½. Lard—May, $9.40; July, $9.55; September, 9.95. Ribs—May, $9.82½; July, $9.67½@9.70; September, $9.60@9.62½. Rye—May, 56¾c. Flax—Cash, N. W. $1.0[illegible]; S. W., $1.08; May, $1.06½. Timothy—April, $3.80. Clover—April, $11.50. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was active and moderately strong. The activity, however, came largely from local pit trading. Commission house interests are small. The controlling factors at the moment are the doubtful condition of European crops and the Armour manipulation. Both of these tend to keep the trade in a state of uncertainty. The import duty on wheat into the United Kingdom amounting to about 3 cents per bushel will be removed after the first of July. A large export business reported both at the seaboard and southwest markets. Armour is working some No. 1 northern wheat from here to the eastward and reported sales of 250,000 bushels today. Argentine shipments for week are estimated at 1,600,000 bushels. We can only repeat our previous expressions of feeling, which is that so long as the European crop is in doubt and Armour stands pat on his holdings, it will probably be best to buy wheat on the weak spots. Estimated cars, 40.

Corn—The tone of this market was strong. There is no great activity in any respect, but the general cool tendency of the weather prevents any serious selling pressure. Receipts are still small and no indication of any material increase. Estimated cars, 75.

Oats—Market was again fairly strong but hardly so active. The short interest seems pretty well eliminated by the recent advance. The backward tendency of the spring is the principal supporting cause. Reports are, however, by no means discouraging. From this state they indicate that there may possibly be a small decrease in the acreage, but nothing important with favorable conditions from this time on. We still think July oats should be sold on the hard spots. Estimated cars, 115.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: A press dispatch says: "Berlin—The crop report of Prussia, made up to April 15, shows the conditions to be worse than in 1902. In the scale of 1 for perfect and 5 for very poor, winter wheat is reported at 3.3-10 against 2.3 in 1902 and winter rye 3 against 2.3. Much damage is reported from mice, smuts and frost. Seventeen per cent of the wheat acreage must be plowed under. The report says the seeding of winter grains was delayed four weeks through excessive rains in the summer, which prevented the ripening of the previous crops. The area of sown wheat was reduced 3 per cent and of rye 4.7. It is added that the total grain acreage needing to be plowed under cannot be determined accurately before the May report, but much of the wheat looks exceedingly unpromising. Few reports indicate a satisfactory condition. Much of the rye is reported to be yellow."

Cincinnati Price Current: The cool week prevented rapid wheat growth. Favorable conditions are generally maintained. Farm work is still backward, making progress now. There is an inclination to put in large corn acreage, clover and grass.

McQuilliston, Chicago: I think Armour is dumping his May wheat as fast as he can without affecting the market, but he still holds his original line of July (possibly 10,000,000 bus) and if the foreign crop news continues as bullish as it has been the past few days he will undoubtedly have plenty of company on the long side.

DECLINE IN STOCKS

General Level of Prices Well Below Tuesday Night's.

Profit-Taking Steady and Closing Was Dull and Heavy.

New York, April 23.—The stock exchange initiated the trading in its new building with an upward movement of prices, which was fairly uniform throughout the list. Reading opened up 1⅛ and then reacted ½. Consolidated Gas jumped 3. St. Louis Southwestern preferred rose 1⅝ and other members of the Gould group showed good fractional advances. The same was true of the leading specialties and of the Pacifics and grangers. Trading was on a large scale and many blocks of 1000 shares and upwards changed hands in numerous stocks.

The market developed some slight irregularity, some stocks yielding when the Pennsylvania group reacted and others moving up vigorously. The movement either way was not wide, but the tendency was more generally downwards at 11 o'clock. Manhattan, Metropolitan Street Railway, Smelting, Rock Island, Texas & Pacific and Erie second preferred were in demand and rose 1@1⅝. Pere Marquette gained 2 and Sloss-Sheffield 3¼. Northern Securities on the curb sold up 1⅝ from the previous sale prices on the dividend declaration and then reacted.

Profit taking was steady and carried the majority of leading stocks, amongst them being the Pacifics, Trunk lines, grangers and industrials, a fraction under Tuesday's closing. Chicago Union Traction dropped 2½ on the appointment of a receiver. Ice preferred rose 2¼; Pacific Mail 1¼ and New Haven a point. The market fell into dullness on the reaction. Bonds irregular.

Active stocks fluctuated a small fraction either way with the drift, if anything, towards a lower level. Very little stock was offered but the flattening out of the opening strength discouraged holders. National Railroad of Mexico was unusually active and 1⅜ up, and the preferred 2 points. International Paper dropped 3¾.

A few of the prominent leaders, such as St. Paul, Union Pacific and Manhattan were bid for effect on the list, but the response was so slight that the buying movement was abandoned. Prices eased off again and the market resumed its sluggishness and inanitation.

Prices continued to show a settling tendency on small dealings but net declines did not reach as much as a point in any conspicuous stocks except Sugar and Pennsylvania. The general level of prices, however, was well below Tuesday night's. International Power fell 4¾ in all, Denver and Rio Grande and Detroit Southern preferred gained a point. The closing was dull and heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: The head of a Standard Oil house which turned from the bear side about ten days ago for the first time in months, and said to this writer last night: "My belief is that the stock market will back and fill, but the tendency of prices will be upward and that we shall see the highest prices of the year some time between now and the middle of July. Stocks have had a big decline from their top of last September, the crop situation is favorable, money is easier and the public evinces a desire to come into the market something it has not done before in a long time. The foregoing reflects the views of the majority of conservative houses so that the chances are that the best business day on the new stock exchange floor will see higher quotations following which a reaction will occur, when it is believed such stocks as Atchison, Missouri Pacific, People's Gas, Baltimore and Ohio, and the new priced Coalers, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, Copper, and Tennessee Coal and Iron, will be a purchase. Commenting last night on the financial situation close observers quite generally agree that indications point to a lowering of interest rates at all the principal monetary centers of the world. This opinion is based very largely on the world's increase in gold production, special stress being laid on the growing output of South African mines. Whether the bank of England reduces its rate of discount today or not there is every likelyhood, bankers think, of such reduction being made at an early date. Bankers now make a strong point that the new two per cents will be available for this purpose.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: I expect a reaction from present levels. There is no demand in the loan crowd. The orders are all bullish. These are technical signs that prices are high enough for the present. Take profits whenever you see them and chance buying back cheaper.

* * *

New York to Coe Commission Co.: It is said the gross earnings of Missouri Pacific for April will show an increase over last year of about $500,000. Sufficient returns have come to hand to justify estimates for the net the first four months of the current year will show a gain of over $1,500,000 which if the ratio of increase should be sustained during the year, the earnings of 1903 will amount to over 14 per cent.

* * *

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: A fairly good market again today. The volume of business is not large, but on the whole shows some improvement. There has been some hammering by bro kerslonals, but it failed to bring out long stocks. There is particularly good buying of the Mexican issues. Money is easy, but along with it has come an advance in sterling exchange, which revived the talk of gold export. Nothing immediate in this line is likely. On the local exchange the appointment of a receiver for Union Traction is generally regarded as a wise move.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 23.—Cotton opened easy at a decline of 2@4 points and for a time ruled steady on pool support and then turned weak under general selling with a decline of 2@7 points, chiefly on the old crop positions, apparently under decidedly disappointing cables, a full movement, generally fine weather and unsatisfactory trade accounts. Toward noon the market became a shade steadier on moderate covering but business was quiet.

IN THE NEW EXCHANGE.

Unusually Large Gathering at First Day's Business.

New York, April 23.—The first day of business on the new stock exchange opened with better prices and general feelings of confidence. There was an unusually large gathering of members, many veterans attending as a matter of sentiment.

The crowd arrived long before the opening. Promptly at 10 o'clock President Keppler, who stood with Chairman Talbot in the north rostrum, brought his gavel down. So great was the noise, however, that the sound of the gavel could not be heard twenty feet away.

Each of the sixteen trading posts had its crowd of eager, expectant brokers, but the greatest crowd congregated about post five, where Missouri Pacific was the feature. The arbitrage crowd at the south end of the room was making lots of noise, but the bond brokers over at the east wall were a quiet, orderly lot.

The new rule excluding visitors save those bearing members' cards accounted for the small attendance in the gallery. Just before the opening the floral offering of the Consolidated exchange, a gigantic horseshoe of roses, was brought in and placed under the rostrum.

The stock market features included Missouri Pacific, Union Pacific, St. Paul, Rock Island, Erie, Pennsylvania and Reading.

MIDWAY HORSE MARKET.

Minnesota Transfer, St. Paul.—Barrett & Zimmerman report that local buyers made un the largest attendance. Bidding at auction was active and keen. Prices advanced $10 a head in the main. The scarcity of horses in the country on account of seeding makes it difficult to procure supplies. Values:

BRITISH BUDGET

Shows an Estimated Expenditure of £179,770,000.

London, April 23.—The budget, which was introduced in the house of commons today, showed an estimated expenditure for 1903-4 of £179,770,000. The chancellor of the exchequer, Mr. Ritchie, fixed the national debt charge at £1,035,000,000, of which £31,500,000 is available for the sinking fund.

The estimated revenue on the existing basis of taxation is £773,850,000 giving an available surplus of £54,080,000. Mr. Ritchie's proposals included the following:

The abolition of the duty on grain. The taxes on sugar and coal are unchanged.

Four pence is taken off the income tax.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Vessel Owners Complain of the Low Freight Rates.

Lumber Carriers May Decide To Fix Higher Rates.

A number of the vessel owners operating vessels on the great lakes are complaining of the low freight rates, and say that at the present rates they cannot do more than clear expenses.

It is claimed that the wages of firemen, lake seamen, engineers and masters and pilots have all been raised this season. Coal has jumped to a much higher figure than at the commencement of last season. Even the provisions used to board the men are much higher. Everything has jumped in price while the rates have remained about the same. Last year there were complaints that some bots did not clear expenses. With the increased prices of coal and provisions and the higher wages the vessel owners say that there will be a loss in many cases. The season will also be a moderately long one and the owners fear a surplus of tonnage.

It is expected that a meeting of the Lake Lumber Carriers' association will be held before the end of the month to fix a higher rate to go into effect on May 1.

The Lake Superior rates were fixed some weeks ago at $2.50, but they were made to cover the spring navigation season only. This provision was made as the ore and coal rates had not been fixed and it was feared that a number of vessels would be attracted into the lumber carrying trade if a high rate was fixed for the season. The rate during the closing months of last season was the same as at the opening of the present season, $2.50 per thousand. The owners say that in many cases the boats were run at a loss and that with the heavier expenses this season a rise in rates is necesary if they are to remain in business.

CARNEGIE WEDDING

Anniversary Celebrated By An Elaborate Dinner.

New York, April 23.—Surrounded by friends some of whom were present when she and Mr. Carnegie were married in the home of the bride in this city sixteen years ago, last evening, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie celebrated their anniversary by an elaborate dinner, during which Mr. Carnegie gave a handsome present to Mrs. Carnegie.

Probably on the same steamship with J. P. Morgan—the Cedric, of the White Star line—Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie will sail for Europe tomorrow.

It could not be learned exactly when Mr. and Mrs. Carnegie will return to this country, but it probably will not be for several months at least.

JUST LIKE A WOMAN

Jumps Up and Upsets Boat Load of People.

New York, April 23.—Twelve men and women, passengers and crew on the rowboat ferry between East One Hundred and Twentieth street and Randall's island, were precipitated into the East river while the tide was running high last night. It was on the last trip to the island for the night that one of the women in the boat suddenly jumped to her feet without warning, lost her balance, toppled out of the boat and tipped the craft over with cipal board of three members, appointed by the governor general. A popularly elected council, which, however, has purely advisory functions, has also been instituted.

The situation is a hopeful one, and the natives in many parts of the islands show enterprise and intelligence in managing their own affairs.

"Instruction in Municipal Government" was the subject of a speech by Professor John N. Fairlie, who said, in part:

Our municipal governments are based on a system of manhood suffrage, and good municipal government depends primarily on an intelligent exercise of that suffrage. The necessity for teaching future voters the fundamental principles of American government is very generally acknowledged, even where the measures taken to do this work are most deficient. It needs, however, to be more clearly recognized than is now the case in many quarters, that the training of the future voters in our cities is by no means complete with a study of the federal constitution or even of the national and state governments, but must also include a knowledge of that government which is nearest at hand and most largely affects the daily lives of the citizens—the government of the city.

Two fundamental rules may be laid down for this elementary instruction in municipal government both in schools and in colleges. First, if the main object of teaching the main body of future voters is to be attained municipal government should not be given the place of a special course or a special subject in the curriculum, but must be included as a part of a general course in government or politics, which every student should be at least expected to take. Secondly, the emphasis in this general instruction must be laid, not so much on the form of government as on the functions of the officials and on the rights, responsibilities and duties of the citizens.

In the high schools and academies it is clearly both possible and advisable to give systematic instruction to civil government, including definite work in municipal government. There is an obvious need for impressing on the school authorities in many cities the importance of this subject as part of the training of the coming voters as to their duties and responsibilities. In our colleges and universities, too, there should be instruction in municipal government, given as part of a general introductory course in government, intended not for the specialized work of the advanced students, but for the main body of undergraduates.

I have attempted to suggest a correlated scheme of instruction in municipal government, which may be roughly summarized as follows:

1—Simple lessons in the duties of public agents in the elementary schools.

2—The systematic study of one city in high schools and academies.

3—A comparative study of American municipal government as part of a general course in government in all our colleges and universities.

4—A comprehensive study of municipal government for advanced students in universities, leading to 5—The technical courses in the various professional departments of the universities.

J. B. Davis, of the Detroit high school, followed with an explanation of the system of municipal instruction in the Detroit schools, and Secretary Stevens, of the Municipal league, of Cleveland, read a paper prepared by Wilson L. Gill, who was supervisor of morals in Cuba during the American occupation on "The School City." Mr. Gill's paper was in part as follows:

If our nation is to be one of citizens and not of subjects, it must train its children as citizens and stop training them as subjects.

So far as the individual who is governed is concerned, all governments belong to one or the other of two kinds, democratic, in which he helps to determine its policy and laws and to carry them into execution.

A great mass of educated men neglect primaries and municipal elections, thus abdicating the powers of sovereign American citizenship. The field so free, the week of monarchy has grown so large and strong that the sway of its head is as absolute as that of any tyrant of the old world. We call him "boss" or "leader," but he, good or bad, is no less our kind of czar. We have the form of a democratic republic, but from some cities and states the spirit of democracy has fled. Shall we let it go forever? Or shall we do the several things which are absolutely necessary for its restoration?

That competent men stick too close to their private business, and party politics enter into purely business offices and transactions are only symptoms. All government, in contact with which educated people come while their character and habits are being formed, is monarchy. That is a chief root of the disease. If it succeeds in procuring unquestioning obedience to school authority, it destroys the spirit of thinking, co-operating citizenship. If it unconsciously produces an undercurrent of disregard and contempt of personal responsibility for government and of established authority, it develops the spirit of anarchy and establishes the habit of neglecting one's political rights and duties.

If this desease of the municipalities and states is to be cured, it must be by teaching citizenship as practically as reading, writing and arithmetic; by having all children, from the youngest to the oldest, made into citizens instead of subjects, and guided by teachers in the defense of their rights and performance of the duties of faithful ideal citizenship. The school city is a thoroughly successful method of accomplishing this object.

A school is given a character and organized as a city, each room has a ward. All the children elect a city council, mayor and other officers. A police department, and others when wanted, are established. The children make and execute their laws and have their own judiciary. Improvements in government such as the initiative and referendum are taught practically.

The moral results are fine and civic knowledge is imparted rapidly. Children's respect for teachers and for authority in general is increased as are the comforts and pleasures of school life. The teacher's labors and expenditure of nervous force are decreased. The general introduction of the school city, under competent supervision will restore to our cities and states the spirit and the fact of a democratic republic.

Detroit, Mich., April 23.—At the opening session of the ninth annual meeting of the National Municipal league an exhaustive report of the year's work was read by Clinton Rogers Woodruff, of Philadelphia, secretary of the National league.

Mr. Woodruff, in reviewing the administrations of a number of cities, extolled Mayor Low's administration in New York and characterized the work of Police Commissioners Greene, of the metropolis as remarkable and brilliant. The recent elections at Chicago and Cleveland were pointed to as teaching the lesson that there must be an end to the tampering with the city by the legislature and that national parties must cease placing national issues to the front in local campaigns, the frequent election of Mayor Samuel Jones, of Toledo, teaching the same lesson. Philadelphia and Pittsburg were referred to by Mr. Woodruff as presenting a somewhat less favorable aspect, but he added that notwithstanding the doleful tales of mismanagement and corruption there were numerous signs of improvement. Philadelphia now having a mayor who received the endorsement of the municipal league and Pittsburg voters having defeated the dominant Republican machine in three successive campaigns. After touching upon the recent municipal scandals of Minneapolis, St. Louis and Kansas City Mr. Woodruff took up the question of municipal ownership, declaring that a movement in its favor had taken a deep hold on the urban population of the country.

Papers by H. Millard Palmer, of Grand Rapids, Mich., and C. C. Brown, of Indianapolis, Ind., were submitted and ordered printed in the records without being read.

Mr. Browns' paper was, in part, as follows:

The city is purely a modern development. The city is so modern that the city government is very largely an American development and American cities in most respects are the best governed and are fit the best condition of any cities in the world. This development has been very rapid and in spite of many serious defects in methods, showing that the public conscience on the whole can be depended upon and that the average of citizenship is comparatively high, much higher than the widely advertised deficiencies of many individual municipal officials would lead one to believe. Economy of operation is yearly becoming a greater necessity.

It is hardly a dozen years since the objectionable methods and the expense of the unscientific operation of municipal departments received recognition sufficient to lead to organized effort to improve the existing conditions. Within four or five years several different societies were started by persons who saw different conditions which needed improvement. It is evident that the fields of these societies overlap. The possible waste of effort in duplication of work and the desire to secure the benefit of the discussion of municipal problems from all sides have probably led to the present effort to make some combination of societies which will enable any one who so desires to attend the meetings of all and which will correlate these discussions, giving the conclusions greater unity through the diversity of treatment.

This leads to the suggestion of the "Federation of Civic Societies," which shall be an organization of organizations. It must be the loosest kind of a bond, simply an executive secretary to arrange details of local meeting places and possibly a president to represent the interests of the combination in such formal manner as may seem desirable.

One question for the future to settle is that of the classes of societies which will become members. Such organizations as the National Municipal league, the American League of Civic Improvements, the American Park and Outdoor association, the League of American Municipalities, the American Society of Municipal Electricians and the like are made up almost entirely of municipal officials and public-spirited citizens. They consider civic problems only.

Societies of the nature of the first four mentioned will undoubtedly benefit by a co-ordination of their work. They would also benefit by the addition of the other two societies and their like.

A discussion of the subject of a civic alliance led to the adoption of the following resolution, which was submitted by Mr. Burnham:

"Resolved, that the National Municipal league approved the suggestion of a civic alliance and that the executive committee be authorized to take such steps as many in its judgment be desirable and necessary to carry it into execution."

Secretary Woodruff explained that there was no desire to do away with political organizations, but that the purpose of an alliance would be to avoid duplication of effort and competition.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Much Damage Done By the Recent Heavy Storms.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Lead.—The recent heavy storm caused much damage by washing out railroads, causing hills to slide, and in several instances buildings to collapse. It was one of the heaviest rains of recent years in western South Dakota, and would undoubtedly have resulted in destructive floods but for the fact that snow fell instead of rain around the more elevated portions. In Spearfish canyon a landslide struck a Burlington train on the Spearfish branch and knocked one coach crosswise of the track. The track was completely buried, and the company was obliged to abandon the train. No one was injured. At Terry, Portland and Crown Hill snow fell to the depth of from one foot to two and a half feet. It was so wet that water could be squeezed from a lump of it like a saturated sponge. The weight of the snow crushed in the roofs of several small dwellings and outbuildings at Terry, but without loss of life or serious damage. In Deadwood an unoccupied dwelling, belonging to John West, was carried 100 feet down the embankment by the sliding of the earth. Numerous retaining walls were also damaged, some of them collapsing entirely.

Pierre—Governor Herreid today appointed M. P. Beebe of Ipswich as a delegate to the national good roads convention to be held at St. Louis April 27.

The state brand commission meets here on the 28th to clear up the business which may be before it for the beginning of the spring round-up work.

G. C. Barney and Frank Horton of the state land department have gone to the Black Hills where they will do plat work for the department.

A boy who was driving horses over the site of old Fort Pierre a few days ago picked up a flat stone and discovered that it was used as a cover for a small stone receptacle in which was found a large old fashioned "V" shaped padlock. It had evidently lain there for years, but was in a good state of preservation. It was no doubt used when the old fort was occupied, and for some reason hidden and left. It will probably find its way into the state historical society collection.

Armour—Much interest is developing in the contest for city officials. The election will be held May 4. Aside from councilmen there are several candidates in the field for each office. The council nominees are Frank G. Smith, Charles Giles, G. D. Watt, William Moore and T. C. Shaw. The ticket is non-partisan. The question of voting $10,000 bonds for waterworks will be submitted, and also the question of granting saloon license.

Judge E. G. Smith has adjourned the May term of circuit court for this county to November. There being no criminal business pending and very few civil cases the commissioners requested the judge to make this adjournment.

Hot Springs—Sylvester Judd, of Custer county, has again been examined and adjudged insane. He was one of the original owners of the Spokane mine, south of Keystone, which seemed so rich in silver that the whole country was agitated. His mind became unsettled, he believing that somebody was trying to rob him of his mine.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—A decidedly peculiar accident is reported from Rolette county. John Schoenberg, a 6-year-old boy, was driving some cattle into the barn. One of the cows stepped on a cartridge, discharging it. The bullet hit the boy in the calf of the leg. The parents neglected to give the child medical attention and when physicians were called gangrene had set in and it is thought the child will die.

Larimore—The new city council organized. Mayor H. F. Arnold, made the following appointments, which were confirmed: Chief of Police, R. E. Patterson; auditor, S. J. Cowley; assessor, J. S. Watson; city attorney, Thomas H. Fugh; health commissioner, Dr. W. H. Welsh.

Grand Forks—Martin Sager, a transient, was killed by the northbound passenger train at Hillsboro. It is supposed he was a resident of Stevens Point, Wis.

Minot—Judge Paida arrived on his way to Bottineau, where he will hold his first term of court. He will convene court in this city next Monday.

Milnor—While insane Ole Williams, an old resident, committed suicide by shooting himself.

SUGAR TRADE ALARMED.

New York, April 22.—The German sugar trade is already greatly alarmed at the prospects of a German-Canadian tariff war, says a London dispatch to the Tribune, and a Danzig sugar exporting firm writes to the Berlin papers that agriculture in eastern Prussia as well as the German sugar industry and trade will suffer heavily.

TO CHANGE A TERM

Slight Amendments to be Made in Gas Contract.

Possible Chance For Confusion in the Present Reading.

The ten-year municipal gas contract with the Zenith Furnace company has not been signed by Mayor Hugo.

It is desired, not only by the mayor, but also by the board of water and light commissioners, that the term "gas for lighting purposes" be changed to "gas for domestic purposes."

In the original agreement between the city and the Zenith company gas sold to the city was to be divided into two classes, the first-class to be used for lighting and cooking purposes and to be designated in the contract as "lighting" gas, and the second class to be used for all other purposes and to be known in the contract as "heating" gas.

It is held that these designations would cause endless explanation and misunderstanding between the consumer and water and light department, and it is therefore urged that the name "lighting" be changed in the contract to "domestic."

A great many citizens are putting instantaneous hot water heaters in their bath rooms, the water being heated by gas as it passes through a small system of radiation pipes. As the contract now stands this would not come under the head of lighting or cooking purposes, though it would come under the head of domestic use. Such things would create a great deal of trouble between the department and consumer, according to the city officers, and they desire to have the use of gas for domestic purposes specified as such before the contract is signed.

Indications are that there will not be the slightest trouble in bringing this about, and the contract may be signed within a day or so.

The Iron Bill Boards.

The first iron billboard in Duluth was finished yesterday, when the stand erected on the south side of Michigan street, just east of Fourth avenue west, was completed.

The "boards" are used generally in larger cities, and the principal benefit of them over the wooden boards is that the paper will not blow off them in a strong wind, and they are more durable.

The Duluth and Superior Billposting company will erect several more of the metal "boards" in the near future, and it is the intention of the management to eventually have all the stands in this city and Superior of the same material.

The improvement is especially adaptable to this city, where the winds are blowing a gale the greater part of the year, and especially when it is necessary to keep paper up for the theaters during the season of the playhouses.

DEATH FROM POISON

Medical Records Show That Uric Acid in the Blood is a Swift Agent of Death.

Paine's Celery Compound

The Popular Spring Medicine, is the Only Reliable Blood Purifier.

In the springtime deaths from poison—uric acid in the blood—are common. This malignant poison, which should be expelled by the kidneys, is diffused through the blood, and when allowed to remain in the system, proves fatal. Thousands of men and women around us are now suffering from kidney-poisoned blood. Loss of nerve force, failure of appetite, nausea, constipation, pains in the back and side and depression of spirits indicate that uric acid is doing its terrible work.

For such a condition in spring time there is but one sure, tried and never-failing remedy—it is Paine's Celery Compound, which promptly restores the kidneys to health and enables them to perform their functions. With the kidneys in proper condition there cannot remain the slightest trace of uric acid in the blood. Mr. A. U. Winters, of Cincinnati, Ohio, writes as follows about his wonderful cure:

"In March, 1902, I was dangerously ill, and my condition became so alarming that my family called in a specialist to confer with our family doctor. I was told that my kidneys were in very bad condition, and as a consequence my blood was charged with uric acid I was also suffering from rheumatism in back and arms. Getting no positive good from the doctors, a friend advised me to make use of Paine's Celery Compound. The use of the first bottle seemed to produce magical effects, and after I had used five bottles I was strong and well. Today my blood is pure and clean, appetite hearty, I sleep well, and am gaining in flesh and strength every day. Paine's Celery Compound saved my life, and I thank God for it. I always recommend it to sick people."

RANGE SCHOOLS ARE CROWDED

School Population Is Growing at a Heavy Rate.

According to the statements made by various gentlemen from Virginia and Eveleth, before the board of county commissioners, yesterday afternoon, in the matter of a division of district No. 22 and the formation of a new district, the range schools are very much overcrowded and the coming year will witness considerable activity in the way of constructing additional school buildings. J. H. Hearding claimed that there are eighty-five pupils in attendance at one of the Eveleth schools in a room twenty-five feet square, and A. B. Coates, of the school board, at Virginia, claimed that in his city there were as many pupils in attendance in a store room no larger, and which was badly ventilated. He said that the doors had to be kept locked to keep the drunks from coming in off the street and disturbing the pupils.

Figures were quoted from a report by Superintendent Gilpin, of the schools in district No. 22, showing that 565 pupils attend the Virginia schools and 525 attend the Eveleth school. Both Virginia and Eveleth are to have new school buildings or additions erected this coming year.

THE BREAD CONTEST.

Miss Nina Bates Captures the $10 Prize.

After much pinching, pulling, turning, tasting and smelling of many nearly perfect loaves of bread at the Metropolitan yesterday, the prize of $10 was given to Miss Nina Bates, of 23 Second avenue east. The occasion was the bread matinee, and 131 matchless loaves of bread were exhibited. And then it was not an old and faithful housewife who received the prize, but a girl! There were uncomfortable moments for some of the auditors while the critical eye of the baker looked over their cherished loaves. It is all right to make bread good, bad or indifferent and serve it unostentatiously, if bad or indifferent, and proudly, if good, but to make a light, perfectly cooked loaf and not have it admired without end, but instead to have it examined and poked and cut and, worst of all to a housekeeper, have it critically weighed with a speculative air, it's enough to make the person fairly writhe in misery. The judge was J. Schober, of the Bon-Ton bakery.

When Trouble Comes
Personal Bondsmen feel that it is an outrage upon justice for them to have to "make good". Therefore A Corporate Bond is the Thing.
Bond Companies are paid for the risk. It is their business to pay losses, and sentiment "cuts no figure" in case of default.

WILL MAKE SPEAKER PROVE HIS CHARGES

Illinois Legislators Insist That Alleged Bribery Shall Be Exposed.

There Will Be No Traction Legislation Until the Matter Is Aired.

Springfield, Ill., April 24.—Until a committee of five appointed by Speaker Miller to investigate the charges of bribery in the interest of the Mueller traction bill made by him yesterday has reported, and until George W. Hinman, of Chicago, has been summoned before the bar of the house to prove similar charges, published in the Inter-Ocean of Chicago, no action will be taken by the house upon any of the traction bills now pending. This action was determined upon by the anti-Miller forces this morning, and they carried it through by the passage of the Hinman resolution. The appointment of the special committee of five came from the Miller faction, was entirely agreeable to the other side, which is firm in its declaration that no proof of bribery will be forthcoming.

Springfield, Ill., April 24.—The opening of the session of the legislature today was a calm after the storm of yesterday, although there was a decided undercurrent of feeling against Speaker Miller which threatened to break out again if anything similar to the tactics of yesterday was attempted. The chief interest in the traction question centered around the appointment of the committee to investigate the charges of attempted bribery in behalf of the Mueller bill made yesterday by Speaker Miller. The speaker would not announce the members of the committee this morning, and few of his followers would give out the names if they knew them. The members opposed to Speaker Miller flatly declared that they did not believe there was anything in the charge made by the speaker, and announced their intention of pushing home the matter in such a way that Mr. Miller would be compelled to prove his assertion of attempted bribery or admit that he could not make it good. In accordance with an agreement reached this morning between the two factions, no effort was made to approve the journal of yesterday, and the proceedings of yesterday were left open.

At 10:20 Mr. Lindley asked the unanimous consent of the house for the consideration of the Lindley bill, and requested, further, that the consent should cover all the amendments. The consent was obtained, and Mr. Lindley entered upon an exhaustive discussion of traction legislation past and present.

Mr. Stewart, of Cook county, requested permission to ask a question of Mr. Lindley. Having received it, he said:

"I understand that the first amendment to the Lindley bill is under discussion."

"It is," said Mr. Lindley.

"Then why," demanded Mr. Stewart, "did you not make this speech yesterday?"

"I can only say," replied Mr. Lindley, "that it is the habit of some men to ask questions, which they conceive to be embarrassing, when they find themselves in danger of being overwhelmed by argument."

This remark called forth loud jeers from the Cook county representatives.

Before Mr. Lindley called up his bill a conference of those representatives friendly to the Mueller bill, was held and it was agreed that they would insist upon having all amendments stripped from the Lindley bill. The representatives of counties other than Cook, who are opposed to Speaker Miller, announced that they would not agree to further consideration of traction matters until the bribery charges made yesterday by Speaker Miller had been investigated. The Cook county members of the conference agreed with this position and it was decided to force the appointment of an investigation committee. It was agreed that a resolution should be adopted summoning George W. Hinman, of Chicago, before the bar of the house to answer inquiries concerning assertions, which he had cause dto be published, that money had been used to further the passage of the Mueller bill.

Spring field, Ill., April 24.—A number of conferences were held previous to the meeting of the house this morning. Just before the house convened Mr. Allen, who acted as speaker pro tem during the session held by the ninety-seven members that remained in their seats after Speaker Miller declared a recess yesterday morning, announced the following floor committee to act for the anti-organization forces:

Democrats—Wilson, M. T. McKinley and Burton. Republicans—Murray, Brundage and Tice.

The conference was had with the members of the Republican steering committee and it was agreed that no attempt should be made to approve the journal of yesterday at today's session. The plan decided on was to have the matter of the approval of the journal postponed until the next legislative day, thus leaving the proceedings of yesterday open. Mr. Rinaker was selected to make the motion to postpone.

The house was called to order at 9:15 by Speaker Miller. Chaplain Powers offered a fervent prayer, but no reference to the exciting scenes of the previous day, or the charge of attempt of bribery which Speaker Miller made at the session last evening.

The clerk proceeded with the reading of the journal up to the close of the regular afternoon session. A motion to pustpone further reading of the journal and its approval until the next legislative session was carried without opposition.

Mr. Lindley then started to call up the motion to reconsider the vote by which the amendments to house bill 864 (the Lindley municipal ownership bill) were adopted yesterday. "If there are no objections," said he, "the motion can recover—"

He did not not complete the sentence, some of the members near by interrupting him in an undertone. Before he resumed, the doorkeeper announced a message from the senate. The message announced the passage of a number of bills, and it was read by the assistant senate clerk, who was driven out yesterday afternoon by the organization men. When the reading of the message was concluded, Mr. Lindley withdrew his report, and Mr. Curtis, by unanimous consent, called up the motion to reconsider the Eastern normal bill, which was defeated on Wednesday, and had the further consideration postponed. He then, by consent, called up a number of appropriation bills on second reading.

RAILROADS ENJOINED

From Further Discriminating Against Small Shippers In West.

An Important Order Issued Under the Elkins Law.

Chicago, April 24.—Judge Grosscup today entered an order in the United States circuit court of appeals, enjoining six railroad companies from discriminating against small shippers in the Western territory. The decision is especially important as being the first under the new Elkins law.

The government, according to the decision, is entitled to the injunction against the offending railroads under the interstate commerce act as well as the Elkins law. The ruling applies to fourteen railroads which were covered by proceedings instituted in the federal court. Six of these companies were defendants in the local courts; the others are under the jurisdiction of the Kansas City federal court. Judge Grosscup announced that he and Judge Philipps were of one mind relative to all the points involved, and that the latter would render a like decision today.

The decision, which was given orally, holds that the government has the right to bring an action in equity to restrain railroad companies from discriminating either by furnishing lower rates or giving rebates to favored shippers. It further declares that while each injured citizen has a right to such relief in his own behalf, in cases like those under consideration the injured persons are so numerous and the injury to each is so infinitessimal that it is the duty of the government to act for them, under the power specifically conferred by the statutes. The Elkins law is held to be simply declaratory of the substantive rights which existed before this an injunction would lie under the interstate commerce act.

The railroad companies in the local court affected by the order are: Michigan Central, Pittsburg, For Wayne & Chicago, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis; Lake Shore & Michigan Southern, Illinois Central and Chicago & Northwestern.

Those in the jurisdiction of the Kansas City court are: Chicago & Alton, Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul; Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe; Chicago, Burlington & Quincy, Missouri Pacific, Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific, Wabash and Chicago Great Western.

Kansas City, April 24.—Judge John F. Phillips, of the United States circuit court, said today that he would not render his decision until Monday next.

OFFICIALLY DECLARED OFF.

New York, April 24.—Officials of the American Bridge company were notified today that the strike of the Bridge and Iron Structural Iron Workers against the company has been officially declared off.

PASSENGERS ROBBED NEAR LINCOLN, NEB.

Highwaymen Secure Over $1000 and Make Their Escape.

Occupants of Lincoln Depot Were the First Victims.

Train Has Been Robbed Twice Before at Same Place.

Lincoln, Neb., April 24.—Passengers on Burlington train No. 41 were held up and robbed of $1000 early this morning, as the train was leaving the Burlington Union station in Lincoln. This train has been robbed three times within 100 miles of Lincoln. The robbery last fall netted $50 to the men who did the work, and no trace of them has ever been found. The work this morning was accomplished mostly while the passengers from branch and feeder lines of the Burlington were in the depot awaiting the arrival of transcontinental trains. Many of the persons in the depot were asleep and did not know they had been robbed until aroused by the noise of the train pulling into the station. The presence of the robbers was first discovered by a woman. She screamed and the people in the room gathered around. Investigation proved a majority of them had been robbed. The confusion permitted the robbers to escape. Later they made their presence known on board an immigrant sleeper. Conductor and porters, with passengers were herded into one end of the car and the search instituted by one man while the other held the crowd back with guns. They left the train between Lincoln and Milford.

DISAPPEARANCE OF YACHT CAUSES GREAT SENSATION

Newly Married Couple Set Sail For Nice, Having Many Valuable Jewels and Much Money and Have Not Been Heard of Since.

New York, April 24.—A great sensation has been caused all along the Riviera by the misterious disappearance of the pleasure yacht Reine Victoria, says a Nice dispatch to the Herald.

The vesel had on board M. and Mme. D'Esmenard, the sister of the latter Mme. Marguerite Gournio De Regue and two sailors, Lafont and Bertin.

The D'Esmenards were married only a month ago and were on their wedding tour. They were residents at Cannes and made frequent excursions on the Reine Victoria.

On April 7 the party embarked on the yacht for Nice. Mme. D'Esmenard carried all her jewels and her husband had with him several thousand francs. Since their sailing nothing has been heard of them. They should have reached Nice the same day. As the weather was fine. No reason can be assigned for the disappearance of the vessel.

All kinds of extraordinary stories of murder and piracy are current, but there is nothing to justify them beyond the fact that M. and Mme. D'Escenard carried thirty or forty thousand francs in money and jewels.

A search is being carried out by the police and the maritime authorities all along the coast.

BEALE MARRIES GIRL WHOSE REPUTATION HE DEFENDED

He Shot a Newspaper Man In San Francisco on Account of Article Which He Claimed Referred to Miss Oge of That City.

New York, April 24.—Truxton Beale, formerly minister to Persia and Greece, has married Miss Marie Oge, of San Rafael, Cal., in this city. Only the mother of the bride, Mrs. W. T. Oge, Mrs. John R. MacLean, Mr. Beale's sister; Creighton Webb, his best friend, and Archibald Forbes were present at the ceremony, which took place in Mrs. Oge's apartments in a hotel.

After an informal wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Beale started for Washington on their wedding journey. They will sail shortly for Europe, where they will remain all summer, and will divide their time after their return between Washington and San Francisco. Truxton Beale and Thomas W. Williams, Jr., president of the California Jockey club, attacked Frederick Marriott, editor and proprietor of a San Francisco newspaper on Sept. 4, 1902, because of an article that, as they alleged, referred to Miss Oge. Mr. Beale and Mr. Williams declared that the article was untrue when they went to Mr. Marriot's home to force him to make a retraction. That he refused to do, and they shot him three times. Both were arrested, but as Mr. Marriot recovered they were acquitted.

ILLICIT STILL DISCOVERED BY LITTLE WILLIE BROWN'S BATH

Little Willie Fell Into the Brook and When He Went Home He Smelled So of Whisky That Suspicions Were Aroused.

Mt. Vernon, N. Y., April 24.—Willie Brown's tumble into the brook which passes through the Holter estate at Claremont terrace, was the cause of a raid by revenue and police officers on an illicit still, which had been operated in a barn for two months. Although the moonshiners escaped, the largest illicit still ever operated in Westchester county was unearthed.

Willie went fishing recently and fell into the brook. When Willie went home his mother said:

"Willie, there is an odor of whisky on your clothes." Willie said the water of the brook had the same odor.

Mr. Brown, suspecting the cause, reported to the police. Detectives were set to work and located the still. The moonshiners were away when the raid was made. The police found a large copper condenser, forty barrels of mash, several barrels of whisky and quantities of brown sugar and molasses.

FREEDOM IN TRAVEL

Special Permits No Longer Required In Central Asia.

St. Petersburg, April 24.—Special permits are not now required for travel in Central Asia, excepting certain portions of the military defense. Travelers may proceed direct from any part of Russia without giving notice of any kind, the passport regulations being just the same for Central Asia as for the rest of the empire.

The railroad commission of the finance ministry has selected a southerly route for the connection between the Siberian railroad and the St. Petersburg-Viatka line. It will start at Kurgan, east of Chelybinsk, and pass Shadrinsk, Yetakertinboorg and Krasno-Ouflmsk.

One main consideration was that the new bridge over the Kama river may be as far south as compatible with the shortness of the line.

A special commission of the finance ministry has just completed an examination o fthe new German tariff law from the viewpoint of Russian export interests. It gave special attention to the German veterinary requirements, and it is believed that preparations will be made to comply strictly with them on this side of the frontier.

GERMAN MANUFACTURERS TO BOYCOTT THE ST. LOUIS FAIR

Will Attempt In This Way to Retaliate Against the United States For Alleged Evils Which Are Largely Imaginary.

New York, April 24.—German manufacturers and exporters, cables the Berlin correspondent of the Herald, propose to boycott the St. Louis exposition. Out of eighteen large firms allied to the Essen chamber of commerce, all but one have resolved to refrain from exhibiting, and a report just received from Solingen announces that all the manufacturers and large industrial firms belonging to the chamber of commerce of this city have resolved unanimously not to exhibit. Only a few weeks ago German publishing houses agreed to boycot the St. Louis exposition because of defective copyright laws and the wholesale translation of German publications in the United States equivalent to literary piracy.

The firm of Krupp, of Essen, which was the largest German exhibitor at Chicago, obstinately refuses to exhibit at St. Louis.

Similar resolutions have been carried by numerous chambers of commerce, especially in the industrial regions of the Rhine, Westphalia and Silesia. In Saxony, it is learned, the feeling against exhibiting at St. Louis is acute.

INSURANCE COMPANY IN TROUBLE

Boston, April 24.—The officers of the North American Insurance company, of this city, have been notified by the insurance commissioner that its financial condition is not up to the requirements of the statutes. The impairment is estimated at about $60,000, or about 30 per cent, and is attributed to a decline in premiums resulting from a reinsurance of the company's business in a foreign company at the close of 1892; to depreciation in the value of real estate held by the company, and to a change in the method of calculating the reserve required by the insurance department.

The company is one of the oldest and most reputable in its line in the city. It is expected that the directors will recommend an assessment to make good the impairment.

CHRISTIAN AND HEBREW GIRLS HAVE A RACE RIOT AT NEWARK

Get Excited at a Labor Union Election, Smash Hats, Knock Men Down and End In a Grand Stampede In Which Several Were Hurt.

Newark, N. J., April 24.—In a race riot between Christian and Hebrew working girls who gathered for a labor union election in this city last night, blows were freely given and received and many were painfully injured before the police restored order.

The three hundred girls who went to the hall are members of the hat trimmers' union. William Oxley was elected president when the union was formed. The members are about evenly divided between Christians and Hebrews. Both factions agreed it would be better to have a woman for president and the election was called.

Ballots were cast and the counting was under way when the trouble started. Oxley had taken a prominent part in the election. Before the counting had progressed far some of the girls charged that sharp practices were going on. Angry words and accusations were exchanged.

Christopher Donnegan, a member of the Hat Makers' union, of which Oxley is also a member, entered the hall in search of Oxley, whom, he said, he had been sent to take to a meeting of the Hat Makers to stand trial on charges of breach of the union rules.

Oxley and Donnegan engaged in a wordy brawl which incited the already excited girls. A girl attacked Donnegan, smashing his hat and knocking him down. The Christian girls went to Donnegan's aid. Immediately the hall was in an uproar. The girls struck each other while screaming with excitement. A stampede followed during which several were knocked down and trampled on.

GEN. CHAFFEE TELLS BIBLE CLASS ABOUT THE MOROS

Explains to Them That Kindness Was of No Avail and It Became Necessary to Send Troops In and Pacify the Natives By Force.

New York, April 24.—Major General Adna R. Chaffee is an address on the "physical aspect of the Philippines," at the social meeting of John D. Rockfeller Jr.'s bible class in the Fifth avenue Baptist church last evening, gave some of the reasons for the campaign against the Moros. He said in part:

"In February of last year, after we had had soldiers killed, shot down in the outskirts of camp by the natives we were trying to treat with kindness, we saw that there was no other way than force. I went down to the Moro country in person to investigate and ultimately we went to the datto and demanded some of the murderers of our soldiers. It was on May 2 that General Baldwin took the forts of the datto, woh was insolent and refused to surrender the prisoners.

"We did not get on very good terms with these Moros. They are very suspicious, and want to be left alone. We did not want to disturb their religion or their customs, except where, in the latter respect, we could help them. You have recently heard of Captain Pershing, who is in the Moro country now. Well, to illustrate I may say that there was one sultan whom Captain Pershing had invited time and time again to come and talk with him and instead of coming, the sulton kept fortifying himself all the year, and finally waved his old red flag at us and dared us to come on. We came, and the sultan is'nt there any more."

BUTTE TELEGRAPH OFFICES CLOSED

Butte, Mont., April 24.—Acting upon instructions from Superintendent McMichael, at Minneapolis, Manager Wild closed the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company at midnight and announced that business through the company's office in this city would be entirely suspended until further notice. This order, Manager Wild stated, applies to all leased wires leading into Butte.

The trouble arises out of a strike of messenger boys and the decision of the company to close its offices here followed an unsuccessful attempt to deliver its messages yesterday. Men were employed at $5 per day but were pelted with eggs and driven back to the office. The telegraph officials complain that the police protection given their employes is wholly inadequate.

TYNER PAPERS WILL BE RETURNED

Washington, April 24.—Ross Perry, the attorney for Mrs. James N. Tyner, whose husband yesterday was summarily removed from his position as assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, under rather sensational circumstances, called upon Attorney General Knox today and talked over the case with him.

He made to the attorney general substantially the statement given out by him last night, namely: That the papers taken by Mrs. Tyner from the safe in her husband's office on Tuesday were altogether personal, but that they would be returned when called for. The attorney general declines to make any statement concerning the case, pending the receipt of the papers which have not yet been referred to the department by the postmaster general.

WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT, WHO WILL AGAIN WED.

WILLIAM KISSAM VANDERBILT, who is to marry Mrs. Lewis M. Rutherfurd, is about fifty-four years old. He is the typical Vanderbilt in face and figure. He is worth about $40,000,000. Mr. Vanderbilt was divorced from his wife, formerly Miss Alva Smith of Mobile, on March 5, 1895. He did not contest the suit, and his ex-wife married Oliver H. P. Belmont ten months later. She was given the custody of her three children and was left free to marry again. Mr. Vanderbilt was forbidden the right to remarry as long as his former wife lived, but because of five years of correct living the ban has just been removed by the New York courts.

BAILEY GETS FORTUNE IN ONE FEE

Chicago, April 24.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from New York says: United States Senator J. W. Bailey, of Texas, is receiving congratulations on having recently been paid a fee of $200,000. John H. Kirby, the "industrial king," of Texas, recently determined to refinance one of his large companies operating in the pine forests of Southeast Texas, and employed Mr. Bailey to assist in enlisting New York financiers in the enterprise, his compensation to be a fee and commissions amounting to $200,000. The negotiations were successful, and Mr. Kirby has informed Texas friends that Mr. Bailey received that amount.

TRAIN WRECKED

By Running Into a Wrecked Switch Engine.

Tucson, April 24.—News has just reached here of the wreck of a switch engine on the Sonora railroad near Carbo, Mex., Tuesday night, resulting in the death of the engineer and fireman and the subsequent ditching of an international passenger train.

No signals having been set, the northbound international train collided with the wrecked engine. The engine, baggage car and third passenger coach left the track. The baggageman was badly bruised and the Pullman car smashed.

HIBBING MAN MARRIED.

Wed at Houghton to Miss Agatta Hennes.

Houghton, Mich., April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Agatha Margaret Hennes, of Houghton, and Emil Frederick Remer, of Hibbing, Mich., were married last night at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hennes, by the Rev. A. J. Rezek, pastor of St. Ignatius church. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present. Mrs. Remer has always lived in Houghton and has been one of the most popular young society women. Mr. Remer, whose home is in Saginaw, Mich., lived in Houghton for four years while a student at the Michigan college of mines. He is now mining engineer of the Stevenson iron mine at Hibbing, where the newly married couple will reside in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Remer, of Saginaw, parents of the groom, were present.

Occupants of Lincoln Depot Were the First Victims.

Train Has Been Robbed Twice Before at Same Place.

Lincoln, Neb., April 24.—Passengers on Burlington train No. 41 were held up and robbed of $1000 early this morning, as the train was leaving the Burlington Union station in Lincoln. This train has been robbed three times within 100 miles of Lincoln. The robbery last fall netted $50 to the men who did the work, and no trace of them has ever been found. The work this morning was accomplished mostly while the passengers from branch and feeder lines of the Burlington were in the depot awaiting the arrival of transcontinental trains. Many of the persons in the depot were asleep and did not know they had been robbed until aroused by the noise of the train pulling into the station. The presence of the robbers was first discovered by a woman. She screamed and the people in the room gathered around. Investigation proved a majority of them had been robbed. The confusion permitted the robbers to escape. Later they made their presence known on board an immigrant sleeper. Conductor and porters, with passengers were herded into one end of the car and the search instituted by one man while the other held the crowd back with guns. They left the train between Lincoln and Milford.

DISAPPEARANCE OF YACHT CAUSES GREAT SENSATION

Newly Married Couple Set Sail For Nice, Having Many Valuable Jewels and Much Money and Have Not Been Heard of Since.

New York, April 24.—A great sensation has been caused all along the Riviera by the misterious disappearance of the pleasure yacht Reine Victoria, says a Nice dispatch to the Herald.

The vesel had on board M. and Mme. D'Esmenard, the sister of the latter Mme. Marguerite Gournio De Regue and two sailors, Lafont and Bertin.

The D'Esmenards were married only a month ago and were on their wedding tour. They were residents at Cannes and made frequent excursions on the Reine Victoria.

On April 7 the party embarked on the yacht for Nice. Mme. D'Esmenard carried all her jewels and her husband had with him several thousand francs. Since their sailing nothing has been heard of them. They should have reached Nice the same day. As the weather was fine. No reason can be assigned for the disappearance of the vessel.

All kinds of extraordinary stories of murder and piracy are current, but there is nothing to justify them beyond the fact that M. and Mme. D'Escenard carried thirty or forty thousand francs in money and jewels.

A search is being carried out by the police and the maritime authorities all along the coast.

BEALE MARRIES GIRL WHOSE REPUTATION HE DEFENDED

He Shot a Newspaper Man In San Francisco on Account of Article Which He Claimed Referred to Miss Oge of That City.

New York, April 24.—Truxton Beale, formerly minister to Persia and Greece, has married Miss Marie Oge, of San Rafael, Cal., in this city. Only the mother of the bride, Mrs. W. T. Oge, Mrs. John R. MacLean, Mr. Beale's sister; Creighton Webb, his best friend, and Archibald Forbes were present at the ceremony, which took place in Mrs. Oge's apartments in a hotel.

After an informal wedding breakfast, Mr. and Mrs. Beale started for Washington on their wedding journey. They will sail shortly for Europe, where they will remain all summer, and will divide their time after their return between Washington and San Francisco. Truxton Beale and Thomas W. Williams, Jr., president of the California Jockey club, attacked Frederick Marriott, editor and proprietor of a San Francisco newspaper on Sept. 4, 1902, because of an article that, as they alleged, referred to Miss Oge. Mr. Beale and Mr. Williams declared that the article was untrue when they went to Mr. Marriot's home to force him to make a retraction. That he refused to do, and they shot him three times. Both were arrested, but as Mr. Marriot recovered they were acquitted.

ILLICIT STILL DISCOVERED BY LITTLE WILLIE BROWN'S BATH

Little Willie Fell Into the Brook and When He Went Home He Smelled So of Whisky That Suspicions Were Aroused.

Mt. Vernon, N. Y., April 24.—Willie Brown's tumble into the brook which passes through the Holter estate at Claremont terrace, was the cause of a raid by revenue and police officers on an illicit still, which had been operated in a barn for two months. Although the moonshiners escaped, the largest illicit still ever operated in Westchester county was unearthed.

Willie went fishing recently and fell into the brook. When Willie went home his mother said:

"Willie, there is an odor of whisky on your clothes." Willie said the water of the brook had the same odor.

Mr. Brown, suspecting the cause, reported to the police. Detectives were set to work and located the still. The moonshiners were away when the raid was made. The police found a large copper condenser, forty barrels of mash, several barrels of whisky and quantities of brown sugar and molasses.

GERMAN MANUFACTURERS TO BOYCOTT THE ST. LOUIS FAIR

Will Attempt In This Way to Retaliate Against the United States For Alleged Evils Which Are Largely Imaginary.

New York, April 24.—German manufacturers and exporters, cables the Berlin correspondent of the Herald, propose to boycott the St. Louis exposition. Out of eighteen large firms allied to the Essen chamber of commerce, all but one have resolved to refrain from exhibiting, and a report just received from Solingen announces that all the manufacturers and large industrial firms belonging to the chamber of commerce of this city have resolved unanimously not to exhibit. Only a few weeks ago German publishing houses agreed to boycot the St. Louis exposition because of defective copyright laws and the wholesale translation of German publications in the United States equivalent to literary piracy.

The firm of Krupp, of Essen, which was the largest German exhibitor at Chicago, obstinately refuses to exhibit at St. Louis.

Similar resolutions have been carried by numerous chambers of commerce, especially in the industrial regions of the Rhine, Westphalia and Silesia. In Saxony, it is learned, the feeling against exhibiting at St. Louis is acute.

INSURANCE COMPANY IN TROUBLE

Boston, April 24.—The officers of the North American Insurance company, of this city, have been notified by the insurance commissioner that its financial condition is not up to the requirements of the statutes. The impairment is estimated at about $60,000, or about 30 per cent, and is attributed to a decline in premiums resulting from a reinsurance of the company's business in a foreign company at the close of 1892; to depreciation in the value of real estate held by the company, and to a change in the method of calculating the reserve required by the insurance department.

The company is one of the oldest and most reputable in its line in the city. It is expected that the directors will recommend an assessment to make good the impairment.

CHRISTIAN AND HEBREW GIRLS HAVE A RACE RIOT AT NEWARK

Get Excited at a Labor Union Election, Smash Hats, Knock Men Down and End In a Grand Stampede In Which Several Were Hurt.

Newark, N. J., April 24.—In a race riot between Christian and Hebrew working girls who gathered for a labor union election in this city last night, blows were freely given and received and many were painfully injured before the police restored order.

The three hundred girls who went to the hall are members of the hat trimmers' union. William Oxley was elected president when the union was formed. The members are about evenly divided between Christians and Hebrews. Both factions agreed it would be better to have a woman for president and the election was called.

Ballots were cast and the counting was under way when the trouble started. Oxley had taken a prominent part in the election. Before the counting had progressed far some of the girls charged that sharp practices were going on. Angry words and accusations were exchanged.

Christopher Donnegan, a member of the Hat Makers' union, of which Oxley is also a member, entered the hall in search of Oxley, whom, he said, he had been sent to take to a meeting of the Hat Makers to stand trial on charges of breach of the union rules.

Oxley and Donnegan engaged in a wordy brawl which incited the already excited girls. A girl attacked Donnegan, smashing his hat and knocking him down. The Christian girls went to Donnegan's aid. Immediately the hall was in an uproar. The girls struck each other while screaming with excitement. A stampede followed during which several were knocked down and trampled on.

FREEDOM IN TRAVEL

Special Permits No Longer Required In Central Asia.

St. Petersburg, April 24.—Special permits are not now required for travel in Central Asia, excepting certain portions of the military defense. Travelers may proceed direct from any part of Russia without giving notice of any kind, the passport regulations being just the same for Central Asia as for the rest of the empire.

The railroad commission of the finance ministry has selected a southerly route for the connection between the Siberian railroad and the St. Petersburg-Viatka line. It will start at Kurgan, east of Chelybinsk, and pass Shadrinsk, Yetakerthboorg and Krasno-Ouimsk.

One main consideration was that the new bridge over the Kama river may be as far south as compatible with the shortness of the line.

A special commission of the finance ministry has just completed an examination o fthe new German tariff law from the viewpoint of Russian export interests. It gave special attention to the German veterinary requirements, and it is believed that preparations will be made to comply strictly with them on this side of the frontier.

GEN. CHAFFEE TELLS BIBLE CLASS ABOUT THE MOROS

Explains to Them That Kindness Was of No Avail and It Became Necessary to Send Troops In and Pacify the Natives By Force.

New York, April 24.—Major General Adna R. Chaffee is an address on the "physical aspect of the Philippines," at the social meeting of John D. Rockfeller Jr.'s bible class in the Fifth avenue Baptist church last evening, gave some of the reasons for the campaign against the Moros. He said in part:

"In February of last year, after we had had soldiers killed, shot down in the outskirts of camp by the natives we were trying to treat with kindness, we saw that there was no other way than force. I went down to the Moro country in person to investigate and ultimately we went to the datto and demanded some of the murderers of our soldiers. It was on May 2 that General Baldwin took the forts of the datto, woh was insolent and refused to surrender the prisoners.

"We did not get on very good terms with these Moros. They are very suspicious, and want to be left alone. We did not want to disturb their religion or their customs, except where, in the latter respect, we could help them. You have recently heard of Captain Pershing, who is in the Moro country now. Well, to illustrate I may say that there was one sultan whom Captain Pershing had invited time and time again to come and talk with him and instead of coming, the sultan kept fortifying himself all the year, and finally waved his old red flag at us and dared us to come on. We came, and the sultan is'nt there any more."

TYNER PAPERS WILL BE RETURNED

Washington, April 24.—Ross Perry, the attorney for Mrs. James N. Tyner, whose husband yesterday was summarily removed from his position as assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, under rather sensational circumstances, called upon Attorney General Knox today and talked over the case with him.

He made to the attorney general substantially the statement given out by him last night, namely: That the papers taken by Mrs. Tyner from the safe in her husband's office on Tuesday were altogether personal, but that they would be returned when called for. The attorney general declines to make any statement concerning the case, pending the receipt of the papers which have not yet been referred to the department by the postmaster general.

WILLIAM K. VANDERBILT, WHO WILL AGAIN WED.

WILLIAM KISSAM VANDERBILT, who is to marry Mrs. Lewis M. Rutherfurd, is about fifty-four years old. He is the typical Vanderbilt in face and figure. He is worth about $40,000,000. Mr. Vanderbilt was divorced from his wife, formerly Miss Alva Smith of Mobile, on March 5, 1895. He did not contest the suit, and his ex-wife married Oliver H. P. Belmont ten months later. She was given the custody of her three children and was left free to marry again. Mr. Vanderbilt was forbidden the right to remarry as long as his former wife lived, but because of five years of correct living the ban has just been removed by the New York courts.

BUTTE TELEGRAPH OFFICES CLOSED

Butte, Mont., April 24.—Acting upon instructions from Superintendent McMichael, at Minneapolis, Manager Wild closed the local office of the Western Union Telegraph company at midnight and announced that business through the company's office in this city would be entirely suspended until further notice. This order, Manager Wild stated, applies to all leased wires leading into Butte.

The trouble arises out of a strike of messenger boys and the decision of the company to close its offices here followed an unsuccessful attempt to deliver its messages yesterday. Men were employed at $5 per day but were pelted with eggs and driven back to the office. The telegraph officials complain that the police protection given their employes is wholly inadequate.

BAILEY GETS FORTUNE IN ONE FEE

Chicago, April 24.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from New York says: United States Senator J. W. Bailey, of Texas, is receiving congratulations on having recently been paid a fee of $200,000. John H. Kirby, the "industrial king," of Texas, recently determined to refinance one of his large companies operating in the pine forests of Southeast Texas, and employed Mr. Bailey to assist in enlisting New York financiers in the enterprise, his compensation to be a fee and commissions amounting to $200,000. The negotiations were successful, and Mr. Kirby has informed Texas friends that Mr. Bailey received that amount.

TRAIN WRECKED

By Running Into a Wrecked Switch Engine.

Tucson, April 24.—News has just reached here of the wreck of a switch engine on the Sonora railroad near Carbo, Mex., Tuesday night, resulting in the death of the engineer and fireman and the subsequent ditching of an international passenger train.

No signals having been set, the northbound international train collided with the wrecked engine. The engine, baggage car and third passenger coach left the track. The baggageman was badly bruised and the Pullman car smashed.

HIBBING MAN MARRIED.

Wed at Houghton to Miss Agatta Hennes.

Houghton, Mich., April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Agathia Margaret Hennes, of Houghton, and Emil Frederick Remer, of Hibbing, Mich., were married last night at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hennes, by the Rev. A. J. Rezek, pastor of St. Ignatius church. Only the immediate relatives of the bride and groom were present. Mrs. Remer has always lived in Houghton and has been one of the most popular young society women. Mr. Remer, whose home is in Saginaw, Mich., lived in Houghton for four years while a student at the Michigan college of mines. He is now mining engineer of the Stevenson iron mine at Hibbing, where the newly married couple will reside in the future. Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Remer, of Saginaw, parents of the groom, were present.

Three Dollars Sounds Cheap

When you compare the price of the Blake hat (soft and stiff) with the amount you paid last summer for a Panama.

The old-fashioned double-your-money method of retailing still prevails in some stores, but not in the ones that sell GORDON hats.

GORDON hat agents give you a perfect hat for $3.00. They could ask $5.00 and get it, but they wouldn't sell so many hats.

St. Louis and Return $22.30.

The Northwestern line, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, will sell excursion tickets to St. Louis, Mo., April 26 to May 1, inclusive, at $22.30 for the round trip. Tickets limited to May 4 for return passage. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

TWO GAMES TO BE PLAYED

Indoor Baseball Schedule Not Completed—A Game Tonight.

Only two more games on the regular schedule of the interstate indoor baseball league remain for this season. The first of these will be played this evening when the Freimuth aggregation crosses bats with Company I, of Superior.

Next week the Great Easterns and Freimuths play. If any ties for the leadership of the second series occur they will be played off and the bunch which finally lands the championship of the second series will have to meet the Freimuth team which was successful in the first half of the series. If Freimuths win the second series, too, that will, of course, settle the championship for the year.

The team which bags the championship will be given a beautiful gold cup which was given by A. J. Reach to the league as a trophy. The season which is just ending has been a rather successful one and the organization will undoubtedly have a schedule again next winter.

Outdoor baseball will soon begin to interfere with the games of the indoor league as some of the players have already left the city to play the outdoor game in other cities.

SECRETARY APPROVES

Plans For Reservation Near Lake Winnebegoshish.

Washington, April 24.—The secretary of the interior yesterday approved the plans made by the forester of the agricultural department, under the Morris act, providing for the creation of a forest reservation of 200,000 acres in the Chippewa Indian reservation in Minnesota. The plans presented set aside a certain tract in the vicinity of Lake Winnebegoshish and open to settlement all the reservation outside the limits of that area. The timber on the forest reserve land is to be sold for the benefit of the Indians.

JOHN SHERMAN'S ESTATE

Will Be Kept Intact For Advantageous Sale.

Mansfield, Ohio, April 24.—Senator John Sherman's residuary legatees, Mrs. Mary McCallum, of Washington; the heirs of the late Henry S. Sherman, of Cleveland; P. T. Sherman, of New York; Charles M. Sherman, of Chicago; Hoyt Sherman, Jr., of Salt Lake City, and Charles H. Sherman, of San Francisco, have formed under the laws of New Jersey the John Sherman Estate company, the object being to hold intact all of the deceased states-man's real estate in and about Mansfield and Findlay until it can be disposed of most advantageously.

Each of the beneficiaries has stock in the company to the amount of his interest in the estate. Monday, in the county recorder's office, was filed a deed from A. C. Dustin, guardian of George B. Sherman, minor son of Henry S. Sherman, deceased, conveying to the John Sherman Estate company the one-eighteenth of Sherman's real estate in Richland and Hancock counties. The consideration was $4775.

Former Congressman Kerr, one of the executors of the Sherman estate, says the Mansfield real estate amounts to about $100,000. The senator at one time refused $125,000 for the Findlay real estate.

AT CASS LAKE.

Charles Hart Seriously Injured By a Cave-In.

Cass Lake, Minn., April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Hart, late of the Minneapolis fire department, of which he was an engineer for years, was the victim of a sad accident yesterday and is now in a precarious condition. His shoulders were dislocated, three ribs broken, his ankles strained, his head crushed, his arm broken and he was injured internally. Hart was working in a hole in the ground and was nine feet down when the ground caved in and he was covered with sand. The accident was witnessed by a large number of people and it took a long time before he could be dug out. It is expected that he will recover.

Miss Edith Scott, daughter of engineer Scott, died at the home of her parents here yesterday. She has been sick for about six months. She was the secretary of the M. E. church Sunday school and was greatly beloved. A service was held in the home this afternoon by Rev. J. T. Brabner Smith and the body was taken to Anoka for interment. She is greatly mourned.

Two men stole two coats from the Endion hotel on Saturday evening and were caught last evening. They belong to a number of men who have been stealing from various places. They brought several suits from Bemidji, but disposed of them before the marshal caught them.

FORE AND AFT WON DERBY

Nashville Race Proved a Most Interesting One.

Nashville, Tenn., April 24.—Eight thousand persons saw William Gerst's Fore and Aft, by George Kinney-Topsail, win the Cumberland derby, 1¼ miles, at Cumberland Park, from I. H. Stevens' Barca, in 1:55¾. John J. Greene's Postmaster Wright, after leading into the stretch, finished third. The race was worth $3000 to the winner, and was a beautiful contest.

The derby was the fourth event on the card and five candidates accepted the issue. The local money poured in on Fore and Aft, although Postmaster Wright, also owned in Nashville, had a strong following. Reservation, with Bullman up, enjoyed a light play and the others neglected. Sinner Simon went out to show the route with the favorite back in fourth position. Passing the stand Sinner Simon and Postmaster were heads apart with Reservation lapped on them and Fore and Aft two lengths back. Going on Landry sent Simon further out and with Reservation quickly following, the two drew away. Then in the back stretch Barca joined in the chase. Simon had shot his bolt and at the half Postmaster Wright had command, a half length before Reservation, which was neck and neck with Barca. The favorite was fourth, two lengths away, but rounding the turn Henry began to make his play. The colt was cut off several times and finally at the head of the stretch Henry took him to the outside and he assumed the lead, with Barca at his head and Postmaster Wright closing in. Through the stretch it was a stiff argument, but the favorite had a length the best of it at the wire with Barca two lengths before the greener colt. The start was excellent; the finish exciting.

WILL NOT PROSECUTE.

San Juan, P. R., April 24.—At the opening of the court yesterday United States District Attorney Pettingill moved to dismiss the smuggling cases and filed the following motion with each of the five cases: "Now comes the United States attorney, and, under the instructions of the United States attorney-general dated April 18, 1903, hereby enters nolle prosequi in the above entitled suit and moves that the indictments be dismissed." The judge said he would take the matter under advisement.

HAVE NEW HOME

The Local Weather Bureau to Move to Hilltop.

Will Have One of the Most Complete Observatories.

Before July 1 the erection of one of the most complete weather observatories in the country will be commenced at Duluth.

Local Forecast Official Richardson has been engaged during the past month in negotiating for land on the hilltop for the puruose and has now about closed with the owners for four lots immediately northeast of the incline station. Two of the lots face on the boulevard and the other two are immediately behind them. The land is not on the highest point of the mountain but it is only a little below the peak and is much more accessible to the general public than thee xtreme peak, which is some little distance to the east.

The present office in the federal building will be done away with entirely, as will the present hilltop station, and all the instruments in the two offices will be moved into the new building. The new lightning recorder which has been ordered will also be added to the present list of instruments and other new meteorological supplies will probably be purchased.

The building will be of brick and will be commodious and handsome.

"The plans have not yet been drawn," said Mr. Richardson, "but it will be sufficient to sa ythat the building will be a credit to the city. The ground around it will be levelled and sodded and the building will be something that the citizens can be proud of.

"There will be plenty of room on the grounds for experimental work and we will have an excellent opportunity for perfecting our system of storm warning signals. Our office in the Federal building, which is too small, will be moved into the new building and more room will thus be provided here for the other government offices.

"Much of the credit for securing the new building is due to Bishop McGolrick, who, in a very public-spirited manner, threw all his influence in the scale and was largely instrumental in securing the appropriation. He has always been deeply interested in civic improvement and this line appealed to him very strongly. The thanks of all the citizens are due him for his unselfish endeavors."

Mr. Richardson, the present head of the local weather bureau, has had a long experience in weather bureau work and with ample room for experimental work and every possible aid which natural location and the latest instruments can supply, it is more than likely that the Duluth office will become one of the foremost offices of the country.

ICE PRICES REMAIN SAME

The Companies Send Out Schedule For the Summer.

The local ice companies have sent out their schedule prices for ice the coming season. The prices will remain at the same figures as last year. In a few instances where special rates were given on account of competition, notice has been given that on account of the increased cost of harvesting the ice crop last winter the schedule prices will have to prevail with every customer this season. The schedule prices are based on the hundred pounds to small customers and on the ton to the large customers. The cost of ice from 100 to 300 pounds per week will be 40 cents per hundred; 300 to 1000 pounds, 30 cents; 1000 to 1500 pounds, 25 cents and a corresponding reduction for ice taken in still larger quantities.

BALL PARK CONTRACTS

Are Let and Work Will Begin Wednesday.

Contracts were let this morning for the construction of a grand stand in the new baseball park. The figures in the four bids presented aggregate an expenditure of $1600 for the work.

The management said this noon that the first work on the grounds would be done next Wednesday.

Bids will be received in a day or two for the building of a high fence, inclosing the grounds, which will be used for the games of the Northern Baseball league.

It was reported at the conference of the members of the management of the team this morning that the subscriptions were coming fast and that the citizens of Duluth who were interested in the game at all seemed to be taking hold of the idea with enthusiasm. The lists are still in circulation.

ANTHONY THOMAS DEAD.

New York, April 24.—Anthony J. Thomas, vice president of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville railroad, formerly with the banking firm of Drexel, Morgan & Co., and for many years prominent in railroad circles, died suddenly today in a physician's office. Mr. Thomas, who was 71 years of age, had been in failing health for sometime. The cause of death was cereberal hemorrhage.

IMPOSSIBLE TO GIVE IT

Ten-Minute Service On East Superior Street Is Impossible.

There will only be a 20-minute service of street cars on East Superior street for a few days, owing to the work of tearing up the street for paving operations, but next week the company intends to give a 12 and 8-minute service. It had been expected that it would be possible to put on a 10-minute service on Superior street this week, but this was found to be impossible. Next week, however, the temporary tracks will be laid, and then a better service will be possible.

In the meantime, however, East End people, by walking up the hill, will find a good service on the East Fourth street line. A straight 10-minute service has been in effect there for several days, and it will be continued, at least while the dislocation of the Superior street service continues.

One temporary inconvenience from which the company is suffering at present is a lack of men. While the number of cars has been increased, the force of conductors and motormen has not been enlarged accordingly, but it is expected that this will be overcome in a few days.

THE ODD FELLOWS.

Anniversary to Be Celebrated Next Sunday.

The eighty-fourth anniversary of the founding of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows will be celebrated Sunday, April 26, all over the country. There are four lodges in Duluth and three auxiliaries. The oldest lodge, Duluth No. 28, was organized in August, 1870, and the others have sprung up within twelve years. West Duluth will have services of its own in that end of town.

LOST THREE RELATIVES.

Charles E. Domm Sadly Stricken By Minneapolis Accident.

Charles E. Domm, a Minneapolis traveling man, received the news of his father's death while walking on Superior street yesterday afternoon.

His father, Jacob Domm, was killed in the Star Oil company catastrophe yesterday, and besides, his wife's brother-in-law and a father-in-law of the traveling man, were killed.

Charles Domm was standing near Fourth avenue west, when he was seen by A. H. Smith, of the Smith-Baker commission company, who knew him, and who had read the evening paper.

Mr. Smith accosted him and inquired if he had seen any account of the accident in the Star Oil offices. Mr. Domm was much concerned as three of his relatives were employed there, and he tore a Herald from a newsboy who was passing, and skimmed down the list of injured and dead.

The name of his father was the first that met his eye. He was much agitated, but read on and found that his father-in-law was also dead, leaving both him and his wife fatherless. His wife's brother-in-law was also among the dead.

Mr. Domm went to the St. Louis hotel, where he was stopping, and made arrangements to leave for Minneapolis at once. He was quite overcome with the shock of the news, as was also Mrs. Domm, who was here with him.

GOVERNMENT BIDS.

Several Proposals For Supplies Are Received.

Several bids for furnishing material in connection with the government harbor work in this district were opened by Capt. D. D. Gaillard this noon.

Noah Pelissier, of Marquette, was the lowest bidder for furnishing sand for the concrete superstructure in the new breakwater at Marquette. His bid was 49 cents per cubic yard. Pierce & Maher, of Marquette, bid 62½ cents for the same work. There was but one bid for the furnishing of broken stone for the concrete work, that of Hodgkins, of Marquette, for $2.50 per cubic yard. This bid was rejected as too high.

The Northwestern Fuel company has been awarded the contract to furnish coal to the government boats this season.

The Marshall-Wells company will furnish miscellaneous iron supplies and fastenings at the Marquette work and several sets of platform scales for the work here this summer.

GOING TO MARQUETTE.

Transfer of F. L. Dever of Government Engineer Office.

Assistant United States Engineer F. L. Dever, of the local office has been transferred to the government engineer's office at Marquette, Mich., and will assume his duties at that place April 28. Mr. Dever has been a resident of Duluth for the past sixteen years and since 1891 has held the position with the government that he now occupies. Mr. Dever previous to 1891 was connected with the government engineer's office but left the service for a few years.

General orders have been received at the local office directing all the officers on the general staff, including Capt. D. D. Gaillard, who has been engineer in charge of this district, to report at Washington. Maj. Lansing H. Beach, of Detroit, Mich., who is to have temporary charge of the local office until the arrival of Capt. Potter, will be here to assume his duties May 1.

WISKER ACQUITTED.

Not Guilty of Negligence In Tunnel Disaster.

New York, April 24.—The jury in the trial of John M. Wisker, the engineer of the Harlem railroad train at the time of the Park avenue tunnel disaster of Jan. 8, 1902, which caused the death of seventeen persons, today brought in a verdict of not guilty. Wisker was charged with criminal neglect.

LOST HIS ROLL.

Man From Montevideo, Minn., Robbed at Winnipeg.

St. Paul, April 24.—A Winnipeg, Man., special to the Dispatch, says: C. H. Anderson, of Montevideo, Minn., was relieved of $1,900 by pickpockets this morning, while boarding a train for the West. He was on the steps of the train when four men closed around him ostensibly trying to get on the train and in the jam his wealth disappeared. He has not been able to identify them.

DECISIONS REVERSED

Railroad Companies Secure Three From Supreme Court.

St. Paul, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state supreme court today gave a very black eye to three verdicts against railroad companies. Out of eight decisions filed, three are reversals of personal injury verdicts in lower courts.

The most notable case in which a reversal is ordered is that of Allan L. Truax, respondent against the Soo railroad. Truax was a mail agent and was injured in transferring a mail sack onto a mail car. He was given a verdict of $15,000 on the trial, but consented to a reduction to $10,000.

The court also overturns a verdict for $975 secured by C. W. Kemp, of Little Falls, vs. the Northern Pacific road. Kemp was driving to town with a load of hay and while crossing the railroad track was struck by a train and very much scattered about.

Guy Noble sued the Great Northern road for clothing claimed to have been given into the company's charge for safe keeping. In the municipal court of St. Paul he recovered $53.50, but the supreme court grants a new trial.

In the case of George Roe vs. Winston Bros. of Minneapolis, appellants, a verdict of $5600 is upheld.

The verdict of $2000, recovered by Ellen Ready from the Peavey Elevator company for the death of her husband is also upheld. He was killed in the Peavey elevator at Green Isle, Minn.

In the case of George Herman as administrator of the estate of Emil Herman, deceased, appellant, against Harry E. Clark, the order of Judge Otis, of the Ramsey district court, directing a verdict for the defendant, is affirmed.

Debts against homesteads non-collectible previous to the adoption of the amendment to article 1, section 12 of the constitution, Nov. 6, 1888, cannot now be enforced under the provisions of that amendment. So held the state supreme court in the case of W. W. Brown against B. C. Hughes, appellant, brought up from Le Sueur county. The decision is an important one.

TWO MORE BODIES

Recovered From Ruins of Minneapolis Oil Plant.

Minneapolis, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Two more bodies, charred beyond recognition, were taken out of the ruins of the Northwestern Star Oil company's plant this morning. This makes six bodies recovered. At 7:50 this morning the last of the four big tanks in the basement blew up, throwing debris 100 feet in the air. No one was injured. There are thousands of barrels of oil still in the basement, and this will burn for days.

LOST A FEW FINGERS.

Snelling Men Hurt By Premature Discharge.

St. Paul, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—By the premature explosion of a charge in the reveille gun at Fort Snelling this morning, Private Carver, of Company H, and Corporal Foley, Company C, were badly burned and lost parts of several fingers.

THEY SUSPECT FOUL PLAY

Friends of Allen J. Cook Discredit the Suicide Theory.

With pockets turned inside out the body of Allen J. Cook, a well-known horseman, was taken from the Sixth avenue slip yesterday afternoon.

Friends considered this a bad sign and there was a report that Mr. Cook met with foul play the night he disappeared so mysteriously last February, after attending the Metropolitan theater.

A post mortem examination was held this afternoon in the undertaking rooms of Flood & Horgan, on East First street, and it was found that the lungs were not as full of water as the lungs of a drowning person usually are.

This further heightened the theory of possible foul play or suicide, for the lungs of a person dead before coming in contact with water do not completely fill.

There were no marks of violence on the body, however, and it was quite evident that Mr. Cook had not been robbed, as out of $2 or $2.25 he was known to have in his pockets early in the evening of the night he disappeared he still had $1.25 left.

A further investigation was made at the instance of Coroner Boyer, and at a late hour, while the exact result of these investigations were not fully known, the indications were that the physicians would agree that death was due to drowning, despite the comparatively dry condition of the lungs.

Mr. Cook was a member of the Modern Woodmen of the West End. He was married and lived with his wife at 2114 West Second street.

WOULD EXAMINE RAILROADS.

Madison, Wis., April 24.—Governor La-Follette sent today a message to the assembly recommending that power be given to the bank examiner to examine into the books and records of the railroad companies and thus ascertain the gross earnings so that they may be taxed according to the law.

Took Tool For Himself.

New York Tribune: The provost of the University of Pennsylvania, Charles Custis Harrison, knew in his boyhood an eccentric old man named Herbert Ling.

Mr. Harrison said recently that a wag once told Ling that if he would get himself appointed to the office of taking up the collection on Sunday in the church he would be paid a quarter a Sunday, and would also have a turkey every Christmas.

Ling accordingly secured the place of collector, and waited patiently for Christmas to come around. It came, but the expected turkey did not come with it. Therefore the old man called upon the pastor.

He explained his grievance—how he was to have had the Sunday quarter and the Christmas turkey—but the pastor could only smile, and shake his head, and say:

"Herbert, I fear you have been hoaxed."

"Maybe I have, sir," returned the other, "in the matter of the turkey, but not in the matter of the quarter. I have been taking care of that myself."

NEW GAME LAW

Changes Made at Recent Session of Legislature.

Increase In License Fee For Deer Hunting to One Dollar.

The new game and fish code, one of the products of the recent session of the legislature, is in general considered to be the best the state has ever had, though the changes in it are not very marked. Besides having an adequate law, the game and fish commission is amply supplied with funds to carry it out, for besides its appropriation for that purpose, it gets all the fines and license fees that reach the state treasury.

The most notable changes are in the hunting license provisions. Under the old law licenses for hunting big game only were required, for which residents had to pay 25 cents and non-residents $25. Under the new law residents of the state have to pay $1 for hunting big game, and non-residents have to pay $10 for hunting small game and $25 for hunting big game.

A change that will be appreciated is that non-residents who kill deer in this state will be allowed to ship it home. With their licenses they are to cut four coupons, two of which can be used to ship deer, and one each for moose and caribou. The caribou coupon will hardly be used, however, for it has been a long time since a caribou has been killed in this state.

In the matter of residents there appears to be a discrepancy in the law. It provides that no person may kill more than two deer, one moose and one caribou, yet the license provisions is that residents shall get five coupons, entitling them to ship three deer, one moose and one caribou. This was done by an amendment, which was evidently intended to permit residents to kill three deer instead of two, but the member that made the amendment forgot to make it on the general provision limiting the number of deer to be killed.

A reward for the conviction of violators of the game law is provided, the informer to get $10 if the fines collected amount to more than that.

One section protects trout streams from contamination by making it a misdemeanor to put sawdust or other refuse in them, punishable by a fine of $50 or $100 or imprisonment for sixty to ninety days.

No one may take more than fifty fish or twenty-five birds in one day, and nobody may have in possession at one time more than fifty of the following birds: Turtle dove, prairie chicken, grouse, quail, partridge, pheasant, woodcock, or plover; nor more than 100 of the following birds: Snipe, duck, geese, brant or other aquatic fowl. Non-residents of the state cannot take away more than fifty pounds of fish. This used to be fifty fish, but it was found that in the case of large fish, such as muskallonge, fifty fish amounted to a good deal some times.

The provision against the sale of brook trout or bass is continued until Jan. 1, 1905. They cannot be shipped from one person to another. No fish—except minnows—may be taken less than six inches in length. Lake trout and whitefish under two pounds in weight and wall-eyed pike under one pound cannot be sold.

The changes in the seasons are slight. The moose season, which used to be shorter, is made the same as the deer season, but not more than one male moose can be killed. The bass season, which used to open June 1, is made to open May 29 now, so people can go fishing on Decoration day.

There has been considerable dispute in Duluth over the opening of the trout season, most people imagining it opened May 1. It has opened April 15 during the last two years, and the new law makes no change.

The open seasons as provided by the new law are as follows:

Turtle dove, snipe, prairie chicken, pinnated, white-breasted or sharp-tailed grouse, woodcock, upland and golden plover, Sept. 1 to Nov. 1.

Wild duck, geese, brant or other aquatic fowl, Sept. 1 to Dec. 1.

Deer and moose, Nov. 10 to Nov. 20.

Mink, muskrat, otter and beaver, Nov 1 to May 1.

Brook trout, April 15 to Sept. 1.

Bass, May 29 to March 1.

Pike, muskallonge, whitefish, crappie, perch, sunfish, sturgeon, lake trout, catfish, etc., May 1 to March 1.

W. C. T. U. WORKERS

Will Try to Break Boy of Bad Habits.

Omaha, Neb., April 24.—The Woman's Christian Temperance union has secured the consent of the country court to try to accomplish what the Childs' Savings institute and other charitable institutions could not—to teach little Frank Hill to be a good boy. Judge Vinsonhaler allowed the members of the union to take the 8-year-old lad from the county jail for a brief probation.

The boy's mother, Mrs. Alice Hill, at Eighteenth and Ohio streets, long ago gave up trying to make the lad behave. He used tobacco, drank, refused to go to school and avoided soap and water in any form. In spite of his bad habits he is a very handsome child, having long blonde hair and pretty blue eyes full of humor.

Some of the Woman's Christian Temperance union happened to be in the court room when the lad had a hearing. They learned that an effort was being made to send him to the reform school, so, to try to keep him away from such a place, some of the members agreed to take turns trying to teach Frank to forsake plug cut for the Sabbath school book.

SIMPLY BREATHE IT.

A Few Minutes Use of Hyomei Four Times a Day Cures Catarrh.

The pleasantest, most convenient and the only scientific method for the treatment and cure of catarrh is Hyomei. Simply put twenty drops of Hyomei in the inhaler that comes with every package and then breathe it for a few minutes four times a day.

It seems remarkable that so simple a way of treating catarrh will effect a cure, but the most important discoveries of science have always been the simplest. By breathing Hyomei in this way every particle of air that enters the air passages of the throat and head and goes into the lungs is charged with a healing balsam that kills the germs and bacilli of catarrh and soothes and allays all irritation.

The first day's use of Hyomei will show a decided improvement and in a short time there will be no further trouble from catarrh. Its action is rapid and lasting.

You take no risk in buying Hyomei A complete outfit costs $1.00, and if after using you can say that it has not helped you, S. F. Boyce will return your money. What other treatment for catarrh is sold under a guarantee like this? None other has sufficient merit.

WHOSE WELL IS IT?

Two Beaumont Wells Are Merged Underground.

Beaumont, April 24.—Here is one of the most peculiar circumstances which has yet been reported from the fruitful Spindle Top. In the Keith-Ward tract on the hill there are two wells which are about twenty feet distant from each other. Both wells have been finished for some time and both were being drilled deeper in order to get a better flow of oil. The other day, while the driller in one well was bailing the other driller was drilling with the cable rig. Some disturbance was noted in the bottom of the well being bailed, and upon bringing the bailer to the surface it was found that it had a hole punched in it by the drill in the other well, and subsequent developments proved that two holes had met in the oil sand and the drill from the one well had punched the hole in the other man's bailer. It is evident that in drilling the holes they inclined slightly toward each other. The situation now is intricate, and as neither of the well owners has been interviewed as to what he will do in the future it is impossible to say what will be the outcome of this incident. Evidently one or the other will have to give way or they will have to form a partnership and divide the oil. It might also be possible to plumb one or both the holes and determine which one of the holes transgresses the other man's property.

STRIKE AT CEMENT PLANT.

Ironton, Ohio, April 24.—Because the Ironton Portland Cement company refused to give to Gen Garvey his old position as oiler, the entire force of the plant and of the mines, numbering several hundred, went out, closing every department of industry.

MILITARY OFFICERS

Follow Civil Plan of Rewarding Good Behavior.

Chicago, April 24.—Military authorities have adopted the policy of the civil authorities to bring about the reformation of prisoners and insure more orderly conditions in the prison. The new policy was put into effect at Fort Snelling yesterday when eight prisoners who had long terms to serve were released for good conduct. The term of one of the men does not expire for three years, and the others had from six months to two years to serve.

"You have shown a disposition to behave while you were prisoners and caused us no trouble," said Adjt. Burnam to the prisoners when he released them. "For this you are entitled to your freedom, and we want to make it known to the other prisoners that it pays to obey the law even while in prison."

GIRL TOOK POISON

Because She Had Been Reproved In School.

Springfield, Ill., April 24.—Fearing that her father would be told that she had been admonished in school, Edna Rotramel, aged 14 years, hurried home yesterday afternoon and drank the contents of a vial of strychnine. A few moments later she was dead. The child was a daughter of Robert Rotramel, custodian of the state fair grounds.

The girl, it is said, became unruly in school, and the principal, Oliver Taylor, after chastising her, informed her he she saw the principal talking to her father. When the girl left the school she sa wthe principal talking to her father. Hurrying past them, she went into the house, and, securing a vial of strychnine which her father had used for killing sparrows, swallowed the contents.

COURT SEEKS

By Injunction to Break Up a Flirtation.

Battle Creek, Mich., April 24.—Circuit Judge Joel C. Hopkins granted an injunction yesterday at the request of Edgar Lafler, a well-known citizen, restraining Miles Corneli, his star boarder, from addressing, visiting or corresponding with Lafler's wife. Lafler makes the claim that Cornell used hypnotic influence in wooing his wife with whom Lafler has lived happily ten years. The injunction was issued to keep Cornell away and allow a reunion, but Mrs. Lafler has now engaged attorneys to start divorce proceedings, charging cruelty. Lafler refused to have Cornell arrested, and does not charge any offense beyond an exchange of affection. Cornell has already broken the injunction by accompanying the woman on the street and an interesting test case is expected.

MAN MISSING.

Police Asked to Search For Wheeler Brown.

Chicago, April 24.—D. Wheeler Brown, 38 years old, said to be a brother of the members of the New York banking firm of Brown Bros., is reported to have disappeared in this city and the police have been asked to search for him. Mr. Brown left a down-town cigar store late Tuesday evening, saying that he was going to his apartments in the north portion of the city. His movements since that time are a mystery, and foul play is feared.

SAW THE ELEPHANT.

New York, April 24.—The British ship Colorado, from Hull, which arrived here today, reports that on April 17 the body of the elephant Jingo was sighted. The vessel was at that time in latitude 45.25, longitude 36.45.

SNYDER FOUND GUILTY.

Denver, April 24.—Garfield Snyder has been fond guilty of an attempt to kill Policeman John Fritchie and will be sentenced Saturday. On the night of Feb. 24, the saloon of Hans Olsen was held up and robbed. Policeman Ritchie who interfered was shot. On the stand Fritchie identified Snyder as his assailant.

EXPLOSION IN MINE.

Halifax, N. S., April 24.—A dispatch from Sydney, C. B., says an explosion has occurred in the Dominion coal reserve mine and that four men are missing and are supposed to be dead.

SVERDRUP DECORATED.

Copenhagen, April 24.—King Christian has decorated Capt. Sverdrup, the Arctic explorer, with the golden medal of merit.

BIG TIMBER DEAL

Duluth Men and Others Working One In Indian Territory.

William Spencer Tells Something of County Down There.

William Spencer, a well-known business man of West Duluth, who has been spending some months in the Southwest, is interested with other Minnesota men in an immense timber land deal which they expect to have closed up within a short time. A company has been formed which expects to obtain control of about sixty sections of timber land. The men interested in the deal are said to have already made contracts for about 32,000 acres of pine land, through which there is scattered much white oak.

The land is located in the Indian territory and will be procured from Indians. Each Indian, man, woman or child, is entitled to 320 acres of average value land, or 320 acres of land valued at $3.25 per acre. The land in the locality where the Minnesota men expect to operate is worth from 25 cents per acre for mountain land up to $6.50. The value of the land is considered very low by Northerners. When there is any pine of commercial value on the lands alloted the Indians, they have to pay an additional charge.

The company in which Mr. Spencer is interested has started a large general store in the Red River country on the new railroad, the Arkansas & Choctaw, which is owned and operated by the 'Frisco system, and runs through the center of the pine belt which the Minnesota men will control. The timber is only five and a half miles west of the Arkansas line and about ten miles north of Red river. The railroad through the timber will give connection with all the main lines that run north and south leading into Kansas City and St. Louis.

To friends in the city Mr. Spencer has written the following description of the trip with the Indians to the land office:

"We started Tuesday morning, April 14, with about fifty Choctaw men and women, and headed for the land office at Atoka. We went west over the Atchison & Topeka road to Hugo, as the road was not in operation through to Durant. Here we took a southbound train to Paris, Texas, and from there went to Celleste, Texas, a junction point on the M., K. & T. road.

"You should have seen the look of disappointment on the faces of the Indians as we went through Paris, for that is a 'wet town,' and we had our plans laid so as to avoid stops at all 'wet towns.'

"That night we took the M., K. & T. train for Atoka, where we arrived the next morning and marched up to the land office. I had the Indians lined up, but it was next to impossible to hold them there, for they were cold, hungry and tired, and an Indian, you know, is never in a hurry.

"We succeeded in getting Nos. 7, 9, 14, 31 and 32, as they registered them and issued tickets. The allotments will be made according to the tickets the Indians hold.

"I had made arrangements for tents and cots and a camp outfit, and the tents were pitched after dinner. The women do the cooking over the camp fire and do fairly well, but, say, it's 'nothing like mother's.'

"Atoka is a hustling little town situated on a slight elevation and contains several new brick buildings. The Dawes commission occupies a building especially erected for it. There are several general stores that carry large stocks of goods. Close at hand, to the west, are the coal fields of Coalgate. There are 500,000 acres of coal and asphalt lands to be reserved from allotment and to be sold to the highest bidder, and it is claimed that when these coal and agricultural lands are sold each Indian will receive from $3000 to $4000. When they get their money there will be a hot time in these parts.

"I expect to stay here about a month, and possibly longer.

"We do not pay rent here, have no coal bills, and plenty of wood for the getting."

It means Catrarism.—Foul breath and disgusting discharges due to Catarrh make thousands of people objects of aversion. Hon. George James, of Scranton, Pa., says: "I have been a martyr to catarrh for twenty years, constant hawking and dropping in the throat and pain in the head, very offensive breath. I tried Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder. The first application gave instant relief. After using a few bottles I was cured. Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.

GRAIN BILL WAS KILLED

By the Wisconsin Senate By a Majority of One.

Madison, Wis., April 24.—After a debate of six hours the bill providing for a Wisconsin system of grain inspection at Superior was killed in the senate yesterday afternoon by a vote of 17 to 16.

The vote on the bill was as follows: For indefinite postponement—Beach, Eaton, Gavney, Green, Hagemeister, Johnston, Morse, Mosher, North, O'Neil, Randolph, Riordan, Roehr, Rogers, Wiley, Whitehead and Wolff; against postponement—Bird, Burns, Hatton, Hudnall, Krutzer, Martin, McDonough, McGillivray, Merton, Miller, Munson, Sarau, Stout, Reukema, Wipperman and Wylie.

Senator Hudnall then changed his vote in order to move for a reconsideration.

SEVEN MONTHS' PEACE.

Securities Incident Eliminated as Market Factor.

New York, April 24.—The activity and rise in Northern Securities are due to the fact that the Securities incident has been eliminated as a market factor by the decision of Judge Sanborn. It is figured out that no decision can be rendered by the United States supreme court before November and meanwhile the company occupies practically the same position which it did before the decree granting the injunction was handed down. The income of the Securities company is not curtailed in any way and its stockholders will receive their dividends regularly. Able jurists here assert that they cannot see yet why the decision of the lower court must necessarily be amrmed by the court of last resort. They do not criticize the decision in any way, but some go so far as to say they believe it will not be sustained by the supreme court. The street takes the view that the worst is known and that it will be at least seven months before anything further can happen and that developments may be better, while they cannot be worse. As far as the decision in the Securities cases being taken as a basis for attacks on other corporations the street has settled down to the belief that nothing of the kind will happen for the present at least. The decision of the lower court establishes no legal precedent until it has been affirmed by the supreme court. The condition of the crops is now the most important factor in the financial situation.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Brig. Gen. Frederick Funston has asked for a court of inquiry to determine whether he was guilty of cruelty toward the Filipinos when in command of a brigade in the archipelago. It is probable the request will not be granted by Secretary Root, who has the charges under investigation and does not think they warrant a court.

William Johnson of Champlin, Minn., hard pressed near Frazer, Ia., by a mob which he feared would take his life, hanged himself in a barn with a piece of wire.

Ed Corrigan, the St. Louis turfman, almost died to death Thursday as the result of a hemorrhage of blood from the nose. The attack came while he was looking after his horses and lasted six hours. Mr. Corrigan is confined to his room and may not be allowed out for several days.

Three men were killed and a fourth probably fatally injured by an explosion of giant powder in the Choloide-Bailey mine near Dedrick, Cal., Thursday. The victims were all miners.

Suit in equity was filed in the district supreme court by Nathaniel Wilson, John W. Phillips Frederick D. McKenney against the administrator of the Plus fund award in which they claim for professional services 5 per cent of the moneys paid and to be paid by Mexico under the decision of The Hague arbitration.

The Northbound Washington an Southwestern vestibuled limited on the Southern railway ran into the rear end of a freight train near Lynchburg, Va., killing Charles R. Kinney, of Thomasville, N. C., the engineer of the limited, demolishing the locomotives and two mail and freight cars.

CONTRACTS CALLED FOR

Counsel Says They Will Show Violation of Law.

New York, April 24.—The interstate commerce commission yesterday continued the investigation into the complaint against the anthracite coal-carrying railroads filed by William R. Hearst, just before the recent coal strike. When the hearing opened, counsel for Mr. Hearst called for the contract between the Temple Iron company, the Lehigh Valley, the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, and the Philadelphia & Reading roads. The contracts had been brought into the room by the secretary of the trust company which held them, and counsel for the railroads objected that the Temple Iron company is not named in the complaint.

Counsel for complainant called first for one dated April 12, 1899, between the Erie railroad and the Temple Iron company, by which the railroad company guarantees the stocks and bonds of the iron company.

Judge Campbell, of the Reading, objected, and at his suggestion counsel called individually for all the papers he wanted, that the one objection might cover them all.

Mr. Shearn explained that the contracts will show a combination or pool of the freight interest in violation of the law.

RECOUNTING THE BALLOTS.

Chicago, April 24.—The recount of the Lorimer-Durborow ballots, begun under police protection several weeks ago, was resumed by the election commissioners yesterday. As each ballot must be copied, the recount will consume much time. It is estimated that thirty-six days will be required to complete the operation.

A LIVELY RACE

Is Certain For the Pennant of the Northern League.

Fargo Team Shows What the Pace Is to Be.

The Fargo and Winnipeg teams of the Northern league are already in practice for the pennant race, which begins May 20.

Fargo recently defeated Davenport of the Three-Eye league by a score of 9 to 7, and the fans out there have already won the bunting, while sitting around the hotel lobby getting the latest gossip from training quarters.

The fact that Fargo can jump in and beat such a team as Davenport in its first game, while the Three-Eye players have had a month's steady practice, is certainly encouraging.

The Winnipeg team which won the Northern pennant last year, is practicing at Chippewa Falls, and reported to be putting up a fast article of ball. The Canadians have eight pitchers in the try-out, including Dellar, the crack twirler of the league last year, who won thirteen otu of eighteen games, pitched and struck out ninety-four men. Gehering, another star performer of last year, is with Winnipeg. The new pitchers are Bartos, Freeman, O'Connor, Beniss, O'Brien and Treadway.

The Winnipeg team is also well supplied with catchers, having Rogers, Lynch and Martin on the string.

In the pitching department Grand Forks looks good, Manager Karns having signed Sessions, Slette, McKenna, Harris and "Red" Hanley. Sessions is not so very valuable as a twirler, but he had a batting average last season of .324 while playing on the Cavalier and Grand Forks teams.

* * *

The signing of Mueller, the University of Wisconsin pitcher, by Manager Van Praagh is regrded as a good stroke in the right direction. He is capable of going in every other day, if necessary, and he has had the benefit of early spring training.

Two more good pitchers and a little strengthening of the infield will put Duluth in a position to open the eyes of fans around the circuit.

Wiggs, the former Duluth pitcher who established a world's pitching record while with Helena last season, shutting out opposing teams for forty-four straight innings, pitched his first game yesterday for Cincinnati, and strange (?) as it may seem there was all kinds of sundry little aerial doings in the second inning when Chicago, with a base on balls, a hit batsman and six singles, piled up five runs and won the game. Sutthoff then replaced Wiggs and allowed Chicago but four scattered hits during the remainder of the game.

Manager Kelley will probably retire Wiggs from active service on this exhibition, but if he would hold on to him for a month or two till the big sorrel fellow could strike his speed he might prove another Hahn for the Reds.

THE STAGE.

At the Metropolitan, last evening, the Ferris comedians gave the first production in this city of "A Soldier of the Empire," a very pleasing and entertaining five act drama based on events supposed to have happened in France during the hundred days marked by Napoleon's escape from St. Elba, his defeat at Waterloo and final exile to St. Helena. The story is a romantic one, dealing with the love of one of Napoleon's soldiers for a Royalist maid, and has many stirring martial passages. G. A. Forbes gave a splendid interpertation of Guilbert de Montville, in the title role. Miss Carrington did effective work as Louise de Vere, the soldier's sweetheart and wife. Thomas Clark made an excellent impression in the role of Eugene, Count de Vere. Miss O'Neil gave a realistic interpertation of Hortense, the revengeful French governess and W. H. White did his customary good work as the villian, a character termed Major Durant. The comedy turn to the production was given by Miss Batlo as Vivette, Miss Haines as Mathilde, her aunt; Albert Doris as Hector Moulinet, in love with Vivette, and William Lang, as M. Francis Moulinet, his uncle, who has had a tender passion for the aunt for over twenty years.

The clever aerial work by the Shaws and the sensational tight wire feats of Rosaire make the specialties one of the best that has been produced by the company.

Pretty girls, tuneful songs and funny comedians are promised in "The Telephone Girl" which will appear this evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening at the Lyceum. The production had a long run at the Casino in New York and has been as great a success through the company. The cast for this evening's production is claimed to be a competent one.

PROF. ALBERT H. CHESTER,
Eminent Mineralogist Whose Death Occurred at New Brunswick, N. J.

Judge J. D. Ensign yesterday received word of the sudden death of Professor Albert H. Chester, at New Brunswick, N. J.

Professor Chester, who held the chair of chemistry and mineralogy in Rutger's college at that place, was one of the most interesting figures in the early explorations of the Minnesota iron ranges, having led expeditions in 1875 and 1880 for the late George C. Stone. It was as the result of the 1880 expedition that the Vermillion iron range was developed.

Last spring Professor Chester wrote for the Duluth Historical society a very interesting paper on these two expeditions, which was published in The Herald June 21, 1902.

In 1875 George C. Stone suceeded in interesting Samuel A. Munson, of Utica, N. Y., and Charlemagne Tower, of Pottsville, Pa., who authorized him to send out the party headed by Professor Chester, which made an extended exploration of what was known as the Eastern Mesaba range. Indications of iron here, in 59-14, were abundant, but it was all float ore, and none was found in the place. Township 60-13 was also explored, with the same result. Incidentally a slight examination was made of what is now known as the Vermillion range, and the end of the expedition was the condemnation of the Eastern Mesaba and the decision, five years later, to send another expedition to look over the Vermilion.

This was the more important expedition of the two, of course, for it led to the construction of the Duluth & Iron Range railroad, the building of the village of Two Harbors, and all the great mining industries that have followed the opening of the immense hard iron ore deposits of this county.

In 1879 Professor Chester was asked by the same parties to lead another party, this time to Vermilion lake, where thorough explorations were made. A log house was built in section 22, 62-15, on the shore of the lake, and work was prosecuted from this place. The start from Duluth was made July 5, 1880, and Vermilion lake was reached July 15 after an uneventful trip. The work continued until Aug. 21, and the expedition returned to Duluth Aug. 23.

The first expedition, which resulted in the condemnation of the Eastern Mesaba and the decision to make a more thorough exploration of the Vermilion, cost $10,000, and the second, which was pregnant with such great and important results, cost $6000. Professor Chester's reports were most favorable on the Vermilion deposits, and they were of such a nature as to lead Messrs. Stone, Tower and Munson to immediately make preparations for the opening up of these iron mines.

Today, where Professor Chester and his party prosecuted their search through an almost unbroken wilderness, there are several thriving towns, a large population and enormous mining operations.

It is interesting to note that the late George R. Stuntz, who was prominent in all of the early developments of this section as a surveyor, was a member of both of Professor Chester's parties.

There are men in St. Louis county yet who remember Professor Chester, and even to those who do not remember him, his services to this section were of such a valuable nature that the news of his death will be heard with a regret that does not attach to the tidings of the demise of a stranger.

DISMISSED TYNER

Assistant Attorney General Is Summarily Fined By Payne.

His Wife Raided a Safe at Postoffice Department.

Washington, April 24.—As a result of the investigation of the postoffice affairs Postmaster General Payne announced the summary dismissal of James N. Tyner, assistant attorney general for the potsoffice department and charged that all the papers and records in the safe of Tyner's office had been abstracted by Mrs. Tyner, wife of the discharged officer, with the assistance of others. The postmaster general says that Mr. Tyner has refused the demand of the government for the return of the papers, and said circumstances in the case would be submitted by him to the department of justice tomorrow morning.

Other developments are expected to follow. The question of arrests is now under consideration and will be passed on immediately by Attorney General Knox. The letter of dismissal is as follows:

Washington, April 22, 1903.—Hon. James N. Thayer, assistant attorney general for the postoffice department: Sir: You are hereby removed from the office of assistant attorney general for the postoffice department. I deem it proper to give you the reasons for this summary action on the part of this department.

"Early in the month of March I communicated to you through a mutual friend a request for your resignation. After a painful interview with you and a more painful one with Mrs. Tyner, I consented to modify the demand for your resignation so that it might take effect on May 1, 1902, with the proviso, however, that you were given leave of absence from the time of the acceptance of the resignation to the date of its taking effect with the understanding that you were not in any way to undertake to discharge the duties of the office.

"Late yesterday afternoon Mrs. Tyner came to the office of the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, entering in the regular way and went through the main office to the private office, closing the door behind her.

"She then unlocked the door entering form the public hall into the private room and admitted her siser, Mrs. Barrett, whose son was formerly assistant in your office, and whose conduct is now under investigation by the department. She also admitted in the same manner G. G. Hammer, an expert in the employ of the Mosler Safe company, with whom she had made an arrangement to meet her at the department. At her direction Mr. Hammer opened the safe and she took therefrom all papers, records and articles of every kind and carried them away with her.

"The fourth assistant postmaster general was instructed to send two assistants to your house to demand delivery to them of any documents, papers or articles that had been abstracted from the safe. This demand was refused by Mrs. Tyner and she likewise refused to permit the inspectors to see you or to examine or see the papers in her presence. Mrs. Tyner further stated to the postoffice inspectors that she committed this act with your knowledge and by your direction. Further comment on my part is not necessary. The facts in the case will be submitted to the attorney general of the United States for such action in the premises as he may deem proper.

"Very respectfully,
H. C. PAYNE,
Postmaster General."

Mrs. Tyner came to the office of the assisatnt attorney general, on the fifth floor of the postoffice building at 3:45 o'clock Tuesday afternoon and remained there an hour. When she arrived Assistant Attorney General Christy, who had charge of the office for months past in the absence of General Tyner, who had been in poor health for a long period, was in the office.

The clerks were at their desks. Mrs. Tyner passed from the public office to the private office and closed the door behind her. Being alone in the office she stepped to the door leading to the public corridor and by previous arrangement admitted Mrs. Barrett, mother of Harrison J. Barrett, he former law clerk of the postoffice department, and G. G. Hammer, a safe expert.

An inspector discovered Mrs. Tyner in the office and reported her presence to his superior officer, Fourth Assistant Postmaster General Bristow. Postmaster General Payne was also notified. Mr. Payne gave notice to have Mrs. Tyner ejected from the office. The order came too late. She had left.

The safe was found to be empty. The affair occasioned much excitebent among the investigating officials, but the news was concealed carefully from the people. Two inspectors were dispatched to the Tyner residence to recover the papers.

Mrs. Tyner refused to give them up, saying she was acting under the direction of her husband. She told the inspectors, so they reported, that they had no right to the papers, as Mr. Tyner was still assistant attorney general, and moreover, insisted that the papers were all of a private character. She also declared the papers belonged entirely to them, and she declared emphatically that she did not propose to have her papers submitted to the scrutiny of the inspectors. Other pressure, it is understood, was brought to bear both on Mr. and Mrs. Tyner, but both refused to deliver the papers or even shaw them or indicate their nature.

It is suspected at the department that the papers have some connection with the recent conduct of the office. Some weeks ago a turf investment concern, whose affairs were aired in court, alleged that its operations and working methods mad been sanctioned by the assistant attorney general for the postoffice department. The charges involving the office of the assistant attorney general and a lawyer formerly connected with that office were ventilated very generally at the time, and the investigation was ordered by the postmaster general. This was really the inception of the inquiry into the matter on the part of the department. It resulted in a formal request for Mr. Tyner's resignation by Mr. Payne, dated March 16 last. Mr. Tyner had been in exceedingly bad health for some time and has visited the office at long intervals, leaving the office in charge of his assistant for months.

He is suffering from an exceedingly severe case of paralysis, and in consideration of this fact the request for his resignation was based on his ill health.

The correspondence which took place just prior to Mr. Payne's departure on his cruise in the West Indies follows:

Office of the Assistant General for the Postoffice Department,
Washington, D. C.

Henry C. Payne, Postmaster General:

My Dear Sir: Lest the effects of the light stroke of paralysis which recently disabled my leg partially and my left arm totally may prevent me from performing my duties satisfactorily for some time to come as assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, I deem it proper to tender my resignation of said office, to take effect May 1, 1903.

It is painful for me to thus sever my connection with the postal service, with which I have been closely connected as official and employe for a period of over forty years.

Very truly yours,
JAMES N. TYNER.

The postmaster's acknowledgment follows:

Washington, March, 1903.

James N. Tyner, Assistant Attorney General, Washington:

My Dear Sir—I have your letter of today tendering your resignation of the position of assistant attorney general of the postoffice department. I regret the serious affliction which has come to you and which is of such a serious character as to preclude your discharging the duties of your office. It must indeed be painful for you to sever your relations with the department with which you have been associated for so many years and of which you were at one time the official head. Your resignation is accepted in view of all the circumstances, but I deem it but just and proper that it should take effect May 1, 1903, and that you be given leave of absence until that date. I trust that this will give you rest and freedom from care and will be of material assistance in bringing improvement to your condition, which is at the present time of such a serious nature as to render impossible any labor on your part.

With kindest regards, I am,
Very sincerely yours,
H. C. PAYNE,
Post master General.

The announcement of yesterday's developments were made by Mr. Payne late yesterday afternoon to a large number of newspaper correspondents.

Mr. Tyner has been in the government service in important capacities for forty years. He is from Indiana. He served as assistant attorney general for the postoffice department and at one time was first assistant postmaster general. Subsequently he became postmaster general and later he again assumed office in the department. He is one of the best known men in official life in Washington.

He and Mr. Tyner and president and Mrs. Grant were intimate friends. During the universal postal congress here in 1897, he was one of the committee which represented the government.

An effort was made to obtain from Gen. Tyner or Mrs. Tyner, a statement, but with no success. Mrs. Tyner stating they had nothing to say on the subject. The suggestion was thrown out that there might be some thing to give out by Gen. Tyner's side some time in the future.

Mrs. Tyner apparently took the matter very coolly if at all concerned about the postmaster general's letter she did not show it in her manner to those who called at the house during the evening. While refusing to admit definitely that Gen. Tyner received Mr. Payne's letter it was evident from her answers to the queries on the subject that he had either received ot or been acquainted fully with its contents.

Gen. Tyner is in a very weak and almost helpless condition from his long sickness. He remains in his room most of the time and sees very few callers.

RIFLE MATCH IS TO BE HELD

Rules For National Contest Approved By Secretary Root.

Washington, April 24.—Secretary Root has approved the regulations to govern the national rifle match, which will be held Sept. 8 and 9. This match is open to teams of twelve men from the army, navy, marine corps, and one team from the national guard of each state and territory.

There is practically no change in the system of shooting this year. The first prize, which is to be awarded to the team making the highest average, is the national trophy authorized by congress and to be competed for annually. It is to cost $1000 and $500 in cash is added. The team making the second highest total will receive the Hilton trophy, presented by the late Henry Hilton, of New York; and third, a bronze "Soldier of Marathon;" the fourth, fifth and sixth cash prizes are, $150, $100 and $50. Medals will also be given to each member of each winning team.

Next year's contest will take place in the middle West, instead of at Sea Girt, and the conditions of the national match will include one skirmish run and two full scores at timed fire at rectangular targets; also rapid-fire, if practicable. Recommendations are also made that uniform ammunition be supplied to all rifle organizations; that the national guard and militia be invited to shoot in department competitions with the regular troops each year for the same prizes.

MOSQUITO PEST

To Be Fought By Surgeons of Navy.

Washington, April 24.—A campaign against the mosquito is being planned by Surgeon General Wyman, of the United States marine hospital service. He has issued a special circular to the various acting assistant surgeons at the different ports where fruit is received from Central and South America and the West Indies.

"Your attention is called," says Gen. Wyman, "to the spread of yellow fever through the agency of the mosquito known as the Stegomyia Fascoata, and special precaution should be taken to prevent their presence aboard vessels. Should yellow fever break out at your port, you are requested to cable immediately to the bureau."

Preparations are being made to drain all of the ponds near the city or to so cover the stagnant water with oil that a mosquito will not be able to get either in or out of it.

"KING OF GYPSIES" DEAD.

Left Property Valued at Over Forty Thousand.

Boston, April 24.—James Stanley, known as "King of the Gypsies," who died in a traveling wigwam near Haverhill, Monday, has been buried from a tent in West Roxbury. His will leaves $25,000 in cash and a house in West Roxbury assessed at $15,000 to his widow and his eight children.

The undertaker who had charge of the funeral says that Stanley had an iron casket weighing 800 pounds made for himself which was used in his burial.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, by all druggists.

TO DEVISE A PLAN

Meeting In Interest of Improvement of London Road.

July Settlement May Be Anticipated to Get Money.

Defying wind and rain an unusually large delegation of Lakeside and Lester Park citizens went to the city hall this morning to urge the necessity of improving London road on city officers.

The delegation was met by Mayor Hugo, City Engineer Patton, the members of the board of public works and Alderman Moore, of the First ward.

They asked to have London road resurfaced between Forty-sixth and Sixtieth avenues east and the cost to be paid out of the permanent improvement fund.

Mayor Hugo informed the Lakesiders that the fund could not possibly be used for that purpose at present, but he thought that if the Lakesiders could get the council to agree to it, $5000 might be raised later on by anticipating the July settlement.

It was finally agreed that an effort along this line would be made and the city engineer was asked to prepare an estimate of the cost of the proposed improvement.

It was also proposed that in case of failure to secure an appropriation this year the resurfacing of London road should be given consideration in fixing the estimates for the annual tax levy for next year.

Alderman Moore was asked to use his influence to secure a safety gate or a flagman to be stationed at the Twenty-seventh avenue east and London road crossing of the Duluth & Iron Range road, the Lakesiders considering the grade crossing at this point very dangerous.

WILL WELCOME MR. DEVLIN

Friends of Ireland Delighted at Prospect of Hearing Him.

The announcement of the coming of Hon. Joseph Devlin, M. P., to this city, on next Monday evening, has been well received by friends of Ireland, who are most anxious to hear this young man, who has made such a brilliant mark already on the floor of the British commons. He has appeared in all the large cities throughout the East and has been accorded a most hearty welcome.

It was with some difficulty that the Duluth branch of the United Irish league was able to induce Mr. Devlin to come so far West, as his time is limited and he has to return soon to London to take up his parliamentary duties. The Irish National party has a great deal of work to do now with the Irish land bill before it for amendments. There will undoubtedly be many offered to the new measure and the English government is prepared to receive them.

Mr. Devlin will address the citizens of Duluth at the Armory Monday evening and will undoubtedly be greeted by a large audience.

Educate the Boys

Give Them a Printing Press.

The moral, mental and physical development of the boys should be the study of all who love their country, and desire to perpetuate its institutions. In no way can this be more effectually aided than by the use of one of our presses. Commencing Saturday morning, April 18, we will give away with every purchase in our boys' dept. of $5 or over a complete printing outfit, consisting of printing press, type, pads and a complete outfit. With every $2.50 purchase or over we will give free a ball and bat or a catcher's mitt. Our boys' department is the most complete at the head of the lakes. We fit the boys' from head to foot, and every garment is new and up-to-date and of the very best makes. No accumulations of years to select from at K., A. & D.

The Famous "VARSITY" SUIT!

The 'Varsity style, as first produced and as continued this season by Hart, Schaffner & Marx, is admitted to be the most stylish, snappy sack suit in the market.

It is particularly a young man's style—has the jaunty, "snappy" effect prized so highly by youthful men. We are making a specialty of the right clothes for the Boys who wear Men's sizes. Glad to show you what we mean any day.

The work of the tailors in shaping these coats is as carefully done as that of custom tailors. You'll find that Hart, Schaffner & Marx's and Ely Meyers' coats and suits fit perfectly around the collar and shoulders. You'll be pleased with yourself in these clothes and sold only by

PAYMENTS LARGE

Seventy-Seven Per Cent of Superior Street Assessment Paid.

This Notwithstanding the Contest That Has Begun.

Yesterday was the last day for paying the East Superior street asphalt paving assessment without the 10 per cent delinquent penalty.

Notwithstanding there is a legal contest on ragarding this assessment, property owners fairly flooded the city treasurer's office with checks during the closing hours of the day.

Of the total of $51,953.18 on the assessment roll for paving between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues, the amount paid in aggregates $39,521.27, or nearly 77 per cent of the entire amount.

There is yet $12,431.91 to pay, but the city treasurer has assurances from two agents that non-resident property owners they represent intended getting their checks here before the close of office hours yesterday, and would certainly pay up before the end of the week.

But the fact that $39,521.27 is paid in is of the utmost importance, for the reason that it is the first real test of the workings of the charter amendment providing that assessments can be collected for improvements as soon as the contracts are let, and abolishing the delay in collecting until the contracts are finished, under the old system.

The success of the amendment means that the money of taxpayers invested as capital in the permanent improvement revolving fund can be turned over three or four times in a season, the same as capital invested in a private enterprise.

The prompt payment of the East Superior street property owners also means that other necessary street and sewer improvements will not be unnecessarily delayed for lack of money in the permanent improvement revolving fund.

While this money was paid the city for the asphalt paving between Eighth and Sixteenth avenues, on Superior street, the paving will not be done for a month or two, and it is the first time in the history of the city that the cost of a large street paving contract has been paid in advance.

AT WEST DULUTH

A sequel to the goat story recently enacted in the mpuicipal court has come up before Judge Stone.

N. P. Grahn has sued James McArthur for $35, claiming the goats of the defendant have damaged his property to that amount. The two parties in the case are neighbors, residing on the bay front, near Seventy-second avenue, and their troubles over the Angora goats have been aired so many times in the municipal court that it has become a standing joke around police headquarters.

An interested spectator of the quarrel, who has watched the case since the beginning, gave a history of the trouble today.

"Two years ago," he said, "some cows belonging to Mrs. Grahn wandered into the garden of McArthur. He called upon her to have them driven out. She refused and he set his dog on them. She vowed vengeance, and since that time, at stated intervals, has had him arrested for allowing his Angora goats to wander. On the last occasion that he was fined the goat had not escaped from the yard before he noticed it and gave chase. He captured it before it had taken two bites of a cabbage, but he was arrested. She finds that a fine does not pay for the damage to the cabbages and trees, and has entered suit to obtain reimbursement."

E. W. GREEN TO SPEAK.

"Civic Improvement" will be the subject of an address by E. W. Green, superintendent of the Duluth Crushed Stone works, before the West Duluth Commercial club this evening. Mr. Green will discuss the paving question, telling of the uses of crushed stone for paving purposes. He has had a long experience in street paving matters, and his talk will assist the property owners in deciding upon what kind of pavement they desire.

It is expected that the decision of the supreme court in the case of the Northern Pacific railway will be handed down today, in which case the railway committee will make its report. Other matters of imporance will come before the meeting.

IRVING SCHOOL ALUMNI.

The alumni of the Irving school met in business session last evening and decided to hold the annual banquet of the society June 8.

The following committees were appointed: Arrangement committee—Gertrude Mallory, Georgina Ross, L. Mallory, S. Forbes and E. G. Kreidler. Program committee—Harry Smith, chairman; M. Kennedy, A. Gilbert, G. Keeler, W. Coughlin. Refreshment committee—Nellie Jennings, eJannette Stewart, A. Erickson, S. Forbes, E. G. Kreidler.

ACCUSED OF SLANDER.

Clifford Girard, a 14-year-old West Duluth lad, was arraigned before Judge Stone yesterday on the charge of slandering Maud Forget, a 16-year-old girl. The lad did not deny using vile names in addressing the girl, but claimed that she first addressed some uncomplimentary remarks to him. The court fined the defendant $1 and costs. He was given until today to raise the money, and appeared this morning to pay his fine.

GRADING THE GROUNDS.

A large crew of men is at work leveling ground in the vicinity of the match factory. The company desires more ground on which to pile its lumber, and earth is being taken from the knoll in front of the factory and being dumped on the marshy ground to the south. About twelve men and several teams are engaged at the work and a large tract of new ground will thus be made available.

Mr. Cook was a married man and during the summer months worked as a loader on lumber boats in the West End and West Duluth mills.

POULTNEY BIGELOW

Is Hero In Rescue of Two Women.

Utica, N. Y., April 24.—Reports from Mountain View, in the Adirondacks, tell of a mishap to a fishing party composed of Pouliney Bigelow, Mrs. Gertrude Franklin Atherton and a woman companion. Mr. Bigelow went to Mountain View two months ago to work on his history of Germany. Mrs. Atherton, who is the author of "The Conqueror" and several other books, has been at Mountain View throughout the winter. Mr. Bigelow invited Mrs. Atherton and her companion to accompany him on a fishing trip. The boat capsized, whether in the excitement accompanying the capture of a fish or because of a sudden gust of wind is not told, but all were thrown into the water. Through the presence of mind of Mr. Bigelow all were rescued, but owing to the chill of the water, Mr. Bigelow, Mrs. Atherton and her companion are suffering from the effects of their swims.

STEAMSHIP AGENT

Accused of Alienating a Wife's Affections.

Chicago, April 24.—Charging alienation of his wife's affections, Dr. Conrad Czarra, 4600 Calumet avenue, has filed suit for $20,000 damages against K. W. Kempf, general Western passenger agent of the Hamburg steamship line.

The plaintiff declares that letters written to the defendant while traveling in Europe last summer caused Mrs. Babette Czarra o leave him and file a suit for divorce. Until a month ago both parties to the suit were close friends. Mrs. Czarra is said to be possessed of considerable means and for a number of years, it is said, Kempf has transacted her business for her. Czarra avers that it was through Kempf that he became acquainted with his wife.

MAN HANGED TWICE DAILY

Treatment to Correct Curve of His Spinal Column.

Washington, April 24.—Twice a day a man in this city is hanged. He undergoes this treatment to correct a sharp curve in the spinal column receiver nearly a year ago. Twice a day he is hanged by the neck from an apparatus constructed especially for such cases.

To those unacquainted with the secrets of surgery this statement may appear absurd. Naturally the layman would think that strangulation would follow such a strain. But, fortunately, there is no evil result like that. Indeed, the patient has become accustomed to being hanged, having undergone the treatment for over four months. He is suspended from the contrivance for about forty-five minutes each time.

The patient is George Knupfer, a private of the Ninth precinct. He sustained the injury last spring while endeavoring to stop a team of runaway horses near the Benning racetrack. Before the animals were brought to a halt Knupfer was thrown violently to the ground, striking his back on the hard road.

Shortly after the accident he became partly paralyzed in both arms. It was evident that the fall had injured the spine. An examination of the wound was made, and disclosed that the backbone had been hurt near the first dorsal and seventh cervical, causing pressure paralysis or compression myelitis. This resulted in a "kink" appearing in the vertebral column.

The "gallows" treatment was begun after Knupfer had been taken to Sibley hospital about the first of December. The apparatus consisted of a long plank, highly polished, with a padded notch at one end for the patients head to which was attached leather straps to fasten on the chin and the base of the skull. On either side of the board were loops for the support of the arms, to be used in an emergency.

The contrivance is so constructed that it lies parallel with the floor in its normal position. Thus the patient is permitted to lie down on it, his head is strapped tightly to the gearing, and the plank is slowly raised. This action causes the body to slide down the glassy surface until its weight rests upon the neck. The board is slanted according to the desired pressure. In this case, it has been tilted to an angle of 45 degrees, leaving the head to support two-thirds of the body's weight.

When the treatment was begun Knupfer was unable to remain upon the instrument more than 15 minutes. He gradually became accustomed to the strain, however, and day by day the time was increased until at present he can hang for three-quarters of an hour without much pain.

The diseased backbone has been greatly benefited by the strange process. The "kink" has been reduced 50 per cent, and Knupfer has recovered to a great extent to use of his arms. In fact, his condition improved so rapidly that he was removed from the hospital to his home about two weeks ago. He is still undergoing the treatment, but it is doubtful if he will ever become entirely well.

The apparatus is a German invention, and is much used in that country. Its introduction into Washington has aroused a lively interest among the medical fraternity. So far as is known the instrument is the only one of its kind in this section of the United States, and possibly the entire country.

PETRIFIED CHICKEN

Has Been Found on Farm In Tennessee.

Gleason, Tenn., April 24.—Esquire Douglas Burleigh, of the Eleventh district of this county, has unearthed on his farm near town a petrified chicken, about "frying size." It is perfect in every respect, with the exception of having no legs or feet, and very much resembles a carved specimen. There is no question that it is a genuine specimen of petrification.

Esquire Burleigh has been offered a fancy price for it, but refuses to sell until he has the assurance beyond a doubt that it is what it seems to be.

Mrs. Birchard investigated and found his father had been dead some time.

Yesterday Goldinger and Miss Moore married and the same day a letter arrived from the administrator of Goldinger's father's estate saying $6000 was waiting for him.

THE PRESENT SYSTEM ALL RIGHT.

Some persons have started a little agitation in favor of renaming the avenues in Duluth. They apparently entertain the idea that the present names are not poetical, and suggest that Third avenue west be called Shenandoah avenue and Fifth avenue west be called Washington avenue, and so on. They would have historic American names, Indian names and the names of American cities adopted instead of the present numbers, and have approached some of the city officials with a view of ascertaining their views on the subject.

It is said that those who were sounded on the matter rather discouraged the movement. There should be no consideration whatever given to this senseless idea. The present system, under which the streets and avenues are numbered, should not be disturbed in any way. It is the best system that has been devised for the naming of streets and avenues, and it is being adopted in many cities, wherever the change can be easily made, in preference to the old method of naming the streets after noted men, historic places and cities. No more convenient and simple plan of naming the avenues has ever been suggested than the one now in use, and certainly no backward step should be taken to the old and complicated system. It is now possible in five minutes to explain to a stranger in the city the names of all streets and avenues so that he can find his way to any point without further assistance. The advantage of this cannot be over-estimated. There is little confusion now as to the streets and avenues, while under the system suggested there would be endless confusion. It is not essential to the success of the "city beautiful movement" that a complicated street-naming system be adopted in place of a simple and convenient system that has stood the test for years.

WHY AMERICA LEADS.

The British consul at Chicago in his report to his government, which was made public yesterday, pays a glowing tribute to the great and increasing prosperity of the United States. He further urges the importance of a careful study by Britons of the methods of the people of the United States that improvement may be made in the mother country. It is universally admitted that it is the lack of executive ability that causes the British manufacturer to fall behind the American. This is borne out by a recent article by John F. Fraser, an Englishman, in the Nineteenth Century. He says that as a result of his investigations in the United States, two things came out most prominently; first, that the British artisan is superior to the American workman; and, secondly, that the American manufacturer, the employer, the director of labor, is infinitely superior to his British prototype. The chief reason America is bounding ahead as an industrial nation is not excellence of workmanship, but ability in administration, in control, in being adaptable to the necessities of the day.

While the American artisan will without doubt take exceptions to any such statement, still the opinion is valuable from the viewpoint of a radical Britisher. Mr. Fraser insists that the British workman is the most intelligent of his class in the world. Give him time, and he will turn out a better article than anybody else. Send him to America, and, when he has got rid of his sluggishness, the American worker becomes but a boastful second-rater alongside him. But the American is alert, and does not feel that new machinery is going to displace him. It is exceptional indeed for a British employer to get an improvement on machinery suggested by a workman. In the first place, the British workman has not that zest for his work which the American has; in the second place, it is none of his business to invent. Nothing like this exists in America. The workman knows if he strikes an improvement it is going to be a good thing for him personally. If he thinks of some alteration whereby he can turn out twice as much, he knows the employer won't expect him to turn out twice as much for the same pay. They are partners, and the workman will get at least half the advantage. So there is an incentive to all the mechanics of America to adapt. They make it their business to improve.

According to Mr. Fraser the American manufacturer has vim and something of the gambler in him. He is thirsty for new ideas; he is daring. Where the Englishman would hesitate and think and calculate, the American will plunge, neck or nothing, at a venture. He can see ahead further than the Englishman. In British works new machinery is fitted up when the old has begun to wear out or when nearly everybody else has it and it is necessary to have it also if trade is to be held. Those are not considerations which weigh with the American manufacturer. His constant criticism against his cousin on that side of the Atlantic is that the Britisher doesn't know the value of a scrap heap. An American will spend, say, £30,000 in putting in the latest machinery. Six months later some fresh appliance which will do more work and quicker, is invented. The machinery fitted six months back may hardly have got into proper working order. But he rips the lot out, he "scrap-heaps" it, and has the very latest machinery. He sees ahead.

Americans should profit by these English criticisms. They show how our success is viewed by outsiders. Wherever we are weak we should improve.

THE PROSPEROUS WEST.

George J. Gould on his return from a recent visit to the West said: "I heard no talk of money shortage while in the West. The banks there are holding their money in their vaults, and they won't have to draw on New York when they want to move the crops. The Western bankers have their own money to lend to their own people, unless money should get so high in Wall street as to make it profitable to send it East. From all the indications, a full year of prosperity is ahead for the West."

This is but one of the many comments on the prosperity in this section of the country, and best of all, they are all deserved. Of course, the crops of the West have a great deal to do with its prosperity. When they are large, the West is usually flush; when they fail, it is different.

This year promises to be an excellent year in an agricultural way. The figures given out by the department of agriculture at Washington indicate a yield of about 590,000,000 bushels of winter wheat this year. This is the translation of the department's report which has been made by the expert of the New York produce exchange. The department reports on acreage and condition, and the resultant, as given in bushels, stands for this big figure. Last year the high-water mark of the winter wheat product along to that time was reached, and this was 411,000,000 bushels, but the 590,000,000 which are promised for 1903, make a big gain over that record yield. The acreage this year is 2,000,000 more than in 1902, and the condition at the beginning of April, 1903, was 97.3, as compared with 78.7 a year ago.

There is more immigration to the West at this time than has been known for years. Property of all sorts is going up in price. The factories in most of the interests of the great West are rushed with orders. Building of all sorts is at a larger volume than has ever been known before. The West certainly seems to be the favored section of the country at present and there is no apparent indication of change for years to come.

MAKING EXPERT RIFLEMEN.

From the recent report of the board appointed to arrange for tests in marksmanship for the regulars and the militia and accepted by Secretary Root, it is evident that Uncle Sam would make this a country of expert riflemen. This country is to follow the example of Germany and Switzerland, both of which put a premium upon good marksmanship and resort to all kinds of schemes to encourage their citizens to acquire proficiency with the rifle. In fact, Switzerland requires every able-bodied man of a certain age within its borders to take part in regular rifle competitions. Germany is almost as exacting, and as a result the men of these two countries are noted for the skill with which they handle a rifle. It is the belief of the officials that there are no better natural shots in the world than Americans, and that all that is necessary to establish our national supremacy is to give opportunity for the young men of the country to get rifle practice.

In addition to providing rules for the annual rifle competition, the board submitted a number of recommendations intended to stimulate interest in marksmanship among individuals throughout the country. It is urged that the government authorize the selection of a picked team of riflemen and send it to Bisley, England, this year in an effort to recapture the Palma trophy, paying all the expenses of the men. This trophy was won by the Canadians last year, and inasmuch as it was originally offered by organizations in this country, it is thought that extra efforts should be put forth to recapture it. Twelve-men teams will shoot at Bisley this summer, and the board believes that if the government superintends the selection of a team of Americans enough crack marksmen can be picked out to insure victory.

Another recommendation is that gun clubs be established all over the country, to be supplied with rifles and ammunition by the government. This is for the purpose of taking in men who do not care to join the state troops. The scheme is to issue the rifles to the governors of the various states whenever proper requisitions are made for them, and to hold those officials responsible for them. The latter may put them in the hands of private shooting clubs, to be used under certain restrictions. The same recommendation is made for all schools and colleges, with a suggestion that rifle practice be made a part of the regular course of instruction at such institutions. The board also makes a strong recommendation in favor of regular appropriations to enable the various states to build rifle ranges near all the big cities, where target practice may be had.

There is complete harmony between the army and National Guard officers in working up interest in this matter, as well as in other branches of work of interest to both services. A board of army officers has just completed a reorganization of the rules for small arm practice, which is to apply to the government and state troops alike. A number of changes have also been made in the targets formerly employed. The fixed distance targets will now be rectangular in shape, with round bulls' eyes.

By an adjustment of the sights on the rifles and graduating the sizes of the bulls' eyes it will be possible for a soldier to get all the benefits of a 1000-yard range over a course only 100 yards long. The board of ordnance and fortification of the army has also just approved a device for indoor rifle work, especially for aiming and sighting. It can be gauged for all distances up to 2000 yards, and a dial within three feet from the marksman indicates instantly what would have been the result of his shot at full range. It is the intention of the war department to distribute disappearing targets for use on the firing ranges of the National Guard. These are used to develop quick and accurate firing.

In all these proceedings may be seen an adaptation of the old adage, "in time of peace, prepare for war." With the men of the country expert marksmen, the supremacy of this nation in time of trouble would be doubly established.

The snapshot of President Roosevelt standing on his head in Yellowstone park as a result of making a trip on skis will be a valuable addition to his numerous pictures, as showing him in a new attitude.

The approach of "the glorious Fourth" is indicated by the institution of a movement in St. Paul looking to the suppression of the fire cracker nuisance.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

When a man is tendered a position as eminent and desirable as a full professorship and a chair of geology in the University of Wisconsin, it is natural to think he might express a very slight measure of enthusiasm at least.

And that is where the average person would be what the children at school used to say "left."

For there was an example of it here yesterday, when Dr. C. K. Leith, who has been the assistant under Professor Van Hise of the university received word of his appointment to the chair of geology as he was passing through Duluth to the Michigan iron and copper country.

"Oh, that's all right," said Professor Leith, as he rounded up his students and fellow geologists and started them for the 5:45 train on the South Shore road to get out of town.

Mr. Leith was around the hotel lobby at the Spalding a few minutes after he returned from the ranges with his party of students and geologists, and learned of his appointment as the successor to C. R. Van Hise, who was made the head of the University of Wisconsin. He was not congratulated, for he was too busy seeing that the party got on its way all right.

Mr. Leith is quite well known in Duluth and up on the ranges. He has been up here a great many times with parties and with Professor Van Hise, who has made exhaustive study of the ranges and formations in St. Louis county, working on the field notes and charts of this vicinity, and with J. Morgan Clements and others of the government geological survey.

He is an unassuming person, though a man full of force and energy, and he makes you know it as soon as you cast an eye upon him. He looks as if he were present to do something, and while he instantly communicates the fact to your perception that he is full of business, he is not a nervous, fidgety person, but gives indication of force behind. Professor Leith is democratic and bohemian, and among the students at the University of Wisconsin are scores of those who know him who would cut off their right arm at his direction.

Dr. Leith was a graduate of the Wisconsin institution in 1897 and took his doctor's degree in 1901. Besides his position at the university, he is assistant geologist on the United States government permanent surveys of the Lake Superior iron and copper districts.

Professor Van Hise will be in Duluth in a few days, and announced in word sent here that his appointment would not interfere with his finishing up of the work in this locality. He will be here and over in Michigan making final correction in the government surveys of this district. Later he intends going to Europe for a trip.

Charles E. Domm, a Minneapolis traveling man, discovered through a casual remark at the St. Louis hotel last evening that his father, Jacob Domm, a bookkeeper for the Northwestern Star Oil company, was dead—killed in the catastrophe in that city yesterday. He overheard someone mention the tragedy, and looking it up in the newspaper, learned the unpleasant truth. He left on a night train for Minneapolis to aid in the search for the bodies, if necessary, and to learn the details of the shocking accident.

"The Star Oil company has had a pretty hard row down in Minneapolis," said a man at the desk in the Hotel McKay this morning. "They have been bucked by the trust to a finish, and have been given a run that nearly put them off the boards. They have been attacked by the Standard Oil people on every hand, and every chance there has been to hinder them and make them feel competition has been taken advantage of.

"This caps the climax and will probably wind up the career of that plucky concern, though it only gives up with a gasp and actual death."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Love me; don't love thyself.

When two people love each other the world is overcrowded if anybody else is around.

All women know enough to come in out of the rain unless they are dressed for it below the knees.

A woman will go on loving a man as long as she thinks it is necessary in order to have him go on loving her.

When a man has a grievance against a woman she makes him apologize for it by getting up a bigger grievance against him.

CANADA NEEDS SOME HELP.

Minneapolis Times: The influx of immigration keeps on pouring into Canada and is already starting speculation to work as to the ways for feeding, housing and generally providing for the numbers which have come and are expected. The Canadian Thresherman gives its leading articles of the April issue to a partial summary of the merchandise which will be demanded in order to satisfy the absolute needs of the new farmers.

There is no attempt at a pipe dream in this estimate, though it might be called optimistic from an American point of view. When we think of new settlements we think of the days of pioneering, when each man consulted the oracle of the unbroken wilderness and waited for the oracular answer until, after the fashion of oracles, he answered his own question by the passage of time. But Canadians immigration today is not an invasion. It is the coming of invited and expected guests. The only trouble is that there are more than the hostess has made ready for.

Therefore when the Tresherman figures on 150,000 new comers in Canada this year, it is simply that the country shall not be caught in the lurch on any further estimates. Probably Canada will not get all that, for the bulk of immigration will come pretty soon. Canada will not encourage immigration in the late summer and fall, which must be helped through the winter months and kept heartened up until another spring opens. The Thresherman's estimate is approximately correct, however, for while it figures on a class of settlers which will average $500 of wealth per capita for Canada, it states that this sum is to be considered as perhaps constructive rather than actual wealth. "Each will bring enough to command that amount of purchasing power."

What are the things which Canada must provide for the new families? Running over the list hastily we find only the essentials of a new home. Lumber, $10,000,000; horses, the same amount; wagons and harness over $5,000,000; $1,500,000 for live stock, and $3,000,000 for hardware. Agricultural implements and machinery are reckoned at nearly $11,000,000. In round numbers here are $50,000,000 of business for somebody, and we know well enough that Canada at present cannot fill these bills. But here, only a few hundred miles away, are states teeming with industries that need more trade openings. Canada's necessity is our opportunity according to the Canadian Thresherman—though that paper does not see it that way. The little path made out of pushing smoking tobacco needed for the new settlers, which the magazine sees as long enough if put in line, end to end, to reach from Winnipeg to Grand Forks goes in the wrong direction; that's all.

FLASHES OF FUN.

Somerville Journal: A girl never looks at a large, empty room without saying: "Wouldn't this be a lovely place to have a dance in?"

Philadelphia Ledger: "He chased the car for a block and a half, whistling as loud as he could all the time."

"And did he catch it?"

"No. You see his whistling attracted the motorman, who looked around and discovered what he was trying to do."

Detroit Free Press: "What's a country gentleman?"

"A man who can afford to lose money by farming."

Chicago News: "Say, mamma," queried little Elsie, "what is a stag party?"

"Stag, my dear, is an abbreviation of stagger," replied the knowing mother.

Boston Transcript: Uncle Charles—Why will you women folks say such wicked things behind your friends' backs?

Somerville Journal: Making the beds is a good deal like making good resolutions. To get the best results it has to be done over again every day.

Philadelphia Press: "They gave me a wedding fee of $50," said the minister, delightedly, when the young couple had departed. "What a blessing!"

"Yes, dear," replied his wife, with outstretched hand, "it is more blessed to give than to receive."

Washington Star: "No," said the friend, "I don't think your new type of American girl will create anything of an artistic stir."

"Why not?" asked the artist, in a tone of indignant disappointment.

"Because her legs are not too long nor her waist too short. In fact she looks too much like a human being to be accepted as artistic."

Chicago Tribune: Having been on a visit for a week or two in St. Louis among political friends the two Chicago aldermen were returning home.

"Bill," solemnly answered Mike, after a pause, "grafting in Chicago is in its infancy."

Confounding the Grumblers.

Baltimore American: The confirmed pessimists and cynics will doubtless not be overpleased by the reports coming in of this having been a record-breaking Easter in point of attendance at the churches. The cry that in these times religion is dying out, and the world getting more and more wicked, is too much of a favorite, however, to be abandoned by the grumblers without a struggle.

THE BOHEMIAN'S PLAINT.

If I should die tonight,
And in my clothes
Should be the goodly sum of Thirty cents,
Left lying there
Unspent
In sweet repose—
I say,
If I should die tonight
And leave
Behind me in those cold
Prosaic pants
The price of six large beers,
On draught,
Unquaffed by me and destined
To remain
Forever on the outside of
My frame—
If I should die,
And from the great beyond
Look back and see
That thirty cents taken
And spent foolishly
For bread
Or clothes,
Or some such empty thing;
And those six beers—
Long destined to be bought by me—
Now spilled
Down other throats.
Their destiny unfilled;—
I say,
If I should die tonight
And go
From here to there
(Or where
It doesn't snow),
And looking back from there
To here,
Behold
Those six large beers—
So large, and O,
So cold!
Go coursing down the throats
Of other men.
'Twould be sad,
For I would need them
There!

Papa Wouldn't Kick.

Washington Post: Out our way there lives a small boy whose mother is bringing him up according to the most correct ideas. He came in the other day with his pocket quite full of "marbles"—glassies, crockies, jasper and all the other kinds boys hold dear. His mother asked where they all came from.

"I won 'em playing keeps," answered the boy.

"Why," said she, "don't you know it's wrong to play for keeps? It's nothing but gambling, and gambling is wicked. You must give them all back or I shall speak to your father about it."

"Oh, that'll be all right," answered the boy. "Speak to father. He won't care. He didn't care a bit about that silver dish you won at the euchre party and I guess he won't kick at my keeping a few old marbles."

Bedtime Song.

Come, little seeds, I must put you to bed
All in a neat little row;
Pull the brown, cozy quilts over your heads,
While you are sleeping you'll grow, oh, ho!

Come, little folk, I must put you to bed.
See three white cribs in a row,
Quiet the bobbing of each curly head,
While you are sleeping you'll grow, oh, ho!
While you are sleeping you'll grow.

Justice Johnson's First Case.

Harper's Magazine: In the early days of Minnesota a man named Johnson was elected justice of the peace in a little town. He pretended to no judicial attainments, and was elevated to the place solely because he was the oldest man in the community.

The first case which came before him was that of a man charged with stealing a calf. Justice Johnson was conscious of his legal inexperience, so as much as possible to avoid the scrutiny of the public he put down the hearing for the next morning at 7 o'clock. This was too early that when the time arrived the prosecuting attorney was not on hand, and his honor faced only the sheriff and the prisoner and his lawyer.

"Gentlemen, you will please come to order," said the court, thumping on the table with his fist.

The lawyer arose and said:

"Your honor, I represent the prisoner in the case. This is the hour at which the court was announced to open, and as the prosecuting attorney is not present, as he ought to be, I desire to make a motion that the prisoner be discharged."

The judge fidgeted about a moment and then said:

"Gentlemen, it is moved that the prisoner be discharged."

The lawyer nudged his client vigorously with his elbow.

"I second the motion," blurted out the prisoner.

"Gentlemen, you have heard the motion," said the court. "As many of you as are in favor of it signify by saying 'aye.'"

"Aye," called out the lawyer and the prisoner.

"Contrary minded, 'no.'"

"No," shouted the sheriff.

"The 'ayes' have it." The prisoner is discharged. A motion to adjourn is in order."

The lawyer responded with the motion, the prisoner with the second, and Justice Johnson's first term of court was a thing of the past.

Beneficial Restrictions.

New York Tribune: Still more stringent regulations ought to be adopted in almost every state of the union for the protection of game beasts, birds and fishes. Such restrictions are in the long run for the advantage of the masses and not for the enjoyment of any privileged class. In fact, under the Stars and Stripes there are no privileged classes. Americans everywhere have ample reason for advocating the enactment of wise and judicious game laws. Much good has been done and more is in store.

Blunders of Naval Engineers.

Philadelphia Record: It would appear from the unfortunate development of certain structural defects in the battleship Maine that there is necessity for an overhauling and strengthening of the engineering department of the government naval outfit at Washington. Our shipbuilders can turn out stanch ships, but their offensive power is lessened by bungling miscalculations of government designers who arrange for the disposition of their guns and the construction of their boilers.

RUSSIA HAS BROKEN FAITH

With the United States Regarding Control of Manchuria.

Washington, April 24.—Minister Conger, from Pekin, has cabled to Secretary Hay a synopsis of the demands made upon China by Russia respecting control of Manchuria. This account agrees precisely with the full and accurate press report of Russia's last coup from the Chinese capital. Secretary Hay will take no action in the matter until he has communicated the facts to the president and has learned the latter's wishes.

The present impression here is that the Russian action is a distinct breach of faith with the United States. The Russian government pledged itself three times formally, and the documents are of record that the "open door" should be maintained in Manchuria and Russian troops would be withdrawn as soon as peace was restored. Finally the latter promise took the shape of a treaty stipulation. It was provided that the evacuation should take place within three distinct periods. The last Russian soldier should have quit Manchuria on the 8th of this month, according to that treaty. But a plausible explanation for a temporary retention of the remainnig Russan troops was offered by Russia in the claim that the country was still disturbed and that vigorous military methods were necessary in the interests of sanitation.

Officials declare that that there is no danger of war with Russia over this incident. The government of the United States has recorded its ideas of what should be done in Manchuria and the result of Secretary Hay's projected conference with the president, it is probable that Russia will, for the time being at least, allay foreign opposition, or at least that of the United States, by carrying out its pledge as to the open door.'

There will be no additional treaty ports in Manchuria if Russia succeeds in this last move. New Chwang, however, is still a treaty port and until Russia makes a further move of applying her customs system to that port, United States products may enter there at the same uniform rate of 5 per cent dues as are collected in the Southern Chinese ports.

An official of the government well informed regarding Chinese affairs says that the steps taken by Russia is one for which she has been preparing for a number of years. Extraordinary as it may seem, he says, that there appears to be no way of preventing the consummation of Russia's plan. Japan is in no position to dispute the action, and, even with the assistance of England it is doubtful, in his opinion, whether the purpose of Russia could be changed. As to the interest of this government he said, it was doubtful whether the United States could look with favor upon the far greater control of the Pacific ocean which the new move would give Russia. He had no doubt that Russia would eventually apply the Russian tariff to the new territory in which case the United States would endeavor to sell the Russians raw materials for mannfacture in place of the finished products which now go to that part of China. He said that there had been great development in Manchuria under the Russian auspices during the past few years and especially in the last eight months. Immense sums of money, he said, have been spent in building railroads, bridges and other works to improve transportation routes and build industries. This was especially the case at Dalny, the port about forty miles from Port Arthur which has not only been greatly improved, but well fortified. This port is in the leased territory which was discussed between the United States and Russia in 1899. When Russia leased for twenty-five years certain Chinese ports, assurance were given Ambassador Hitchpecker that the "open door" would be maintained. To made this more emphatic Secretary Hay, Sept. 6, addressed a letter to Ambassador Tower, calling attention to the categorical assurances given his predecessor by Russia when she leased the ports of Port Arthur, Ta Lien Wan, and the adjacent territory in the Lia Tung peninsula. On Dec. 18, 1899, Count Muravieff replied to Mr. Hay's note, saying that the imperial government had demonstrated its firm determination to follow the policy of the "open door." In the same note the count said that as to other territory the fixing of duties belong to China itself and "the imperial government has no intention of claiming privileges for its own subjects to the exclusion of other foreigners." The count said: "The imperial government is happy to have complied with the wishes of the American government."

DIED FROM WOUNDS.

Elliott Never Regained Consciousness After Being Shot.

Houghton, Mich., April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—Thereon Elliott, 19 years old, who shot himself at his brother's house at Tamarack, Osceola Mills, near Lake Linden, April 13, died last night at Leake Superior hospital. He has been unconscious since the shooting which, whether accidental or designed, was not determined. The body will be shipped to Minnesota, where his parents live, for burial.

DEAD MAN ACCUSES

A Baptist Preacher of Being His Murderer.

Crookston, Minn., April 24.—Something of a sensation has developed in the Johnson suicide case, reported from near Fosston on Tuesday. At the coroner's inquest a note was found on the body of the dead man which said: "Tell Rev. Knute Nelson that he is my murderer."

The man referred to was at one time a Baptist preacher at Fergus Falls. He visited Mexico, and on his return revealed to Johnson, it is alleged, a scheme whereby both could become immensely wealthy in very quick order. The story is told that Johnson took hold of the proposition, and on the start put up $600 and later $500.

It seems that Johnson has not had returns from the investment. He brooded over this matter, and on Sunday last ended his troubles by committing suicide.

FIRE AT FARBURY, NEB.

Fairbury, Neb., April 24.—A quarter of the best part of Fairbury was destroyed by fire yesterday. The total loss is estimated at from $240,000 to $300,000, fairly covered with insurance. The local fire department was powerless and beatrice sent assistance. By consent of Governor Mickey, the local militia company is patrolling the burned district. The principal properties burned included two drug stores, two lumber yards, two clothing houses, postoffice, harness store, bakery, Times Newspaper, hardware and implement house, Harbine bank, boot and shoe store, general merchandise store, several medical and law libraries; Methodist church. Several residences were also damaged.

WERE WELL PAID.

Colorado Springs, April 24.—The report of three administrators to collect in the Stratton estate has been filed and formal transfer of the property made to the executors. The court allowed the administrators $166,521.73 for their services, being 3½ per cent of the value of the property.

SHAMROCKS LEAVE FOR CLYDE.

Southampton, April 24.—The two Shamrocks left Southampton today in tow for the Clyde. The town council of Weymouth, at a meeting today, decided to present Sir Thomas Lipton with an illuminated address in recognition of his sportsmanlike efforts to recapture the America's cup.

MICHAEL IS IMPROVING.

Berlin, April 24.—The physicians in attendance on "Jimmie" Michael, the bicycle rider, who sustained a severe fall from his wheel yesterday while training at the suburb of Friendenau for the international races next month, said today that he was progressing favorably toward recovery. Michael was thrown thirty feet, and when picked up he was senseless and blood was flowing from his ears. The accident was caused by the bursting of a tire.

COMPLETE HOUSE FURNISHERS.

AT THE LIZARD COTILLION

By Nellie Cravey Gillmore.

The crowded corridors, parlors and verandas of the Royal Poinciana presented a scene scarcely to be surpassed anywhere for wealth and splendor. There was the usual flash and sparkle of jewels; the magnificent display of costumes, beautiful women, bare of bosom and shoulder, and imposing men.

The quintessence of ingenious taste reigned supreme. The ballroom, schemed to typify a tropical wildwood, presented a vast aspect of tangled foliage, brilliant with native blossoms. Fastened to the network of vine and tree, with slender, almost invisible cords, the world of Lacertiliae disporting itself at will. Some, gorgeous in their livery of green, were sprightly, inquisitive, courageous, but entirely harmless. Others, shy and crusty-coated, nibbled assiduously upon the food provided for them, or shrank back in modest retirement. There were flying drakes, frilled, blind and hedge lizards, monitors, geckos, some of the water species and innumerable little house lizards, bright and variable in color.

Tavares and his friend Jack Erickson made their way toward the ballroom. The first figure was already in progress.

"We'll watch this out," said Tavares, "and afterwards I intend presenting you to Mrs. Mainwaring. She is that tall, lovely blonde standing just outside the door talking to the man with the orders on his coat."

Erickson followed the other's gaze, and his heart gave a sudden, tumultuous bound as he recognized the woman. The light from the rose-cut chandelier above fell directly upon her, changing the pink, flesh tint of her neck and arms to dead white marble. The gown she wore was of delicate mauve, and dropped about her in bewitching cascades. Decidedly, Mrs. Mainwaring was a woman who not only could carry such things, but become them.

For years Erickson had pictured to himself a possible meeting with the girl who had made all the love-dreams of his youth and later manhood, but it had never been anything like this. The reality far eclipsed every investiture of the ideal.

But Mrs. Mainwaring was another man's wife!

At the conclusion of the figure, Tavares dragged him across the floor to where she stood. Ericson had framed a dozen commonplace remarks with which to greet her, but they all seemed to stick stubbornly in his throat as he once more gazed into the purple-pansy eyes that had kept him a bachelor for the past ten years.

"This is an undreamed of pleasure," he managed to say at last, clasping the hand she extended.

At the sound of his voice, Mrs. Mainwaring bent a swift, startled glance upon him, her color changing quickly.

"Jack Ericson—of all people!" she exclaimed. "Why, I thought you were in Germany studying—" She broke off and bit her lip in some vexation for having bertayed the fact that she had given so much thought to any one man, and that man—him.

"I have been in Germany for a good many years," he explained, taking up her words, "engaged in the study of mineralogy. I have but just arrived, and tomorrow shall leave for the west, where I hope to make practical use of the knowledge I have spent years trying to perfect."

Tavares had vanished, and they stood there longer than either knew, talking and taking no note of time. Presently Mrs. Mainwaring recalled herself with a start.

"You must let me find you a partner," she apologized, "I quite forgot for the moment that I was monopolizing you, when all this time I am sure you have been dying to join the dancers."

But Ericson made a decided protest against any such inclination.

"Indeed, I would rather not," he insisted, eagerly, "that is, if you think you can put up with my society a little while longer."

"Oh, perfectly well," she responded, with a smile, "but for the next half hour I shall have to devote myself to some of the guests. When you see me disengaged, come."

When Mrs. Mainwaring had disappeared in the crowd, Ericson took up his position in the shadow of a huge bank of palms where he could observe all that was going on without himself being observed.

Now for the first time he gave his attnetion to the dancing. Favors were being distributed for the third figure, tiny, vari-colored chameleons, fastened with silver chains. Some of these clung tenaciously to the women's shoulders, darting with lightning-like rapidity their extensile, club-shaped tongues half out of their hideous bodies. Ericson shuddered with disgust at the sight, and turning, strode from the room.

He paced up and down a deserted veranda for 15 or 20 minutes, afterwards standing quietly near an open window where he could watch his opportunity to join Mrs. Mainwaring. In a little while it came. He saw her speak to a debutante in pink, and then move off aimlessly in the direction of a vacant corridor.

"You look warm," he said, going up to her, "suppose we walk outside."

When they had stepped out on the piazza he turned to her with an odd light in his eyes, and drew her arm in his.

"Do you know," he said quickly, "one thing has given me inexpressible pleasure to night."

"And that is?"

"That you are not in there—one of them, those women with the loathsome little things clinging to their bosoms and shoulders. It's utterly nauseating. How can refined women stoop to such as that?"

Mrs. Mainwaring laughed in an inscrutable fashion and said nothing. Then presently: "It does seem absurd," she admitted in a curious voice, half-sober, half-contemptuous.

"I could never marry a woman who lowered herself to such things," he said musingly.

Mrs. Mainwaring offered no protest, and Ericson went on in a different tone. "Speaking of marriage," he said, flushing under cover of the dark, "that is a change which has come to you since—"

"Come—and gone," she interposed, in a low voice, "my husband has been dead three years."

Ericson gazed at her incredlously, tremulously—with a breathless heartbeat. Under the impulse of this great, new joy, he bent suddenly toward her; then controlled himself and said, quite carelessly, that he had not heard.

"Mr. Mainwaring was very much older than I," she pursued, presently. "We never were congenial; he was nearly always occupied with his business and I—well, I quite inadvertently drifted into this life.

Ericson was regarding her intently; he could not altogether comprehend her mood. He wondered vaguely if ever so faint a regret for the old past, their past, stirred in her heart. She had refused him once, and, man-like, he had accepted her words as final, and put the ocean between them.

The orchestra was playing some dreamy thing of Chopin's; the spirit music fired his blood, and he looked down into her eyes with a strange, compelling intensity. Mrs. Mainwaring felt his gaze, and her cheeks crimsoned in swift response. There was no word spoken, but he caught her suddenly in his arms. For an instant she lay there, her cheek against his. Then she freed herself and glanced up into his face shyly. Her scarlet lips were slightly parted, and her breath came through them in tremulous little whispers.

Erickson bent and kissed her twice. "Can you be ready to go with me tomorrow?" he asked, eagerly. "I can't lose any more time, and I can't possibly part with you again."

Mrs. Mainwaring did not speak at once. But presently a wonderful smile came into her eyes, and she laid her hand in his.

Mrs. Mainwaring was standing before a picture, looking up at it when Tavares tapped gently on the door of her private parlor.

"I sent for you, Teddy," she began, waving him to a chair, "because—" she appared to hesitate a moment, then hurried on: "Because I wanted to ask a favor of you."

"Teddy," she went on, folding and unfolding her fan, in a nervous little way that did not belong to her, "Mr. Ericson does not—must not know who planned the cotillion for tonight." She came and stood in front of him, regarding him with oddly anxious eyes.

Tavares gave her a quick glance of amazement. "I don't exactly understand he observed, in a puzzled tone.

"Then I must tell you something, Ted. We are to be married tomorrow—Jack and I— and go west immediately. I knew him many years ago; I have always loved him. Something foolish and insignificant came between us—What he saw here tonight sickened him. I could never marry a woman who lowered herself to such things'—that is what he said. He is going to take me away from it all—the sham, hypocrisy—emptiness of such a life. And I, ah, I shall be the happiest of women, Teddy, the very happiest!"

Tavares' eyes sought hers piercingly, and from their depths a keen bitterness looked out.

For one brief second his emotion threatened to master him; his face paled, and he felt himself shake from head to foot. She had been the one woman, and there would never be a second.

"Of course I shan't," he said, with a careless smile, stooping a moment to kiss her outstretched hand. The next, he had passed noiselessly from the room.

Mrs. Mainwaring sank into a chair and broke into a storm of tears.

BRILLIANT TRIUMPH

Production of "Carmen" at the Lyceum a Great Success.

Remarkable Vocal Excellence and Much Dramatic Ability.

"Carmen," as produced at the Lyceum last evening, by Duluth singers, was a triumph for everyone connected with it, from the most insignificant chorus maid to the most prominent principal, the stage manager, musical director and the orchestra. To George L. Tyler, of course, belongs the chief triumph, for the vocal excellence displayed by all of the singers was the result of his molding and training, a work of years, not merely of the few weeks required to arrange and stage the opera. The verdict is general that it was quite the best amateur operatic performance Duluth has had. Breaks were very few, the chorus was superb and every feature was of a degree of excellence rarely obtained among those with whom the stage is not a profession.

Mrs. James McAuliffe was Carmen. It is one of the most difficult of operatic roles dramatically as well as in its vocal demands and the manner in which Mrs. McAuliffe met the occasion deserved the very warm expressions of approval which were extended to her. While the part calls for a little more vivacity and coquettish abandon than she gave it, she has made fine strides in the dramatic art, acting with more ease and losing herself more completely in the part she is playing. Vocally her work was superb, her voice being naturally strongly dramatic and surmounting the technical difficulties of the score with rare brilliancy and artistic finish.

George L. Tyler, in the role of Don Jose, might be said to have found an old friend, so often has he sung it. In his acting and singing there was that excellence that comes only with long experience and complete familiarity with the meaning of the role.

Miss Rena Smith, as Michaela, was a charming village maiden, and her singing was very brilliant. Her singing of the beautiful soprano solo of the third act won her the ovation of the evening, a double encore failing to her.

MRS. McAULIFFE AS CARMEN.

Miss Elizabeth Bailey and Miss Allie Piper as Carmen's companions sung delightfully, Miss Piper displaying a fine high soprano voice of pleasing quality and Miss Bailey, a soprano of lower range and excellent volume and mellowness, a voice that promises much. Miss Bailey was especially bright and winsome in her acting and general stage presence.

Charles Applehagen made a fine Escamillio. He sang the toreador song with much spirit and it made a great hit. He has a strong baritone voice and uses it excellently. Louis Dworschak is a singer from whom fine things should be looked for, for his voice is of fine quality, full, free and resonant. T. V. Collins, baritone, also sang very pleasingly. C. H. Giddings and Cyril Tyler as the two smugglers were good. Mr. Tyler especially so, giving to the role the comedy dash that it called for and doing it excellently.

The work of the chorus was remarkably good, quite the equal of much of the professional that has been offered to Duluthians. The voices were in fine harmony, there was freedom from hesitation or uncertainty, and the volume was tremendous, the finales of the different acts and scenes inciting the audience to great enthusiasm.

The stage management was in the hands of Lansing Robinson, and the evidence of the skill of his direction was found in the smooth manner in which the opera moved.

Harry Howell directed and Mrs. Tyler was at the piano. The work of the orchestra also deserves commendation.

WOMEN ARE ADVISED

By Chicago Justice to Smash Saloon Fixtures.

Chicago, April 24.—"Smash" is the advice of Judge Sabath to wives whose husbands come home under the influence of liquor and break up the household furniture. Speaking to Mrs. Ellen Hanley, he said:

"I think it would be a good thing for you to treat the saloonkeepers as they treat you. Do to them as your husband does to you when crazed from liquor. Go to the saloon or saloons where he secures his poison and smash the furniture there just as your husband smashes your at home. If every wife of a drunkard in Chicago would take such heroic action, I predict that saloonkeepers would be more careful in selling drink to habitual drunkards. Every wife would have the full sympathy of the law and public."

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE TALKS

Papers By Horace E. Deming and M. N. Baker of New York.

Detroit, Mich., April 24.—Last evening's session of the National Municipal league, which is holding its annual meeting in Detroit, was held at Philharmonic hall and was attended by about 150 people. Rev. Boynton, of Detroit, presided and made an introductory address. The principal paper of the evening was the report of C. H. Deming, chairman of the league's committee on nomination reforms and the discussion which followed was led by Prof. Hearing of the University of Wisconsin, and Prof. Shafer, of the University of Minnesota.

Mr. Deming said in part:

In a small and homogeneous community, dwelling in a limited territory and with few public interests, the governmental machinery may be very simple and yet satisfy every public need. But, in the very nature of things, no community can occupy permanently a purely isolated position. It must have dealings with other communities. History teaches that democratic government first shows itself in free, self-governing small communities, but that is a necessary condition and an inevitable accompaniment of political progress that these separate communities should combine into larger and larger groups, each group under a central authority. This process, now slow, now rapid, of consolidation, constitutes nation building.

There can be no political concert of action without a central co-ordinating authority. That authority must be either superimposed from without, and so irresponsible to the governed, who are then literally subjects; or established by representatives of, and so responsible and responsive to the governed, who are then first, in any true sense, freemen. No one will dispute the truth of this statement in the light of history. Nor will any reflecting and intelligent man dispute that in the United States, with its vast territory, complex industrial civilization and millions of people, the political question transcending today all others in importance is how to make the government representative of and responsible to the governed.

If it be an essential element of democratic government that it should be representative of the people, neither Pennsylvania nor Rhode Island has a democratic government. The people elect as their rulers the men selected by an outside authority, irresponsible to them. The result is as truly absolutism as though there had been no popular election.

From which direction shall we find relief. If a widely extended suffrage and popular elections of the rulers do not create a government representative of the people? The boss now has arbitrary power. Partisan bigotry gives the boss his opportunity; selfish greed to share his favors and the moral cowardice of the majority of those who know and see the truth shelter him from the successful attack.

All the members of the party must take part freely in determining who shall be the party nominee, and party organization must be reduced to its proper position of furnishing simple and effectiveness of executing the will of the party. How, then, shall nomination reform be brought about? Manifestly, in the first instance, by increasing the number of those who value the principle of representation in government above parties as such, and by taking every available opportunity to attack and weaken the "organization" monopoly, which is but another name for the boss's monopoly of nominating candidates to public office. The nomination reformers believe that our government, national, state and local, should be representative of the peoples' will.

A paper on "What Has Been Done Towards Uniform Accounts for Street Railway, Electric and Gas Lighting and Waterworks Systems" was presented by M. N. Baker, associate editor of the Engineering News, of New York city. Mr. Baker said, in part:

Uniform accounting systems have been adopted by national organizations devoted to the gas lighting, electric lighting and street railway interests of the country. A uniform summary of statistics for the reports of the waterlworks is in use by some municipal water departments. The latter covers physical as well as financial statistics, but does no more in the way of accounting than to suggest a uniform system. The outline for water-works statistics was adopted by the New England Water-works association in June, 1885, thus making that organization a pioneer in the movement for uniform municipal statistics. The schedule has recently been endorsed by the American Water-works association, the Central States Water-works association, and the American Society of Municipal Improvement. Copies of it may be obtained from Charles W. Sherman, editor "Journal New England Water-works association," 1 Ashburton Place, Boston, Mass. It may be added that the statistics made up in accordance with the schedule are tabulated and published yearly in the "Journal."

In August, 1899, as a result of co-operation between the Street Railway Accountants' Association of America, the Association of American Railway Accounting Officers, and the National convention of (Street Railroad Commissioners, a detailed accounting system for street railways was adopted by the later body, after having been previously approved by the other two organizations. The schedule is printed in full in the report for the Connecticut Railroad Commission for 1899, occupying seventy-seven pages of the same. It was adopted for use by street railway companies in making up their reports to the Connecticut railroad commission after June 30, 1900. The commission may be addressed at Hartford, Conn.

In May, 1901, the National Electric Light association adopted a committee report which included a uniform system of accounting for electric lighting plants, the schedules for which are included in the proceedings of the convention for that year. James Blake Cahoon, 35 Nassau street, New York city, is secretary of the National Electric Light association.

In October, 1902, the American Gas Light association adopted the report of its committee on final accounting, which included a detailed system of accounts. Alexander Humphreys, president of Stevens Institute of Technology, Hoboken, N. J., is chairman of the last named committee.

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 24.—The delegates to the annual convention of the National Municipal league came out from Detroit early today to hold a morning and afternoon session at the university of Michigan. This morning, Frank H. Scott, vice president of the municipal voters' league, of Chicago, delivered an address on the municipal situation in Chicago, speaking in part as follows:

The foundation of misrule in large cities is the apathy and indifference of their citizens. The problem now being worked out in Chicago is how far a wide and genuine desire for government, expressing itself in positive action, can be effective, as against the limitations of a body of laws suited to existing conditions, an unsympathetic legislature, the opposition of partisan machines and a settled order of things which is the fruit of years of misrule. The Municipal Voters' league entered the field in 1896, with the avowed purpose of endeavoring to secure the election of "agressively honest men" to the council; and employed surprisingly simple means to effect its aim. The once powerful gang has been completely overthrown, but three of its fifty-eight members remaining in the council, and they are wholly discredited and without influence. A very remarkable fact is that in the organization of its committees party affiliations have no place.

"The success of the league is proof of, and has been wholly due to the widespread and sincere desire of the citizens for good government.

"They are important elements entering into the present municipal situation in Chicago. Chief among these is the movement to secure an amendment to the constitution of the state which shall permit charges in the laws relating to local government. The city is grievously embarrassed by constitutional restrictions entirely unwarranted by present conditions, and by the illogical system which gives to the state legislature a control over purely local concerns. It is also proposed to accomplish adequate changes in the revenue laws, and a reform of municipal and local minor courts."

The municipal situation in Detroit, was the subject of a paper by Sherman D. Callender, attorney for the Detroit municipal league.

Mr. Callender spoke on "The Municipal Situation in Detroit," saying: "Our citizens are deeply interested in municipal problems. This increasing interest in local affairs has led to the organization of the Detroit Municipal league. It has been organized on a broad, common sense platform and its efforts thus far have been in substantial accord with the idea of the National Municipal league. Less than two years ago the Detroit organization adopted a platform consisting of the following specific objects for which its special efforts was pledged:

"First, a primary election law which shall enable the voters of all political parties or political organizations to make nominations by a direct vote, with provision as to secrecy and other safeguards as efficient as those now provided in the Australian ballot system.

"Second. Such constitutional amendment and legislative enactments as will give the city permanent control of its internal affairs.

"Third. Such amendment of the election law applicable to Detroit as shall provide for the election of all city officials at the regular biennial election required by the constitution, thus separating city elections from state and national elections and affording opportunity for settling municipal issues on their merits.

"Fourth. Such amendments of the city charter as shall provide civil service rules, with efficient means for the enforcement of such rules.

"Recent results are encouraging. It has been our purpose to arous the candid, honest, fair-minded citizen to an active realization that good municipal government is to be obtained only as a result of patient, intelligent and persistent effort by the masses of the people."

A paper by Frank J. Symmes, president of the Merchants' association of San Francisco, who was unable to be present, on the California municipal situation was read. His paper said: "The celebrated new charter of San Francisco is now three years and three months old. The charter was a very radical instrument. Its radicalism had four important points of departure from the old order beside some minor ones. First, it sought to centralize power in the mayor; second, it sought to check him in the use of this power by the most far-reaching civil service laws of any American city; third, it declared a purpose to acquire public utilities; and fourth, it provided for the operation of initiative referendum in order to facilitate the acquisition of public utilities and prevent the fartering away of franchisee dishonestly.

"While municipal conditions in San Francisco are far better than they were before the adoption of the charter, there is still much to be desired, and some danger of a relapse. The present program of improvement is a good one. If we can sustain the awakened public interest in the city as a city, and prevent the government falling into the hands of political schemers, much may be done."

W. A. Frisbie, city editor of the Minneapolis Journal, reviewed the recent municipal scandal of that city which has resulted so far in forty-nine indictments by the grand jury and five convictions.

The visitors were entertained at luncheon by President Angell, dean Hutchins of the law department, and dean Hudson of the literary department of the university. Tonight convention will close with a banquet at the hotel Cadillac in Detroit.

WOULD RUN AT 54.

Champion Cross-Country Runner of Maine.

Bangor, Me., April 24.—Edgar B. Welch, of Webbs Mills, champion cross-country runner of Maine, says that in future he will not undertake any long runs, as he is getting past his prime, being now 54 years old, but if there is any young fellow around this part of the world who thinks he is a champion, Mr. Welch is ready to turn out and try another 30-mile race such as he used to run.

For many years Welch has had the reputation of being able to beat any horse in Cumberland county over a 30-mile distance, and on several occasions he has started under a long handicap, overtaken a pair of fast horses and then finished far in the lead in a 30-mile race.

Once he started at scratch with the fastest pair of horses in the county and beat them from Raymond to Portland, 20 miles. In a 30-mile race he never halted, and was always in good condition at the close.

NO RACE SUICIDE.

Sixty-Nine Children In Five Families.

Bangor, Me., April 24.—The town of Limestone, Aroostook county, was boasting a while ago about its numerous large families, pairs of twins, sets of triplets, etc., all of which interesting statistics were offered to President Roosevelt as evidence that the population up that way is in no danger of dying out from race suicide.

Now comes the town of Mars Hill, in the same county, with a few family facts that make Limestone's claims for Roosevelt photographs look modest. A justice of the peace in Mars Hill says: "It is hard to find a family in this town that has fewer than thirteen children. Just as samples I mention the following: One family has 17 children, one has 15, one 14, one 13 and one 10, a total of 69 children in five families, and of these 52 are going to school. In one of these families there are three pairs of twins. There have been born to one couple in this town that I married in 1882 17 children, the latest being a pair of twins born a few weeks ago."

A LENGTHY SEARCH

For Elopers Is Made By a Massachusetts Woman.

Traced Her Husband and Another Woman to Honolulu.

New Bedford, Mass., April 24.—After a pursuit lasting more than six months and extending from one end of the continent to the other, the wife of Dr. J. B. de Faria has at last captured her recreant husband and left her rival, Mrs. M. D. Sanders, deserted at Honolulu.

Letters received in this city by friends of the parties concerned reveal a sensational ending of the elopement which startled the South End six months ago. Dr. de Faria was a leading physician here among the Portuguese colony and a handsome man. Mrs. Sanders, wife of Capt. Manuel D. Sanders, of the schooner Republic, captivated the doctor, and during the absence of her husband Mrs. Sanders and Dr. de Faria eloped, leaving word that they would never come back to New Bedford.

The deserted wife claimed that her husband had been charmed by her fascinating rival, and said she would follow him around the world. She sent her four children to Portugal and started on her search.

Capt. Sanders at the time said his wife could never come back to him.

The story of how the woman managed to overcome all obstacles and finally to claim her husband is a remarkable one. Starting out with $100, Mrs. de Faria made her way across the country, ever with the fixed purpose of overtaking the fleeing couple and regaining her husband. She traced them as far as San Francisco, and then the trail mysteriously came to an end.

For several months she worked at odd jobs in that city, always waiting anxiously for some clew that would enable her to continue the search. One day she happened to pick up a Honolulu paper. In bold, black type on one of its pages she saw her husband's advertisement as a physician. She had saved a little money during her three months' sojourn in San Francisco, and lost no time in once more taking up the trail.

On arriving at Honolulu she proceeded to hunt up her husband and his companion. Just what she would do on finding them she had not planned. Her one aim was to run them down and then let things take their course.

As it happened, the infatuation of the two for each other had undergone a cooling process. Whispers of the ardent attentions of a young army officer toward Mrs. Sanders had aroused the physician's jealousy, and quarrels had become frequent.

It was in the middle of one of these altercations that Mrs. de Faria made her appearance. To the elopers the sight of the woman they had wronged came like lightning from a clear sky. Both had supposed that until that momene she was back in her native country, Portugal.

The efforts she had made to find him, together with the unhappy elements of his latest romance, brought about a revulsion of feeling in Dr. de Faria. After a long conversation with her, to which Mrs. Sanders was not admitted, the two made their preparation for a second disappearance, in which Mrs. de Faria was to change places with her rival. Nothing was said to Mrs. Sanders, and the flight of Dr. de Faria with his wife a few days later came as a complete surprise to Mrs. Sanders.

Then a realizing sense of the loneliness and helplessness of her position seized Mrs. Sanders. Four thousand miles from her relatives and friends, with no money, she was in a desperate position. Neighbors came to the rescue, however, and relieved her immediate wants.

From letters received by her friends in his city it is believed that she contemplates returning shortly. She asks if her escapade created much comment in the city, and whether public opinion is very bitter against her.

Meanwhile Dr. de Faria and his wife have returned to Portugal, and it is said they will never again come to this country.

TOO MUCH RED TAPE

Delays Auditing Bureau of Postoffice Department.

Washington, D. C., April 23.—One decision reached by Postmaster General Payne is to insist upon a sensible administration.

The matter of auditing accounts of the department was brought up when he was discussing the present situation with a number of newspaper men. The fact that Capt. Castle had said publicly in an interview published last week in these columns, that there was not sufficient checks on the business of the department, was called to Gen. Payne's attention. "It is not," said he, "that there are not enough checks, but that there is so much red tape that the auditing department is always behind.

"The force is not strong enough to keep up current work, and if there are irregularities they are not reached until long after they occur. It would seem as if the system of auditing the accounts of a great business department should be equal to the necessities of the case.

"If we could have our accounts audited as they are in a well-administered railroad, we should have less trouble.

"That is what I should say was the difficulty here in the matter of accounts."

Capt. Castle said: "To handle the business of this office with sufficient minuteness and allow for review, would require at least two hundred more auditing clerks, seventy-five of whom should be engaged in nothing but reviewing.

"The postoffice department is the largest business institution in the world, but that fact is not appreciated by congress. Last year the business increased 15 per cent, and yet my force was increased only 1 per cent."

HAS SON-IN-LAW PUT IN PRISON

Declares That His Daughter Is But Thirteen Years Old.

Birmingham, Ala., April 24.—Lee W. Rawlinson is in the county jail on a charge of abduction. The warrant for his arrest was sworn out by G. D. Pate, the father of Miss Annie Pate. Mr. Pate and his family live at Avondale.

Rawlinson and Miss Annie Pate were married in Birmingham a week ago without the consent of the bride's parents. When the father heard his daughter had married he was angry and at once issued a warrant for Rawlinson's arrest, claiming that his daughter had not reached her thirteenth year.

Rawlinson pleaded with Mr. Pate for forgiveness. He cried a little and his yong wife also burst into tears. Tears and entreaties, however, had no effect o nthe parent and nothing the couple could do or did do to persuade him to forgive them availed. For an hour they discussed the matter and finally Rawlinson was locked up in the county jail and his wife went home with her father.

Rawlinson, in discussing the matter, said:

"I am sorry the old folks have kicked up such a row over our marriage.

"My wife and I were married Saturday night. I knew it would be of no use to ask her father to give his consent. Late Saturday afternoon she met me. We got on a car and came to Birmingham, where the ceremony was performed by a minister.

"After we were married I telephoned to the girl's mother. She said she would forgive us and everything was all right. Now her father comes along and has me put in jail. I can't see that I have done anything wrong. I have married the girl. I love her, and she is my wife."

STOOD ON HEAD

Skis Get the Better of President In Yellowstone Park.

An Outline of Executive's Trip In the Great Reservation.

Cinnabar, Mont., April 24.—President Roosevelt's vacation is at an end. He greeted the members of his party and a large number of people at the Mammoth Hot Springs Hotel in Yellowstone Park yesterday and today he will resume his tour, which is to end in Washington, June 5. The president, who arrived at Fort Yellowstone Wednesday, is the picture of health and it can be seen at a glance that the time he has spent in the park has been greatly beneficial to him. His eye is bright and his face is bronzed. He speaks in enthusiastic terms of the park and and the good time he had while touring it. Word had gone forth several days ago that he would meet the people living in the park and vicinity yesterday morning, and when he arrived at the Mammoth Springs Hotel, where the reception was held, he found a couple of hundred men and women there to greet him. The president addressed them briefly, speaking of the good time he had had during the past two weeks and then shook hands with each one. He spent the rest of the day in inspecting the post and riding horseback with Maj. Pitcher. Before starting today he will participate in the laying of the corner stone of the new gate at the Northern entrance to the park. The president and all those who accompanied him on his tour of the park are delighted with the trip. No accident occurred to mar the pleasure of the party and for the most part they were favored with delightful weather. John Burroughs, who accompanied the president most of the time was also greatly benefited by his outdoor life and his face is as bronzed as that of the president. The president spent most of his time in studying the habits of the different species of game that abound in the park. He would lie for hours near a herd of elk or mountain goats and frequently walk for eight or ten miles to observe them. He also studied bird life with Mr. Burroughs and showed himself particularly well posted on this subject. Mr. Burroughs was able to show him but one bird with which he was not acquainted, namely the Solitaire.

The president's camp was composed of two Sibley tents and one wall tent without board floors and while everything was very simple, yet it was quite comfortable. The party that accompanied him was a small one, consisting of Maj. Pitcher, Mr. Burroughs, a couple of orderlies and two cooks. There also was a small force of men to man the pack wagon. While fortunately there were no accidents, a number of amusing incidents occurred. One of them happened during the president's visit to Geyser land a few days ago. The president and Mr. Burroughs were on skis and started to race down hill. The snow was soft and Mr. Burroughs, who had never used a ski before, soon found himself with his head in the snow and his feet in the air. He had hardly struggled to his feet when the president repeated the performance. Neither one was hurt, but Maj. Pitcher secured excellent photographs of the catastrophe, which he has promised to have developed. On another occasion the president had just commenced to shave himself when Mr. Burroughs discovered a flock of mountain goats jumping down a steep hill. He called the president's attention to the sight and Mr. Roosevelt came running out without hat or coat and with his face covered with lather. He was more interested in seeing the goats perform than he was in getting the beard off his face.

The party was fortunate in running across game. Thousand of elk and deer and quite a number of mountain sheep and goats were encountered and their habits were closely studied. The president and Mr. Burroughs also saw many strange birds and the latter is quite enthusiastic over some of the feathered tribe that inhabit the park. Mr. Burroughs tells a good story on the president in connection with the birds. They were sitting around the camp fire one night when Mr. Burroughs, whom, by the way, the president has nicknamed "Oom John," on account of his flowing white whiskers, heard a strange call. He did not recognize it and asked Bill Hoffer, the well known guide and trapper, what it was.

"That's an owl," said Bill.

"Oh, no," replied the president, and Mr. Burroughs, "an owl does not sound that kind of a call." Thereupon the party started out to locate the bird. They finally discovered it perched on the topmost branch of a tall tree. It was too far away to be plainly discerned with the naked eye.

"You keep that bird treed, Oom John," said the president, "and I will go and get the glasses."

When the bird was brought into vision by the powerful glasses it turned out to be a dwarf owl. Bill Hoffer was vindicated.

While no accident occurred, the president had a number of narrow escapes. One day, in company with Maj. Pitcher, he fired a new revolver at a tree. The weapon was defective and the empty shell flew back and struck the president on the cheek, drawing the blood. If it had struck a little higher up it would have injured, if not blinded, one eye.

The president rode a big gray horse named "Bonaparte" during the whole of his tour. The horse belongs to Troop B, Third cavalry, and is one of the surest-footed animals in the park. He showed what he could do on the first day out. To reach the first camp, which was named by the soldiers Camp Roosevelt, it was necessary to traverse for about two miles a narrow mountainous trail, which was covered with ice. Some of the party dismounted and led their horses down the trail, for a misstep meant death or serious injury, but the president stuck to the saddle and guided Bonaparte safely down the treacherous trail.

The longest walk enjoyed by the president was taken on Easter Sunday. He started out alone in the morning, declining the offer of other members of the party to accompany him. He spent the day in climbing mountains and walking along the trail. He covered fully twenty miles and did not return to camp until 7 o'clock in the evening. When Maj. Pitcher found that the president was determined to go by himself he induced him to take a revolver so that he could signal in case of accident.

The first three days in camp the weather was extremely cold and the president was compelled to break the ice in his bucket before performing his morning ablutions. Maj. Pitcher kept a dairy while in camp and the following extracts from it will give an idea of how the president spent his days:

April 9.—Left the post at 9 a. m., and arrived at the camp on the Yellowstone river about 1:30 p. m. At night a large camp fire was lighted near the president's tent and after dinner, the party sat around it and told hunting stories until bedtime. This was almost a nightly performance.

April 10.—Before starting out the president announced that he would under no circumstances fire a shot in the park, even if tempted to do so by a mountain lion up a tree, lest he should give people ground for criticism. Rode up the river as far as Hell Roading. Saw a number of deer and elk and also saw an eagle attack a band of elk. Had lunch on Hell Roading creek, consisting of hard tack and sardines.

April 11.—Rode about twenty-four miles and got in among a band of nearly 2000 elk. One band followed the party for over a mile.

April 12.—As this was Sunday the president decided that he would take a walk alone. He tramped about twenty miles and spent the time among the elk.

April 13.—Started for camp on Slew creek. Rode slowly and watched the game. Much snow was encountered and Slew creek was entirely frozen over so could do no fishing.

April 14.—Rode out looking for game. Found large herd of elk and the president took Mr. Burroughs among them. Arrived lower creek falls camp at 4 p. m.

April 15.—President took long walk alone and saw some mountain sheep.

April 16.—Broke camp at Tower (correct) falls and returned to Fort Yellowstone. Much game was encountered.

April 17.—Left Fort Yellowstone for Norris Basin. At Golden Gate the horses were abandoned for sleighs and though the snow was four or five feet deep, the trip was made without trobule. Stopped for the night at Norris hotel.

April 18.—Breakfast at 6 o'clock and a start made for the fountain twenty miles distant. Arrived there 1 p. m. Snow very deep, but hard enough to bear the party. President spent afternoon among the geysers.

April 19.—Sunday. Visited upper geyser basin and saw Old Faithful play.

April 20.—Rode to Norris.

April 21.—Started for Canon at 7 o'clock a. m. Snow very deep and soft in places, but got through with little difficulty. Visited Canon on skis. President showed skill on snow shoes and Mr. Burroughs proved himself an apt scholar.

April 22.—Breakfast 4 a. m., left at 5 a. m., for post, which was reached at 1 p. m.

From the above it will be seen that the president has pretty thoroughly explored Yellowstone Park.

OMAHA BUSINESS MEN

Banded Together to Fight the Labor Unions.

Omaha, April 23.—The employers' federation alluded to in the report of the committee of resolutions at the meeting of the National Manufacturers' association at New Orleans, has become a fact in Omaha.

The Business Men's association of Omaha yesterday gave to the press a statement showing that more than 800 business men of the city had banded themselves together to fight the different labor organizations, and each pledges himself to assist any member who has trouble with his employes.

The National Manufacturers' association is said to be behind the movement in Omaha, and it is further said that this city has been chosen by that organization to fight the labor organizations to a finish. The local Business Men's association will have the support of the national association in the fight. Should this prove true there is no doubt that all labor unions in the country will support the Omaha unions, and the fight would be to the death.

The publication of the statement has caused great comment among the labor unions, and a special meeting of the central union has been called to discuss the matter. The platform of the association embraces the three principles:

"Freedom to employ union or non-union labor without discrimination; no limitation or restriction to output; no sympathy strike."

THE RAPID GROWTH

In Exports of Manufactures From the United States.

Are Six Times as Great In 1900 as In 1870.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, April 24.—(Special to The Herald.)—The rapid growth in the exportation of manufactures from the United States is illustrated by some comparative figures in a discussion by the treasury bureau of statistics of our export trade in manufactures, to be presented in the April number of the monthly summary of commerce and finance. The figures compare production and exportation of manufactures with production and exportation of agricultural products, the purpose being to show the relative growth in each case. While the census figures include under the term "manufactures" many articles not so included by the bureau of statistics in its classification of manufactures, the fact that the comparison is simply that of the year 1900 with 1870 for the purpose of showing growth and not a comparison of total exports with total production, justifies the comparison and furnishes a basis for measuring the relative growth in production and exportation of manufactures and production and exportation of products of agriculture. The census figures do not state the total value of agricultural products earlier than 1870, but do state the gross value of manufactures from 1850 to 1900. The gross value of manufactures produced in the United States in 1850 was, in round terms, one billion dollars, and in 1900, thirteen billions; so that the product of 1900 may be said to be thirteen times as great as that of 1850. The exportation of manufactures from the United States in 1850 was $17,000,000, and in 1900, $433,000,000, or twenty-five times as great as in 1850. This indicates that, comparing the figures of 1900 with those of 1850, production of manufactures was thirteen times as great and exportations of manufactures twenty-five times as great in 1900 as in 1850.

The census reports present the figures of agricultural productions in 1870 and decennially down to and including 1900. The bureau of statistics discussion of exportation of manufactures presents a table showing gross value of manufactures produced in 1870 and 1900 as reported by the census, and the total value of manufactures exported in those years as reported by the bureau of statistics; also the census figures of agricultural products in 1870 and 1900, and the bureau of statistics figures of exportation of agricultural products in those years. This table is not made with the purpose of comparing the bureau of statistics figures of exportation with the census figures of production, since the difference in classification makes such comparison impracticable; but the figures are presented side by side for the purpose of showing the relative growth in the two great classes, agricultural products and manufactures. They show, when thus considered, that agricultural production is twice as great and agricultural exportation a little more than twice as great in 1900 as in 1870; but that production of manufactures is three times as great and exportation of manufactures six times as great in 1900 as in 1870.

To sum up in a single sentence this comparison of production with exportation, in agricultural and manufactured products, respectively, it may be said that, comparing conditions in 1900 with those of 1870, agricultural production has increased 92 per cent, agricultural exportation 132 per cent, production of manufactures 269 per cent, and exportation of manufactures 538 per cent.

The following table shows the percentage of increase in production and exportation of agricultural products and manufactures, from 1870 to 1900:

	1870. Value.	1900. Value.	Per Cent Increase.
Agricultural products	$1,958 030,927	$3,764,172,706	92.1
Agricultural exports	361 188,483	835,858,123	131.8
Manufactures produced	4,232 325,442	13,039,279,566	209.1
Manufactures exported	68 279,764	433,851,756	537.7

AFTER TREASURE.

Whole Yard Is Dug Up By Syndicate.

Tuliahoma, Tenn., April 24.—The Guardian force was thrown into a considerable state of commotion when Thomas Breward, who lives at Scottsville, Ala., requested the privilege of doing a little excavation in the back yard of the premises. Mr. Breward stated that he had dreamed three nights in succession that a beautiful woman told him there was a can of money buried in the back yard of the Tuliahoma Guardian office, and pointed out the spot where the treasure was buried. The head of the typographical department of the Guardian wanted to take stock in the search for the pot of money, so after a little dickering on the terms of the division of the swag, a company was formed and men put to work digging.

At 3 o'clock the entire yard had been turned up for a depth of about 3 feet. Then the ardor of the men began to cool, and the diggers refused to labor longer without more money.

The first company abandoned the search and at once a new combine, or trust, was formed to prosecute the work. Some of the stockholders are very sanguine, and are willing to put up their money on the outcome of the venture.

In the meantime the back yard of the Guardian building presents the appearance of having been mixed and blown up with dynamite. Monday morning a new force of men will be put on, and the search vigorously prosecuted.

FIRE AT NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.

New Brunswick, N. J., April 23.—The New Jersey Experiment building was destroyed today by a fire that started in the chemicals. Many rare specimens of insects discovered by Prof. Smith, state entomologist, were lost. The loss is $100,000.

NINE THOUSAND MILES TO WED

Travels to Sitka to Marry Man She Never Saw.

Valdosta, Ga., April 24.—Nine thousand miles to marry a man whom she has never seen was the journey a young woman of this county started on this week.

The young lady was Miss Julia Roe, who has been an inmate of the home of J. D. Bamberg, at Naylor, for two or three years.

Her journey across the continent will take her to Sitka, Alaska, where she expects to meet and wed a man named Thompson.

The couple were brought together through an advertisement which Miss Rose read in a matrimonial paper seven or eight months ago. A correspondence resulted, which has continued and culminated in the engagement of the couple and the determination of the young lady to take the long journey to the bleak Northwest in order to marry the man of her choice.

Thompson's photograph shows him to be a man of good appearance, and he stated in his letters that he was prepared to take care of and support a wife. He is a native of Sweden and is engaged in a fishery business at Sitka.

Owing to the long distance to be traversed each way, if he came to Georgia to marry, Thompson proposed to his sweetheart that she go to him, and sent her money with which to pay the expenses of the trip. She bought a ticket to Seattle, Wash., where she will take a boat for Sitka. It will take her ten or twelve days to make the trip.

MISSIONARY CONFERENCE

To Be Held at Lookout Mountain, Tennessee.

New York, April 24.--A conference for leaders of missionary work in Sunday schools and Young People's societies of the Southern and Western states, will be held on Lookout Mountain, Tennessee, July 1-8. This conference will be similar in its general plan and program to the conference for leaders which was held last summer, and which will be held again this summer at Silver Bay, on Lake George, New York.

The purpose of these conferences is to bring together the strongest workers from the Sunday schools and Young People's societies of all denominations, for a week or more of unhurried prayer and conference concerning methods of missionary work among young people. The conferences are intended as councils of war for the organization of a more comprehensive missionary campaign among young people, and as training schools for the better equipment of leaders in the campaign.

In addition to official representatives of denominational missionary organizations who are expected to be present, an invitation is extended to leaders from local societies.

Inasmuch as most if the delegates attend these conferences in connection with their summer vacations, the programs are so arranged as to give ample opportunity to recreation in the afternoon. Lookout Mountain, rising 2390 feet above sea level, and 1700 feet above Chattanooga and overlooking seven states, forms an excellent starting point for numerous inexpensive excursions that will be organized by the recreation committee to points of exceptional natural and historic interest.

While the vacation features will be emphasized to some extent, the conference is meant to be a gathering of serious and purposeful leaders of young people's work, who are in downright earnest, touching the missionary propaganda.

FOR CONCILIATION BOARD.

The Railroads Will Appoint Members at Once.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 23.—President Nichols, of district No. 1 of the mine workers, received word today that the presidents of the coal carrying roads would at once appoint three members of the board of conciliation to represent them. He believes the first meeting will be held within a few days. President Fahey, of the Ninth district, received word that the thirty thousand men of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal & Iron company who were locked out on Monday returned to work today.

RACING SEASON

Will Begin at Nashville Under Favorable Conditions.

Nashville, Tenn., April 23.—A racing season of nine days will be inaugurated at Cumberland Park this afternoon. The weather is delightful and the track in fine condition. The Cumberland derby is the chief event of the meeting. Six horses are carded to start, but it is more than probable that Bardop will decline the issue, as his owners, Goodman & Bauer, are giving the colt preparation for the Kentucky derby. Fore and Aft will probably go to the post favorite for the derby, though Sinner Simon and Barca will have a strong following. The other races have filled exceptionally well. Many horsemen and horses arrived from Memphis this morning and the stables at the track are taxed to their utmost capacity.

Keep a good supply of Ayer's Family Medicines on hand. It's so easy then to take one of the Pills at bedtime if you feel a little bilious, or if your stomach is a trifle out of order.

Just so with the Sarsaparilla. A few doses will bring back your lost appetite, give strength to your weakened nerves, and relieve you of that terrible feeling of exhaustion.

And besides there are the children to think of. A dose or two at the right time often means so much.

BOOKS ARE RUINED

By Ants That Fed on Prescriptions For Killing Them.

Insect Has Been Known to Destroy Whole Libraries.

Washington, April 24.—In a neglected vault of the department of agriculture was stored an accumulation of records and documents.

One of the janitors gave the vault a spring airing recently and to his dismay he discovered that an insect of some description had dug trenches in long straight rows through certain sections of the records piled high in the vaults, while in other sections were caves and deep mines.

When exposed for a short time to the air, the records crumbled to pieces. Entomologists of the department had told American housewives how to rid their homes of roaches. Farmers had been carefully coached in the latest methods of destroying chinch bugs. Science had practically annihilated the calico-back cabbage bug and the lady bug gave promise of destroying the San Jose scale.

But here within the walls of the department an insect had attacked and vanquished the musty records which told how other pests were to be destroyed. C. S. Marlatt, known as the annihilator of the bed bug, was called.

"White ants have done it," shouted the janitor. "It was the work of termes flavides," cried Mr. Marlatt, reprovingly. Both were correct.

The white ant is one of the most destructive of all insects. In the merry month of May it flourishes from the Atlantic to the Pacific. In more southerly sections it is at its best in April.

"Our records are not complete," said Mr. Marlatt in explanation, "but we know that an accumulation of books and papers owned by Illinois was entirely ruined by what you have called white ants. A library in South Carolina, closed for the summer, was as complete a wreck in the fall as our own volumes in the adjoining vault. Humboldt accounts for the rarity of old books in New Spain by the destructive work of these insects. The flooring of one of the sections of the United States national museum was for years annually undermined and weakened by these insects and the colony could not be found. It was finally necessary to replace the wooden floors with cement."

For these important reasons, among others, we have the learned treatise by Mr. Marlatt on the white ant with suggestions as to the best manner of outwitting them, which even the author must confess, are not always successful. When all other recommendations fail the only recourse according to Mr. Marlatt, is to replace flooring with cement and stone.

The term "white ant," Mr. Marlatt insists, is a misnomer. The white ant is not an ant at all. Its social habits are much the same as those of other ants, but it is allied to the dragon flies and May flies. In their swarming the white ants come out in pairs. If one of these pairs succeed in finding a decayed stump or unabridged dictionary, before the season is over white ants are reproduced at the rate of sixty to the minute, or something like 50,000 a day. Race suicide is not one of the sins of the ant family. White ants contrive to get along without a queen. What the entomologists call a supplemental queen, one that is never winged and never leaves the colony, always comes forward to replenish the species.

Having warned us of the damage done to libraries, office desks and even buildings, Mr. Marlatt observes that the greatest protection against these insects is perfect dryness. The presence of flying termes in the spring should be followed by an immediate and persistent hunt for the colony. If the colony is found about the house, steam or hot water should be used to kill them. Better than hot water or steam is kerosene or some other petroleum oil. Where floorings and underpinning or books and papers are badly infested and a wholesale treatment becomes imperative, the hydrocanic acid-gas fumigation is urged.

And Purest and Sweetest of Toilet Emollients.

Cuticura Ointment is beyond question the most successful curative for torturing, disfiguring humours of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, ever compounded, in proof of which a single anointing preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed in the severer cases, by a dose of Cuticura Resolvent, is often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly humours, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure when all other remedies fail. It is especially so in the treatment of infants and children, cleansing, soothing and healing the most distressing of infantile humours, and preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp and hair.

Cuticura Ointment possesses, at the same time, the charm of satisfying the simple wants of the toilet, in caring for the skin, scalp, hair, hands and feet, from infancy to age, far more effectually, agreeably and economically than the most expensive of toilet emollients. Its "Instant relief for skin-tortured babies," or "Sanative, antiseptic cleansing," or "One-night treatment of the hands or feet," or "Single treatment of the hair," or "Use after athletics," cycling, golf, tennis, riding, sparring, or any sport, each in connection with the use of Cuticura Soap, is sufficient evidence of this.

RECTOR TO BE PUT ON TRIAL

An Episcopal Clergyman Is Charged With Favoring Rome.

New York, April 24.—The Protestant Episcopal church is about to hurl itself into the middle of the big row, it being positively asserted that the Rev. Paul James Francis, minister general of the Order of the Atonement, with headquarters at Garrison, N. Y., is to be brought to trial.

Papers in the case have been prepared, it is said, by Bishop Coleman, of Delaware, in which diocese the Rev. Mr. Francis is cononically resident.

It was Bishop Coleman who instituted the order, not at his own desire, but upon the appeal of the present minister general. The Rev. Mr. Francis was ordained deacon by Bishop Lee, of Delaware, but advanced to the priesthood by Bishop Scarborough, of New Jersey, who acted for Bishop Lee, the latter being ill.

Bishop Coleman's charge is the teaching of the Rev. Mr. Francis, who has for some years openly advocated the Episcopal church's acknowledging the Roman obedience and procuring pardon for the sin of having denied, for some hundreds of years, the spiritual supremacy of the pope of Rome.

A leader of the Catholic party in the Episcopal church, resident in this city, said concerning the Rev. Mr. Francis and his teaching:

"Catholics of the church have no sympathy with the position taken by the Rev. Mr. Francis and the Order of the Atonement. There is no element among us who desire union with the Church of Rome. We are behind the movement which has urged Bishop Coleman to prepare papers to bring him to trial.

"Somebody gave Mr. Francis' order a mountain at Garrison, worth about $300, and upon the one side of it he has established a monastery, so called, and upon the other side his sister, under a second Order of the Atonement, has established a mother house."

DISCOVERY OF RICH WASH

Attracts Hundreds of People to a California Field.

San Bernardino, Cal., April 24.—Never has a gold strike in the vicinity of Needles caused such interest as the findings in the Sacramento wash, twelve miles west of Goffsdeliver.

Like all gold strikes, there is really nothing in sight for those who now rush to the scene, as the discoverers, W. H. Orr, and others, have located a strip of land which takes in the entire width of the wash, a half mile in distance at the point of the strike, and which absorbs the length of the wash for a distance of ten miles. So it can be readily seen that no matter how rich the original ground may develop, there is small chance for the locator. But nevertheless the excitement in this city is unabated and every day witnesses the departure of new men for the scene of the strike.

Business is almost suspended. Even some of the officials of the Santa Fe have the gold fever and have paid a visit to the scene of the strike, and the lesser employes of the Santa Fe Company have followed the example set by their superiors. Engineers and trainmen cannot be found by the callboys, and had the regular amount of traffic passed through this place it is doubtful if the trains could have been handled properly.

The saloons and places of business are deserted and there must be at least five hundred men from this city at the scene of the strike. In the wash there is a lively but good-natured scramble for claims. The fact of the rich discovery was known weeks ago and a chosen few were let into the secret and have gobbled up all the available ground.

The course of the wash is due west and is followed by the line of the Santa Fe railroad. The region is bare and forbidding, but the soil is said to respond with wonderful fertility to irrigation. A few small scattered prospect holes are to be found in the foothills, but the Santa Fe railroad is the only permanent improvement of any kind.

STUDIES IN ACTS

PAUL'S JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM

International Sunday School Lesson For April 26, 1903.

Acts 21:3-12. "And when he had come in sight of Cyprus, leaving it on the left hand, we sailed into Syria, and landed at Tyre: for there the ship was to unlade her burden. And having found the disciples, we tarried there seven days: and these said to Paul through the Spirit that he should not set foot in Jerusalem. And when it came to pass that we had accomplished the days, we departed and went on our journey; and they all, with wives and children, brought us on our way, till we were out of the city: and kneeling down on the beach, we prayed, and bade each other farewell; and we went on board the ship, but they returned home again.

"And when we had finished the voyage from Tyre, we arrived at Ptolemais; and we saluted the brethren, and abode with them one day. And on the morrow we departed, and came unto Caesarea: and entering into the house of Philip the evangelist, who was one of the seven, we abode with him. Now this man had four daughters, virgins, which did prophesy. And as we tarried there many days, there came down from Judea a certain prophet, named Agabus. And coming to us, and taking Paul's girdle, he bound his own feet and hands, and said, thus saith the Holy Ghost, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles. And when we heard these things, both we and they of that place besought him not to go up to Jerusalem."

Golden text: "The will of the Lord be done." Acts 21:14.

The heroism of a great soul is nowhere better displayed than in the spectacle of Paul drawn toward Jerusalem by a keen sense of duty, yet heavily conscious of the personal dangers he would there encounter. From Corinth he desired to go direct to Jerusalem; but he was informed of a Jewish plot against him. He, therefore, decided to thwart his enemies by retracing his steps through Macedonia so as to reach the Holy City later—too late for the Passover, but in ample time for Pentecost. He was repeatedly admonished that dangers awaited him, but he was undaunted. At Philippi Luke joined him and shared the tedium of his slow voyage. We have already studied Paul's farewell to the Ephesian elders. After he had spoken that address at Miletus, he went aboard his ship, which set sail, apparently with a fair wind, and made for Cos, an island headland that gave them their next bearing.

At Cos the vessel probably anchored over night. The chief city of this fertile and peaceful island bore the same name and was a thriving commercial and banking center. It boasted the famous temple of Aesculaplus, which was the seat of the oldest and greatest medical school of Greece. In the square of the modern city there is an ancient plane tree, said to be 2000 years old, under which Paul and Luke may have discoursed with the people.

From Cos their course the next day lay on to Rhodes, the brilliant ancient Grecian city on the island of the same name. It formerly had great political power, which, however, was reduced in the second century B. C. by the development of the Roman policy. But its commerce continued to flourish, and it had varying political fortunes until the year 43 B. C., when Cassius exacted 4000 talents from its people and practically destroyed the last vestige of their power. When Paul visited it, it was still a city splendid "in respect of harbors, streets, walls and other equipment." As his ship entered the harbor he could have seen the prostrate mass of the vast Colossus that had been one of the wonders of the world before its overthrow by an earthquake in 224 B. C. It had been a statue of the sun god, 105 feet high, erected in 208 B. C. to commemorate the success of the Rhodians in withstanding a siege. Its fallen form lay unmolested, a curiosity to travelers, until in 672 A. D. an Arab general conquered Rhodes and sold the Colossus to a Jew, who carried it away as old metal.

The next stop Paul's ship made was at Patara, on the mainland of Lycia. This was the principal harbor for the trade of the cities along the valley of the river Xanthos; it was also one of a series of cities at which vessels regularly stopped in the coasting trade that had been growing for over a thousand years before Christ, and that gained vast proportions at just about Paul's time. It was also a stopping place for vessels passing between the East and the West. Shipping from Aegean or Italian ports to Syria stopped at Rhodes, then at Patara; after which they had a straight run to Phoenicia. The ship in which Paul sailed from Miletus was more than likely in the coasting trade bound for Antioch along the shores of Pamphylia and Cilicia, or it may have been bound for Egypt; while the ship in which he sailed from Patara was probably en route from Greece or Italy directly to Syria.

At any rate the route from Patara lay in a straight course to Cyprus, the sight of which must have quickened the apostle's recollection of his early labors there with Barnabus. He could hardly have suppressed a keen regret that his work and that of Barnabas had not been united and harmonious. As soon as his ship sighted Cyprus, it bore to the southward of it and passed in a direct course on to Tyre, to which port the ship's cargo was consigned. But the ship itself was going on down the coast to Ptolemais. While waiting for the ship to unload her burden, Paul went into the city, hunted up the disciples of Christ living there, and did what he could do in the course of seven days to strengthen their faith. They, in turn, warned him of the danger he was facing in his journey to Jerusalem. Although they felt that they were acting under the guidance of the Holy Spirt in warning him, he yet disregarded their warning, for he was acting in accordance with his great life plan, which had been born of prayer and the personal revelation of the glorified Christ. The Christians of Tyre followed him out of the city down to the beach to bid him God-speed. On the sands, under the open canopy of heaven, with the plashing of the waves for obligato, they together worshipped God and prayed for the physical and spiritual prosperity of each other, the especial burden of the prayer of the group of Tyrians being for Paul's safety at the approaching Pentecost. He then went aboard his ship, perhaps with a heavy heart, but with no faltering of his purpose to show the church at Jerusalem that his gentile converts had genuine Christian faith and grace, even if in some things their practices differed from those in vogue in Jerusalem.

At Ptolemais Paul's company tarried but one day to greet the Christian company there. They then proceeded about forty-two miles over the plain of Sharon to Caesarea, where they were received by Philip, the evangelist, who had been one among those who fled from Jerusalem, after Stephen's death, in terror of Saul's persecution. He had probably been kept away from Jerusalem during the intervening years by the very hate of the Jews that was so soon to threaten Paul's life and force him to imprisonment.

Philip had been one of the seven deacons chosen by the Jerusalem church to administer its charities. He was one of the most liberal-minded men in the church, and preceded Poul in the effort to bring gentiles into the church. His work in Samaria marked the first stage in the broadening movement of the young church. This Samaritan work was quickly followed by Philip's ministrations to the Ethiopian eunuch, which extended still farther the word of welcome to the new faith. These two incidents virtually declared that disabilities of race, previous religion or outward circumstances have no place in the kingdom of God. Philip's subsequent evangelistic work in the country between Azotus and Caesarea, in which latter place he settled, played a very important part in the progress of the early church.

The four daughters of Philip do not stand alone as prophetesses of the New Testament. For women to prophesy was so common an occurrence that Paul gave some directions to the Corinthians to regulate the conduct of the prophetesses (1 Corinthians 11). In the Old Testament three of the best known names are those of women who prophesied, viz.: Miriam, Deborah and Huldah (Exodus, 15:20; Judges 4:4; 2 Kings, 22:14).

Agabus had been for years a prophet, a predictor, in the Christian church. He was a relic of the old dispensation handed on to the new. He had gone from Jerusalem to Antioch, soon after the planting of the church at the latter place, and had predicted a great famine, which actually occurred. On the basis of his prediction an offering was taken at Antioch and sent to Jerusalem by Barnabas and Saul for the relief of the poor during the famine. That was near the opening of Paul's ministry.

Near the close of the great apostle's evangelistic work the same man came to Caesarea and, after the manner of certain Old Testament prophecies (1 Kings 22:11, Isaiah 20:2, Jeremiah 13:1, Ezekiel 5:1), bound himself with Paul's girdle, saying, So shall the Jews at Jerusalem bind the man that owneth this girdle, and shall deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles. No doubt Agabus had heard in Jerusalem of the plots formed against Paul. He knew the value of Paul's life to the church, and probably loved the great apostle, for his work's sake, if for no more personal reason, and desired to save his life and freedom. All Paul's friends besought him earnestly to forego his contemplated visit to Jerusalem. They plied him with both arguments and tears; but he was a Roman in spirit, though not in blood. For a Roman to fear was accounted treason, and Paul knew no fear when duty called him.

How trivial the concern of his friends must have seemed after he reproached them with having added an extra burden to his already heavy load by weeping and appealing to his sympathies. He had a tender heart, but an iron will that was master of his life. No temporary emotions could cause him to swerve from his conception of duty. He was an old warrior. He had "fought with wild beasts at Ephesus;" had braved perils upon perils for the honor of the cross, and was he now to quail before the jealous wrath of his fellow-countrymen? Such wrath had been his meat through all his missionary journeys. Why should he fear being bound who had been both imprisoned and beaten with stripes? And why fear to be delivered into the hands of the Gentiles? Had he not been expending the best efforts of his life to convert Gentiles to the cross? And had not one great desire of his heart been to go to Rome in order to preach the gospel there? Then, too, the Christ, who had called him to preach, and who had sustained him through the trying years of his ministry, would continue his grace to the end.

With such sublime faith, Paul calmly asserted that he was ready to be bound, if need be, and more, to die at Jerusalem for the name of Jesus. So earnest and steadfast was Paul in his remonstrance with his friends that they exclaimed, "The will of the Lord be done!"

There was never anything half-hearted about Paul. He was always red-hot in his enthusiasm for what he undertook. Yet he was a man thoroughly self-possessed in the face of peril or duty. It seems almost commonplace to read on (Acts 22:15). He packed his baggage and joined the procession of Jews that was wending its way to Jerusalem for Pentecost. There he was provided with a home in the house of a Cypriote, who maye have been one of his own early converts. He had in his baggage the heavy offering of the Macedonian churches for the Jerusalem Christians. How he had yearned for that very day to come! Yet, his mild-mannered benevolence had led him to come and take his lodging in the crater of a volcano of sectarian wrath.

JOE JEFFERSON

Declares Opposition to a Subsidized National Theater.

Birmingham, Ala., April 23.—Joseph Jefferson, the dean of the American stage, delivered a lecture here in the Jefferson theater before a large audience, composed of club women, taking for his subject, "The Drama."

In the course of his lecture, Mr. Jefferson said that he expected to bring down criticisms on his head from his profession, but he was opposed to the proposed national theater. He said that the difficulties were location and then management. He called no names, but said that some actors were so irate that they would not play a second part to any one. He did not believe a subsidized theater in this country could be operated successfully.

EDUCATIONAL CONFERENCE

Dr. McKelway Makes Address on "North and South."

Richmond, Va., April 13.—President Ogden called the educational conference to order at the morning session. The attendance was very large. The first business was reports on field work. Joseph B. Graham, of Alabama, made the first, showing the extent of the advancement in legislation and individual effort for education in his state.

Dr. Charles W. Dabney, of the University of Tennessee, followed.

Reports were also made by Dr. Frizzel, of Hampton, Va.; Dr. Edwin Alderman, of Louisiana, and Dr. McIvor, of New York. All were encouraging. Dr. Alderman talked interestingly of the educational campaign methods of Louisiana. It seemed to be the opinion that North Carolina made a better showing than any of the other states reported upon.

The principal address of the morning session was that of Dr. St. Clair McKelway, whose theme was "North and South."

After declaring that "the contemporary North is in sympathy with the contemporary South," and that "the young captains and the young soldiers of industry refuse no reverence to the veterans of the civil war on either side, but the men of this generation are determined to run it," Dr. McKelway laid down these propositions, which he elaborated in clear and earnest terms:

"The sons will preserve and magnify the fame of their fathers, but they will not foster or fight over again their feuds, since the fathers themselves, an illustrious and a pathetically thinning band, long ago renounced rancor and dissolved differences. Let what people that may, elect to do otherwise, the effectives, both of the North and South today believe in factories quite as much as in pantheons, in energy more than in inquests and in school houses more than in graves. A spent quarrel not of our making and not of yours, shall not be revived or reworked to do the unmaking of either of us. We will finally honor the shades of our ancestors, but we will not put ourselves among their tombs. We will honor as ever the parents, the survivors of the struggle between the states."

In closing he said: "Fellow citizens let us remember the oneness of our American destiny. Let us be thankful that in the baptism of blood all serious causes of division and reproach were purified away. Let us be grateful for times of peace through progress and of progress through peace. Let us hail them as but the prelude of still better days to come. From this tableland of time let us strike hands for the betterment, of politics; for the cleansing of rules, for the moral trusteeship of private wealth and of public office; for the lifting of poverty through self help, into comfort, for the considerable leadership of ignorance into knowledge, for the transmutation of provincialism into patriotism and of patriotism into philanthropy."

At the conclusion of Mr. McKelway's address the conference took a recess until 3:30 p. m.

UNDESIRABLE IMMIGRANTS

Many Turned Back at Canadian Boundary During March.

Washington, April 23.—In March 379 immigrants who sought admission to the United States through Canada were turned back. The analysis of causes for which admission was denied these aliens, leads the imigration officials to conclude that Canada is no longer a harbor of refuge for aliens who cannot get into the country in any other manner. In commenting on the significance of the rejections, Commissioner Watchorn, of Montreal, says in his report to Commissioner General Sargent:

"Of those rejected for having dangerous diseases forty-eight were at Sault Ste. Marie, and thirty-one at Winnipeg, leaving only seventeen for the remainder of the border. Less than one year ago inspectors adjacent to borders of New England and New York state alone had 95 per cent of cases of dangerous contagious diseases on their rejection sheets. Now the entire border east of Sault Ste. Marie yields only seventeen such cases, while the two stations above named have as high as seventy-nine. This indicates a decided effort on the part of that class of alien immigrants to follow the wall with a view of getting around its Western end and now that it has become known that it has no Western end, it will be very surprising if we do not soon notice a very perceptible diminution in this class of immigration. Gratifying as all this is, it is still a deplorable fact that so many as 379 aliens should in a single month be found unfit to enter the United States. The bureau may rest perfectly satisfied that the standard of fitness, as indicated in the act of March 2, 1903, will be required of all persons who gain admission to the United States through Canada."

DISAGREEABLE REFLECTIONS

The mirror never flatters; it tells the truth, no matter how much it may hurt the pride or how humiliating and disagreeable the reflections. A red, rough skin is fatal to beauty, and blackheads, blotches and pimples are ruinous to the complexion, and no wonder such desperate efforts are made to hide these blemishes, and cover over the defects, and some never stop to consider the danger in skin foods, face lotions, soaps, salves and powders, but apply them vigorously and often without regard to consequences, and many complexions are ruined by the chemicals and poisons contained in these cosmetics.

Skin diseases are due to internal causes, to humors and poisons in the blood, and to attempt a cure by external treatment is an endless, hopeless task. Some simple wash or ointment is often beneficial when the skin is much inflamed or itches, but you can't depend upon local remedies for permanent relief, for the blood is continually throwing off impurities which irritate and clog the glands and pores of the skin, and as long as the blood remains unhealthy, just so long will the eruptions last. To effectually and permanently cure skin troubles the blood must be purified and the system thoroughly cleansed and built up, and S. S. S., the well known blood purifier and tonic, is acknowledged superior to all other remedies for this purpose. It is the only guaranteed strictly vegetable blood remedy. It never deranges the system or impairs the digestion like Potash and Arsenic and drugs of this character, but aids in the digestion and assimilation of food and improves the appetite. Being a blood purifier and tonic combined, the humors and poisons are counteracted and the blood made rich and pure, and at the same time the general health and system is rapidly built up and good health is established, and this, after all, is the secret of a smooth, soft skin and beautiful complexion.

I suffered for a number of years with a severe Nettle-rash. About twelve years ago I started using S. S. S., and after taking three bottles I felt myself cured and have since taken a bottle occasionally, and had little or no trouble along that line. My general health has been better since. I recommend S. S. S. as a good blood medicine and all round tonic, Yours truly.

Mrs. M. I. PITTARD.

Some two years ago I suffered a great deal, caused on account of bad blood. Small rash or pimples broke out over my body and kept getting worse day by day for over a year. Seeing S. S. S. advertised in the papers and having heard also it had cured several people in this city, concluded to give it a fair trial. After using the medicine for some time, taking in all six bottles, I was entirely cured.

VAN SANT'S ANIMUS

Clearly Shown In the Investigation of Ex-Auditor Dunn.

No Doubt That He Is a Candidate For Re-Election.

With the state conventions more than a year away, the close of the late session of the legislature was marked by extraordinary activity in the contest for the Republican nomination for governor in 1904, and much plotting and counter-plotting was in evidence.

While some of Samuel R. Van Sant's friends deny that he is a candidate for a third term, the news that he is a candidate, published authentically in The Herald for the first time several days ago, is absolutely correct, and it is now generally received as such in St. Paul.

A bit of evidence of a somewhat circumstantial nature is forthcoming from the examination of the state auditor's office made by a sub-committee of the house committee on public accounts and expenditures. It may not be generally known that this was a direct attempt, on the part of the state administration, to find something that would discredit the candidacy of former State Auditor Robert C. Dunn, who, it is now generally admitted, will be Governor Van Sant's principal opponent in the race.

The examination into the state auditor's office, while nominally done by the house committee on public accounts and expenditures, was actually handled by the office of Public Examiner Sam T. Johnson, a henchman of the governor. In the report that was submitted, while it was generally favorable to Bob Dunn, there were little insinuations that, when they are analyzed, show the animus of the affair.

For instance, reference was made to the large amount of railroad and other taxes due, and the report somewhat sternly said that these ought to be enforced. The impression was left that the auditor's office had been a little lax in not enforcing these collections, though the statement was not made in so many words. As a matter of fact, the state auditor has no more to do with collecting taxes than the governor, and the parties that made up the report knew it. That is the function of the state treasurer's office.

There are several such instances as these in the report, all going to show that the public examiner's office, through a loyal sub-committee of the public accounts an dexpenditures committee, did its level best to find something that would injure Bob Dunn's chances as a candidate for governor.

There really would be no possible excuse for this if the governor were not a candidate himself, and did not hate to see a probable rival occupying a posion too favorable in the eyes of the people.

A fine instance of pettiness in high places was shown during the visit of President Roosevelt to St. Paul. While the president was enroute, ex-Congressman Joel P. Heatwole, of Northfield, received a telegram and later a letter from the president's private secretary, saying that the chief executive wanted to see him during his St. Paul visit.

So Mr. Heatwole came up to St. Paul to see the president. He was at the capitol when the president was, and when there was a little reception in the governor's office he made his first attempt to get to the ear of the state's honored guest. Somewhat to his surprise, he was rebuffed at every turn and was positively refused admission to the governor's office.

This is easily explained by the fact that Mr. Heatwole has always been a strong opponent of Van Sant. Mr. Heatwole continued his efforts with the same result. Finally he learned that the president was to take a private street car for Minneapolis at the car barns, and he started for that place, arriving there in time. At first the cotierie of gubernatorial henchmen that had surrounded the president was going to keep him off the car. As soon as the president learned he was there he was sent for and given a place alongside Mr. Roosevelt.

While they talked, apparently in a confidential manner, it is said to have been very interesting to watch the manner in which the Van Sant party squirmed and tried to look pleasant.

Up from the southwestern part of the state comes a report of a new Richmond in the gubernatorial field.

It is reported that Jacob F. Jacobson, the real, wild and woolly "Jake of Lac Qui Parle," is to be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor. The report has not been circulated much as yet, and it is probably published here for the first time, but it comes from a close friend of Jake's, who made the statement in all sincerity and apparently with full belief in its truth.

Just how much figure Jacobson will cut is problematical. Immediately after his last legislative term, when the farmers believed he was their only salvation from high taxes, he might have cut more figure than he will now. But almost immediately thereafter he ran for state auditor, with poor results, and it has been reasonably and logically said that if he could not be nominated for auditor, where would he get off as a candidate for governor?

* * *

The political results of the recent session of the legislature have not so far shown themselves to be particularly far-reaching or important. The governor certainly did not make anything by it politically, for from time to time both houses went a gainst his expressed and rumored will, and they did not appear to have any compunctions about it, either. At the same time, no great amount of political capital was made by anybody because of the session, and there is nothing that the Republican party as a whole, in its next state fight, can look back to and "point to with pride." As a matter of fact, there are some things, such as the failure to have any tax amendments to the constitution submitted to the people, that may have to be explained.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Teacher Saves Life of Boy By Stopping a Train.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Miss Minnie Bowen, a teacher in the primary department of the public school at Humboldt, a little town about fourteen miles west of Sioux Falls, saved the life of a 5-year-old boy. A train on the Omaha road was just leaving Humboldt, and while passing the school house the engineer saw the teacher running toward the train, frantically motioning to him. The engineer did not at first pay any attention to her, bt there was something so determined in her gestures that he finally stopped the train. When it came to a standstill a little boy tumbled off the pilot, where he had crawled before the train started, and rolled down the embankment. Had it not been for the persistence of the teacher the engineer would not have stopped and the train, gaining greater headway, the little fellow would have been shaken from the pilot and killed.

In the United States court sentences were imposed as follows upon those guilty of selling liquor to Indians: Charles Marshall, a Mexican gambler of Geddes, fined $100 and sentenced to twelve months i nthe Sioux Falls penitentiary; Daniel Arnold of Everett, fined $100 and sentenced to jail for six months; Abe Smith of Pierre, a term of nine months and fine of $100; Thomas Conley of Pever, one year and six months and a fine of $600; Samuel Lewis of Sioux Falls, a term of six months and a fine of $500; Bernard McGiney of Sisseton, term of one year and a fine of $100. George Arm, a Rose Bud Indian, was given six months for horse stealing. Henry Bradley, a Crow Creek Indian, for a similar offense, was given a year. Frederick Boehple of Hudson, who pleaded guilty to shipping game out of the state, violating the Lacey law, was fined $100, which he paid.

Parker—The city election resulted in a majority of 32 for license.—On the proposition to bond the city for $10,000 with which to put in better waterworks, the vote stood 229 to 27 in favor of bonding.—Dr. R. D. Melvin was elected alderman in the third ward and Gus Pfeiffer in the first. Ole Shager was elected assessor and C. M. Pier justice.

Miller—Delegates to the number of about fifty are attending the Presbyterian convention. The Ladies' Presbyterian Mission society elected Mrs. U. G. Brooking to represent it at the general assembly at Los Angeles. The opening sermon of the presbytery was preached by Rev. Mr. Labail, of Flandreau.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Mayville—The train service has been improved by the putting back of the old local train between Breckinridge and Larimore. This gives this place four passenger trains a day, and besides there is a "jerkwater" train that loops the loop from Casselton every day, one day going up the Clifford branch and returning by way of Mayville and the next day vice versa. The plan that has held since the running of the coast trains through here by which they did all the local work from Breckinridge to Larimore and in the very early morning at that, was very unsatisfactory.

Fargo.—The fight for the Bartlett townsite, which has been in progress for twenty-one years, has finally been adjusted through the efforts of Colonel Lounsberry, special examiner. The townsite people will get about forty acres of the quarter section and Lieutenant Smith the rest. There is a fight for the townsite at Buford, somewhat on the same grounds, and the Bartlett case may have some effect on that.

Editor George W. Harrson, former insurance commisioner, is returning to Lisbon after a residence in Chicago. Mr. Harrison left his Lisbon Free Press in the hands of a manager and went to Chicago to act as circulation manager of one of the Boyce publications. His last paper announces that he cannot forget North Dakota and its attractions and will return.

Fargo is to take drastic action regulating the employment offices. For many years no license was required and complaints of ill-treatment by farmers led to an ordinance regulating the business, but it has been generally disregarded and some of the agents are said to be conducting two or three places under one license. A new ordinance has beben prepared, which requires certain conditions and imposes such penalties that it is thought some of the more harmful agencies will be legislated ou of business.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Epidemic of Smallpox Feared In Houghton and Vicinity.

Houghton, Mich., April 24.—(Special to the Herald.)—A possible smallpox epidemic is feared as six persons are victims of the disease, the last case to develop being that of Wycliffe Smith, of Hancock, who has been removed to the detention hospital. Mrs. Nancarrow's boarding-house is quarantined in Houghton, her 4-year-old son being the sufferer. The other cases are scattered throughout the country. The health authorities are taking every precaution, and County Physician Matchette urges every one to be vaccinated. It is believed the contagion was spread by a lumberman from an infected camp near Michigamme, who scattered throughout the Upper Peninsula.

Menominee—After having labored for years in the woods of Northern Michigan and Wisconsin for a living for himself and family, Ira Drake, of Menominee county has fallen heir to a valuable tract of land in the Choctaw Indian district of Indian territory, containing 2080 acres. For some time attorneys have been looking up the lineage of Mr. Drake, and it has just been found that his mother was a direct descendant of a former Choctaw Indian chief, and thereby Mr. Drake, according to law, is entitled to the property inquestion. He has decided to move his family to his new possession and engage in farming and stock raising. The land is very valuable for agricultural purposes.

Five carloads of machinery were shipped last week by the Ludington, Wells & Van Schaick company, of Menominee, to the concern's new cite in Louisiana. The shipment consisted of shafting, pulleys, and other machinery, as well as bedding, windows and supplies for the large boarding house which the company is erecting at the new location. The boilers for the mill will be shipped this week. There are still about thirty carloads of machinery and supplies to be shipped from Menimoniee by the company.

Powers—While several small children were playing in the street near the Opera house at Powers, the 7-year-old son of Samuel Lambert was attacked by a large Newfoundland dog owned by Herman Hartwig, and was severely bitten and scratched about the head. The boy was picked up unconscious, in which state he remained for about twenty-four hours. One of his ears was nearly torn off. The dog was killed by its owner the next day.

Sault Ste Marie—Announcements have been received in the Soo of the marriage, March 23, in Papula, Hawaiian Islands, of Miss Mary Irene Tewsley, formerly of the Soo, to Albert Kellog Herford, a civil engineer from California. The bride resided in the Soo until about three years ago, when she went to the Hawaiian Islands to teach school. She has been teaching in Honolulu and Honuapo. Miss Tewsley attended the high school at the Soo and later taught school in the country.

The brick yard of the Chippewa Brick company, at the Soo, has resumed operations for the season. The plant was equipped with new and improved machinery last year and its maximum capacity is 40,000 brick per day. The size of the output will depend upon the demand for the product. The plant will give empicyment to about twenty-five men.

Escanaba—Escanaba's new library, which has been in course of construction for several months, is about completed and will be opened, it is expected, about June 1. The building is the gift of Andrew Carnegie. The library committee expects to spend about three thousand dollars for the first installment of books. There are promises of several gifts of standard works by citizens and these, with the loan of the G. A. R. library, consisting of 240 volumes of civil war history, will make a good start for the new library. Miss May Hewitt, of Appleton, will be librarian.

CHICAGO AUTO CLUB

Suspends Man Who Refused to Obey Police.

Chicago, April 24.—A. C. Banker, the automobilist, who announced that he would not stop his machine at the call of a policeman when women were riding with him, was suspended by the Chicago Automobile club in a resolution that was reconsidered a few minutes later. A technicality in the wording caused the reconsideration. Members of the organization said the resolution would be regularly adopted.

Banker is blamed by the club for the adoption of the South park commissioners of a regulation requiring that all automobiles on the south side boulevards carry large numbers. He was cautioned a number of times by the park policemen and, when written to by F. C. Donald, a former president of the club, replied that he would not obey a policeman's order when he was accompanied by women. The adoption of the South park regulation followed.

There were no negative votes when a resolution ssuspending him for thirty days was brought before the meeting yesterday afternoon. Afterwards the wording of the resolution was questioned, and it was referred back to a committee.

"NO TREATING"

Saloon to Be Started In New York.

New York, April 24.—"Why should the dividends on rum selling go to the selfish nonelect?" ask the Acorns, a society the members of which have turned their attention to the liquor problem. Great Oak Joe Johnson now wants to sell stock in "The No Treating Tavern company." The capital stock is $20,000, half common, half preferred, of a value of $100 a share. The preferred will pay 5 per cent and the common will get what is left. The prospectus says that every effort will be made to escape criticism of the experiment. The rule of the tavern will be:

"Every patron must pay for his own drink. Treating not allowed."

The real objects, according to the prospectus, are:

First—To eliminate the private profit in liquor selling.

Second—To divorce the liquor traffic from politics and attack blackmail.

Third—To decrease the per capita consumption of liquors.

Fourth—To disassociate immorality from the drinking habit.

Fifth—To enlist the sympathy of sane, practical men to the best control of the liquor traffic under the existing laws.

No women will be served.

FOUND REASON THEN LOST IT

Mysterious Disappearance of Joplin Mine Operator Explained.

Joplin, Mo., April 24.—The case of the mysterious disappearance of Herman Kollineyer from this city eight years ago has at last been cleared up. Mr. Kollineyer was a prominent mine operator here many years ago. He is now in the Joplin city jail violently insane.

Kollineyer left Joplin on Nov. 15, 1895, for Washington on a mining deal. Three days after arriving there he was found to be a raving maniac and was placed in the United States insane asylum. There was nothing on the man's person to indicate where he came from, and he was unable to tell anything about himself. Ever since that time he has been a patient in that institution, repeated efforts failing to establish his identity.

A few days ago Kollineyer suddenly recovered his reason and informed the attendants who he was and where he lived. Arrangements were at once made to return him to Joplin.

During the trip back Kollineyer's reason completely deserted him, and when he arrived here he was violent and could only mutter incoherently by way of reply to questions put to him.

The attendants who accompanied Kollineyer said that he gave the names of a number of Joplin citizens as proof of the statement that his home was in this city. Among the names mentioned are several prominent mine operators remember him well when residing here.

Dealers are especially invited to visit our establishment and inspect as complete a stock of high grade nata as is shown in the Northwest.

WITHDRAW CHARGE

Transportation Companies Will Not Make Dockage Charge.

Some of the Jobbers Would Like to See It Stand.

The 50-cent dock-handling charge for all lake freight landed on city docks, which was threatened ten days ago, has been cancelled by all the lake transportation companies.

The Western Transit, the Mutual Transit and the Anchor companies have notified the jobbers and importers of Duluth that the charge will be absorbed in the straight freight rate as published.

When the lake transportation companies and dock owners made the announcement that there would be a charge of this kind revived, it caused a small-sized panic among jobbers and dealers here who have no docks of their own, as they said the charge had long ago been included in the freight rate and would be ruinous to them if passed.

After a meeting and some conference with the imposers of the proposed charge, it was agreed that it should not obtain in Duluth this season.

Notice to that effect was sent to the jobbers and importers a day or two ago, and importations may be secured at city docks for the cost of shipment from down the lakes, without extra charge for dock handling or storage.

Some of the larger companies, which own their own docks, are not in harmony with the announcement, and insist that they would be in far better condition if the charges were imposed, for it would help Duluth in that more docks would have to go up for use by large shippers in here, who have no docks of their own now, and they would be protected from the shipping in of merchandise or goods by indiscriminate or nondescript dealers who have no money invested here nor who would own docks. They say that they would prefer to pay the 50-cent charge occasionally on goods in less than cargo lots, which, under the lake men's rule, must go to the city docks, thereby protecting their investments in docks which would receive large shipments.

One representative of a large jobbing house expressed himself as feeling much gratified over the $1 a ton a month charge to be made for storage in Duluth, under the Elkins law. The storage of flour here by Minneapolis millers, the storage of salt and cement, for instance, from down the lakes, and its distribution from here and other goods in the same way, are affected.

A cement and salt man is afraid the Twin City people who have been permitted to store their wares in the winter for nothing, will come in and build a warehouse and then go after the local trade, making a hot competition. The jobbers' representative claims his house is beset by the same conditions, but he is willing to take a chance on competition with outside firms who put up warehouses here, and cites the fact that it will be a great help to Duluth in the building and improvements that will be made.

TRAGEDY ENDS A ROMANCE

Simon Hedy's Death Will Interfere With Wedding.

The death of Simon Hedy, drowned near Floodwood yesterday, gave a tragic ending to a happy romance.

The day of his wedding to Mrs. Hilda Johnson had been set just three weeks from the day he lost his life.

Both are well known near Floodwood and the engagement, which was recently announced, created quite a good deal of interest throughout the neighborhood.

Yesterday, while Mr. Hedy was working on a logging contract for the Coldridge Schussler company, at a point twenty miles from Floodwood, he fell into the water and was swept to his death by the swift current of the flooded stream, before the other workmen could reach him.

John Quist was working near at the time and he heard a splash in the water and what seemed to him a struggle. He hurried to the bank and could see Mr. Hedy's hat and pike pole floating on top of the water, but not a sign of the man.

A boat was secured and the river dragged. Late in the day the body was recovered several rods below the scene of the accident and about sixteen feet from the shore.

The body was brought to Duluth today and will be buried from Durkan & Crawford's undertaking rooms. The time of the funeral has not been announced.

HIRED MAN WAS BURNED.

Oak, Neb., April 24.—P. Sosberg, was milking in a cow shed and tipped a lantern over early yesterday morning. The barn contents, including four horses burned quickly. Abner Weberg, a hired man, was in the loft and burned to death.

A PHOENIX.

Head of Colorado School System at 29.

A strong, healthy, hungry farmer's boy will eat pretty near anything that he can get his teeth into. He is very apt in this way to lay the foundation for future ill health, particularly if he takes up a sedentary occupation in later life.

A prominent young man of a city of Colorado, who was born on a farm in Eastern Illinois, says: "All through my youth I had an abnormally developed appetite, which I was allowed to gratify freely. During the winter months especially I consumed great quantities of sorghum molasses, pancakes and biscuits.

"When at the age of 19 I left the farm and entered the school room as a teacher I had become a confirmed sufferer dyspeptic. Constant laxatives were necessary and only the very simplest foods would digest at all. For several years I carried no other dinner to school but oatmeal and crackers.

"Life dragged wearily along in this manner. Six years ago I married and went to college, and two years were spent there, but all the time my mental work was seriously hindered by headaches and drowsiness, caused by my indigestion. Leaving college I taught school again a year, in the midst of which I suffered an attack of brain fever. Three years ago I came to Colorado and took charge of the grammar department of the schools here until February, 1901, when my poorly nourished body could no longer stand the strain upon it and I completely collapsed in both body and mind. For two weeks I lay at the point of death, unconscious most of the time. Then Grape-Nuts was fed to me as a steady diet and the change began. It seemed a miracle.

"To cut the tale short I am now principal of our school system here at 29 years of age and am doing double the amount of brain work I ever did before and am in better health than at any time since I can remember. I eat and digest all kinds of food, no laxatives are used and headaches are almost unknown and Grape-Nuts has made this change for me. You can understand why I most heartily recommend Grape-Nuts, which is now a regular dish at morning and evening meals in my family." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

OH, SO BAD, BUT TRUE.

Once upon a time the president of the United States was booked to spend Sunday in a certain small city, says the Brooklyn Eagle. A celebration of some sort had taken him from Washington, accompanied by other officials and also by various correspondents, and for Sunday he was to be a guest of a prominent resident of the above mentioned city.

Rumor had it that the president would rest, and the correspondents also wished to rest. The only thing that the president would do, acording to rumor, would be to attend church. Now, it had been customary with certain pastors, when thus honored, to have special services and to prepare special sermons appropriate to the occasion, especially when the president's mission gave an exceptional opportunity for it. In time a pastor becomes accustomed to the presence of a president and pays little attention to it, but the pastor of a church that has so important an official in it for the first time usually preaches to, and for him. Knowing this, the correspondents were desirous of securing this particular sermon. But the pastor would not consent. He did not believe in notoriety. He had prepared a sermon, he said, and not a newspaper article. It would be delivered from the public and nowhere else.

"But we must have it," said the correspondents, and thereupon they jointly engaged a stenographer to report it. "We want it in full," they told him, "and we want you to be particularly careful to get his exact words when he makes any reference to the presidential visit or to public affairs."

That being settled, the correspondents enjoyed a day of rest and waited for the stenographer to report. He appeared at the hotel in the evening.

"I have it all," he said, "and I have transcribed and manifolded it."

"Good!" exclaimed the correspondents. "What reference did he make to the president?"

"None," replied the stenographer.

"That's funny," commented the correspondents. What did he say about public affairs?"

"Nothing."

"Most unusual!" ejaculated the correspondents. "It detracts from the interest of the sermon considerably, but the great American public will be interested in knowing what the president heard, anyway."

"But the president didn't hear it," said the stenographer. "He wasn't there."

Never theless the correspondents had to pay for the sermon, which makes this tale a sad, as well as a true one.

One Woman Asked Another:

"There is a good reason why. I purchase everything I need from the Duluth Consignment Co. My husband earns $12.00 a week. I take $3.00 and get $6.00 worth of merchandise. This brings my husband's wages to $15 a week.

RAILROAD DOINGS

Cleaning Up Movement Strikes the Roads In Duluth.

Meeting to Consider Chicago Great Western's Flour Rate.

The movement in Duluth to clean up the town and make it look pretty and fresh, without the embellishment of old market baskets, leaves and tin cans, is getting some aid from the railroad companies.

For several days there has been a force of men at work cleaning up the yard, which is just across the street from the south front of the Spalding hotel, and it is expected that when all the straw and tin cans are swept away, real grass will grow on the ground.

The general superintendents all over the North-Western system have been given instructions to see that all the depot and other grounds of the company are kept spick and span, and the order covers the plot of grass at the Omaha station in Duluth. At the warehouse, also, trere will be a little outdoor cleaning and everything will be in ship-shape if the snow stays away till the grass starts to shoot up.

THE FLOUR RATE.

Roads to Discuss Chicago Great Western's Action.

This afternoon there is being held in Chicago a conference between the St. Paul-Chicago rail lines and the lake transportation men, to discuss the move of the Great-Western road in making a 7½-cent rate per 100 pounds on flour between the Twin Cities and the Windy City. The cut of 2½ cents a hundred has not gone in effect as yet, and the conference may prevent it going into effect at all.

Milwaukee Changes.

Rumors of changes on the Milwaukee road are half confirmed. On May 1, J. N. Barr will take charge of the rolling stock and machinery of the road, in the office of vice president. David L. Bush is to be made general superintendent with headquarters in Chicago, while Herman Earling, superintendent of the Iowa division, is to succeed Mr. Bush as superintendent of the Chicago division, with headquarters at Milwaukee.

Can Restore Rates.

The state railroad and warehouse commission has granted the Minneapolis & St. Louis permission to restore the rates on soft coal to the level of the tariff in effect before July 10, 1902, when a reduction was made in order to permit of shipments from Duluth by Minnesota dealers to meet the prices made by Illinois men, who were attempting to invade the market. The advance will be about 25 per cent. The order of the commission stipulates, however, that should the general investiagtion into coal and lumber rates show that rates have been excessive, the order regarding soft coal may be annulled. The investigation referred to will be held May 13.

Fish Car Here.

A fish commission car, in charge of a government custodian, of several varieties of fry, J. W. Johnson, arrived in Duluth last evening over the South Shore road, and was taken to Lakeside, where the car will remain a day or two.

There were on board the car several million diminutive fish, which will be planted in northern lakes.

Mr. Johnson has just returned from a trip in the Northern Michigan country, where he has been planting large numbers of trout.

Snow at Spooner.

There were two or three inches of snow at Spooner this morning, and it was still snowing when the Omaha train passed through that locality and it was still snowing hard. Duluth escaped with a few flakes early this morning.

To the Moore Funeral.

General Agent T. E. Blanche, of Duluth, and Assistant General Agent F. C. Jackson, of West Superior, were among the Northern Pacific employes who went to St. Paul today to attend the funeral of the late S. L. Moore, general freight agent of the road.

MUST LEAVE FINLAND

Further Expulsions Have Been Ordered Under Decree.

Stockholm, April 24.—Dispatches from Helsingfors, Finland, announce that further expulsions have been ordered under the decree published April 16 prescribing measures for the maintenance of order in Finland. The persons who have been instructed to leave the country include ex-Senator Mechelin, two editors, a former British consul, Eugene Wolff and several leaders of the young Finnish party. They have received notice to leave Finland within a week, otherwise they will be deported.

STUDYING LEPROSY.

Soldier Is Kept In Service as a Subject.

Washington, April 24.—The case of the soldier leper recently referred to in these dispatches is the first ever known in the army. When the disease first developed the man could have been discharged for disability, but it was decided to keep him in the service in order to give the surgeons an opportunity to study the disease. A special house was built for him near Fort Screven, Ga., and he has been living there nearly three months. An army surgeon has been detaled to attend him and to study the disease with a view to ascertaining if it can be cured. No reports have been received from the surgeon.

THEATER NOT SOLD.

London, April 24.—The Lyceum theater was offered at auction yesterday but was withdrawn after the bidding had reached $1,220,000, the auctioneer remarking that he was not empowered to sell the property for less than $1,300,000. The property comprises an area of 23,500 superficial feet, on which are five business buildings besides the theater.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 24.—Miss Jennie Flood, of this city, was arrested today for the alleged murder of John London, who was shot to death in Grattan township last Thursday. An accident insurance policy for $1000 was recently taken out on London's person, with Miss Flood as the beneficiary.

A REMBRANDT STOLEN.

New York, April 24.—A Rembrandt picture, sent to Russia by the director of The Hague picture gallery, has been stolen, says the Herald's representative at The Hague. Some time ago the picture was sent to M. P. De Larof at St. Petersburg, but German railway officials report that the picture never reached the German frontier.

Duluth's High-Priced Store Advertises

Passe Styles as Brand New

Read the following which we clip from their advertisement in Thursday's papers and then think of the facts as you know them—

"A sample line of High-class Tailored Garments were closed out by one of our best makers—over one hundred and fifty of them in all—including Suits of Voiles, Etamines, Cheviots, Broadcloths and Fancy Mixtures—made in all of this season's best styles, including the Russian Blouse, Bolero and Habit Coat effects; all of them beautifully trimmed—every garment right-up-to-the-minute in style and in a regular way would sell for $40, $45 and up to $57.50. We have placed the entire line—over one hundred and fifty of them in all—on sale for $29.50."

The styles mentioned are "gone-bys"—we haven't one of the styles mentioned except in suits carried over from last season.

If you want one of those styles we'll sell 'em to you at $7.48 or $12.48 for choice.

Nothing could more strikingly illustrate the difference in the Duluth store's way of doing business and our way. We tell the truth about our goods—and we sell at prices that are a revelation to people who make careful comparisons of what the Duluth ask.

But if you want a "latest" style suit—don't buy a Russian Blouse, or a Bolero—and don't trust a house which tries to palm them off as "correct styles."

They are not correct styles now—they were all right twelve monts ago—but they're dead now.

Some people haven't found out that styles have changed—or else they have deliberately told an untruth. In either case THEY DO NOT DESERVE YOUR CONFIDENCE.

Will you give them what they do not deserve?

If you have even the slightest idea of buying a new suit this spring, we invite you to come here to see the freshest and brightest collection of stylish suits and costumes in Superior and Duluth.

Our styles are the very latest—they show style developments which appeared after other stores had bought (we held off buying until we could make sure of getting the season's latest and best)—and the garments you see here are down to the last tick of the clock in style.

Some splendidly stylish suits are here at $14.00—they would be $18.50 at most stores—and at $15.00, $17.50 and $20.00 there are numbers of pretty styles that look worth $5.00 more than our prices.

Scores of suits and costumes at $25.00 to $85.00—matchless values and exclusive styles at each price.

These are simple facts—you owe it to yourself to investigate them. If they are true you'll buy here. If they were not true we could not afford to make such bold assertions.

DRESS SKIRTS.

Our stock of Dress Skirts is surprisingly large—you see there were so many pretty new styles out this season and we just had to have them all.

And we have them—and you're buying so freely we almost believe no one else can be selling any.

Here are several specials which will save dollars for those who buy—

$3.50 for $5.00 and $6.00 Dress Skirts of cheviot, serge or Venetian cloth, either plain or silk trimmed.

$7.75 for $12.50 Dress Skirts—made of fine cheviots, broadcloths and Venetians, either flared or flounced, 7 or 9-gored, tucked, pleated, braided or taffeta silk trimmed, reduced from $10.50, $12.50 and $13.50.

SPRING WRAPS.

Magnificent Coats of silk are here in plenty—rich black silks, exquisite glace silks, and pretty pongee silks, all command attention. They're so rich—so exclusive—yet so reasonable in price.

White broadcloth coats are charming—but the real novelty of the season is the corset coat shown here as nowhere else. Other merchants bought before it had fully developed.

$10.00—instead of $13.50—for new Corset Coats of tan covert or black broadcloth—13-gore coats—strap seams—taffeta silk lined—very smart—our leader at $10.00—the price ought to be $13.50.

More 50c Silks at 25c Tomorrow.

These Japanese Kai-Kai Silks run 50 to 68 yards to the piece—the pieces are too big to handle conveniently—and when our great purchase came in, we split the pieces in two—half of each piece went on sale—the rest of them were held in reserve.

These we place on sale tomorrow—and the assortment will be an exact duplicate of that which went on sale Monday morning. Monday we had the silks displayed on two tables—but they were then too crowded—we could not display the silks properly and the crowds were so great that many people couldn't get at them—tomorrow they'll be on sale on three tables—it will be easier for you to get at them and make selections.

No Duluth store can or will give such bargains in fresh and fine silks—they cannot even sell you their "seconds" at the price we offer brand new stylish silks.

Buy them for waists, for kimonas, for night gowns, lounging robes or for children's wear.

Extra salespeople to wait on you—be on hand promptly at 8:30 a. m.

TWO OTHER SPECIALS

49c for 69c guaranteed black taffeta silk—19 inches wide—wear warranted.

89c for 36-inch black taffeta—the new kid finish soft and fine—reduced from $1.00.

A RARE LIBRARY.

Some Treasures In the Residence of a Collector.

Fads can be expensive. Of the making of books there is no end, but in the making of such books as form the collection of Herman A. Metz, of Brooklyn, there are limitations, and severe ones, says the Brooklyn Eagle. For he has books in his library, printed yesterday and day before, that cost a thousand dollars apiece. Extravagant values are put upon first editions, and books that for any reason have become scarce, like those, for instance, of Hawthorne, but few books are published nowadays that are put upon the market at an initial price representing four figures. It needs only a glance at the daily papers to discover instances enough of the first kind, for presentation copies, containing authors' names, often sell for more than the author received as his whole profit on the volume.

Among the treasures of this library is the Barnard Dickens; the Boydell Shakespeare, valued now at $2000; the Abbey Shakespeare, in four volumes, of which only twenty-six volumes were issued; an edition of Charles Sumner's writings and orations, in green leather, the edition limited to fifty copies; a rare Whittier in leather of coffee brown; and all the portraits, usually touched with caricature, that appeared in the English periodical, Vanity Fair, in thirty years. These portraits were the property of Sir John Kent, who assembled them into fifty volumes, all bound uniformly, as to design, but in differing colors, yellow, green and red, with crimson titles, and richly tooled and gilded. After his mix up in the Jameson raid, Kent disposed of some of his belongings, and these came to America. They are unique, in their present form. Another thing that is without a duplicate in this country is "Christopher Columbus, His Own Book of Privileges," published by Benjamin Franklin Stevens, in London in 1893. This contains a photographic copy of the Columbus records in the French foreign office, that bear dato 1502, and opposite each page of reproduced manuscript is the equivalent in Spanish, with a translation into English. The book is oddly bound in wood, with leather of tan color.

There is a sumptuous "Japan," the Shogun edition, put out by A. B. Millet, of Boston, with text by Capt. F. Brinkley, a British officer who lived for years in the Mikado's country, and whose splendid collection of art objects came to New York. This particular edition numbers only twenty-five sets, and is in twelve volumes, folio, all bound differently, in figured silk. A feature of this edition is the inclusion in each volume of an original picture by a Japanese artist, in water color, or cut out in plush, and there are old wood engravings, delicately printed in tint, and curious paintings in black lacquer on silk—altogether a remarkable thing.

The fine Horace of the Bibliophile society companions No. 1 of Ford's Washington in Mr. Metz's cases—carved oaken cases, by the by, covered with leaded glass—and here are interesting Napoleona, "The Arabian Nights' as they really were written, and as Sir Richard Burton translated them, not for Sunday schools, but for the satisfaction of scholars; a set of Hugo in walrus leather, that was in the Paris exhibition, and one of the 200 copies of "The Book of Beauty," in turquoise blue, with inner panels of wine red, gold tooled. To get into "The Book of Beauty" you have to be a woman, and to move in the upper circles. No matter how pretty you may think yourself, if you are of the wrong sex and inconspicuous family, it is no use trying to get in. But you have the consolation of knowing that some of these lovely duchesses and countesses and millionairesse are homely enough to stop a clock.

It is not the Old World, however, that furnishes the contents of this library in which the owner takes the greatest delight. The supreme treasures of this collection are American books, made in Boston by George D. Sproul, whose extremely limited editions are never advertised, never sent out for review, but are rather kept a secret, lest there should be an undue number of applicants and therefore disappointments. To get one of these books is a favor, and after you have achieved it you build a shrine for it and burn candles and incense and let the children look at it on Sundays, for each book is worth a thousand dollars and on earth there are none others like them.

These "St. Dunstan editions," as they are called, are all of recent printing, and only fifteen to thirty volumes of each are published. That sounds like an absurd restriction, but it is to be considered that no paper is used in their construction. They are printed on the finest parchment, which will cost $2 or $3 a leaf, and are printed on only one side at that. Furthermore, their type is so large that a page does not contain the amount of reading matter, by any means, that you find on an ordinary page of a novel. And, again, every page is illumined by hand in the most delicate tracery of heraldic colors, or of soberer tints, with initials, head and tail pieces, title pages and added ornament in gold, in all the splendor of the illuminated missals so patiently and marvelously wrought by the monks centuries ago. Add that every volume is individually bound in the most beautiful confections of leather and ivory, vellum and parchment, that the skill of binders can devise and you begin to understand that these are no ordinary volumes. Thus far the St. Dunstan editions comprise the Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam, Shakespeare's connets in two volumes, Drake's "Culprit Fay, Mrs. Browning's "Sonnets from the Portuguese" in two volumes, the "Holy Grail," the "Vita Nuova" in two volumes and Milton's "Comus." The publication price is $1000 a volume. Earlier in his career Mr. Sproul put out a set of Theophile Gautier's works in twenty-four volumes, limited to twenty sets, illustrated with water color pictures, at $250 a volume, and he issued twenty-two ets of Scott in fifty-one volumes each at $100 a volume. These books, the Gautier and Scott, are on paper, and are quite fine enough for ordinary uses. The binding of the Scott is in oak leaf, or autumn leaf leather, with little ornament.

The illuminating of initials and marginal ornaments on the pages is likely to keep several artists busy for years to come. It compares favorably with the best of the monkish work and is often of daintiest fancy. No two books are illumined in the same manner, so that every buyer has a book that is, in its decoration, unique. The colophon, or the prelude, will set forth the facts after this fashion, taken from the "Comus."

"Milton's Comus. St. Dunstan edition. It is guaranteed to subscribers that eighteen copies only of this edition have been made for sale in America, and twelve copies only for sale in Europe, and that no future edition will be issued; that it is printed from type and the type has been distributed; that this copy, which is No. 23, has been specially illuminated throughout for Herman A. Metz, and that no two copies are alike. Illuminated by Ross Turner. Arranged and printed by the University Press. Published by George D. Sproul."

THE RETORT SILENCING.

WHEAT IS LOWER

Market Rather Slow and Prices Show a Decline.

A Fair Export Demand—Flax Active and Stronger.

Duluth Board of Trade, April. 24.—The wheat market started out weak and lower this morning and ruled easy throughout the session. The weakness was due to the lower cables, the decline at Liverpool being the result of the removal of the English grain tax. There was a good export demand. New York reporting 44 loads taken. Duluth exporters worked a few loads, about ten, and found the United Kingdom somewhat at sea. The Liverpool market closed ½@⅝d higher. Antwerp was unchanged and Paris unchanged to 5c higher.

The Argentine shipments for the week were 1,864,000 bus, against 2,216,000 bus last week and 1,484,000 bus last year. The Argentine visible supply is now 3,752,000 bus, against 3,600,000 bus last week. Bradstreet reports clearances from America this week of 3,988,542 bus against 2,977,777 bus last week, and 3,751,000 bus last year.

Duluth stocks of wheat are estimated to show a decrease of 525,000 bus this week and Minneapolis 100,000 bus.

Primary receipts of wheat were 256,000 bus, last year 154,000 bus. Shipments 643,000 bus, last year 274,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 413,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 116 cars, and at Chicago 51, a total of 167 cars, against 134 last week and 134 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d higher. May corn in Chicago closed ¼c higher and May oats ½@⅝c higher.

Primary receipts of corn were 215,000 bus, last year 232,000 bus. Shipments 477,000 bus, last year 190,000 bus. Clearances were 125,000 bus. Argentine shipments this week were 242,000 bus, against 144,000 bus last week and 721,000 bus last year. Bradstreet reports American exports this week of 1,499,000 bus, against 1,678,000 bus last week and 721,000 bus last year.

Trading in the Duluth market was quiet in wheat and the price lower. May opened ⅜c off at 77c and gradually worked off to 76⅝c at 11:05. At 11:50 it sold at 76⅞c and then fell off and closed at 76⅝c. This was a decline of ⅝c. July declined the same. May in Chicago was off 1⅝c and in Minneapolis ¼c. In New York it fell ½c.

Cash prices were unchanged at ¼c over May for No. 1, northern, and 1¼c under for No. 2. Sales were 5600 bus.

Flax was very active today and the market fluctuated considerable at higher prices. There was considerable of May to July, some at 1⅞s and some at 2c difference. May sold 1½c up to $1.11½, fell off to $1.10⅝, rallied to $1.11¼ and then sold down to $1.10½. The close was ¾c up at $1.10@. July and September also advanced ¾c. Flax receipts in Minneapolis were 14 cars and at Duluth none. Argentine shipments of flax this week were 440,000 bus, against 1,536,000 bus last week and 168,000 bus last year.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Lower With Trading Rather Inactive.

Chicago, April 24.—Wheat opened easier on lower cables, the Liverpool market showing the effects of the removal of the English grain tax in lower prices, and May was unchanged to ¼c lower at 78c to 78¼c, while July was ⅛c lower to a shade higher, at 72⅝c to 73@73¼c. Trading was rather inactive at the start and the situation lacked any features. July was in good demand but the May option was quiet. Later, there was quite heavy liquidation and the price declined to 77½c, while July sold off to 72¾c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 116 cars, which with local receipts of 51 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 167 cars, against 134 cars last week and 134 a year ago.

The market was quite firm the last hour of trading on reports of a big export demand together with a little support from the leaders of the bull movement. After selling down to 77⅝c, May rallied and the close was at 77¾c, a loss of ½c. July sold off to 72⅜c and the close was ½c lower at 72¼c.

Corn opened strong on higher Liverpool cables, the price there being up on poor showing made by several cargoes which had just arrived. Trading was mostly in July and that month opened ¼@⅜c to ⅜@⅝c higher, at 45⅜c to 45½c, advancing later on a moderate demand to 45¾c. May was a shade lower to a shade higher, at 44½c to 44⅝c and the strength in the more distant delivery soon carried the price up to 44¾@⅞c. Local receipts were 79 cars, one of contract grade.

The market held steady throughout the remainder of the day, May closing ⅛c higher at 44¾@⅞c, with July up ¼@⅜c at 45⅝c.

There was only a small trade in oats and the market was barely steady at the start. May opening unchanged at 34⅝c with July a shade lower, at 31⅝c. A general selling movement developed early in the day and prices weakned, May declining to 34⅜c while July sold off to 31½@⅝c after touching 32c. Local receipts were 131 cars.

Provisions were steady to firm in sympathy with the better ton in hogs. Trading was only moderate, however, and prices showed little changes the first hour. July pork opened 5c higher at $17.47½. July lard was unchanged to a shade higher at $9.65 to $9.65@9.67½ with ribs a shade lower to shade higher at $8.67½@9.70.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was dull and with an easier tone. Continental markets retain their previous strong tone, Paris holding the advance of the past few days and Berlin being 1⅝c higher and Buda Pesth 5c higher. Export business, however was only moderate and the cash markets everywhere dull. The fear of Armour liquidation still hangs over speculative confidence and keeps the volume of investment buying small. Armour operations today were unimportant. It looks as if he was willing to sell May wheat around 78 and to replace any sales of July on the soft spots. There was a better commission house buying of September wheat. Until foreign crop prospects improve, we think we would buy July wheat on the breaks. Estimated cars 35.

Corn—Market here was fairly active and strong. Receipts continue small and the cash demand seems to have an improved tendency and cash prices were about ½c higher. There was a commission house buying which looked like Armour adding to his holdings of July and September corn. There is an active local trade, but the outside speculative interest is small. Estimated cars 55.

Oats—The tone of the market was cisler. The weather may shows very little rain interfering with seeding and the cash demand was not so good and cash prices were lower. The short interest seems to have been pretty well eliminated and the market is supported by commission house buying on the theory of a short acreage. We think it is too soon yet to predict a result of this kind. We feel like selling July oats on the hard spots. Estimated cars 110.

Modern Miller: Exceptionally promising are the general prospects of winter wheat crop. This is the case particularly in surplus wheat states of the central region. Wherever there is complaint of impaired conditions from unfavorable weather or insects it is confined to somewhat small areas and on the whole is insignificant. Weather too dry in Nebraska and some damage expected. The average condition of May 1 should be little below that of April 1, the loss in acreage of consequence is heard from except in north Pacific states. Smaller farmers deliveries of wheat are probable now that fair weather permits a resumption of spring farm work.

Snow's weekly crop report says that the past week was highly favorable for farm work. Rainfall very slight and oats seeding was largely completed. Evidence of acreage shortage increasing. Good progress made in corn plowing and soil working well. Wheat condition generally fully maintained with weather conditions ideal. Rain would be benefiting. No evidence of crop deterioration.

STRENGTH SHOWN

In Stocks Though the Session Was Quite Dull.

All the Loss of Early Morning Was Regained.

New York, April 24.—American stocks in the London market led the way in a declining tendency in which there was a decided response in the opening dealings here. Not only the international stocks, but the whole list receded a fraction on a considerable volume of trading. Baltimore & Ohio and Norfolk & Western lost ¾, but the changes did not exceed ½ in any other case.

Some effort was made to extend the decline, but the movement encountered opposition and the market rallied. Manhattan's rise to 142 helped the market, but the depression of the Southern group, notably Illinois Central, Toledo, St. Louis & Western and Sloss-Sheffield Steel declined -½@2.

Prices were inclined to drop from the inanitation of the market, but the movement was very slight. St. Louis Southwestern declined 1½ and Railway Investment preferred, Steel Foundry, Realty preferred, General Electric and Lake Erie & Western an point. The market hardened a shade before noon. Bonds were irregular at noon.

Traders did not attempt to push the rise much further after the market had recovered to about yesterday's close. St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio and Reading gained good fractions, but the general list showed some hesitation when parity was reached. Iowa Central, Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis, St. Joseph & Grand Island second preferred and Pere Marquette advanced 1 to 1½, while Metropolitan securities and New Haven lost as much.

Standard stocks did not vary enough during the afternoon to cause any material change in earlier speculative conditions. Prices yielded slightly from the 10 o'clock level, but there appeared to be no desire to move the list much either way. Smelting was lifted a point, Pullman 4½ and International Power 1¼.

After a decline of a point in Amalgamated, due to the weakness of copper the market began to harden. Reading rose a point over last night in response to the testimony of the president of the company before the interstate commerce commission. The sharp rise in silver was responsible for advances of 1 to 1⅜ in the national railroad of Mexico stocks and Mexican Central. Northwestern dropped 1¾ and Anaconda 4 and Brooklyn Union Gas rose 5½. The closing was dull.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was somewhat lower, but no weakness was shown. The selling of Americans in London market was supposed to emanate from this side and losses averaged about ½ per cent from our close. After this selling was over the market hardened here and gradually gained all of the loss of the early morning. The market ruled very dull up to the noon hour when it was seen that pressure was lifted and improvement set in. The market closed with a firm undertone about the best prices of the day. Its action during such a dull session would seem to argue better prices on resumption of activity.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: If you don't mind possible reactions of two or three points buy on a scale Southern Pacific, Tennessee Coal and Iron, Atchison, New York Central. They may go down a little but they will come back. Though I expect moderately lower prices next year I am no bear.

* * *

Dick to Paine, Webber, & Co.: The market has been very dull and irregular today, at times it was heavy and prices sagged but no long stocks came out and the slight losses were recovered. In the early trading the traders were sellers, later they showed a disposition to cover. The tone at the close was firm. The banks made good reports and all indications pointed to a good bank statement. General news was good. Reading commen was a strong feature and Pennsylvania also moved up at the close.

New York to Coe Commission Co.: A director of the Mexican Central says: "If the Mexican Central had been built in the United States its stock would be selling today for $150 per share. The gross earnings this year will exceed $25,000,000. Last year they were $21,000,000 and ten years ago they were $6,000,000 gross. Thee figures are of course in Mexican silver dollars which have been more than cut in two in value as compared with the gold dollar which we have to pay on the capital which built the road. But this thing cannot continue for ever. We have got to have an advance in railroad rates and I think that this year the Mexican government will also fix a parity of exchange between gold and silver. Once a gold value has been fixed as respects the Mexican silver dollar the Mexican Central will go forward by leaps and bounds. At present all its gains are offset by silver depreciation, but it is making tremendous gains physically and industrially and some day there will be great gortunes made in the appreciation of the Mexican Central property."

* * *

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Although the stock market broadens but slowly, sentiment continues hopeful and the best opinion favors the purchase of stocks on small recessions. Money grows easier. Importance is attached to the fact that time loans which will carry borrowers over January next can be had 5¼ per cent and are epected to be available at plain 5 per cent within a fortnight whereas two months ago time money was unobtainable at scarcely any price. This was a decidedly encouraging feature and it has led certain big operators to "double up" their contracts, that is to cover and go long of as many stocks as they have been short of. John W. Gates is credited with having made this reversal. The heavy buying of Rock Island yesterday estimated at 25,000 shares by Hollister and Babcock is said to have been half for Gates and half for the Moores, who are again quoted as bullish on stocks owing to the crip situation and the favorable outlook for another year of good earnings of grain carrying roads. Rumors of a settlement of the Keene-Harriman differences, while denied by the firm of Mr. Keene's son in law are believed to have something tangible about them, which will become public property later. At all events they have induced excellent buying of both Union and Southern Pacific stocks. One report is that the bulk of Southern Pacific expenditures for improvements will be made this year, also that assurance has been given to the Keene interest that the stock will be placed on a 4 per cent dividend basis early in 1904. Comment on yesterday's development in the stock market reflects no disappointment over the reaction which followed the profit taking sales of professional speculations. Conservative observers look for a speedy resumption of the upward movement and regard current developments as unusually favorable, particularly the rise in consols, the reported abolition of the English grain duty and the heavy engagements of wheat and corn for export.

* * *

New York to Paine, Webber & Co.: The Chronicle says: It was rumored that a settlement between the Keene and Union Pacific interists had been effected. Persons well informed say they have heard nothing of it. Mr. Harriman has gone to the Pacific coast and it is unlikely that any steps will be taken in his absence.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: A decline of a quarter cent per pound in copper quotations on the metal exchange led to selling of Amalgamated, which carried the price down one point. Very good buying was met at around 64. Coppers weakened in sympathy with Amalgamated, but there was practically no selling pressure. This seems to be a market of rallies and reactions and the way trade is to buy on these reactions and then be sure to get out the following rallies. We think coppers will soon be all right again.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 24.—The cotton market opened quiet at unchanged prices to an advance of 2 points, cables being better than looked for. The bearish amount of cotton coming into sight, however, attracted attention with the weather generally favorable except for needed moisture in the central western portions of the cotton belt, in view of which and with no support offered by the bull party, the market eased off and towards noon the improvement was limited to a gain of 1 to 2 points on the new crop months for which there was a demand from the shorts, the latter being about the only upport of the market.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 10 points higher; middling uplands, 10.50; middling gulf, 10.75; sales, none. Cotton futures closed steady; April, 10.31; May, 10.35; June, 9.93; July, 9.91; August, 9.57; September, 8.93; October, 8.66; November, 8.56; December, 8.56.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Thunder Bay Open and Port Arthur Can Be Made.

Heavy Gale on the Lake and Bothers Boats.

The way to Port Arthur is open, Thunder bay having yielded up its covering of ice, and north shore navigation will proceed uninterruptedly from now on.

The Singer line steamer Mabel Bradshaw left yesterday for Port Arthur, and the Booth line steamer America will leave at 10 o'clock Sunday morning for its initial trip. Both lines will run on schedule time from now on.

There is always ice in Thunder bay long after navigation is open elsewhere, and when an entrance can be made to Port Arthur the season of navigation can be considered in full swing.

The steamer C. W. Moore will replace the Argo on the Duluth-Houghton run of the Booth line April 30. Later in the season, if business warrants, the steamer Soo City, which is now running between Chicago and Michigan City, will be brought up and put on this run. The steamer Hunter is likely to run between Houghton and the Sault during the summer. Arrangements toward that end are now pending.

STORMY ON THE LAKE.

Thirty-six miles an hour was the highest wind velocity recorded at the weather office in the Federal building, although fifty miles was registered at the hill-top observatory.

A very high sea is running on the lake and no vessels have departed yet today. The tug Zenith went out for a tow this morning and had a very rough trip, although no damage was sustained.

The Myron and the Schoolcraft arrived with coal. Each of the vessels had three barges in tow and there was some little difficulty in making the canal entrance in safety. It was necessary for the vessels to keep well up toward the north shore in order to escape being dashed against the southern pier, by the heavy sea.

TO TAKE A TUG.

Captain John De Vaney, of Saginaw, Mich., arrived in the city this morning to take charge of the tug Wisconsin. As soon as the fitting out of the tug has been completed she will proceed to Marquette.

BALM FOR HURTS

Six Sufferers From Personal Injuries Seek For Damages.

They Ask the District Court For $24,387 In All.

Six new personal injury cases were started in district court today and notices have been given for the May term of court, the calendar for which will be made up after April 28.

George Hasty has sued the Northern Pacific Railway company for $1910 damages for injuries which he claims to have received while in the employ of Alger, Smith & Co., acting as brakeman on the logging trains from Lake avenue to the sawmill on Rice's Point.

In his complaint, filed this morning, the plaintiff alleges that the railway company has established on the point guarding apparatus termed "tell tales," which are used to measure the loads of logs as the trains pass beneath, so that the company can mark such loads as may be too high to pass under overhead trestle work on the lower end of the point.

Hasty claims that July 2, 1902, while he was riding on the bumper of a carload of logs engaged in the work for which he was employed, the railway company carelessly and negligently permitted a carload of logs to pass through the "tell tale" without noting that was too high to pass under the trestles, and that when passing a trestle a log was forced back against him with such force as to compel him to jump to the ground, where the logs rolled over and cut and bruised him. He claims that his left leg was broken and his right arm and head were cut in such a manner as to disable and cause his sojourn in a hospital for a time. He alleges that before he was injured he could earn $52 per month, but is not now able to work at his trade. His attorney is H. H. Hawkins.

John Manwaring, through his attorney, John Jenswold, Jr., has brought an action for $1999 against the Drake & Stratton company. In his complaint he alleges that while he was employed by the defendant company as a brakeman, last October, on the railroad line operated at the stripping operations on the Mesaba range, he stepped between two engines to uncouple them; that while so engaged one of the engines, without previous warning, was set in motion and his hand was caught in the coupling and badly injured. He claims that the engineer was incompetent and not licensed, and asks a judgment against the defendants.

Ole Wold has begun an action against the Red Cliff Lumber company for $1992 damages for injuries which he claims to have received at the defendant's mill in this city Jan. 2, 1903. In his complaint the plaintiff says that he was employed to pile lumber and push a tram car which operated over a transfer track; that the top of the tram car was fitted with rollers on which the lumber was piled and which were supposed to be prevented from rolling prematurely, by means of pins. He alleges that there was a jog or break in the tram track, and that while the car was being pushed along by the plaintiff, the wheels struck the end of a rail, the lumber slid forward, as there were no pins in the rollers, and the car, being forced back, caught the plaintiff's knee and leg against other timber, causing injuries which have disabled him ever since. John Jenswold, Jr., is his attorney.

The Duluth & Northern Minnesota Railway company is the defendant in a personal injury action brought by Peter Peterson, who asks for a judgment of $1986. The plaintiff alleges that he was employed by the defendant company in May, 1902, repairing the roadbed of the railway line near Brown's camp, and was sent with six other men, in charge of Foreman Henry Denter, to another camp to get some horses. He alleges that they rode down the line on a handcar, which at the direction of the foreman was run at a high rate of speed; that when near Higgin's junction the car ran into an open switch and plaintiff was thrown to the ground and received serious injuries, his collar bone being broken in three places, three ribs broken, left hip thrown out of joint and left foot crushed. Plaintiff claims that he was in St. Francis hospital in Old Superior until September, 1902, and that when he left the hospital his left leg had shrunken until it was one and one-half inches shorter than the right leg and was practically without feeling. He claims that he has been incapacitated from future work and asks a judgment. H. H. Hawkins represents him.

The largest judgment asked is in the case of Louis Backman against the Northern Pacific and Great Northern Railway companies. Backman was injured in a collision at the "Y," near the Union depot, in West Superior, last December, and he demands $10,550 damages. In his complaint, filed this morning by I. Grettum, he claims that while the Great Northern train on which he was riding was backing over the "Y," the coach was struck by a Northern Pacific engine running at a high rate of speed. Plaintiff says the force of the shock was such as to throw him against the opposite side of the car, causing internal injuries that resulted in abscesses and sores from which he has never recovered. He alleges that the Great Northern company was to blame, because its train was not on schedule time and there was no brakeman on the rear end while the train was backing; also, that the Northern Pacific company was negligent in that its engine was being run at so high a speed and without due caution. It is also alleged that the railway companies are to blame for not maintaining a guard or signal man at the crossing.

Emil Johnson has asked for a judgment of $5950 against Nolan Bros. & Laird, who operate a saw and planing mill at Skibo, on the St. Louis river. In his complaint, filed by I. Grettum, this morning, Johnson alleges that the company has maintained a platform leading to a stairway on the north side of the planing mill, covered after night with trucks, and not properly protected with guard rails, or a light for the stairway. Plaintiff claims that after working overtime the night of Oct. 1, 1902, until 10 o'clock, he started for home and in crossing the platform in the dark fell to the ground and broke his left thigh bone and received sundry cuts and bruises.

To the Patrons OF THE East End Line:

During the next four or five weeks, the service on the East End line will necessarily be interrupted by the reconstruction of the tracks. It is not expected that the Lakeside service will be seriously affected.

It was found impossible yesterday to run the local cars ten minutes apart, as had been intended.

Today, and until the temporary track is completed the local cars will be run just ahead of the Lakeside cars. This will make the intervals 20 minutes with two, and during the rush hours three cars every twenty minutes. When the temporary track is completed we expect to shorten the intervals by running local cars about half way between the Lakeside cars.

Lakeside time cards can be secured at the car starter's. The attention of patrons is called to the fact that a regular 10-minute service is now run on the East Fourth street line to 23rd avenue east—a parallel line only four short blocks from Superior street.

DULUTH-SUPERIOR TRACTION COMPANY.

Suit on Logging Work.

Two actions to recover for work alleged to have been done for loggers and for a lien on certain logs were started in district court this morning. Neil Jones has sued W. H. Shea and certain pine logs to recover a balance of $113.56, claimed to be due on a contract entered into last November, and claims a lien on certain logs owned by the John O'Brien Lumber company until they are sold or the judgment is satisfied. M. Fallon has begun an action somewhat similar against James Crowley, claiming a balance due on cotract of $125.50 for which he asks a judgment and claims a lien on certain logs until it is paid. H. H. Hawkins represents the plaintiff in each case.

ANOTHER STRIKE SETTLED.

Oswego, N. Y., April 24.—The strike of 300 laborers for an eight-hour day which was inaugurated April 1 has been settled, the contractors granting the demand. This action forestalls a general strike of all building trades to have been inaugurated May 1.

TO EXPEL MORMONS

Will Be Sent Out of Prussia and Mecklenburg.

Berlin, April 24.—The governments of Prussia and the grand duchy of Mecklenburg have decided to expel the Mormon missionaries, of whom there are 145 in Germany and 90 in Prussia, on the ground that they are propagating a form of religious belief incompatable with the laws of the state and public morals, and because polygamy is not excluded from their doctrines. The missionaries, who are all Americans, will be allowed sufficient time to settle up their personal affairs. None of the Mormons has yet been deported.

The government of Prussia defines the expulsion as being simply a police measure for which no explanation need be made.

THE HOLDING OF VREELAND

Hearing as to "Probable Cause" Continued In New York.

New York, April 24.—The hearing to determine whether there is "probable cause" for holding President Vreeland of the Metropolitan Street Railway company on a charge of criminal libel brought by W. M. Amory was continued today.

A newspaper reporter testified that Amory had refused to give him any more information than was contained in the report of Accountant Hertley, which was published in his paper.

J. Coleman Drayton testified that in January last James R. Keene called him to Mr. Keene's office and asked him how the rumors affecting the Metropolitan were being started. Mr. Keene had said that he had no interest in the matter other than to discover what was going on. Drayton told him he supposed the reports were leaking out from the district attorney's office.

LEAVE THEIR LANDS.

Pattisons Option Them to Oliver Mining Company.

Martin and William Pattison have leased to the Oliver Mining company for a term of fifty years the southeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 28-63-12, adjoining the Pioneer mine, which the Oliver company is operating. The ground so leased is to be utilized for the construction of boiler houses and tracks and such other structures or machinery as may be necessary for mining operations. The lessors retain all mineral rights, and in case the Oliver company abandons operations there inside of the term of the lease, the latter will revert back to the parties of the first part. The yearly rent is stated as $100.

Taking Option on Lease.

Postmaster Kirby Thomas, of West Superior, is branching out into the ore mining business in Northern Minnesota. This morning an agreement was filed with the register of deeds of St. Louis county, whereby Henry S. Swift sells to Kirby Thomas, for $500 a half interest in a $5000 option which the former has for the lease of the northeast quarter of the northwest quarter of section 29, and the east half of the northeast quarter and northeast quarter of the southeast quarter of section 31-59-14. The agreement is dated April 20, and the option to Swift was dated April 1, running for a year, and signed by Mark Tyson and Frank G. Bigelow.

SOUTH DAKOTA CROPS.

Report For the Week Showing Conditions.

The South Dakota crop report issued this week is as follows:

"The weather during the week averaged cool, and was generally fair, except that a beneficial general, and in many sections generous, rain occurred the latter part.

"Seeding operations progressed very favorably, and the greater portion of the lowland that was during the preceding week too wet to work came into favorable condition for seeding and plowing.

"The seeding of wheat is nearing completion in the southern counties and is well advanced in the northern counties. In the middle and southern counties the early-sown wheat and oats are sprouting evenly but slowly because of the cool weather. The sowing of oats, spelts, barley and spring rye is favorably advanced.

"Early potato planting and gardening are general, and the preparation of ground for corn progressed rapidly and is far advanced.

"Fall-sown rye is generally in very favorable condition, has made good progress and shows a very satisfactory stand.

"Prairie grass has on the whole made only moderate growth, but the stand is very good and it affords some pasturage generally. Improvement in the condition of live stock on the range is reported generally.

"Tree buds are opening generally, and in the southern counties the box alder trees are leafing rapidly.

"The week closes with the soil amply moist generally and indications that the rain of the latter part would not to any extent retard field work, except on limited areas of lowland. Warm and fair weather would now be very beneficial for the germination of the sown grain and also for grass."

COUNCIL IS TO MEET

Special Session to Make Change In Gas Contract.

Provision of the Contract That Is to Be Abrogated.

Mayor Hugo has called a special meeting of the council this evening for the purpose of slightly altering the 10-year gas contract with the Zenith Furnace company.

The original contract or agreement between the water and light commissioners and the Zenith Furnace company made it incumbent on the company to build a water gas plant similar to the municipal plant on Garfield avenue, for use in case the gas supply from the coke oven plant should fail at any time.

Friends of municipal ownership have raised the point that such a provision should not be enforced by the city, claiming that at the end of ten years the city might see fit to abrogate the contract, and the Zenith company would then come forth and claim that inasmuch as the city had compelled it to build a water-gas manufacturing plant, it would certainly have a right to use such a plant even if it did compete with the municipal system.

The furnace company has no objection to the city's taking this provision out of the contract, and will build a gas manufacturing plant independent of the coke oven system anyway, in order to protect itself against any possible emergency that may arise cutting off the supply from the coke ovens. The Zenith Furnace company is under a heavy guarantee to furnish gas to the city for a period of ten years just as soon as the contract becomes operative.

In addition to this it is proposed to change the term "lighting gas" to gas for all domestic purposes except the heating of dwellings. The call for the special meeting was served on all the members of the council this afternoon, and it is understood that there will be no objection to making the proposed changes.

NEW CUP DEFENDER HAS HER FIRST TRIAL

The Reliance Sails Away In Light Breeze.

Remarkable Stiffness of Hull Is Apparent.

Bristol, R. I., April 25.—The new cup defender, the Reliance, was given her first trial sail today. The weather was not all that could have been desired, there being only a light breeze from the west, but as the run was mainly to give her builders a chance to look over their finished workmanship, there was wind enough for their needs and enough to send the craft down the bay at moderate speed. The crew of the Reliance were on deck by sunrise, and with the exception of half an hour's respite for breakfast, they worked constantly until after 9 o'clock in an effort to have everything in the best of shape for the yacht's first spin. The decks had been washed down, the mainsail uncovered, and both headsails set up in stops before the men went to breakfast. The sun rose clear, but before long it disappeared under a dark cloud, so that for a time the prospects of fair weather were not particularly favorable. A very light wind came out of the northwest. This was a favorable sign, as it was taken to indicate that before the middle of the forenoon it would breeze up and give the yacht a chance to show her speed from Narragansett bay with started sheets. The Reliance started at 9:35 o'clock. The breeze had shifted to the west and was very light. The yacht swung away from her moorings under three lower sails and a working topsail. Designer Herreshoff was at the wheel. The yacht Sunbeam, the steamer Park City, the tender of the old cup defender Columbia, and the steam yacht Corona, with Commodore Bourne of the New York Yacht club on board, and press tug followed.

Quaker Hill, Portsmouth, R. I., April 25.—The trial sail of the Reliance was observed from this point. When the yacht finally swung away from her moorings she was under mainsail, a working topsail and jib, and was headed towards Hog island light. The stay sail was soon broken out and later a jib topsail was also set.

The Reliance seemed rather stiff, for which the heavy main sail boom and gaff swung well off on the port side, she had scarcely any heel.

When the great sail was set for the first time this morning it was evident that Capt. Barr did not like the set of it exactly, so it was lowered, and the foot hauled out a bit on the boom. Then the sail was again hauled up, the crew working hard to get it taught on the luff. That part of the sail set fairly well, but the leach flapped badly.

The Reliance was an hour getting out of harbor, and while she was drifting along the crew changed the working top sail for a very small club top sail.

At 10:40 the wind strengthened a bit, and trimming in her sheet the Reliance headed out into Narragansett bay.

LATE EX-GOVERNOR RAMSEY ACCORDED MILITARY HONORS

Remains Were Escorted to the Capitol By Infantry From Fort Snelling and Lay In State In the Governor's Oifice—Viewed By Many.

St. Paul, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of ex-Governor Ramsey lay in state in the governor's inner office at the capitol this morning and was viewed by a steady stream of people of all sexes, ages and conditions, passing silently and thoughtfully by.

The first gun of a governor's salute—seventeen guns—boomed from the new capitol grounds at 9 o'clock to announce that the procession had started from the family residence, and the last was sounded as the head of the column reached the old capitol.

The escorting column was composed of 200 picked men from the Twenty-first regular infantry at Fort Snelling, headed by a squad of mounted police and marching to the solemn tones of music from the Twenty-first infantry band.

Along the route, which was up Seventh street to Wabasha, then to the capitol, the sidewalks were lined with people who looked on in silence.

Arriving at the capitol, the troops were drawn up two deep and came to a present arms as the hearse halted before the Wabasha street door and the casket was removed. A squad of regular soldiers bore the remains up the capitol steps to the catafalque in the governor's office.

The little inner room had been draped and decorated with potted plants. The old painting of the deceased, which was hung in the office for many years, was ornamented with red and white roses.

On the black casket were laid wreaths of white roses, lilies of the valley and a floral tribute from the Loyal Legion.

About it stood the guard, selected from the First Minnesota survivors. Copt. I. N. Mahan, Richard Gorman, Isaac Cheney, F. W. Dohn, Charles Miller J. B. Benton, Henry O'Dell and Middleton Bevans.

The first that filled in to look at the late war governor's face were a number of young school children, who had stood on the outside of the capitol for hours.

The funeral was held from the late residence on Exhange street, this afternoon.

SECRET SERVICE MEN FIND TRAMP ON PRESIDENT'S TRAIN

Gillette, Wyo., April 25.—The secret service men on the president's train had an exciting mix-up with a tramp last night shortly after the train left Livingston. A man was discovered between the baggage and club cars on the outside of the vestibule. One of the officers raised the window in the front of the club car and started to grab the man, when the latter aimed a blow at him through the glass, shattering it.

The officer caught the man's leg and succeeded in getting him into the car, where he showed fight. He was a powerful man and it took some time before he was overpowered and handcuffed.

A card found on him shows his identification as Edward Russell, a sailor, member of the Sailors' union, of San Francisco. When the train reached Billings he was turned over to the police. When asked why he was on the train, Russell said he wanted to reach St. Paul, where his mother lived.

The president's train arrived here at 9 o'clock this morning and remained about ten minutes. A crowd was at the station to greet the president, and he made a brief address.

THE KID JUMPED ALL OVER HER

New York, April 25.—The second trial of the suit of Miss Marie Bentz for $25,000 against Harold Hartshorn, the 12-year-old son of James E. Hartshorn, a banker, has been opened in the supreme court. Miss Bentz says the alleged assault on which the suit is based was committed on Oct. 25, 1900, when the boy jumped on her back, kicked her and maltreated her so that she had an aesthesia and partial paralysis. Her clothes were torn into shreds, and when she complained to the boy's mother she was told that other governesses had not objected to the treatment. Miss Bentz asserts that she has not been able to earn a dollar since the alleged assault; that she has been obliged to pay doctors, nurses and hospital fees, and is unable even now to do any work owing to her nervous condition.

GUARDIAN ASKED FOR YOUNG CHASE

Cincinnati, April 25.—Attorneys Herman, Wilby, Kumler and others for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duehme, of this city, today filed an application for the application for the appointment of a guardian for both the estate and the person of Moses Fowler Chase, of Lafayette, Ind., and arguments thereon were made before Judge Nippert of the probate court here. In an ex parte hearing, no service having been had upon Frederick S. Chase, the father of Moses, or others in interest. The insanity hearing in this case is set for next Monday at Lafayette before Judge De Hart and it is sought to anticipate it by maintaining that Moses Fowler Chase is a resident of Cincinnati and not of Lafayette.

Mrs. Duehme has also waived her claims to guardianship and has asked the court to appoint George Hoadley, of the firm of Harmon, Colston, Goldsmith & Hoadley.

VIRGINIA'S MAYOR

May Be Removed From Office By the Governor.

He Allowed a Prize Fight to Take Place There.

St. Paul, April 25.—The Dispatch has received information from Virginia, Minn., that the mayor of that city is likely to find himself in deep water in a day or two because he allowed the prize fight between McDonough and McMahon to take place there Wednesday night. It is said that he was informed by the governor's office that the fight must not be allowed to come off, and that he assured the state authorities that the law would be enforced.

The mayor of Virginia has confided to friends that he has been warned of an investigation by the state authorities, who want to know why the governor's orders were violated. The mayor has been infarmed that he is in danger of being removed from office by the governor for refusing to carry out the law, as directed. No attempt was made to pull off the fight secretly. It was done openly and attended by the whole town, and the mayor now finds himself in a very unpleasant predicament. Governor Van Sant will not talk about the matter.

STEAMER AGROUND.

First Boat Up the St. Lawrence Gets Stuck.

Montreal, April 25.—The steamship Carrigan, loaded with rails from Darrow, the first boat to come up the river, and for the arrival of which the longshoremen were anxiously waiting to declare themselves, ran aground below Sorel. McLean, Kennedy & Co., the agents, have sent down two tugs and forty men to get her off. The strikers announce that they will send down men to prevent the unloading.

FOREIGN RESIDENTS WARNED.

Madrid, April 25.—Advices from Morocco say the consuls at Tetuan and Ceuta have warned the foreign residents to be ready to leave at a moment's notice.

COLORADO FLOATS

Another Armored Cruiser For Uncle Sam Successfully Launched.

Distinguished People From Washington and Colorado Witness Event.

The New Vessel Christened By Miss Cora May Peabody.

Philadelphia, April 25.—The armored cruiser Colorado was launched today at Cramps shipyard in the presence of a distinguished gathering of officials from Washington and the state of Colorado, including the entire congressional delegation. Miss Cora May Peabody, daughter of Governor Peabody of Colorado, broke the bottle of wine on the prow of the cruiser as she glided down the ways at 12:35, into the Delaware river. Miss Peabody was escorted to the christening station by Charles H. Cramp, president of the Cramp Shipbuilding company, and the fair sponsor was followed by her father, Governor Peabody, Mrs. Peabody, James C. and Miss Jessie Peabody. The Washington party arrived here over the Pennsylvania at 11 o'clock and proceeded at once to the shipyard. It included Assistant Secretary Darling and Mrs. Darling, Admiral and Mrs. Bowles, Admiral and Mrs. Bradford, Admirals O'Neill, Melville and Endicott and Mr. Cowles, Commanders Southerland and Scroder, Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, and his three sons; Senor Riano of the Spanish legation, Capt. Boutekoff of the Russian legation, and Commander Takahira of the Japanese legation, and Representative Minor of Wisconsin. A number of prominent persons from Colorado attended the launching.

The cruiser Colorado is of a new class of vessels added to the American navy. She is an armored cruiser of the first class. Coupled with tremendous battery power she has the speed of an ocean liner.

The vessel is 502 feet long, 59 feet, 6 inches wide, with a draught of 24 feet, 6 inches. Her speed requirement calls for 22 knots an hour for four consecutive hours.

She is fitted with twin screws, twin triple-expansion engines, which must develop 23,000 indicated horsepower. All of the armor is of the most improved Krupp-ized type. The water line region is guarded by a seven and a half foot belt reaching from bow to stern. Amidships for a distance of 244 feet abreast the engines, boilers and magazines, the belt has a maximum thickness of 6 inches. Forward and aft this belt will have a uniform thickness of 3½ inches. Five inch armor will surround the six inch guns at the four corners of the superstructure on the main deck. The four 8-inch guns are mounted on two balanced turrets, with slanting faces, having armor 6 and 8 inches thick. A belt of celleuose, extending from bow to stern, above the protective deck will automatically plug all

PRESIDENT RESUMES TOUR AND IS GUEST OF NEBRASKA

Many People Have Travelled One Hundred Miles Overland to Get a Glimpse of the Executive When He Stops at Alliance.

Lincoln, Neb., April 25.—President Roosevelt and party will be the guests of the state of Nebraska at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon with the arrival of the special train at Alliance, Neb. From this afternoon until the party leaves the state Tuesday, the president will be accorded one of the most brilliant and hospitable receptions ever given to an executive in this state.

At the first formal stop this afternoon at Alliance, Gen. Culver and a special reception committee on behalf of Governor Mickey will welcome the party to the state. It is probable that at no other point in the state will so great a stretch of country be represented by the visitors as at Alliance this afternoon. Many persons have gone 100 miles overland to see the president at the Western Nebraska town today. President Roosevelt will spend one hour and fifteen minutes in Alliance.

THIRTY YEAR MYSTERY MADE CLEAR THROUGH A PENSION

Man Supposed to Have Been Dead, and His Estate Settled Long Ago, Turns Up Alive and Well at San Jose, Cal.

San Jose, Cal., April 25.—A romantic story has been developed and a 30-years' mystery made clear by means of a letter received by the San Jose Mercury from Frank J. Martin, a member of the editorial staff of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, who wrote making inquiries regarding his father, who in 1872 was a prosperous farmer, and in February of that year went to Baltimore with a large consignment of stock, which he disposed of, after which all trace of him was lost. It was believed that he had been murdered, and after several years his considerable estate was probated and distributed to his heirs. Some years ago his supposed widow was granted a pension, the missing man having served as a soldier in the civil war, at the time of his discharge being a lieutenant colonel of the Seventy-third Ohio volunteers.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Martin learned that John F. Martin had applied for a pension from San Jose, Cal., which led the son to write to the Mercury to investigate the case. Martin was found without difficulty, as he had resided here since last June. He readily admitted his identity, and defended his course in abandoning his wife and four young children by the statement that there was an insufferable difference of temperament between himself and his wife. He said he would write to his son.

BANK ROBBERY WAS FRUSTRATED

Frankfort, Ind., April 25.—Michigantown, six miles east of this city, was the scene of an attempted bank robbery at an early hour today, a running fight being carried on in the streets of the village, the robbers finally making their escape with the bullets of the pursuing posse whistling about their ears.

The robbery was frustrated by a committee of citizens chosen to act as guards for the town. This action was the result of the appearance of several strange men in town yesterday. At midnight six men appeared at the bank and the battle began. Once or twice sharp cries were heard from the would-be robbers, but they finally made their escape in the darkness.

VANDERBILT AND MRS. RUTHERFURD MARRIED

MRS. W. K. VANDERBILT, FORMERLY MRS. RUTHERFURD.

The Ceremony Occurred In St. Mark's Church In London.

Vanderbilt Personally Secured License From Bishop of London.

Bride and Groom Leave Immediately, the Destination Unknown.

London, April 25.—William K. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Anna Rutherfurd were married today at St. Mark's church, North Audley street. The officiating clergyman was the Rev. R. H. Hadden.

The wedding took place just before noon. Winfield Hoyt, of New York, was the best man, and Henry White gave away the bride. The only other persons in the church besides the verger were the duke and duchess of Marlborough. Mrs. Rutherfurd wore a simple, gray traveling dress and no jewels of any kind. Mr. Vanderbilt, Mr. White and the duke of Marlborough wore the usual frock coats.

There was no wedding breakfast or reception. Immediately after the ceremoney the couple started for the country. Their destination was not revealed, but it is known that they will remain in the country for some weeks before going to any city.

It seems that Mr. Vanderbilt personally secured the license and managed the whole affair himself. Three weeks ago he established a residence in London, and last Wednesday he personally applied for and secured a license from the bishop of London while the reporters were all watching the Archbishop of Canterbury's office.

The bishop of London's jurisdiction applies to the diocese of London only, while that of the archbishop of Canterbury applies to the whole of England.

Mrs. and Miss White are still staying at Mrs. Rutherfurd's flat in Paris. Mrs. White would have accompanied Mrs. Rutherfurd to London, and have been present at the wedding, but Mrs. Rutherfurd asked her to remain with her children.

The license set forth all the details of the Vanderbilt divorce and the previous marriages of both parties. It is understood the couple are not going to America for some time.

A telegram from Dover says Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt crossed the channel this afternoon on a boat bound for Calais.

There was a pathetic incident in connection with the wedding. Almost immediately after the ceremony the Rev. Mr. Hadden officiated at the funeral service of one of his own young children.

The bride was the reciplent of many handsome presents from Mr. Vanderbilt and others.

It appears that Chancellor Tristram of the Bishop of London's consistory court, held a special court Wednesday and took the personal testimony of Mr. Vanderbilt, whose counsel also submitted documentary proofs of the divorce proceedings at New York, and of the fact that the prohibition against his remarriage had been removed by the supreme court at New York. The license was subsequently granted.

HETTY GREEN SAYS WOMEN PARADE AROUND TOO MUCH

They Never Learn to Keep House, Husbands Become Dissatisfied, Trouble Begins and the Whole Thing Ends In the Divorce Court.

New York, April 25.—Mrs. Hetty Green applied in the supreme court, Brooklyn, yesterday, to defend an action brought against her to recover money alleged to be due. The plaintiff did not answer when the case was called, and it was dismissed. Mrs. Green was told by her attorney that she might go home, but she refused, saying that she would remain until court was adjourned, because she wanted to make sure that he case would not be called again.

Mrs. Green noticed that the waiting room held a number of women and asked the cause. She was told that it was the day set aside for the trial of undefended divorce suits. "What a pity," she said. "The trouble is that the women never learn to keep house, but prink up and parade around. Then the men begin to parade around and trouble begins. It always ends here. I know because I have lived in hotels and have seen it."

GEN. MANNING'S FORCES ROUT SOMALIS AND RESCUE COBBE

About Two Thousand of Mad Mullah's Men Were Slaughtered By British Troops Before the Colonel Was Relieved—British Losses Not Known.

Aden, Arabia, April 25.—Brig. Gen. Manning, after an engagement with the Mad Mullah's forces, has relieved Col. Cobbe, near Gumburru, Somaliland, forty-five miles westward of Galadi. About 2000 of the Mullah's men were killed. The British loss is not known.

The few details obtainable of the disaster to Col. Plukett's detachment April 17 show the Mullah's forces consisted of 2000 horsemen and 10,000 spearsmen. They surrounded Col. Plunkett's force in the open and the Somalis, after a heavy rifle fire, charged repeatedly, with their horsemen and spearsmen, on all sides. The British detachment held out until its ammunition was exhausted and then charged with the bayonet, but it was ultimately overwhelmed by weight of numbers. The British force fought until all its officers and 170 men were killed. Most of the handful of men who reached the camp were wounded. The Somalis losses are reported to have been enormous.

The Mullah's forces are reported to aggregate from 3000 to 4000 mounted men and about 80,000 spearsmen.

"PRINCE" RANJI SMILE IN TROUBLE

New York, April 25.—"Prince" Joe Ranji Smile, Indian chef at a prominent restaurant, who posed as a native potentate while on his way to this country to open an Oriental restaurant, and his backers in the venture must answer to the government for alleged violation of the contract labor law. The United States district attorney has filed complaints in fifteen actions against them, charging them with bringing that number of native Indians into this country. The restaurant proved a failure and most of his stranded company were sent home by the government.

A PARLOR MATCH CAUSED DEATH

Holds, N. Y., April 25.—Miss Jessie Inger, of this place, is dead from burns resulting from her dress catching fire when she stepped on a match. She was alone in her home. In walking across a room she accidentally stepped upon a parlor match and the fire ignited her gown. The woman made frantic efforts to extinguish the flames by rolling upon the floor, but she was not successful. The furnishings in the room caught fire and she fled from the house, where a policeman caught her and succeeded in extinguishing the flames. In the meantime the firemen were called out to extinguish the blaze in the house.

CATHOLICS CRITICISED

Charges of Extravagance Are Made at Havana.

Havana, April 25.—There is considerable public criticism of the Catholic church authorities on the grounds of alleged extravagance, and that the Friar orders are being strongly re-established in Cuba. The church officials deny the charge of extravagance, and instance the case of Archbishop Chappelle, the apostolic delegate for Cuba, who has no emolument or compensation for his expenses except his salary as archbishop of New Orleans. They say they deplore the tendency to infidelity among the Cubans, and add that they are endeavoring to check it by weeding out any improper or incompetent members of the priesthood.

Some of the orders which were disorganized during the revolutionary period have now been assigned homes in church buildings here. The titles to thees properties, however, continue to be vested in the archbishop.

HUNTING FOR ITALIAN

Who May Know Something About Barrel Mystery.

Boston, April 25.—New York inspectors assisted by members of the Boston police force are pursuing investigations in this city in connection with the New York barrel murder mystery.

A telegram received from the New York police stated that detectives would arrive with information that might lead to the arrest of an eye witness if not a spectator in the killing of Madonia. The detectives came and at once the full detective squad of the city was put to work looking for an Italian whose identity was obtained from one of the suspects now in custody in New York. It was known that the man had fled the metropolis, first going to Providece, and finally coming to Boston on the request of friends, who promised to keep him in concealment until he could be gotten out of the country.

About it stood the guard, selected from the First Minnesota survivors. Capt. I. N. Mahan, Richard Gorman, Isaac Cheney, F. W. Dohn, Charles Miller J. B. Benton, Henry O'Dell and Middleton Bevans.

The first that filled in to look at the late war governor's face were a number of young school children, who had stood on the outside of the capitol for hours.

The funeral was held from the late residence on Exhange street, this afternoon.

STEAMER AGROUND.

First Boat Up the St. Lawrence Gets Stuck.

Montreal, April 25.—The steamship Carrigan, loaded with rails from Darrow, the first boat to come up the river, and for the arrival of which the longshoremen were anxiously waiting to declare themselves, ran aground below Sorel. McLean, Kennedy & Co., the agents, have sent down two tugs and forty men to get her off. The strikers announce that they will send down men to prevent the unloading.

FOREIGN RESIDENTS WARNED.

Madrid, April 25.—Advices from Morocco say the consuls at Tetuan and Ceuta have warned the foreign residents to be ready to leave at a moment's notice.

HETTY GREEN SAYS WOMEN PARADE AROUND TOO MUCH

They Never Learn to Keep House, Husbands Become Dissatisfied, Trouble Begins and the Whole Thing Ends In the Divorce Court.

New York, April 25.—Mrs. Hetty Green applied in the supreme court, Brooklyn, yesterday, to defend an action brought against her to recover money alleged to be due. The plaintiff did not answer when the case was called, and it was dismissed. Mrs. Green was told by her attorney that she might go home, but she refused, saying that she would remain until court was adjourned, because she wanted to make sure that he case would not be called again.

Mrs. Green noticed that the waiting room held a number of women and asked the cause. She was told that it was the day set aside for the trial of undefended divorce suits. "What a pity," she said. "The trouble is that the women never learn to keep house, but prink up and parade around. Then the men begin to parade around and trouble begins. It always ends here. I know because I have lived in hotels and have seen it."

PRESIDENT RESUMES TOUR AND IS GUEST OF NEBRASKA

Many People Have Travelled One Hundred Miles Overland to Get a Glimpse of the Executive When He Stops at Alliance.

Lincoln, Neb., April 25.—President Roosevelt and party will be the guests of the state of Nebraska at 4:45 o'clock this afternoon with the arrival of the special train at Alliance, Neb. From this afternoon until the party leaves the state Tuesday, the president will be accorded one of the most brilliant and hospitable receptions ever given to an executive in this state.

At the first formal stop this afternoon at Alliance, Gen. Culver and a special reception committee, on behalf of Governor Mickey will welcome the party to the state. It is probable that at no other point in the state will so great a stretch of country be represented by the visitors as at Alliance this afternoon. Many persons have gone 100 miles overland to see the president at the Western Nebraska town today. President Roosevelt will spend one hour and fifteen minutes in Alliance.

SECRET SERVICE MEN FIND TRAMP ON PRESIDENT'S TRAIN

Gillette, Wyo., April 25.—The secret service men on the president's train had an exciting mix-up with a tramp last night shortly after the train left Livingston. A man was discovered between the baggage and club cars on the outside of the vestibule. One of the officers raised the window in the front of the club car and started to grab the man, when the latter aimed a blow at him through the glass, shattering it.

The officer caught the man's leg and succeeded in getting him into the car, where he showed fight. He was a powerful man and it took some time before he was overpowered and handcuffed.

A card found on him shows his identification as Edward Russell, a sailor, member of the Sailors' union, of San Francisco. When the train reached Billings he was turned over to the police. When asked why he was on the train, Russell said he wanted to reach St. Paul, where his mother lived.

The president's train arrived here at 9 o'clock this morning and remained about ten minutes. A crowd was at the station to greet the president, and he made a brief address.

THIRTY YEAR MYSTERY MADE CLEAR THROUGH A PENSION

Man Supposed to Have Been Dead, and His Estate Settled Long Ago, Turns Up Alive and Well at San Jose, Cal.

San Jose, Cal., April 25.—A romantic story has been developed and a 30-years' mystery made clear by means of a letter received by the San Jose Mercury from Frank J. Martin, a member of the editorial staff of the Philadelphia Public Ledger, who wrote making inquiries regarding his father, who in 1872 was a prosperous farmer, and in February of that year went to Baltimore with a large consignment of stock, which he disposed of, after which all trace of him was lost. It was believed that he had been murdered, and after several years his considerable estate was probated and distributed to his heirs. Some years ago his supposed widow was granted a pension, the missing man having served as a soldier in the civil war, at the time of his discharge being a lieutenant colonel of the Seventy-third Ohio volunteers.

A few weeks ago Mrs. Martin learned that John F. Martin had applied for a pension from San Jose, Cal., which led the son to write to the Mercury to investigate the case. Martin was found without difficulty, as he had resided here since last June. He readily admitted his identity, and defended his course in abandoning his wife and four young children by the statement that there was an insufferable difference of temperament between himself and his wife. He said he would write to his son.

THE KID JUMPED ALL OVER HER

New York, April 25.—The second trial of the suit of Miss Marie Bentz for $25,000 against Harold Hartshorn, the 12-year-old son of James E. Hartshorn, a banker, has been opened in the supreme court. Miss Bentz says the alleged assault on which the suit is based was committed on Oct. 25, 1900, when the boy jumped on her back, kicked her and maltreated her so that she had an aesthesia and partial paralysis. Her clothes were torn into shreds, and when she complained to the boy's mother she was told that other governesses had not objected to the treatment. Miss Bentz asserts that she has not been able to earn a dollar since the alleged assault; that she has been obliged to pay doctors, nurses and hospital fees, and is unable even now to do any work owing to her nervous condition.

GENERAL MANNING'S FORCES ROUT SOMALIS AND RESCUE COBBE

About Two Thousand of Mad Mullah's Men Were Slaughtered By British Troops Before the Colonel Was Relieved—British Losses Not Known.

Aden, Arabia, April 25.—Brig. Gen. Manning, after an engagement with the Mad Mullah's forces, has relieved Col. Cobbe, near Gumburru, Somailland, forty-five miles westward of Galadi. About 2000 of the Mullah's men were killed. The British loss is not known.

The few details obtainable of the disaster to Col. Plukett's detachment April 17 show the Mullah's forces consisted of 2000 horsemen and 10,000 spearsmen. They surrounded Col. Plunkett's force in the open and the Somalis, after a heavy rifle fire, charged repeatedly, with their horsemen and spearsmen, on all sides. The British detachment held out until its ammunition was exhausted and then charged with the bayonet, but it was ultimately overwhelmed by weight of numbers. The British force fought until all its officers and 170 men were killed. Most of the handful of men who reached the camp were wounded. The Somalis losses are reported to have been enormous.

The Mullah's forces are reported to aggregate from 3000 to 4000 mounted men and about 80,000 spearsmen.

CATHOLICS CRITICISED

Charges of Extravagance Are Made at Havana.

Havana, April 25.—There is considerable public criticisim of the Catholic church authorities on the grounds of alleged extravagance, and that the Friar orders are being strongly re-established in Cuba. The church officials deny the charge of extravagance, and instance the case of Archbishop Chappelle, the apostolic delegate for Cuba, who has no emolument or compensation for his expenses except his salary as archbishop of New Orleans. They say they deplore the tendency to infidelity among the Cubans, and add that they are endeavoring to check it by weeding out any improper or incompetent members of the priesthood.

Some of the orders which were disorganized during the revolutionary period have now been assigned homes in church buildings here. The titles to thees properties, however, continue to be vested in the archbishop.

GUARDIAN ASKED FOR YOUNG CHASE

Cincinnati, April 25.—Attorneys Herman, Wilby, Kumler and others for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duehme, of this city, today filed an application for the application for the appointment of a guardian for both the estate and the person of Moses Fowler Chase, of Lafayette, Ind., and arguments thereon were made before Judge Nippert of the probate court here, in an ex parte hearing, no service having been had upon Frederick S. Chase, the father of Moses, or others in interest. The insanity hearing in this case is set for next Monday at Lafayette before Judge De Hart and it is sought to anticipate it by maintaining that Moses Fowler Chase is a resident of Cincinnati and not of Lafayette.

Mrs. Duehme has also waived her claims to guardianship and has asked the court to appoint George Hoadley, of the firm of Harmon, Colston, Goldsmith & Hoadley.

BANK ROBBERY WAS FRUSTRATED

Frankfort, Ind., April 25.—Michigantown, six miles east of this city, was the scene of an attempted bank robbery at an early hour today, a running fight being carried on in the streets of the village, the robbers finally making their escape with the bullets of the pursuing posse whistling about their ears.

The robbery was frustrated by a committee of citizens chosen to act as guards for the town. This action was the result of the appearance of several strange men in town yesterday. At midnight six men appeared at the bank and the battle began. Once or twice sharp cries were heard from the would-be robbers, but they finally made their escape in the darkness.

"PRINCE" RANJI SMILE IN TROUBLE

New York, April 25.—"Prince" Joe Ranji Smile, Indian chef at a prominent restaurant, who posed as a native potentate while on his way to this country to open an Oriental restaurant, and his backers in the venture must answer to the government for alleged violation of the contract labor law. The United States district attorney has filed complaints in fifteen actions against them, charging them with bringing that number of native Indians into this country. The restaurant proved a failure and most of his stranded company were sent home by the government.

A PARLOR MATCH CAUSED DEATH

Holds, N. Y., April 25.—Miss Jessie Inger, of this place, is dead from burns resulting from her dress catching fire when she stepped on a match. She was alone in her home. In walking across a room she accidentally stepped upon a parlor match and the fire ignited her gown. The woman made frantic efforts to extinguish the flames by rolling upon the floor, but she was not successful. The furnishings in the room caught fire and she fled from the house, where a policeman caught her and succeeded in extinguishing the flames. In the meantime the firemen were called out to extinguish the blaze in the house.

HUNTING FOR ITALIAN

Who May Know Something About Barrel Mystery.

Boston, April 25.—New York inspectors assisted by members of the Boston police force are pursuing investigations in this city in connection with the New York barrel murder mystery.

A telegram received from the New York police stated that detectives would arrive with information that might lead to the arrest of an eye witness if not a spectator in the killing of Madonia. The detectives came and at once the full detective squad of the city was put to work looking for an Italian whose identity was obtained from one of the suspects now in custody in New York. It was known that the man had fled the metropolis, first going to Providece, and finally coming to Boston on the request of friends, who promised to keep him in concealment until he could be gotten out of the country.

FREIMUTHS IN FINE POSITION

Two Chances to Win Indoor Baseball League Championship.

The Freimuth indoor baseball players won one of the fastest games played this year at the Armory last evening, by a score of 7 to 3. By this victory the Freimuth men tied the Great Easterns who were the leaders of the league and secured two chances for the cup trophy against one for any other team.

The game was a pitchers' battle and Halbert's great work in the box where he fanned out twenty-one men was the main cause of Company I's defeat. The militia boys only got four hits off of him. Duff pitched a good game too.

Peterson, the one-time high school player, batted out a home run in the eighth when the score was tied at 3 to 3 which brought the house down.

The score by innings:

Freimuths	0	0	3	0	0	0	0	4	—7
Company I	1	0	2	0	0	0	0	0	—3

Thursday Freimuths and the Great Easterns will meet to settle the championship of the second series. If the Freimuths are successful they will be the champion of the league and entitled to the cup and pennant. If the Great Easterns win they will have the leadership of the second series, but will have to play another game with the department store men before they can secure the cup. The championship now lies between these two teams.

The standing of the teams in the league now is:

	P.	W.	L.	PCt.
Freimuths	4	3	1	.750
Great Easterns	4	3	1	.750
Big Duluths	4	2	2	.500

CHILD OF PRINCESS

Ordered Taken to Dresden Shortly After Birth.

Berlin, April 25.—A Munich dispatch says the accouchment of the former Crown Princess Louise of Saxony is expected within a fortnight, and that a court official, with a physician and nurses, has already arrived at Lindau, Lake Constance, from Dresden, having royal orders to bring the child to Dresden three weeks after its birth.

It is authoritatively stated that the grand duke of Tuscany, father of Princess Louise, was recently reconciled to her, but decided it was best that she should not live at Salsburg, out of consideration for her younger sisters.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

A Great Northern Conductor Is Sued For a Divorce.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Minot—Following an alleged assault upon his wife and daughter, M. E. Hyland, a conductor on the Great Northern, has been ordered to keep away from the house pending the hearing of a suit in divorce which has been instituted by his wife.

The city council organized Wednesday evening, D. C. Greenleaf and R. W. Davidson taking their seats for the first time. Mayor Roach named the various committees.

A prize fight will be pulled off here May 8 between Mark Nelson, the "Terrible Swede," and Billy Frost, champion welterweight of North Dakota. Nelson has fought several fights the past winter, and is considered a good man in his class.

A baseball club has been organized with C. H. Parker as manager and Alderman A. P. Slocum as treasurer. Second Baseman Kellogg, who played with the fast Flandreau, S. D., team last year, has been signed and it is expected some of the "farmers" from the Northern league will be offered a try-out. A six team schedule will be organized and some fast ball is looked forward to.

An Elks' lodge is to be organized here shortly. The work of instituting will likely be in the hands of the Grand Forks lodge.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Keystone—J. O. Hartzell, of Deadwood, has purchased of Charles Upham one of the three Deadwood stage coaches now in existence. The coach was used out of Deadwood in the pioneer days, and is still in excellent condition. Buffalo Bill has one of the coaches with his show in Europe, and there is a third, without the running gear, in a museum at Deadwood.

Volga—Major Gardener, of Fort Snelling, inspected the Volga company of the state guards and commended it very highly. The Volga regimental band furnished the music. Credit is due Capt. V. M. Dalthorp and his subordinates in bringing the company to its present condition. A reception and military ball were given last evening.

Deadwood.—The arrest of John Luty of Central City, under indictment for criminal assault, is the beginning of another of the notorious cases that occupied the attention of the circuit court for several weeks. He has entered a plea of not guilty and his case has been continued. Three convictions have been secured in the cases.

Lake Preston—The Lake Preston Creamery company received during March 223,655 pounds of milk, for which it paid its patrons $2,335.21. The price for 4 per cent test milk was $1.07 a hundred, or about 27 cents a pound for butter not to the patrons. The plant of the company is too small and it has started a new one and will have a larger engine and boiler.

Pollock—Owing to the fact that Indians who make Pollock their trading point are able to secure liquor here, Agent Bingenheimer of the Standing Rock agency may issue orders forbidding the Indians to visit Pollock in the future. This would be a blow to the business interests of the place.

Rapid City—Suit for $20,000 damages has been instituted against Dr. Patrick J. Waldron by Bessie Ankerman, who alleges malpractice.

Canton—Profesor George W. Nash, state superintendent of public instruction, has been in the city several days making preliminary arrangements for holding an important public gathering. It will be a convention of educational workers and will be held in this city on May 14, 15 and 16. The gathering will be composed of country school superintendents, high school, college and university professors and leading school officers from all parts of the state. The object is to have a regular concerted study and discussion of state school laws and progressive school methods in the hope of introducing greater uniformity into the public school system.

A regular program of exercises is in course of preparation and will be given to the press in a few days.

THREE-DAY PROGRAM

For World's Fair Dedication In Which President Leads.

Great Gathering of National, State and Foreign Dignitaries.

St. Louis, April 25.—A salute of 100 guns will announce to the world at noon, April 30, the close of the first century of an inland empire that Napoleon sold for a song.

Seldom in the official life of a great democratic nation will the pomp and pageantry of monarchy have been so overshadowed as at the dedication of the international exposition to commemorate that event.

One of the most impressive military spectacles of peaceful times will sweep through the metropolis of the Louisiana domain—a glittering display of American arms and the man, at the zenith of the republic's power.

Kings, emperors and potentates send their ambassadors to swell the homage of this people to the genius that, by bloodless conquest, gave to the country a territory one-third the size of all Europe.

For the first time in the history of the government the entire diplomatic corps leaves the capital on a special train to travel into the heart of the nation.

The presence of the president of the United States, his cabinet, congress and the supreme court, at the head of the armed column, is intended to symbolize a government by the people and its achievements.

Orders have been issued by the war department to mobilize in the vast buildings of the exposition 4000 battle-scarred regulars. The powerful monitor Arkansas is ascending the historic river once claimed by De Soto in the name of his Spanish sovereign.

Governors of states are picking their crack militia regiments for a brave show. Ten thousand stalwart types of the Mr. Volunteer of the future are burnishing their weapons for this day of dignitaries.

Through all these preparations runs the quickened spirit of newer "argosies of commerce," the dawn of yet undreamed wonders of science and coming triumphs of civilization.

The universal exposition is the mouthpiece of this vague unrest; its christening, with glory of military panoply, stately ceremony and reign of fire by night, is the opening page of the fairy book.

That the national government might be interpreted as stamping its approval on an enterprise that has cost it more than $6,000,000, Maj. Gen. Henry C. Corbin will marshal the parade from its starting point in St. Louis to the palaces of the Ivory City.

Estimates by the passenger departments of twenty-nine railways converging at St. Louis indicate the attendance at the dedication of 250,000 to 300,000 visitors, mainly from points in Missouri, Illinois, Iowa, Arkansas and Oklahoma.

Arrangements for transporting the 500,000 persons who are expected to view the parade and the dedicatory review on the exposition grounds present a schedule of fifteen seconds between the delivery of visitors at the gates of the exposition.

This work has been undertaken by the street railway system. Loops constructed especially for the dedication have been laid at the entrances, of which there are eight, disposed at various points on every side of the World's fair site, in order to avoid congestion.

Three days will be crowded with incident. National day falls on April 30. The president dedicates the World's fair. International day follows on May 1. Addresses by the French and Spanish ambassadors and a reception to the diplomatic corps are the features.

State day, May 2, concludes the celebration. Governor Benjamin B. Odell of New York and Governor A. M. Dockery of Missouri make addresses; a great civic procession moves over the route of the military parade, and the corner stones of state buildings are laid.

Dedication night and the evening of May 1, the Pains will monopolize the heavens. Their display of pyrotechnics, under their contract with the Exposition, calls for the explosion of $55,000 in burning powder. Leo Stevens, the Stanleys of London, the Baldwin brothers, will manipulate seven mammoth gas balloons at a great altitude, where the most startling fireworks' exhibition is to be given.

The monitor Arkansas, herald of the coming dedication, will anchor on the river of St. Louis, April 26, lying there until after the last day of the dedication. The largest war vessel that ever ascended to the World's fair city will be visited by thousands of persons who have not seen one of the fighting navy. The blue jackets and marines aboard will take part in the military pageant.

Several days before the dedication, United States troops and state militia will begin arriving from various posts and cities, to take up their quarters in the Exposition buildings. Provisions for housing 20,000 have been made. The Exposition pays the transportation and the rations, which will be served hot.

President Roosevelt arrives the night preceding decidaction. He has promised to speak at the choral entertainment for raising funds to build a monnument to Gen. Franz Seigel. The president will be entertained while in the city by President Francis of the Exposition.

At 10 o'clock on the morning of dedication day the freedom of the city will be tendered to President Roosevelt by Mayor Rolla Wells. The military parade will be assembled under the direction of Grand Marshal Corbin, at the junction of Grand and Lindell boulevards, and begin to march at 10:30, preceded by the president of the United States and the distinguished guests in carriages.

The route is two miles through the finest residence sections and Forest park to the triumphal Causeway, leading from the entrance of the Exposition grounds to the Liberal Arts building. A broad asphaltum way will carry the column, between the finished fronts of five Exposition buildings, decorated with the flags of all nations. The president will review the parade from the grand stand in the Court of Monuments, the principal vista of the fair.

Luncheon served by the Exposition directorate at the Administration building will regale the president and guests until 1:30 p. m., when a grand band concert by thirty bands announces the prelude to the dedicatory ceremonies. The doors of the Liberal Arts building will admit 35,000 persons, to be seated under the direction of guards and ushers.

A grand stand at the north side will seat 4500 guests. Accommodations for 400 newspaper correspondents are provided immediately beneath and in front of the president's rostrum. On the west side, 350 feet from the president, a chorus of 3000 voices, selected from the leading singing societies of St. Louis, and an augmented band of 200 pieces, will render the masters.

Promptly at 2 o'clock the vast assembly will be called to order by David R. Francis, president of the Exposition. Cardinal Gibbons, in the scarlet vestments of a prince of the Roman church, will lend a touch of color to the brilliant scene when he advances to the front of the president's rostrum to deliver the invocation.

Thomas H. Carter, president of the World's fair national commission, will be announced as the president of the day. A choral and band rendition of "The Heaven's Proclaiming" will precede the presentation of the buildings by President Francis to the president of the United States. President Roosevelt will then make the dedication address.

Immediately at the close of the president's words, the grand chorus will thunder, "Unfold, Ye Portals." Former President Grover Cleveland, the orator of the occasion, will deliver a panegyric. Bishop E. R. Hendricks of the Methodist church will pray and the Rt. Rev. Henry C. Potter of New York will speak the benediction. A centennial salute of 100 guns closes the program.

At 8 o'clock the pyrotechnic display begins in front of the grand stand, near the administration building. The length of this production is suggested by the fifty-two numbers which it includes. About 30,000 persons can witness the spectacle from the grand stand. It is estimated that it will require three hours, from 8 to 11 o'clock, to burn tons of powder the fireworks king has piled on the grounds. Henry Paine has promised to surpass anything he has done and the monumental character of some of his cards seem to assure a magnificent display.

The sensation of the evening will be the ascension of seven great gas balloons controlled by experienced aeronauts. At a gerat altitude the operators fire a salute of aerial guns. The largest vessel drops a huge American flag in pyrotechnics, 400 feet long by 200 feet wide. An aerial salute of twenty-one guns greets the appearance of the Stars and Stripes. This is the signal for dropping from the six other balloons the pyrotechnic flags of the six greatest powers. Each flag is 150 feet by 100 feet.

Another conspicuous number will be the festival hall and the Cascade gardens of the World's fair, done in fire on a set piece 600 feet long by 60 feet high, the exact vertical heighth of the genuine cascades. Streams of opalescent fire will fall over the cascades. Other numbers include everything that is known to the science of pyrotechnics.

Aside from the mere pageantry of the military parade of the first day, the demonstration is intended to impress several hundreds of thousands of American citizens and her foreign guests with the fitness of both the regular arm of the republic's soldiery and its National Guard.

This being the end sought by the national commission, only the best types of troops will appear in the parade. United States engineers, artillery, cavalry and infantry will represent all arms of the service. The battalions will parade in every kind of uniform adopted by the war department. The new cavalry dress, the khaki of the field, the fatigue and the latest livedrab battle cloth will be shown on different battalions.

Catching the spirit of this educational mobilization, the state authorities have picked only the best drilled and equipped troops for the show. New York is sending a composite regiment of companies selected by the adjutant general of that commonwealth from the crack regiments. Ohio is preparing to end the First, Second, Third and Fourth regiments. Missouri will contribute her Second, Third, Fourth and Fifth regiments. The First Missouri will do police duty on the exposition grounds and therefore will not take part in the parade.

Illinois intends to be represented by the Fourth regiment and the Second ships crew of the naval militia. Iowa will send her Thirty-fourth regiment. Minnesota will appear with the First infantry. Louisiana sends as a guard to her governor a battalion and Oklahoma has prepared a similar display. What the other states will decide to do before the dedication is only indicated by a general desire to share the honors in this monster demonstration to show that the nation is on guard.

Grand Marshal Corbin has now the authentic assignment of the United States troops. The detail includes 3843 officers and enlisted men and 683 animals.

Under the assignment of United States troops, there will be in the parade, nine battalions, four companies each, of infantry, three squadrons of cavalry, two with four troops each and one with two troops and one battalion of artillery and one battalion of engineers.

Governor Benjamin B. Odell, of New York, has consented to act ac marshal of the state militia on parade. Other governors will ride at the head of their troops. The United States naval contingent from the Monitor Arkansas will be given a conspicuous place in the line.

The second day of the celebration brings into sharp notice the members of the diplomatic corps. Every givernment represented at Washington will have transferred its headquarters for three days from the national capital to St. Louis. Arrangements have been completed for entertaining the corps in sumptuous style at the Planters hotel where two whole floors have been reserved for them. Many of the diplomats will be accompanied by their wives. Carriages for their participation in the parade have been selected with special care. Each vehicle will be marked with a small silken flag of the country the occupants represent so that the spectator on the sidewalks may recognize at a glance the gold splashed dignitary on the seat. Seats have been reserved for them on each side of the president's rostrum on the grand stand in the Liberal Arts building and on the reviewing stand in the grand court of the exposition.

At 10:30 a. m. the second day of the celebration, the members of the diplomatic corps, the representatives of foreign governments to the exposition and other official guests will assemble at the St. Louis club, and be conducted from that point under military escort to the Liberal Arts building. A luncheon will be served in the Administration building. At noon the assembly will be called to order by Corwin H. Spencer, first vice president of the exposition and the chairman of the committee on ceremonies.

The Rev. Carl Swenson will pronounce the invocation. Former United States Senator John H. Thurston, member of the Wrlds fair national commission, will be introduced as the president of the day. David R. Francis, president of the exposition, will extend greetings to the representatives of foreign governments to the universal exposition of 1904. The French ambassador will make an address. After the Hallelujah chorus from "The Messiah," the Spanish minister will speak. Rev. Samuel J. Niccolls, of St. Louis, will deliver the benediction. A centennial salute of one hundred guns concludes the program.

The Paines have prepared the greatest exhibition of day fireworks ever shown for the afternoon of this day, following the exercises in the liberal arts. Several carloads of Japanese day pyrotechnics have been received by way of San Francisco. As the Pains intend to use this occasion to introduce the day fireworks into America on the scale used in Japan and other Oriental countries, the program will continue up to the hour of the second display of night pyrotechnics. The second program includes forty-four numbers. It will not last as long as the display on the first night, owing to a reception to the diplomatic corps which the exposition directorate intends to give at the St. Louis club that evening. Features of the second pyrotechnics display include reproductions in fire of Cabildo, the building at New Orleans in which the actual transfer of the Louisiana territory was made by the agents of France to the agents of the United States; a reproduction of the first government house in St. Louis. Thousands of bombs and rockets will be discharged on these nights. Portraits of the president of the United States, some of the distinguished guests and the exposition officials will be shown on the same night.

State Day is the last of the trinity of exciting days of the dedication period. A great civic parade of nearly 100,000 persons will traverse the course of the military pageant. It is under the grand marshalship of E. J. Spencer and will be replete with historic interest. Expensive floats depicting the earlier days of the Louisiana domain, Indians and trappers and other pictures of the life of the period are being secretly prepared by the promoters. All of the commercial bodies of the city will participate. Many extravagantly decorated vehicles will be piloted in the procession.

After this parade has been reviewed by the visiting governors of states on the Exposition grand stand, the audience will be invited to assemble in the liberal arts building where they will be called to order by William H. Thompson, treasurer of the exposition and chairman of the grounds and building committee. Rev. William R. Harper, president of the University of Chicago will deliver the invocation. Former United States Senator William Lindsay of the World's Fair National commission is the president of the day.

Governor A. M. Dockery, of Missouri, will make an address and Governor Benjamin B. Odell, of New York, is to respond. Rabbi Leon Harrison, of St. Louis, will pronounce the benediction and salute of 100 guns concludes the program. The Paines will continue their daylight fireworks for the remainder of the day. Immediately after the exercises in the building the governors of states will proceed to the sites of their state buildings on the wooded plateau where the corner stones of several of these structures will be laid.

The board of lady managers will entertain the wives of the members of the diplomatic corps, members of the supreme court, members of the cabinet, members of the joint committee of congress, the admiral of the navy, the lieutenant general of the army, the grand marshal, the governors of states, the officiating clergymen and members of the National commission each day of the celebration.

The board and its guests will be conducted each day with military bodies to the exposition grounds. They will not ride in the parade. The board will also give a reception some afternoon of the dedication period to the visiting ladies.

Against the coming of the expected crowds the exposition company has provided many luncheon booths on the exposition grounds and will maintain at the Union Station a free information bureau for supplying directions to the hotels and private boarding houses of the city. Guides will be furnished for parties that desire special accommodations. A guide book of the city, containing a comprehensive arrangement of the street car lines, the directions of the numbers on the blocks and the prices for accommodations has been issued by the exposition. Private houses and boarding houses where world's fair visitors may find accommodations will display a small white flag properly inscribed.

DAN GROSVENOR SAYS:

"Pe-ru-na Is An Excellent Spring Catarrh Remedy —I am as Well as Ever."

HON. DAN. A. GROSVENOR, OF THE FAMOUS OHIO FAMILY.

Hon. Dan. A. Grosvenor, Deputy Auditor for the War Department, in a letter written from Washington, D. C., says:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from one bottle of Peruna. One week has brought wonderful changes and I am now as well as ever. Besides being one of the very best spring tonics it is an excellent catarrh remedy."—DAN. A. GROSVENOR.

In a recent letter he says:

"I consider Peruna really more meritorious than I did when I wrote you last. I receive letters from acquaintances all over the country asking me if my certificate is genuine. I invariably answer, yes."—Dan. A. Grosvenor.

A County Commissioner's Letter.

Hon. John Williams, County Commissioner, of 517 West Second street, Duluth, Minn., says the following in regard to Peruna:

"As a remedy for catarrh I can cheerfully recommend Peruna. I know what it is to suffer from that terrible disease and I feel that it is my duty to speak a good word for the tonic that brought me immediate relief. Peruna cured me of a bad case of catarrh, and I know it will cure any other sufferer from that disease."—John Williams.

A Congressman's Letter.

Hon. H. W. Ogden, Congressman from Louisiana, in a letter written at Washington, D. C., says the following of Peruna, the national catarrh remedy:

"I can conscientiously recommend your Peruna as a fine tonic and all around good medicine to those who are in need of a catarrh remedy. It has been commended to me by people who have used it, as a remedy particularly effective in the cure of catarrh. For those who need a good catarrh medicine I know of nothing better."—H. W. Ogden.

W. E. Griffith, Concan, Texas, writes: "I suffered with chronic catarrh for many years. I took Peruna and it completely cured me. I think Peruna is the best medicine in the world for catarrh. My general health is much improved by its use, as I am much stronger than I have been for years."—W. E. Griffith.

A Congressman's Letter.

Congressman H. Bowen, Ruskin, Tazewell county, Va., writes:

"I can cheerfully recommend your valuable remedy, Peruna, to anyone who is suffering with catarrh, and who is in need of a permanent and effective cure."—H. Bowen.

Mr. Fred. D. Scott, Larue, Ohio, Right Guard of Hiram Foot Ball Team, writes:

"As a specific for lung trouble I place Perupa at the head. I have used it myself for colds and catarrh of the bowels and it is a splendid remedy. It restores vitality, increases bodily strength and makes a sick person well in a short time. I give Peruna my hearty indorsement."—Fred D. Scott.

Gen. Ira C. Abbott, 906 M sreet, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I am firmly convinced that your remedy is an excellent tonic. Many of my friends have used it with the most beneficial results for coughs, colds and catarrhal trouble."—Ira C. Abbott.

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, orator of Reservoir Council No. 168, Northwestern Legion of Honor, of Minneapolis, Minn., writes from 2525 Polk street, N. E.:

Mrs. Elmer Fleming, Minneapolis, Minn.

"I have been troubled all my life with catarrh in my head. I took Peruna for about three months, and now think I am permanently cured. I believe that for catarrh in all its forms Peruna is the medicine of the age. It cures when all other remedies fail. I can heartily recommend Peruna as a catarrh remedy."—Mrs. Elmer Fleming.

Treat Catarrh in Spring.

The wet spring is the time to treat catarrh. Cold, wet winter weather often retards a cure of catarrh. If a course of Peruna is taken during the early spring months the cure will be prompt and permanent. There can be no failures if Peruna is taken intelligently during the favorable weather of spring.

As a systematic catarrh remedy Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system wherever it may be located. It cures catarrh of the stomach or bowels with the same certainty as catarrh of the head.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

VERDICT UPSET

Judge Dibell Overrules Jury's Findings In a Case.

Not Only That But Gives Verdict to Other Party.

Judge Dibell this morning filed a decision in the case of Martin Dillon against Tillie Quinn, granting a verdict to the defendant, notwithstanding the verdict rendered at the jury trial for the plaintiff. The action was tried during the March term of district court, the plaintiff bringing suit for $360 and recovering a judgment for $225.

The plaintiff alleged that he was offered a sixth interest of the defendant's Itasca county land holdings for exploring it for iron ore. He claimed that the defendant did not keep her contract.

In his memorandum Judge Dibell said in part:

"The contract between the parties, or whatever it was, was not enforcible because of the statutes of fraud.

"The court does not find in the testimony evidence to warrant the plaintiff's argument to the jury that defendant agreed to convey to plaintiff a certain interest of her property on demand. If there was not an agreement to deliver a deed on demand, but only on performance, plaintiff cannot recover, for, confessedly, he did not perform.

"At the time the plaintiff quit drilling operations he had not explored the property in a satisfactory manner, even to himself, and he stopped because it was useless to proceed with the method of doing the work that he had adopted. Neither had he done the work which, under his theory, he agreed to do. He was to expend $400, but only expended $361.11, including the $184 which he claimed due for his own services.

"If the contract was that the plaintiff should have a deed upon demand, he cannot recover, for he never put the defendant in default for a demand after he had abandoned the work, and it would not be effective. If the contract was as suggested, he cannot recover, for he never fulfilled his contract, and defendant did not prevent its fulfillment."

The plaintiff in the action is an explorer and the defendant is a fortune teller.

TO DEFY THE LAW.

Baseball Teams Will Play at Indianapolis Sunday.

Indianapolis, April 25.—The Indianapolis and Columbus baseball teams will attempt to play a game at Washington park on Sunday. The game is scheduled to begin at 3 o'clock. This will be the first Sunday professional game attempted in this city in five years. A state law prohibits Sunday games. It is understood that arrangements have been made whereby the two teams will willingly submit to arrest when they take their places on the field and that bond for their appearance in court will be furnished immediately so that the game will not be interrupted. The superintendent of police says he will arrest the players.

PAPERS SUBMITTED.

Washington, April 25.—Attorneys Perry and Michener, counsel for General and Mrs. Tyner, today submitted to Postmaster General Payne papers purporting to be the ones taken from the safe in the department by Mrs. Tyner last Thursday.

A BIG BALL PARK

Stand to Have Seating Capacity of Three Thousand.

Northern League Schedule to Come Out Next Week.

Seating capacity of the new ball park will be 3000.

This will probably take care of any crowd that attends except possibly holiday crowds.

Manager Van Praagh announces that work on the new park will certainly be well underway during the week.

The field will not be a square, as most of the fans imagine. The distance from the home plate to the right field fence will be 265 feet, and from there the fence lines will run on an angle, so that it will be 288 feet distant from the home plate in center field. In extreme left the angle extends out to 34 feet from the home plate.

The entrance to the new grounds will be off Superior street, just beyond the Mesaba dock approach, and at the entry of the Jenswold street subway.

President Laxdahl of the Northern league announces that the league schedule will be out some time during the coming week. It was to have been issued last Wednesday, but owing to the inability of one team to play simultaneously in two towns several hundred miles apart, it had to be revised.

Two graduates of Duluth teams pitched Thursday for two Chicago teams, with widely different results. Patterson twirled a brilliant winning ten-inning contest for the American league club against the St. Louis Browns. The score was 4 to 3, and the Chicago baseball writers had this to say of it:

"Patterson's work, considering that he went in at barely a moment's notice, was brilliant in the extreme. He did not seem to have his usual speed, but his benders had the Browns guessing. He kept the hits well distributed, and although two of the local players strolled around to third, neither was able to count. So deceptive were Patterson's pellets that Burkett, who is better than ever this season, was twice retired on strikes.

Fatterson never weakened, although in the tenth, after Hemphill and Anderson had been retired, things looked squally for him when he passed both Wallace and McCormick. However, Friel, acting as Padden's substitute, raised a foul which Hallamn raced under and held. That brought the battle to a close."

Jim Wiggs pitched for the Chicago Nationals against Cincinnati and lost in one inning. The baseball scribes speak of the performance thusly:

"Managers Selee and Kelley both put youngsters on the firing line at the West Side park yesterday. Selee's man stuck to the finish and won by a score of 5 to 3, while Kelley's took to the tall timber early in defeat. Selee's choice was Weimer, who caught bouquets from Western league fans all last season, and Kelley's man was Wiggs, of the Northwest league, who enjoys the double distinction of having pitched forty-six consecutive innings without a run against him and of wearing the largest shoes in the National league.

"Weimer permitted the reds to accumulate three runs in nine innings, as the total proceeds of seven weil-scattered hits. He did this in the face of poor support, fielding his own position like a veteran, and in the eighth, when things looked bad for him, he struck out three men. Wiggs, being something over six feet tall, was up in the air at the start, but went considerably higher in the second inning, when the Colts began to bunt the ball. Before that session was over five runs were scored, and these proved sufficient unto the day."

Case Is Dismissed.

The action brought by Regina Brown, of La Moure, N. D., against ex-Sheriff William C. Sargent, has been dismissed without costs to either party, in district court, the stipulation of dismissal being filed this morning. The action was one in which the plaintiff attempted to recover from the sheriff for wheat which he levied on and sold to satisfy a judgment of a creditor against her husband. The defendant claimed that the wheat belonged to her and not to her husband. The sheriff, in making the sale, was fully protected by a bond furnished before the sale of wheat by the party holding the judgment.

DAMAGED BY THE VIADUCT

That Allegation Made In Suit Against the City.

Four claims against the city of Duluth for damages aggregating $12,500, on account of the Garfield avenue viaduct, were filed in district court this morning. The plaintiffs in the actions are the Western Land association, of Minnesota, which owns lot 260, block 32, Duluth proper, Second division, with a twenty-six-foot frontage on Garfield avenue; Lyman T. Wylie, owner of the northerly fifty feet of lot 266, block 19, Duluth proper, with a frontage on Garfield avenue of fifty feet; Robert Smith, owner of lots 265 and 267, block 19, Duluth proper, with a Garfield avenue frontage of twenty-five feet, and Cyrus B. Thomas, owner of twenty-five feet of lot 266, block 19, Duluth proper, with Garfield avenue frontage of twenty-six feet.

In its complaint, which is similar to the others, except that the land is covered by buildings valued at $20,000, the Western Land association claims that the value of its property has depreciated at least $5,000, that where a rental of $40 could be obtained before the viaduct was built, a lease cannot now be made at any price. Judgment is asked for $5000.

Lyman T. Wylie asks judgment for $2500, Robert Smith and Cyrus B. Thomas for $1500 each.

The plaintiffs are represented by M. Douglas.

WIRELESS TELEGRAPH

Stations Will Soon Be Established at Alaska Forts.

New York, April 25.—Richard P. Fund and Assistant Engineer Herbert C. Welby, of the Marconi Wirless Telegraph company, left New York today for Alaska to complete the installation there of a series of wireless teleghaph stations for the United States signal service. The apparatus originally sent te Alaska, in charge of Stanley Cook, of the company, at Fort Gibbon, will be returned and the new apparatus substituted. With Fort Gibbon in Alaska as the startign point, the first station there will be communicated with the second at Tolvana, distant approximately 100 miles.

The third and last station is at Fort Chena, on the Tacana river, 100 miles up the river from Tolvana. The stations are all at army posts and will be operated by signal service operators. It is expected that the system, the first of any consequence to be installed for overland transmission, will be completed and turned over to the government about Aug. 1.

Not Enough Cash.

At a hearing held before Judge Dibell, in special term of district court this morning, in the matter of the receivership of the Duluth Manufacturing company, insolvent, on the report of the receiver, O. H. Simonds, an order was made setting a hearing in special term, May 23. The receiver's report showed that he had converted all of the assigned property into money and that remains in his hands no moneys to be distributed among the general creditors of the insolvent company, and that there remains a sum in his hands insufficient to cover the expenses he has incurred in the management of his trust.

A large railroad construction contract for fifteen miles of new line in North Dakota has been let to the Richards-Sundeen company, of Minneapolis. The contracting concern is the successor to Halvorsen & Richards, who have been building railroads in the Northwest for the past several years.

The new trackage will be constructed for the Bismarck, Washburn & Great Falls Railway company and will tap the North Dakota coal fields, running northerly from Washburn. WANT SCHOOL INVESTIGATED

Belief That Endion School Is Breeding Scarlet Fever.

A number of citizens of the East End are convinced that something is wrong with the Endion school building's sanitary condition and that it is a breeder of disease. They believe that the situation is such as to warrant a rigid investigation by the school authorities.

The present agitation is inspired by the prevalence of considerable scarlet fever in the East End. One of the residents near the school made an investigation of the records at the health office and found that of twenty-nine school children who have been taken with scarlet fever since March 13, eleven were attendants at the Endion school.

Coupled with the fact that there have been reports for some time that something was wrong with the plumbing in the building, they think that this preponderance of cases there is significant and justifies a demand that the matter be looked into.

HIS FATE IS SAD

Feeble Octogenarian Tells Pitiful Tale to the Police.

Son Says He Must Pay Board or Sleep With Cows.

Pathetic is the predicament of Louis Czekalski, taken in custody by the police this morning.

He is an octogenarian, having passed his 80th birthday some months ago. He is feeble and unable to work, and yet he says his son says that he must pay for his living or sleep in the stable with the cows.

Mr. Czekalski, when 68 years of age, was rather comfortably fixed in a home in Poland, but his son sent for him to come to America and live with him. He came, he saw and was put to work. For twelve years he has worked hard enough to pay for his board with his son's family, but his age was fast telling on him, and when he could not longer work, he informs the police that the son served notice that he would have to get money by begging, or live in the stable with the stock.

In consequence Mr. Czekalski went begging and was arrested by an officer for violating the anti-begging ordinance. Owing to his pitiable condition and advanced age he was not locked up—in fact few if any prisoners have been treated with as much respect as he during his stay at the central police station.

Chief Troyer, later in the day, turned him over to Superintendent Cook of the department of county poor.

TO REPEAT "CARMEN."

Will Be Again Produced At Lyceum Monday Evening.

At the urgent solicitation of many who did not attend the production of "Carmen" Thursday evening, George L. Tyler has been prevailed upon to repeat it, and it will be again given at the Lyceum Monday evening. The bad weather prevented many from attending who were anxious to see it and there seems good reason to believe that a large audience will attend. The verdict has been general that it was the best amateur operatic performance Duluth has had, taking everything into consideration, and there certainly was never one given that has been followed by more enthusiastic commendations from those who attended.

The announcement that the title which the Panama Canal company can transfer to the United tSates is satisfactory, advances the canal building project materially. It was feared that a satisfactory title could not be obtained. In medicine, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has a clear title to first place among family remedies, having an unbroken record of cures, extending over half a century, back of it. No home is, therefore, complete without a bottle of it in the medicine chest. It will restore the appetite, positively cure dizziness, flatulency, nausea, headache, indigestion, dyspepsia and constipation; also prevents la grippe, chills and malaria, fever and ague. A fair trial will convince you of its value. The genuine has our Private Stamp over the neck of the bottle.

He announced that a letter would explain the reason, but that has not yet arrived. Duluth Irishmen are greatly disappointed at Mr. Devlin's inability to come for they had counted much upon hearing thim. They are confident, however, that his coming is only delayed and that he will be here later.

ECZEMA

Psoriasis, Scalled Head, Milk Crust, Tetter, Ringworm, etc.

Speedily, Permanently and Economically Cured, when All Else Fails, by

Cuticura

The agonizing, itching, and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair, and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurements, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants, and anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum,—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Resolvent are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy have made them the standard skin cures, blood purifiers and humour remedies of the civilized world.

Complete External and Internal Treatment

Bathe the affected parts with hot water and Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply Cuticura Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and, lastly, take Cuticura Resolvent to cool and cleanse the blood. This complete treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning, and scaly humours of the skin, scalp and blood, and points to a speedy, permanent and economical cure when all other remedies and the best physicians fail. As evidence of the wonderful curative properties of Cuticura Remedies and of their world-wide sale, we quote from

The Hon. Mr. Justice Finnemore's Letter.

"I desire to give my voluntary testimony to the beneficial effects of your Cuticura Remedies. I have suffered for some time from an excess of uric acid in the blood; and since the middle of last year, from a severe attack of Eczema, chiefly on the scalp, face, ears and neck, and on one limb. I was for several months under professional treatment, but the remedies prescribed were of no avail, and I was gradually becoming worse, my face was dreadfully disfigured, and I lost nearly all my hair. At last, my wife prevailed upon me to try the Cuticura Remedies, and I gave them a thorough trial with the most satisfactory results. The disease soon began to dissappear, and my hair commenced to grow again. A fresh growth of hair is covering my head, and my limb (although not yet quite cured) is gradually improving. My wife thinks so highly of your remedies that she has been purchasing them in order to make presents to other persons suffering from similar complaints, and, as President of the Bible Women's Society, has told the Bible women to report if any case should come under her notice when a poor person is so afflicted, so that your remedies may be resorted to."

A WEST END TRAGEDY.

Intelligent and Useful Career Brought to Sudden Termination By West End Street Car.

"MURPHY."

OSCAR MOE.

Murphy is dead. In the prime of life, and after a career of usefulness, lavished with affection by all who knew him, and with the promise of spending his declining years in peace and plenty, a cruel street car crushed out his life last Saturday between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh avenues west, at 5 o'clock. Sorrow reigns in a West End home, and in many others deep sympathy goes out to the stricken, for Murphy was loved and honored by all who knew him.

And who is Murphy? Only a brindle bull dog, but an animal with an intelligence almost human, a watchful guardian always of his young master, Oscar Moe, son of J. J. Moe, with whom he had grown up from the little fellow's babyhood. Between the two there was a fraternity most remarkable.

Murphy was also the mascot of the Duluth central high school football team of 1902, and also of the Johnson & Moe store. In the entire neighborhood he was known and petted, his remarkable sagacity and intelligence being the wonderment of all.

The accident which cost him his life is most deplorable, from the fact that, if statements be true, it could have been averted. The dog was caught by the fender of the car and the motorman is said to have failed to use ordinary precaution in stopping the car.

Few local labor difficulties in recent years have attracted so much general attention as the current strike of the freight handlers. Incidentally few strikes have been so orderly. Several arrests have been made, but not for acts of violence—simply because the strikers walked on Northern Pacific property.

The contractors are bringing men from Minneapolis, but on arriving here these outsiders desert in large numbers. Yesterday nineteen men refused to work on arriving here and finding that there was a strike on. They claim to have paid the Minneapolis employment agents $2 for jobs. On arriving in West Duluth they got the first intimation of a strike, when the cars in which they were riding were locked and a squad of policemen boarded the train to afford them protection on their way into the city and down to the docks.

William Murray, of St. Paul, was one of the men brought in on this train load and he opened a window at the Union depot and received a bunch of handbills from the freight handlers' vigilance committee. The bills were distributed through the car. Most of the men got breakfast at an uptown restaurant and took the first train back.

Joseph Perry, one of the freight handlers arrested during the past week for assuming to walk on Northern Pacific property, is going to stand trial in the municipal court and indications are that a lively legal fight will occur when to Minneapolis.

Last night the Federated Trades' assembly endorsed the strike of the freight handlers, which means that all affiliated unions will consider the firm of Knudsen & Eden on the unfair list until the strike is settled.

* * *

Important developments are looked for in the strike of the Clyde machinists during the coming week. There is a report current that either a nine-hour day will be granted or the shop will close temporarily. The moulders have decided to stand by the machinists despite the fact that the moulders' international organization has decided that the union is not entitled to a strike benefit because it took action without the sanction of headquarters.

* * *

At Gilley's hall, in West Duluth, this evening, the Longshoremen's union will hold its regular meeting.

* * *

Maurice McGinnis, former president of the Longshoremen's union of West Superior, has been elected to the city council of that place.

* * *

Business Agent Hyatt of the Building Laborers' union reports a good demand in his line of work despite the fact that prospects for office and store buildings are not as good this season as last.

* * *

The Bakers' union will hold its regular monthly meeting this evening in Kalamazoo hall, 18 West Superior street.

A benefit dance will be given for the striking Clyde machinists on the evening of May 8. The way tickets are selling indicates a big gathering at the Armory.

An arbitration committee, consisting of B. Silberstein, Frank Dacey, E. J. McLaughlin, L. R. Bondy and E. R. Cobb, has been selected to investigate the differences between the electrical workers and the electrical work contractors. Messrs. Dacey and McLaughlin were elected by the contractors and Messrs. Cobb and Bondy by the union. Mr. Silberstein was selected as a neutral fifth member by the other four. They will meet next Tuesday evening to hear the arguments of both sides.

OUTLOOK IN COAL TRADE

Earlier Demand Than Usual For Anthracite Is Expected.

Chicago, April 25.—In an article relating to the outlook in the anthracite trade of the United States and Canada, the Black Diamond says:

The outlook for the anthracite trade has been more or less problematical ever since the ending of the strike last fall. Some of the leading factors in the trade have been in doubt concerning the tonnage that would be required to meet the demands of the country, and also concerning the extent to which bituminous and foreign coals, the latter in the Eastern states, would continue as a domestic fuel. Bituminous interests have in some instances made come pretty broad claims, while anthracite interests have maintained that the tonnage required would be fully up to, if not in excess of, the normal point. Some quite prominent authorities have expressed views on this point antagonistic to each other.

To ascertain actual conditions reports have been received by the Black Diamond from nearly 100 leading distributers of anthracite coal in practically every state in which the Pennsylvania product is sold. These reports generally have a tendency towards similarity in the different states in which they originate, and they can be taken as accurately reflecting actual conditions throughout the country. As those who have furnished them in most instances deal in both anthracite and bituminous coals, they are naturally not prejudiced either way. In fact, it is assured that their judgment is unbiased and that it can be relied upon. The fact that they are also the leading factors in the trade at the points from which the reports are obtained is a further assurance that dependence can be placed in them. They were submitted in response to five questions, as follows:

1. In your opinion, will the consuming trade in your territory order its supplies any earlier than usual, and when do you expect to transact the bulk of your business in prepared anthracite sizes?

2. How do you think the new prices will be regarded by your customers?

3. Will there be a falling off in demand in your locality for anthracite over previous seasons or will there be an increase, in your opinion?

4. Will the substitution of bituminous or foreign coals during the past winter have any influence on the demand for anthracite? Do you think the substitution of either of these coals will reduce the demand, and if so, to about what per cent, in your judgment?

5. Are there any other conditions that will influence the anthracite trade the coming season, and if so, what are they?

The reports received show in a general way that about 84 per cent of the leading distributers expect that the demand for anthracite for domestic consumption will commence earlier than a year ago. Dealers who have usually sold the bulk of their tonnage for winter use in July and August say they expect it will move this year in May and June. In territory where the demand occurs in September and October it is expected that it will occur in August and September. About 16 per cent say that the consuming public will make no change in its buying program, but will purchase at the useual time.

Concerning the prices charged this year, which are 50 cents per ton higher than a year ago, about 80 per cent of the trade holds that they are satisfactory and not subject to much if any complaint. The other 20 per cent refer to them as excessive or exorbitant or in milder terms. Of the 80 per cent which refer to the prices as fairly satisfactory many comment to the effect that after the high prices which prevailed during the fall and winter, the figures now prevailing are looked upon with a certain degree of satisfaction. Occasionally a case is noted where consumers anticipated that much higher prices would be charged this year than ever before, and in such localities there is a very urgent demand now, the consuming trade preferring to purchase its supplies while prices are low.

As to the question of increased or decreased demand the reports make the most interesting showing. About 20 per cent say that there will be an increased demand. These reports come from large centers of population quite generally, or from localities like New York and some of the New England states, where anthracite is regarded as the staple fuel, and where it is almost entirely used for domestic purposes. In the larger cities this is accounted for from the fact that smoke ordinances, so-called, have been passed which prevent the use of bituminous coals even for steam purposes. At other points a larger demand is anticipated owing to the natural increase in population or due to the continued prosperity of the country.

About 25 per cent of the reports show that demand will be normal in the different territories of the country, leaving 55 per cent of the reports, which show a falling off due to the substitution of other fuels. The percentage of falling off is placed at from "slight" to 33 1-3 per cent of the total normal consumption. An explanation of these figures is necessary, however, that no injustice may be done either interest. The greatest falling off is reported in states where the consumption of anthracite normally is the least. This is true to some extent of far Western territory along the Mississippi river, including such sections as Missouri, Western Iowa, Eastern Kansas and Nebraska, and in the Southern states, including Kentucky, Tennessee, Georgia, Ohio, to some extent, and in Indiana and Illinois. A slight falling off is noticeable also in the New England states, but this is not caused by the substitution of foreign coals, which it was expected might have some influence, but rather to the return to the use of wood as a fuel.

The consensus of opinion in the tidewater states is that foreign coals have proved a failure and that they will not be used any longer than is absolutely necessary. This would seem to preclude their importation to any very important extent in the future.

Canadian trade, which was a subject of inquiry, will require as much anthracite as at any time in its history. In one instance, at least, it is reported that it will require more, for the very good reason that the domestic bituminous coal mined in Eastern Canada will find a market in the New England states for steam purposes, owing to the removal of the duty into the United States and the fact that it is easier and cheaper to transport it to that market by water. The increased demand for anthracite in the Canadian provinces will possibly be balanced by a decreased demand from far Western steam users.

TONNAGE REQUIRED WILL BE UP TO NORMAL.

Altogether it is not evident from the reports that there will be any dropping off of the anthracite tonnage required. While bituminous coals have gained friends in some directions and the market for them has undoubtedly been broadened, the increase in population, the general prosperity of the country and other elements will enter into the situation, which will make the demand for anthracite practically as heavy as ever, if not a trifle heavier. In taking a broad view of the situation, it must be taken into consideration that the country is going forward with tremendous industrial strides at the present time. Immigration into the South, Southwest, West and Northwest is very heavy again this year, manufacturers are increasing their output on every hand and are requiring more fuel than ever before in the history of the United States, while the increasing prosperity creates a demand for the best coal that possibly might not be experienced in dull times.

TRAINMEN WILL VOTE

On Question of Strike on the Great Northern Road.

St. Paul, April 25.—The question of whether or not a strike shall be declared on the Great Northern system is to be submitted to a vote of the trainmen. The conference held yesterday between General Manager F. E. Ward and the officials of the trainmen's organization, resulted in an absolute disagreement upon the question of double heading. The road was willing to grant the concessions in wages asked by the men, but refused to be dictated to in the matter of double heading According to General Manager Ward, the Great Northern company does not use double headers, except in the mountainous districts of Montana, and then only use "helper" engines to assist the trains over the mountain ranges. The company, he says, has reduced grades and increased the motive power of locomotives for the sole purpose of avoiding the double header system entirely. But, the company contends, there is no reason for paying the men employed on double headers in Montana twice as much as men in Minnesota receive for practically the same amount of work, where trains are pulled by a single locomotive. This is the position of the company. The officers of the trainmen's organization admit that the Great Northern has offered them all the wage concessions demanded, but maintain that they must receive the same treatment on the double header question from the Great Northern as they have from the other transcontinental roads, all of which, they say, have agreed to abolish the double header or pay double time to the train crews on such trains. The trainmen's officials have gone to their homes and the question of whether or not there shall be a strike has been submitted to a cote of the employes of the road. Each side is confident that the vote will sustain its position. It will probably be a week or ten days before the final result is known.

FUNSTON IS EXONERATED

War Department Will Not Investigate Charges Against Him.

Washington, April 25.—By direction of the secretary of war, Judge Advocate General Davis yesterday addressed a letter to Brig. Gen. Funston, refusing his request for a court of inquiry to investigate his conduct in the Philippines. The text of the letter is as follows:

"I have to acknowledge the receipt of your communication of the 17th ult., in which you request that a court of inquiry be appointed to investigate certain allegations contained in a letter addressed to the president by Herbert Welsh, of Philadelphia, in which it is charged that on or about Feb. 10, 1899, certain orders in respect to the treatment of prisoners of war were given by you to the regiment of which you were at that time the colonel; as a consequence of which two prisoners of war were put to death during the progress of an engagement with the enemy at Caloocan, province of Luzon, P. I., by officers or enlisted men of the Twentieth Kansas volunteers.

"The secretary of war directs me to express his satisfaction with your attitude in respect to the above mentioned allegations, as expressed in your urgent request that the incident be made the subject of an exhaustive investigation by a tribunal having power to administer oaths and to compel the attendance of witnesses. He is especially gratified at the disposition manifested by you to waive all technicalities which stand in the way of a thorough inquiry, and with the statement with which your letter concludes, that, 'If a court of inquiry finds that I gave any orders before the engagement at Caloocan or before any other engagement in which I participated in the Philippines that would justify the giving of no quarter, that I will at once resign my commission in the United States army.'

"The matter has already been made the subject of official investigation upon three separate occasions. In one of these investigations, which occupied sixteen days of continuous examination, an officer authorized to administer oaths to witnesses, and exercising his authority wherever necessary, examined over 200 witnesses. Neither in that or in any other investigation was there any testimony elicited showing or tending to show that orders directing the killing of prisoners of war had been given by you at any time, or under any circumstances; on the contrary, the evidence leaves no reason for doubt that the charge was without foundation. The secretary is therefore of opinion that the public interests will not be served by a further prosecution of the inquiry, and directs that you be so advised."

American Medical Association New Orleans May 5.

May 1st to 4th the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets, account above meeting, at one fare, $36.55, for the round trip, good returning ten days from date of sale, or by depositing ticket final return limit will be extended until May 30th. Tickets good either via Chicago or Kansas City. Four trains daily. For tickets and full information, call City office, 332 West Superior street, or Union depot.

MUNICIPAL LEAGUE CLOSES

Its Annual Conference With a Banquet at Detroit.

Detroit, Mich., April 25.—The ninth annual conference of the National Municipal league, which has been in session here this week, closed last night with a banquet at the Hotel Cadillac. Covers were laid for 125 guests and the assemblage included a number of ladies, wives and friends of the vicitors.

President James B. Angell, of the university of Michigan, acted as toastmaster and toasts were responded to by Charles Richardson, of Philadelphia, vice president of the National Municipal league; Dr. Amos Parker Wilder, of Madison, Wis.; Horace E. Deming, of New York; Clinton Rogers Woodruff, of Philadelphia; Alderman David E. Heinman and Rev. Boynton, of Detroit. The invocation was delivered by Rev. Spenser B. Meeser, of Detroit.

"Solving the Municipal Problem," was the general topic of the program of toasts. Among the afternoon speakers was Charles Carroll Brown, of Indianapolis.

Mr. Brown's subject was "The Municipal Situation in Indianapolis." He said: "The government of the city of Indianapolis since 1891 has been an excellent example of the concentration of responsibility in one person. The municipality is a business proposition and has nothing in commen with political parties of either state or nation, whatever may be the necessities of practical politics. As such it should be administered on business principles. It is a very common business principle that there must be no division of responsibility. The theory of the government of the city of Indianapolis varies little from this. The stockholders (voters) elect once in two years instead of once a year, as in the ordinary stock company, the city council as the legislative authority and the mayor the executive head. The council does not have all the power of the ordinary board of directors, since it does not elect the mayor and does not determine the policy of the administration nor the method of carrying it out.

"The ordinary political administration of a municipality desires the greatest possible division, for the consequences of incompetency and dishonesty can seldom be placed exactly where they belong and those who are shrewd enough can retain their control. This is not possible in Indianapolis. The responsibility for failure, either from incompetency or dishonesty, is definitely fixed. The autocracy of one-man power has not developed in Indianapolis. The political boss seems to have even less hold than in the cities with greater division of responsibility and the size of the independent vote is such that he must approximate very closely to the ideals of the better class of citizens or his administration is displaced at the next election. The voters are very free in their choice of candidates and vote very largely with reference to municipal conditions and without thought of political party lines."

The Treadwell Mines.

Juneau, Alaska, April 25.—The Treadwell mines are adding to their force of 1200 men 250 miners and mill men. It is said that at the 900-foot level a very large body of ore has ben opened up which will go upwards of $20 to the ton. This is ten times as rich as the average output up to this time, and is likely to cause a boom in Douglas island properties.

CANNOT REACH TYNERS

Until Nature of Papers Taken Is Known.

Washington, April 25.—Attorney General Knox expressed the opinion to Postmaster General Payne that unless there is something to show whether the documents taken from the safe by Mrs. Tyner, acting for her husband, are government property or private papers, no case can be made against them. This statement was made after Mr. Knox had gone over the papers forwarded to him by the postoffice department.

Mr. Payne replied by stating the circumstances attending the taking of the papers and the fact that most of the papers filed in such gvernment safes are of a confidential nature and therefore are not of record. There will be a conference today between Mr. Payne and Mr. Knox.

Attorney Ross Perry, of this city, counsel for the Tyners, called on the postmaster general subsequent to an interview with Attorney General Knox. He told the postmaster general that the Tyners would be glad to have the postmaster general or any representative of his department look over the papers at the Tyner residence. Mr. Payne talked with Mr. Perry at some length and pointed out to him that the Tyners were given an opportunity immediately after the papers were taken to open them in the presence of the officers of the department and had refused to show them or to indicate to the government representatives even the nature of the papers.

Mr. Payne was asked subsequently if he declined Mr. Perry's proposition, but said he could not discuss that phase of the question.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Atlanta Constitution: A New York preacher threatens to make public the names of the women in his church who drink. Maybe the man is tired of his job—but just hates to quit it voluntarily.

Baltimore American: A New Jersey minister has fixed the end of the world in 1915—that is, unless circumstances over which he has no control change the schedule, as such circumstances have been known to do before with similar prophecies.

Buffalo Times: The action of the vatican in appointing Bishop Montgomery, coadjutor archbishop of California, to be archbishop of Manila, and Rev. D. J. Dougherty, of Philadelphia, to be a bishop in the Philippines, is as good evidence as is needed of the pope's friendliness to American sway and of his acquiescence in the opinion expressed by the late Chaplain McKinnon that great improvement in the islands could be brought about by substituting American for Spanish priests.

Indianapolis Journal: Four churches in New York city took up collections on Eeaster Sunday amounting to $74,000—a Presbyterian church $41,000, an Episcopal church $21,000, a Baptist church $8000 and a Methodist church $7000. Those are big figures, but they represent only a small part of the aggregate contributions at Easter services, and in most instances the object was to wipe out mortgages. Mortgages are not mentioned by any of the apostles or early fathers of the church.

Springfield Republican: Protestant England seems to regard without disfavor King Edward's approaching call upon the pope at the vatican. Time was when such an act by an English monarch would have been impossible and that time does not date far back. But everyone now sees the reasonableness of the proposed visit. King Edward, although himself oath-bound to a certain Protestant church, has millions of Roman Catholic subjects. The call will tend to appease those persons, who naturally felt outraged by the language of the coronation oath.

A MANUFACTURING ERA.

There are not wanting indications that Duluth is entering upon what may be correctly styled its manufacturing era. It has been generally agreed for several years past that the establishment of manufactures on a large scale was essential for the growth and prosperity of the city, and that without industrial development Duluth could not attain the importance as a commercial and financial center to which it was entitled by reason of its unexcelled geographical location and proximity to raw materials that are required in manufactures of various kinds. Strong efforts were made in the past ten or fifteen years to secure the location of manufactures and special inducements were offered to investors along this line. These efforts were only partially successful. It has been confidently believed that some day Duluth will have large iron and steel plants giving employment to thousands of men and collateral industries furnishing work to many thousands more. It appears probable that this state of things will be brought about in the not distant future. The importance of the plants now being established by the Zenith Furnace company, in bringing this about cannot be over-estimated. The proposed establishment of a smelter for converting the titanic ore of Cook county into steel is another indication of the manufacturing growth that is beginning. When the cheap power promised by the Great Northern Power company is available, there will be a rapid industrial growth, and the manufacturing era of Duluth will be well begun.

The fact that Duluth is entering the manufacturing lists and is thus being enabled to keep its people employed at other things than handling the mighty commerce that pours through this port, is of vast value to its ultimate growth and the permanency of its business conditions. With abundant power and practically inexhaustible raw material on hand, there is a splendid opening for profitable investment in manufactures, and capitalists with the manufacturing instinct are beginning to appreciate the opportunity that is presented. Yet there has been steady progress in the manufacturing line both in Duluth and other points in the Northwest during the past decade. A multitude of small industries have been growing up, and their agregate value is really surprising. How many people know that in Minnesota there are 11,112 establishments with $66,827,362 capital and with annual products valued at $173,129,398? These figures show an increase of from 50 to 200 per cent over a decade ago, which means that the people here are growing more independent of the conditions elsewhere. The future is full of promise of still greater business growth and a vastly expanded industrial development.

WIRELESS MESSAGES.

Thus far comparatively little is known as to what extent a land station can intercept wireless messages passing between two vessels at sea. The navy department is anxious to ascertain this and arrangements have been made to solve the problem. The whole question of the usefulnss of wireless telegraphy is involved in this one point and the outcome is of vital importance. The headquarters for the experiments will be on the government reservation, now occupied by the lighthouse bureau at Montauk. The navy department has already erected a pole there, and wireless instruments have been ordered forward to that point. The Prairie and Topeka will be used in connection with the experiments. These ships are at the present time in Chesapeake bay, where they have been utilized for wireless work. The department has been making exhaustive trials with various sets of wireless instruments at Annapolis and in the Lower Chesapeake. Five sets of different makes are being experimented with, but as yet none has shown distinctive superiority. The tests include the transmission of messages between the Topeka and the shore station at Annapolis. Messages were successfully sent and received over distances running between twenty and eighty miles. Naval officers at Annapolis in charge of this work have also communicated in the same manner with Washington, over the land route. Admiral Bradford, chief of the equipment bureau, under whom wireless experiments are being made, was anxious to have the work at Montauk Point begin at once. But, owing to the fact that there is to be a monster assemblage of battleships and lesser craft at Hampton Roads on May 1, he will have to wait until that celebration is over. Both the Prairie and Topeka have been ordered to take part in the inspection at Hampton Roads on May 1.

If it is found that messages may be intercepted the usefulness of wireless telegraphy as an army and navy utility will be gone. And it is just this point on which the government wants information before adopting the system.

UNDESIRABLE IMMIGRATION.

It has been stated in these columns several times that the character of the immigrants coming to this country this season is of a higher order than for many years past. These statements were made on the information given by the immigration authorities at New York and other large cities. It now appears that the authorities at Washington are not so thoroughly impressed with the improvement. There have been numerous murders of late which savor of the vendetta; counterfeiting cases, and other crimes which have been traced to newly-arrived aliens and some anxiety has been caused. The officials are becoming alarmed over the tremendous influx of Italians from Southern Italy, which always furnishes the least desirable class of foreigners. They now outnumber the immigrants from every other country of Europe, and at the present time are coming at the rate of 30,000 a month. Ninety per cent of them remain in the big cities, where they enter all kinds of cheap industries, such as banana selling, etc. In New York the complaints against low grade Italians are constantly growing, and they are regarded as the most dangerous class of residents found there.

It is stated at the treasury department that good proof exists that there is a regular padrone system in operation in the United States and Italy for bringing large numbers of Italians into this country. In fact, it is believed that the bulk of the Italians that are now flocking here are brought over under contract. The officials have been of this opinion for some time, but the tracks of those engaged in the enterprise have been covered up so skillfully that it has been exceedingly difficult to get hold of the evidence necessary to secure convictions. The scheme is a big one, and involves people both in Italy and in the United States. It may be stated on authority also that a special agent is now abroad in search of facts that will warrant the government in taking steps to break up the importation of Italian workmen and punish those engaged in the business. The matter is being kept confidential, for if everything were to be printed that is known about the subject it would interfere with the plans of the department.

An examination of the immigration statement for the month of March shows many interesting features. It indicates that about one-third of the total immigration to the United States now is made up of Italians. Italy, including Sicily and Sardinia, sent 30,765 subjects to the United States last month, an increase of more than 5000 over the record for the corresponding month in 1902. Austria-Hungary came next with 24,554, a gain of a trifle over 1000 over March of the preceding year. The Russian empire and Finland contributed 11,701 subjects, which was a falling off of nearly 1000 from the figures of March, 1902. None of the other European countries sent more than 4000 immigrants to the United States in March, the total from Europe being 88,827. The total from Asia was 1638, while the rest of the world contributed about the same number. There was a gain for the month of more than 14,000, as compared with March, 1902.

This naturally puts a new face on the situation. It is certain that so large a proportion of one class of people cannot be assimilated to advantage. It is believed that the immigration commissioners are doing all that is possible under the law to keep out any and all undesirable immigrants. If they fail it will be necessary for congress to pass laws at the next session restricting immigration.

THE DISPUTE OVER ACRE.

As a general thing the troubles of the North American republics do not interest the American public. It is true that the difficulties of Venezuela assumed international importance and excited comment, but that was a rare instance. However, one cannot help but admire the stand taken by Brazil on the Acre question. It seems that this country is no longer contenting herself with a protest against the establishment of a foreign syndicate of great power on the headwaters of the Amazon, but has now come forward with a vigorous claim, backed by possession, that the Acre territory is actually her own. Brazil started out, it is stated, by urging only that the Acre territory was in litigation. This contention was embodied in a treaty which was withdrawn by the Rio government before ratification. From the date of withdrawal Brazil has been increasing her claim until she now has obtained practical recognition of it by the agreement of Bolivia to the temporary occupation of the region by Brazilian troops pending the final settlement of the dispute by negotiations.

Of considerable assistance to Brazil in the assumption of this advanced position with respect to the Acre question, has been the fact that the territory in dispute is inhabited solely by Brazilians. Surrender of all the Bolivian garrisons stationed in Acre was accomplished by the insurrection there last winter and upon the establishment of the modus vivendi, Placido Castro, the revolutionary leader, offered his services to the federal authorities and since has acted as the governor of the district pending the arrival of government troops. There is no hope in official quarters that these insurgent troops will be disarmed by the Brazilian government as long as President Pando of Brazil continues his march towards Acre. Bolivia's official explanation of Pandro's continuance of his march toward Acre after the agreement on a modus vivendi is that he simply desires to establish order south of 10 degrees, 20 minutes latitude South, the line agreed on as a temporary boundary. It is expected that Pando will establish headquarters for his division at Ribeira Alta, at the junction of the Boni and Madre de Dios rivers. It is contended by the Brazilian government that in consenting to permit Brazil to "pacify the Acre" Bolivia was prompted by the hope that Brazil might disarm the Liberators of the territory and thus pave the way for a return of Bolivian sovereignty. This may have been the idea of the Bolivians, but it is different now. Brazil believes that she has acquired the territory and will stick to it, unless routed by force, and there is not much likelihood of that.

Professor Marchand of Marburg, furnishes some information concerning brains, which may come as somewhat of a surprise to those who had believed that the heaviest brain weight was in mature years after the faculties were fully developed. He gives a thorough analysis of 1169 cases. He says he finds the average weight of the brain at birth of a male child is 360 grams and of a female child 353 grams. The maximum brain weight is usually attained about the twentieth year, when the male's average is about 1400 grams. The female maximum is usually reached about the seventeenth year, when the average is 1275 grams.

SOCIOLOGICAL PROGRESS.

The social betterment of mining and lumber camps has long been a problem which has interested every sociologist. How to improve the conditions of the men, segregated in localities far from the usual environments of social life has furnished a subject that has been long and widely studied. The Colorado Fuel & Iron company seems to have been the pioneer in this work on anything like a comprehensive and extended scale. This firm is doing a great social work for the betterment of its men in the mining camps of Wyoming, Colorado and New Mexico, and some of the results are shown in its annual report of its sociological department. The scope of the work may be shown by a few details. The regular staff of the department numbers thirty-seven officers, teachers and workers. The territory covered embraces thirty-eight mining and coke camps, with extremes 1000 miles apart. "To travel from one plant or camp to another, visiting one each day, until the whole field was covered, would require six weeks and a 3600-mile journey." The number of employes is about 16,000. The total population reached by the sociological work is estimated at 70,000 or 80,000, representing in varying proportions thirty-two nationalities, and scattered in forty different communities. Twenty-seven different languages are spoken.

These remarkable conditions render the sociological work of the company absolutely unique in scope, variety and difficulty. The racial differences are peculiarly formidable. Says the report: "Mexicans will associate with Mexicans, Italians with Italians, English-speaking with English-speaking, but usually any attempt at admixture of races comes to grief. This necessitates, instead of a concentration of effort upon all classes at once, a specialization of work among special classes, calling for not only a greater number of workers, but differently qualified in point of language and especially of adaptability to the tastes and customs and prejudices and racial characteristics represented by the various languages. These racial differences are even manifested at times by people of different dialects. Northern and Southern Italians and Sicilians are a good illustration of the feeling sometimes displayed. Not infrequent has it developed into a warlike situation, shown on several occasions on the hospital lawn by convalescent patients hurling at each other canes and crutches and other instruments of war. It manifests itself most frequently, however, in the less dangerous, but not less earnest battles among the school children, who forget only occasionally the traditional existing state of war. In a nutshell, the lingual differences make an amalgamation of peoples wellnigh impossible, certainly most difficult."

Clubs have also been established and work well. In short the company is greatly encouraged in its efforts and will continue to enlarge the same. Of course in the lumber camps of the Northwest conditions are different. The men are only there for a few months in a year and then go where pleasures abound, but still there is an opportunity for advancement in the conduct of these camps and many improvements can be made. There are no mining camps here. They are all well-settled villages, and the superior class of the men renders philanthropic assistance hardly necessary.

HABITAT OF THE NEGROES.

A bulletin treating of geographical distribution of the population of the United States shows that 98 out of every 1000 negroes are found in the regions drained to the Atlantic ocean, and that 61.4 per cent are in the lands drained to the Gulf of Mexico, the proportion in the West and on the Pacific coast being trifling. The habitat of negroes has been determined as being near sea level, as practically none of them are found at great altitudes. From the general fact that members of the negro race prefer to stick to parts of the country where the temperature is relatively high, it is figured that the blacks will never gain the ascendancy over whites in the United States. The negroes are found in greater proportion in those regions where the annual temperament is between 60 and 65 degrees, while between 55 and 70 degrees are found 84 per cent of all the negroes. The drift of the blacks is plainly away from the lower temperatures and toward the higher.

A Tallahasse, Fla., correspondent reports that forty-eight good-sized black snakes rolled into a ball, sunning themselves on top of a kitchen roof of Charles O. B. Weary's home, tumbled through an opening in the ceiling, fell in a pan of grease which ignited from the stove, setting fire to the house, and that the snakes were all cremated. If the correspondent made any New Year's resolutions, he has certainly broken them.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

The "Crosby mine will be shipping ore by the middle of July, beyond a doubt," said M. S. Hawkins, of Mountain Iron, at the Spalding hotel yesterday.

Mr. Hawkins is interested in the contract for the stripping of the mine near Nashwauk.

"The tracks are all on the ground now, and the shovelers will be up in a day or two. The ore is to be taken out of an open pit and milled on the place, and the ore trains will back into the mine the same as the Mahoning and other open pit mines.

"They will find a good deal more ore on the property than they expected to when the lease was first taken by the Cleveland-Cliffs company. It's a fine property and the boys have a good little mine.

"We haven't gotten down to the actual work of stripping yet, but it will only be a few days before it is commenced."

Frank Johnson, of St. Paul, who owns the process by which steel is made from black titanic ore with one smelting, is in the city and registered at the St. Louis hotel this morning. He says there is nothing new, excepting that they are arranging for another exhibition of the process at the Vale Iron works in St. Paul the latter part of next week.

"I am not going over to Grand Marais this time," he said. "They are taking the ore out over there now, and will probably make somewhere in the neighborhood of a ton of steel at the next test. This will give everyone who wants any of it a chance to get it and will also serve to show the feasibility of the process with larger quantities of metal.

"I will have some talk while here regarding the sites and buildings for the proposed steel plant, which is to be put up in Duluth this summer, to make the Swedish process steel from the Cook county ore.

"I have been highly gratified over the results of the public tests of the steel-making, though I have been aware of what the result of such a test would be for a long time."

Mr. Johnson will be in the city over Sunday. He is here in conference with M. C. Littleworth and others regarding the building of a plant here.

There has been a terrible mistake.

It was not a railroad man who assisted in breaking down the ping pong table in the Spalding sun parlor.

And he has discovered that he is not the only William Faversham in this matinee girl's esteem.

It was some other horrid young man or men, for the little children who saw the catastrophe to the ping pong table, have now changed their testimony, and the railroad man is suffering the pangs of righteous jealousy.

Oh! Ping Pong!

The incident has developed into a serious tragedy, in which the said young railroad man is the centerpiece, for he never thought before that the young woman in question would sit on a ping pong table with any one else but him.

The illusion is shattered, as well as the table.

"We could have you arrested for that. It is a serious and terrible thing to print a story about such a thing in a newspaper," the young man is said to have said he said, regarding an account of the accident that appeared in this column. "There is likely to be a libel suit or a duplicate of Henderson's fate for somebody. It would have been all right if it were true, but it were not."

Ah, there was an indiscreet remark. If it had been true—ah, there's the rub. But alas, and alack, (for him) it was not.

However, any further corrections will gladly be printed in this column, if prepared and signed by any of the interested parties.

"Tell no more stories without names,"
The editor has cried.
"This is the last," he now exclaims,
"Or I'll be ossified."

"And don't continue this too far—"
With curses and with vow—
"Or they'll go in at this late date
"To finish up the row."

A young man from the southern part of Dakota came to Duluth a few days ago to meet by appointment an old school friend from New York, who got this far and wired him to come on. They registered at the Spalding one day last week, and shook hands and were awfully glad to see each other.

The Western lad had long ago forgotten the niceties of the city, and is now working for a living. He didn't make the conventional run for the bar as soon as he had grasped his friend's hand, but insisted that they sit down and talk things over seriously and soberly.

He had with him an old carpet bag of the vintage of the early '50s, and this he checked in the check room.

The two young men sat around the lobby of the hotel until nearly midnight, smoking and talking. The Eastern boy suggested that they retire and each got his key at the desk.

He had been present when the Western boy checked his grip, and so he turned to him and said:

"Shan't I have your grip sent up?"

"Oh, no," said the Westerner.

They stayed three days, and the grip stayed in the check room until they left.

DOMESTIC PLEASANTRIES.

Harvard Lampoon: After the Wedding—Ethel—How did you think the bride looked?

Grace—Oh, remarkably well-groomed.

Yonkers Statesman: Church—I see a Jersey man is complaining because his wife thought more of a dog than she did of him.

Gotham—Well, perhaps the dog growled less.

Philadelphia Press: "So your home is being built at last?"

"Yes."

"I thought the plans didn't suit you."

"Oh, they don't, but they suit my wife and the architect now."

Chicago Post: "I let him hold my hand last evening," she told her dearest friend.

"Well?"

"Well," she said with a regretful sigh, "he was satisfied with that."

Somerville Journal: Mrs. Lawsor.—How have you managed so successfully to keep your husband's love?

Mrs. Dawson—I have never ceased to flatter him.

Philadelphia Press: "Poor fellow, he loves her for all he's worth."

"He loved her more than that yesterday."

"How do you mean?"

"He borrowed a ten-spot from me to send her some Easter flowers."

Chicago News: "Sis is engaged to that feller that calls every night," announced the boy.

"How do you know?" they asked.

"'Cause she doesn't powder her face any more when he's coming," answered the observing youngster.

Baltimore News: "I am fixing up a surprise for John, but I am afraid that if he stays around the house he will discover me."

"That's all right. You just tie a towel around your head and ask him if he can't stay at home today and help you take up the carpets."

SHE CAME AND WENT.

As a twig trembles, which a bird
Lights on to sing, thin leaves unbent,
So is my memory thrilled and stirred;
I only know she came and went.

As clasps some lake, by gust unriven,
The blue dome's measureless content,
So my soul held that moment's heaven;
I only know she came and went.

As, at one bound, our swift spring heaps
The orchards full of bloom and scent
So clove her May, my wintry sleeps;
I only know she came and went.

An angel stood and met my gaze,
Through the low doorway of my tent;
The tent is struck, the vision stays;
I only know she came and went.

Oh, when the room grows slowly dim,
And life's last oil is nearly spent,
One gush of light these eyes will brim,
Only to think she came and went.

Hope on, Hope Ever.

Chicago Record-Herald: A Kentucky woman has resigned from the Daughters of the American Revolution because she can't vote. This is a terrible revenge, but let us hope the country will bear up bravely.

Belated Criticism.

Baltimore American: Gen. Grant has been attacked for his generalship in the civil war. Now, let somebody come forward to prove that Washington made a huge tactical mistake when he crossed the Delaware.

Sample of Race Suicide.

Brooklyn Eagle: In the late fight in Mindanao 100 Moros were killed and only three Americans. The barbarians will learn, after a while, that it is not economy to fight Yankees. War against Yankees is race suicide.

Jersey's Humane Work.

New York Tribune: The thoughtful care which is now lavished upon the victims of tuberculosis among civilized peoples in this twentieth century receives a new illustration in the provision in New Jersey's annual appropriations of $300,000 for the sanatorium for consumptives.

A New American Class.

Hartford Times: "Finance" is a good word and ought to be put into the dictionaries. So long as needy noblemen come to this great country in search of rich heiresses, which many of them succeed in finding, "financee" must remain a proper and useful term. If the financing of an earl does not make the young woman who accomplishes it by agreeing to marry him a "financee," how shall we classify her?

New Guessing Contest.

Boton Herald: Here is an extract from the latest novel of Henry James, now running in the North American Review: "She knew her theater, she knew her play, as she had known, triumphantly, for three days, everything else, and the moment filled to the brim, for her companion, that apprehension of the interesting which, whether or no the interesting happened to filter through his guide, strained now to its limits his brief opportunity."

The point is to guess what it's all about.

Dope For Ugly Mugs.

Boston Herald: For the prompt elimination of all impurities of the blood and for the development of pink complexions try the pure food treatment of Dr. Wiley, of the agricultural department at Washington. Dr. Wiley seems to be yearning for some of the laurels of Jim Dumps. Next we know he'll be trying to produce the smile that won't come off.

A little bit o' trouble
An' a little bit o' song;
From springtime 'round to winter
The world jest jogs along.

A snowstorm in November

Its duty day by day.

Though humble it may be.
What's good enough for this old earth

Deserved Rebuke.

Cincinnati Enquirer: Judge Adams of the United States court at St. Louis rebuked a lawyer for using the phrase, "Any stage of the game," in the presence of the court. The rebuke was a just one. The lawyer who cannot employ better language—who is obliged to descend to common slang in his argument—should be ringing front-door bells in the endeavor to collect bad debts, or attending to "cow cases" for a jerkwater railroad.

Importance of Irrigation.

Gunton's Magazine: The forests should be preserved to protect the water sources and the lumber supply of the future; the mining laws should be improved to give greater encouragement and protection to prospectors and mining operators and greater revenue to the reclamation fund; the grazing districts should be put under control in order that the remaining grasses may not be destroyed and that barren ranges may be restored. The present situation is a serious menace to the meat supply of the nation. In the reclamation fund, created by the national irrigation act, there is now about $10,000,000, which is being drawn upon to meet the cost of surveys and investigations now being conducted. In some districts of Utah, Colorado, California, Arizona and other states, where favorable reservoir locations are found, the people are planning to shape local laws and conditions to meet the demands of government irrigation officials.

Political Crooks Fear Newspapers.

Kansas City Journal: One of the visiting editors observed yesterday: "Don't you remember how Senator Farris jumped on the newspapers in the legislature? Now, I see he is indicted for boodling. Ain't that queer? Then there was a Senator Sullivan, who did not like newspapers, and I see he was indicted also for something crooked around the legislature. That is funny, some more. Then, again, there was a Senator Matthews who did not like newspapers. He also is indicted. And Senator Smith of St. Louis became frantic at the papers. He also is now indicted. Ain't it funny the fellows who denounce newspapers are now under indictment for being bad?" He added: "When you see a pulpit man throw a fit at newspapers you can bet he is a crook somewhere, and it is the publication of facts that goads him."

Necessity Promotes Wisdom.

Philadelphia North American: The International Agricultural congress, meeting in Rome, has decided to postpone for a year the declaration of commercial war against America. Europe knows which side of the ocean its bread is buttered on.

Pierp Morgan's Cane.

Chicago Chronicle: In the matter of speaking softly and carrying big sticks it may be observed that Uncle Pierp Morgan has always carried a club like a telegraph pole, but has not been noted for soft speaking. It thus falls out that he hasn't gone quite so far as he anticipated.

Scrapping in the Backyard.

New York World: The government has called upon Germany to "explain" certain recent happenings in the Carolines in relation to American citizens. One result of our acquisition of the Philippines is that Germany is now our next-door neighbor in the East, and neighbors sometimes quarrel over the back-yard fence.

THE STAGE.

The former Casino success and vehicle that helped Louis Mann and Clara Lipman step into the gilded frame of fame, was presented by a "popular priced" (not referring to salaries) company at the Lyceum last evening.

The title of the entertainment is "The Telephone Girl." The audience was of a fair size, but it handed out the frappe from the start to finish. The only time there was a warming influence exerted over the house was when George Ebener gave some imitations of steam cars, a German band and a cat fight.

The company is not up to the standard of Anna Held's organization or "The Chaperons."

Milton Dawson as "Hans Nix, speket telfun, Ne' York city," and Edith Valmaseda, as Estelle Coocoo, were the two members of the company who stood by relief from the balance. The scenery is the same that has been used by the road companies since the play started out as a touring organization, but the company is not quite as large.

There will be a matinee this afternoon and a final performance this evening.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Steel Corporation Reducing Forces at Some of the Mines.

Ishpeming—The steel trust has cut the working forces at its mines on the Marquette range to the extent of 200 men or more, and it is said other shifts are also soon to be laid off. While the prospects are apparently bright, the company still has a large amount of ore on the lower lake docks, as well as stocked at the mines, and will have to move a portion of it at least in order to make room for more. The mines at which the forces have been reduced are those producing ore of the non-Bessemer grade, and just when the men will be reinstated is indefinite.

At the Lake Angeline mine of the Jones & Laughlin company the forces are also to be reduced. Instructions to that effect having been received by the officials. It is the apparent plan of the company to make the fancy grade of Bessemer produced at the Lake Angeline last as long as possible.

The stockpiles at the mines of the Cleveland Cliffs company are not overcrowded and it is not likely the forces of this concern will be cut.

Marquette—At the laying of the cornerstone of Marquette county's new $125,000 courthouse, under the direction of the local lodge of Masons, the grand lodge of the order will be represented by several officers.

Menominee—Dredges that are operating in the river at this place are experiencing considerable difficulty in unloading the scows, on account of the nature of the clay that is now being taken up. Each scow contains five large pockets which are filled with the mud that is raised, and the scow is then towed out past the intake pipe in the bay and the bottom of the pocket is dropped, letting the contents out. The bottom of the river near the N. Ludington mill is composed of hard clay, and by the time the scow gets into the bay the clay has formed so hard that it will not drop when the bottoms are opened. This trouble has caused a great deal of difficulty and has retarded operations considerably, but there seems no way of remedying it.

The hat has gone forth at Menominee that all dogs within the municipal limits must be muzzled from now until Oct. 1. As the number of canines in the city is large and they are affectionate appendages to a majority of households, it is expected a storm of protests will be raised against this action. The police, however will be instructed to shoot all unmuzzled dogs.

Escanaba—The construction of its ore crusher here, for which the steel trust has made an appropriation of $150,000.00, has been commenced. It will have a capacity of 510,000 tons of ore a season.

BOY VICTIM OF ACCIDENT

Terrible Explosion of Powder In a Mud Can.

St. Paul, April 25.—Because Clarence Brewer refused to obey his mother and not attempt to experiment with a mud can he now lies at his home, 1029 Lombard street, an almost helpless victim of a terrible accident.

His face is a mass of cuts and bruises; one eye is so cut that he will never be able to use it again. The sight of the other eye is also probably ruined. His nose and jaw are fractured.

Brewer is the son of N. R. Brewer, artist. Late Thursday afternoon Clarence asked his mother to allow him to experiment with a mud can. She refused and Clarence purchased powder, intending to experiment secretly. He took a companion with him.

Clarence did not come in to supper at 7 o'clock and his mother, hearing a terrible explosion in the backyard, went out to look for him. She found him lying, bleeding and unconscious in the yard.

The fuse had not burned fast enough and the boy had leaned over the can to blow on it. The can shot upwards into his face with terrific force, the rough cut edge of the tin tearing into the delicate tissues of the eye.

A physician was called. After considerable work he was able to bandage up the wounds and bring the boy back to consciousness.

There is grave danger of the lad's not recovering.

ALL RECORDS ARE SMASHED

Sixteen Thousand Immigrants Reach Canada Since April 1.

Winnipeg, Man., April 25.—If not another immigrant came into the country during the remainder of the present month the records for all previous months of immigration would be broken, over 16,000 having registered at the various immigration posts since April 1.

The immigration commissioner, J. O. Smith, questioned yesterday as to his opinion of the outcome of the alleged trouble among the Barr colonists, referred to the large number of settlers coming in from England and the United States about which nothing was ever heard.

"We have had five times the number of the Barr colonists come in since their arrival, and they are all quietly settled or settling on their homesteads. The fact is, they make their own arrangements and depend upon themselves or the assistance they can get from the government agents."

"Do you think this will injure the immigration to this country?"

"No. But it will probably have a bad effect on immigration by private enterprise. I do not hear any complaints against the country, the principal burden of discontent is mismanagement by the leaders of the colonists."

CHANGES MADE

Council Meets Technical Objections to Gas Contract.

City's Interest Now Believed to Be Entirely Protected.

Mayor Hugo will now sign the ten-year gas contract, the council at a special meeting last evening, having removed the technical difficulties in the way of its final ratification.

With very little discussion the aldermen agreed to the changes proposed to further safe-guard the interests of municipal ownership and the consumers of gas for household purposes under the contract with the Zenith Furnace company.

The clause in the original agreement by which the city required the Zenith company to construct a supplementary waterigas generating plant was stricken out at the meeting last night.

It was feared that at the end of ten years, such a provision would be considered ample authority from the city, to justify a flyer in the gas business by the Zenith Furnace company, independent of the city and in direct competition with municipal ownership.

It is announced that the Zenith Furnace company will construct this supplementary plant to protect itself during the life of the ten-year contract, but at the present time the officers of the company deny the slightest intention of ever entering into competition with the city in the gas business.

Another change made in the contract was to make the classification of gas used for strictly household purposes other than house heating be known as "domestic' gas instead of "lighting" gas. This removes all ambiguity that was likely to cause a commotion and argument every time a gas bill was paid, and both changes are apparently satisfactory to the Zenith Furnace company.

EYESIGHT BARS HIM.

William S. Wing Cannot Enter Annapolis Academy.

Owing to a slight defect in eyesight, W. S. Wing, who was recently appointed by Congressman Bede for the competitive examination to enter the United States naval academy, has been disqualified. Congressman Bede attempted to have the defect waived, but the regulations of the navy department are very strict and this could not be done. The news comes as a disappointment to Mr. Wing and his friends, who believe that he would have experienced little difficulty in passing the mental examination.

The appointment will now fall to John P. Coleman, of Anoka, who was the alternate candidate.

In New Quarters.

"Nordvesterns Handelstichning," the successful weekly newspaper of Duluth, has moved its business and editorial rooms to the fifth floor of the Lyceum building. The paper has recently added another man to its editorial staff, and expects within a short time to enlarge the paper to twelve pages. Nordvesterns Handelstidning was started only a year ago, and has grown rapidly, and its influence among the 7000 Swedish readers has been acknowledged. The staff, as enlarged, is composed of A. E. Sandberg, Professor Carl E. Nelson and G. A. Ahlstrom. Oscar Lonegren, chief clerk of the L. W. Leithhead Drug company, gives his personal attention to the editorial department during his leisure hours. The Herald wishes the Nordvesterns Handelstidning continued prosperity in its new and more central locality.

FAINTING SPELLS

They Indicate a Dangerous Condition of Health.

Women So Afflicted Are Usually the Victims of a Weakness Which May Be Unsuspected.

Fainting spells and a tendency to faint away upon slight excitement indicates a condition of health that should be attended to without delay. The great majority of those so afflicted are women and the cause can generally be traced to female weakness, often of long standing and frequently unsuspected. "My health had become all run down," says Miss Catherine J. Ball, of No. 375 Bates avenue, St. Paul, Minn., "and I had frequent fainting spells. I was pale and sallow and suffered regularly from a terrible backache and a soreness in my right side below the waist. I had no strength, the slightest exertion tired me and made me short of breath. My stomach troubled me at times and I never felt as a well person ought to feel. I doctored for three months, but the physicians did not help me much and it was not until I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that I began to improve. In less than a week after beginning with these pills I could see a change for the better and in a short time I was well. My complexion became clear and healthy, the soreness disappeared, I am no longer troubled with faintness and I feel perfectly well and strong."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People cure cases like this because they go to the root of the disease. Not only have they cured hundreds of cases similar to Miss Ball's, but they have proven themselves to be an unfailing specific for all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood and shattered nerves—two fruitful causes of nearly all of the ills to which humankind is heir. They are an unfailing specific for locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, after-effects of the grip, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions and all forms of weakness either in male or female. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People are sold in boxes at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50, and may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

AT WEST DULUTH

Over 100 members of the West Duluth Commercial club attended the meeting last evening to listen to the address of Superintendent Green of the Duluth Crushed Stone works on macadam for street paving purposes.

The address was replete with information concerning paving and the uses of crushed rock and listened to with much interest by the members of the club, as the paving question is a very live topic in West Duluth at present.

The members of the club showed themselves warmly in accordance with Mr. Green in his advocacy of macadam paving, although some of them took issue with him on the variety of macadam that should be used. Mr. Green, together with some of the members, believed that the old style of macadam with the dirt filling would make a pavement that would answer the purpose perfectly for Central avenue.

Some of the other members of the club declared themselves in favor of a different surface material than sand, taxing the stand that a mixture of tar would better fill the interstices of the rock than sand, and would make a more even and more substantial surface than the sand filler. Another argument advanced in favor of the tar surface was that it could be cleaned with the street scrapers and brushes, which would be impossible with a sand surface, as the heavy steel bristles of the street brushes would wear away the dirt surface and leave the crushed rock projecting in places.

The committee appointed to look into the plumbing ordinance reported in favor of the ordinance with certain amendments. The matter will be laid before the council at the next meeting.

The club passed a motion asking that the telegraph poles be moved to the alleys when the new pavement on Central avenue is put down, and asking that the wooden poles of the street railway company be replaced with iron poles as soon as possible.

The attendance at the meetings of the club is steadily increasing and new members are being added each week.

DR. MITCHELL

Still Performing His Marvelous Cures.

No one doubts the doctor's ability to heal diseases with his magnetic power. All who have received Dr. Mitchell's treatment are enthusiastic in relating the good that he has done for humanity since coming to Duluth, and any who may be skeptical have only to call upon those whom he has cured. There are scores of people in this city and West Superior who were blind, deaf and crippled before seeing Dr. Mitchell, but are now restored to health. There are crutches, canes, shoes, braces and harness of all kinds the poor cripples had when they came there, who left them in the office. They are silent witnesses of the skill and gifted power which speaks louder than any words. He is treating new cases every day, and has never met with any failure in any case that he has undertaken since coming to Duluth. Office, 17 East Superior street.

RUSSIA'S ACT

Toward China Is No Surprise to the Germans.

Apparently Reconciled to Her Mastery of Manchuria.

Washington, April 25.—The Japanese minister, Mr. Takahira, and Baron Von Sternberg, the German minister, called upon Secretary Hay today and it is believed that the Manchurian question was discussed. Secretary Hay has no advices from St. Petersburg or London, but it is expected that he will shortly hear from the latter capital, through the ambassador here. These conferences and exchanges are all prewhat form this will take. The protest, which is to be made against the Russian demands, but it is not yet clear what for mthis will take. The protest, however, must be directed not to Russia, but to China, who will be warned that the nations which sign the protest will not look with favor upon any action by China that will alienate Chinese territory or will confer special advantage upon one nation (meaning Russia) over others.

The tone of the press advices from the European capitals printed this morning have done much to depress officials here who have labored so long to preserve the integrity of China. It begins to appear to them that Manchuria is hopelessly lost to China and the best that can be done now is to save as much as possible from the wreck and therefore the effort will probably be made to procure from Russia a binding promise that the powers will not be entirely deprived of the right to exploit Manchuria commercially. It may be possible to secire the opening of one or two ports such as was proposed in the pending treaty between China and the United States, which will probably have to be amended in view of these last developments. The fear is expressed that the Russian movement will copied by other nations and that Germany will proceed to extend her sphere of influence in the Shang Tung peninsula while France will overlap the borders of Tonquin and "Russianize" a considerable part of South China.

Having heard from the president, Secretary Hay is now in position to act respecting the Manchurian matter. Indeed, he has already taken the first steps, although for obvious reasons it is not deemed well to indicate their nature. But the broad statement is made that the department of state is doing what it regards as necessary to meet the issue.

It is made quite plain, however, to avoid a misunderstanding of dispatches from foreign capitals referring to the United States, that this government will join in no general protest against Russian action. The state department policy is so clearly defined in such matters that the officials assume that it is understood that whatever action the United States takes will be individual. It is true that it may run parallel to the action of other powers similarly interested, but there will be no entangling alliance between us and those powers.

In diplomatic circles developments regarding the Chinese situation are anxiously awaited. It is expected by the representatives of the powers that Great Britain and Japan will act in harmony with the United States in the latter's demand upon China not to yield to the latest Russian demands. In the absence of anything official from his government the Russian ambassador in a note to Secretary Hay announced that nothing inimicable to the United States was projected in Russia's course.

Berlin, April 25.—Russia's latest demands on China are no surprise to the German government. Some indications even exist that the foreign office here was privy to Russia's purposes in advance and expressed indifference to them. This is in exact accord with the policy to resist Russia in nothing in which she is really in earnest. The constant expression in government quarters concerning Manchuria ever since Chancellor Von Buelow's declartions in the reichstag two years ago has been that Germany has no interests there and hence that Germany is simply in a position of calm observance. Von Buelow might find it consistent with this attitude to join with other powers in expressing the hope that trade will have freedom in Manchuria. Russia would not object to Germany's participation in such representation. What Germany will not do is to join in any energetic pressure at Pekin to prevent China from yielding on every point. The expectation here is that all kinds of written protests, from Great Britain and the United States especially, will be lodged at the Russian foreign office and that these will be replied to with ample courtesy and reasonableness, but that the correspondence will be the only satisfaction the United States and Great Britain will get for their "open door" demands. Germany is reconciled to Russian mastery in Manchuria.

London, April 25. Viscount Hayashi, the Japanese minister here, received today a cablegram from the government at Tokio fully confirming the reports of the Russian demands regarding Manchuria. The minister expressed the opinion that they were entirely opposed to the policy of the open door but he added that he was not yet in a position to say what action would be taken by the interested powers.

St. Petersburg, April 25.—The officials of the foreign office here expressed to the correspondent of the Associated Press today intense surprise over the report that American public opinion was disturbed by the news regarding Manchuria. They declared the people of the United States were being misled by Japan and said the improvements which were in progress in Manchuria certainly would benefit commerce. The officials added that no new fundamental conditions were being imposed, declaring that what are in progress are pour parlers concerning the act of evacuation itself and the organization of the Chinese. The Chinese administration, however, is not ready. Russia desires an assurance that China will maintain a sufficient police force to repress local disorders, which are continuous throughout Manchuria, especially in the mountains. The detachments of Russian troops remaining in the country have no object but the maintenance of order locally until China is able to guarantee that order will be maintained. The foreign office adds that the number of railroad guards ultimately will not exceed 20,000 unless under exceptional circumstances.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Chicago, April 25.—After more than twenty years spent in charitable work, Mrs. Annie E. Shipman, widow of Dr. George E. Shipman, is dead at the Foundlings' home, of which she had been superintendent since the death of Dr. Shipman, ten years ago. She was 79 years old, but remained in active management of the institution until seized with pneumonia tow months ago. Dr. and Mrs. Shipman came to Chicago in 1862 from New Haven, Conn. Mrs. Shipman was a daughter of Rev. Dr. William J. Boardman, a Congregational minister of New Haven, where she was born. Dr. Shipman, in common with Mrs. Shipman, evinced great interest in charitable work and out of the doctor's work among foundlings picked up by the city police grew the institution which has developed from a few rooms in a frame structure rented in 1871, to a commodious institution at which an average of fifty children and forty mothers are now cared for each year.

New York, April 25.—Mrs. Elizabeth Budd Gallaudet, widow of the late Rev. Dr. Gallaudet, who was widely known as an instructor of deaf mutes and a charity worker, died today at her late home in this city. Mrs. Gallaudet was 73 years old. She was a deaf mute and the daughter of Dr. Berne Budd, who was a leading New York surgeon about fifty years ago.

MEN DO NOT STICK

Freight Handlers Brought From Minneapolis Do Not Work Long.

Joseph Perry Found Guilty —Judge Windom Passes Remarks.

Thirty-eight men imported from Minneapolis to replace striking freight handlers on the Northern Pacific docks jumped their jobs at noon today.

All morning as they worked on the boats, docks and in the warehouses, they could hear the arguments against non-unionism hurled across 400 or 500 feet of forbidden right-of-way by the lusty lungs of the strikers.

At noon they concluded they had enough of the strike-breaking business and left the docks. They were met across the right-of-way by members of the freight handlers' union and escorted up town. Those desiring other jobs were taken around the various employment offices by a steering committee of union men.

One of the officers of the union said today that he thought the freight handling contractors would be willing to agree to the 40 cents an hour scale by next week, or, in case they were not willing, the union was prepared to make an all-summer fight of it.

Joseph Perry, the striking freight handler arrested a few days ago for trespassing on private property, was found guilty in the municipal court yesterday afternoon and was fined $5 and costs.

This is the case where a big legal fight was expected in order to define just exactly what constituted trespassing on Northern Pacific property during the current difficulty—the railway corporation being anxious to keep the union men a sufficient distance away from the non-union men that were taking their places to prevent their carrying on conversation with each other.

There was a big delegation of freight handlers and other friends of Mr. Perry in the court room during the taking of testimony. Owing to a previous fine imposed on a member of the union on a similar charge, there have been some rather severe criticism directed at Judges Windom and Gearhart of the municipal court from certain circles, some of these even finding their way into publication.

In imposing the setnence yesterday, Judge Windom took occasion to remark that when men were brought before him charged with a misdemeanor or a crime, and the evidence supported the charge, it did not make any difference to him who the man was, or whether he was union or non-union. He occupied the bench for the purpose of administering justice, and as long as I sat there all cases would be tried fairly and impartially. He then imposed the fine of $5 and costs, but the witnesses against the defendant were all Northern Pacific employes and declined to accept witness fees. This cut the expense down from $13.50 to $7.50.

SHOT HIS PAL.

Bullet Intended For a Policeman Goes Wild.

Minneapolis, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—William Gray was caught in the act of robbing the saloon of F. C. Cressy, 121 Cedar avenue, early this morning by two policemen. When discovered Gray's pal, who was on watch outside, shot at the policemen. The shot lodged in Gray's body. He is at the city hospital in a dangerous condition.

PRIVATE BANK ROBBED.

Toledo, O., April 25.—Four burglars blew open the safe of Munn & Sons' private bank at Portage, Ohio, this morning, and secured $300 in silver and paper money. They escaped. The explosion in the bank awakened the entire village, but all supposed it was a blast from the oil field and paid no attention to it. The safe and contents were insured for $4000.

TO PAY BIG DIVIDEND.

New York, April 25.—In the financial district it was reported that the National Bank of Commerce will soon pay an extra dividend of 53 per cent. This is supposed to represent the difference in the surplus of the Bank of Commerce and that of the Western National bank, which it is generally understood will soon absorb the Bank of Commerce. The Bank of Commerce shares sold as high as $375 today, representing an increase of about $75 in the past fortnight.

INTERRUPTED CAREER OF DOROTHEA

By Dorothy Dix.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

"I know I am not good enough for you," he was saying humbly, "but I love you, dear. It—it is hardly worth while telling you that," he went on deprecatingly, "you have known it so long. I think there has never been a time when I haven't loved you since that first day in school, when I looked up and saw you standing before me—such a mite of a girl with great frightened blue eyes, and long golden curls. There isn't a fiber of my heart that you are not entwined with, not a thought, or inspiration, or dream that doesn't center in you, and if I have tried harder than most to do things, and keep myself—clean—it has been because I wanted to make myself a little worthier of you."

"I am sorry, Tom," the girl replied in a cool, level voice. She was sitting on a little hillock, and she looked down at the man at her feet with the calm, dispassionate regard of a goddess contemplating a worshiper. "I'm sorry," she went on, "if I have to disappoint you, because you know I'm really fond of you, but I am not like other girls. I don't care for love, or sentiment, or marrying, or—er—things like that. I intend devoting my life to art."

"Art," cried the young man, bitterly; "don't you think that is rather a poor substitute for a heart?"

"Oh, of course you would say that," retorted the girl, hotly, her pretty, tender mutinous young face flushing to the roots of her hair; "you are a man, and you would deny a woman the right to exercise her God-given talents, and make a career for herself. I only wonder," with scornful reproach, "that you don't say what papa did last when I told him that I intended to pursue a career."

"What did your father say," inquired the young man, miserably.

"He said: 'Don't be a fool.'" replied the girl with perfect solemnity.

Tom Wharton's lips cruled in a grim smile, but he was too much in earnest to be amused. "I tell you what, Dollie—" he begun.

"Dorothea," corrected the goddess from the top of her pedestal.

"Dorothea," he amended, "marry me, and you shall have a studio all rigged up with prayer rugs, and bric-abrac, and hangings, and all sorts of junk of that kind, where you can paint away all you like, and——"

"Oh, you don't understand," she interrupted; "that wouldn't be being an artist, that would merely be making painting a fad like Mrs. Cadwallader Brown, who just dabbles in art between pink teas. No, with a rapt gaze at where the sun was sinking behind the tall poplars along the river; "no, I shall dedicate my entire life to art. I am going to New York and study a couple of years, and then to Paris, and——"

"And what of your father and mother?" inquired the young man; "you are their only child, and all your life they have looked forward to the time when you would be grown, and would brighten and cheer their old age with your companionship, and fill their big house with gay young company. Are you going to leave them lonely?"

"I am sorry for them, too," replied the girl in a lower tone, "but I have duty to myself, as well as to them. Besides they don't understand me. They want me to dance, and go to parties, and be just a society girl when my soul yearns after the infinite. Oh, to be famous, to hear the plaudits of the multitude, to see your picture hung on the line! And Professor Alleghretti says there is nothing I may not achieve. He says my technique is really wonderful, and——"

"Damn Alleghretti," exclaimed the young man under his breath, but the girl heart it, and rose up stiffly.

"If you are going to be rude about it," she said, coldly, "I think we had better end this conversation; it's time to go home anyway."

In silence they made their way along the path where the dusk was beginning to thicken until they reached the garden gate, and then the man began speaking again.

"Each of us must follow our own way, I suppose," he said, drearily, "but if the time ever comes——"

"Oh, I know what you are going to say," Dollie interrupted with a roguish smile, "that you will always be faithful to me, and that if I ever tire of art, and want to marry, you will be waiting for me, and I will only have to send you a pressed flower or——"

"No, by Jove!" cried the young man, sternly, "life is too big and fine a thing to be wasted for any woman's whim, and I am not one of the sentimental weaklings who would take pity for love. The woman who becomes my wife must come to me freely and gladly—or not at all," and turning on his heel, he strode off leaving the girl staring after him, with the consciousness of seeing a new man in her old playfellow.

An hour later Tom Wharton was sitting in Dollie's father's office, his face white and set.

"It's no use, Mr. Minturn," he said, "Dollie is bitten with this career craze, and she won't even listen to me. I—I want you to know that I think the way you have treated me, like a son, is the greatest honor of my life, but I'm afraid our dream of my being a son to you really is one we can never realize."

The old man threw himself back in his big leather office chair, and then he chuckled softly—a curious inward chuckle, that his business opponents had learned to know meant that he was gloating over some scheme for their undoing that had leaped into his brain.

"Tut, tut, my boy," he said at length, "don't be downhearted. I haven't engineered corners in wheat for these last twenty years without being able to manage a girl, I hope. Wants a career, does she? Thinks it would be romantic to work, and starve in a garret for the sake of her art, does she? Well, it shall never be said of me that I was one to smother the fire of genius."

"You mean," asked Wharton, earnestly.

"I mean," replied the old man, "just that. Dollie yearns for a career. I'm going to let her go up against the career proposition so good and hard that she will be cured for life. There's no such inoculation against the measles, my boy, as having it."

To Dollie's surprise, she suddenly found all opposition to her going East to study art removed. More than that, his—of mocking at her declaration that she was going to devote her life to the study of art as had been his wont, her father appeared to accept it in perfect good faith, only for the first time in her life she found him almost penurious in money matters with her.

"If you are going to make a serious study of art," he said to her, "you will not, of course, have time to go into society, and won't need fine frocks, and fal-lals and that sort of thing. I have written to an old friend of mine in New York who has engaged you board in a nice, decent house, where a lot of other students live. It's plain, of course, and I believe your room is on the fourth floor, but as the artistic atmosphere is all you care for, you won't mind climbing up that high. There are no elevators, of course. Now, figuring it all up, I think a pretty small allowance is all that you will need. I shall send you a check the first of every month, and I shall expect you to live within it."

When Dollie reached New York her first feeling was one of exultation. She had really embarked on her career at last. She saw rosy visions of fame so close she could almost feel the laurel wreath on her young brow. She exulted in the thought of the glorious, free artistic atmosphere in which she was about to plunge. Her next emotion was one of blighting disappointment. She found the ugly, dingy cheap boarding house to which her father had commended her, and climbed to the dark little room that was to be her home, and that was so different from the sunny chamber with its silken hanging, and luxurious fittings, to which she was used. She turned away in revulsion from the ill-cooked food on the untidy table, and shrank away from the frowsy girl students, with matted pompadours, and weird gowns, who attempted to disguise a vulgar curiosity as Bohemian lack of conventionality. That was not what she had meant by the artistic atmosphere.

She also found, as many another clever amateur does, that talent isn't genius, and that the gift that our friends applaud and prophesy hopeful things about, cuts a sorry figure when measured against the professional skill that is paid for in hard dollars. Dollie's teachers told her bluntly that she knew nothing of even the rudiments of drawing, and that she would have to begin at the very beginning if she ever expected to succeed even as a common illustrator. As for being a genius they shrugged their shoulders at the suggestion.

In every way the winter was a hard one for the girl. She missed the comforts and luxuries to which she had been accustomed all her life. She missed the flowers, the bon bons, the theaters, the pretty gowns that had been so much a part of her life she had not valued them until they were taken away from her. Then slowly and isidiously it began to dawn on her that she was missing Tom. Her first realization of it was when they had written her that he was paying a great deal of attention to Maysie Hammon.

"The cat," cried Dollie to herself, and then she added, "as if I cared;" but she knew that she did care, and when letter after letter reached her, each with its bit of gossip about Maysie and Tom, she realized that all that art could be to her, or fame give her, were as nothing compared with his love.

Pride kept her silent for a long time, and made her stifle her homesickness and hide her disappointment, but finally the crisis came. The day had been dreary and chill, and things had gone badly at the studio. One of the professors had said something brutally true about the sketch over which she had worked being out of drawing, and of the folly of girls imagining themselves geniuses. Towards night a cold rain began to fall and as she trudged wearily down Broadway, wet, weary, discouraged, she watched beautiful women in exquisite gowns roll up in cabs to the sheltered entrances of fashionable hotels, a sudden irresistible desire to be once more of that gay world surged over her and stepping into a telegraph office she wired her father:

"I am sick of art. Send me enough money to come home on. DOLLIE."

Tom answered the telegram. He found her a homesick little bundle of nerves in a dingy back room, and he gathered her in to his strong arms and let her sob out the story of her disappointment and mistakes on his breast, and then, man like, he thought of dinner.

"You look starved," he said with eyes that caressed her.

"I am," she answered, simply, "but I think I was only hungering for a sight of you."

That night as they sat amidst the shaded lights and roses and music of Sherry's, he turned to her a little wistfully.

After all, you know," he said, "you need not abandon your career—"

"Career," she cried, scornfully. "I've found a most career in the world. It's being your wife and all I want.

DECLINE IN WHEAT

Wheat Started Easier and Kept Within a Narrow Range.

Flax Trading Was Slow and Market Closed Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 25.—The wheat market started out slightly easier this morning on the lower cables, but prices kept within a narrow range throughout the session, closing with a small decline.

Two cargoes of No. 1 northern wheat are going from Duluth to Chicago. One left last night and another is to go today in all probability. This fact became known in Chicago today and caused some little excitement there for the markets are not now in line for working wheat from Duluth to Chicago. The stuff was, however, sold last December.

There was some export business reported from the East today, 20 loads of wheat and 14 of corn. Duluth exporters did little or nothing, however, finding foreign advices weak especially from the continent, where they have been generally strong of late.

The Liverpool market closed unchanged to ⅜d lower and Paris ¼ to ⅜c lower.

Primary receipts of wheat were 345,000 bus; last year, 215,000 bus. Shipments, 730,000 bus; last year, 272,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 394,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 174 cars, and at Chicago, 29, a total of 194 cars against 190 last week, and and 186 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¼d to ..d higher. May corn in Chicago closed ⅝-½c higher, and May oats a shade lower. Primary receipts of corn were 236,000 bus last year, 242,000 bus. Shipments, 198,000 bus; last year, 110,000 bus. Clearances were 275,000 bus.

Trading in the Duluth market was very quiet and the range very narrow. May opened unchanged at 76⅝c and sold all morning at that price, closing at 76⅝c, a decline of ⅛c. July also opened unchanged at 76⅛c, sold at 76¼c and closed at 76c, a decline of ⅛c. New York closed ⅞c off, Chicago ½c off and Minneapolis ⅝c off.

Cash sales were 12,000 bushels at ¼c over May for No. 1 northern and ¼c under for No. 2.

Flax trading was slow, May ranged from $1.10½ to $1.10⅞, and closed at $1.10½, which was ¼c lower.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 78¾c; No. 1 northern, 76¾c; No. 2 northern, 75¼c; May, No. 1 hard, 78½c; No. 1 northern, 76½c; July, 76c. Flax, cash, $1.09½; to arrive, $1.10⅛; on track, $1.10½; May, $1.10½; July, $1.12½; September, $1.13½; October, $1.13⅜; November, $1.10. Oats, on track, 33½c; to arrive, 33c; May, 33½c. Rye, to arrive, 50c; on track, 50c; May, 50c. Barley, 35@51c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 22c; last year, 15c; oats, 4; barley, 1; flax, 23.

Receipts: Wheat, 10,466 bushels; rye, 1268 bushels; flax, 3283 bushels.

Shipments: Wheat, 77,004 bushels; flax, 318,835 bushels.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Quiet and Steady With Some Selling.

Chicago, April 25.—Wheat opened quiet and steady with May unchanged to ⅛c lower at 77⅝c to 77¾c, and July a shade to ⅛c higher at 72½@72⅝c to 72⅝c. There was some selling by commission houses and locals on the lower cables and the market became a trifle easier. July declining to 72⅜c, while May was steady at 77⅜c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 174 cars, which with local receipts of 20 cars, made of course a large total: total receipts for the three points 194 cars, against 190 cars last week and 186 cars a year ago.

Quite a severe break occurred about the middle of the session on selling by both traders and brokers, May declining to 76¾c, and July, to 72½@72¼c. Support by the leading long caused a slight rally late in the day. Trading was quiet throughout the entire day. May closed at a loss of ⅝c, at 77⅛c, while July was ⅝@¾c lower, at 72⅛@72⅜c.

Higher cables and small receipts caused firmness in corn at the start. May opening ⅛@¼c higher at 45c, with July unchanged to ⅛c higher at 45@45⅛c. Shorts were somewhat uneasy over the situation and covered freely and with a good demand the market became quite strong, May advancing to 45½c, and July to 45⅝c. Local receipts were 49 cars, none of contract grade.

The market continued firm and May closed ⅜@½c higher at 45¼c, with July unchanged, at 45½c.

May oats were rather erratic at the opening, being a shade lower to ⅛@¼c higher at 31½c to 31¾c, but July was firm and ⅛c higher, at 32c. After selling up to 31¾c, May dropped to 31¼c, on selling by scalpers but July held firm. Local receipts were 106 cars.

Provisions were dull and opening prices were steady, a good demand from brokers supporting prices in spite of an easier hog market. July pork opened unchanged at $17.47½. July lard was a shade higher at $9.67½, and ribs were unchanged at $9.67½.

Close—Wheat, May, 77¼c; July, 72¼@¾c; September, 69⅝c. Corn, April, 45¼c; May, 45¼c; July, 45½c; September, 44⅝@45c. Oats, April, 34c; May, 34¼c; July, 31⅞c; September, 2-3c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: "I think both Germany and France will be more or less short in their wheat crop," says Joseph Rosenbaum, the head of the Rosenbaum Grain company, who is just back from Europe. The merchants apparently are taking a more serious view of the harvest prospect than they admit frankly or than is generally taken by those who do not leave the opportunity to learn the facts broadly. There is not, however, the interchange of commercial information among the continental merchants that there is among the Americans and not the frankness in giving a business acquaintance the facts there is here. The continental wheat trader is usually reluctant to act in advance on crop prospects. He is disposed to await the developments of facts. I doubt whether there has been as yet any important continental buying based on poor crop prospects in Germany and France.

"I was surprised," continued Mr. Rosenbaum, "to find there had been no anticipation by the German merchants of the new 12 cent wheat tariff which is likely to go in effect on January first. I learned that this new tariff when it is imposed will be put on all wheat not actually held by millers for grinding. Consumption there can be no anticipating it except in a small way by the miller. It is also the fact the authorities have some latitude in imposing it and the tax may not be put in force January first. I will say the new Argentine wheat over there, and there is no denying its good quality. The Germans think the Argentine supply is to last a long time. At Hamburg I was shown through a flour mill all of whose processes were inclosed so that you looked at them through glass. There was no particle of dust as you proceeded through the mill. The engineer, who said he was from America, declared the equipment was finer than any at Minneapolis."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The world's estimated shipments are to be about 9,500,000. A fair decrease in the visible on Monday is expected. The market here was extremely dull. Broomhall cables the weather has turned fine both in France and Germany. Armour is doing little or nothing in this market, and the cash markets everywhere dull. There was a little scattered liquidation, but selling pressure on the whole is very light. Snow's report indicates nearly ideal conditions both in respect of the winter and spring wheat crops. There are reports of wheat being shipped here from Duluth. It is of no great importance, under present conditions. European weather and Armour operations are still the important factors. Estimated cars, 40.

Corn—The general tone of the market was again strong, but there was enough profit-taking near the close to ease prices from the high point. The cash market is still good. It is estimated that the stock of No. 3 corn has been pretty well exhausted here and the feeling is that on a continued demand the No. 2 will be taken for shipment. This made May corn relatively the stronger option today. Snow in his report indicates nothing abnormal in respect of prospects for planting the new crop. Estimated cars, 85.

Oats—The market was up early on rain in this state and easier at the close on the prospect of fine weather. The cash situation is still a slow one. We think the shortage in oats is pretty well eliminated and there is a good deal of scattered buying for country account bought on the idea that the acreage is likely to be short. With favorable weather we are inclined to think July oats are a sale. Estimated cars, 155.

Broomhall cables: The world's shipments for Monday are estimated at about 9,000,000 bus, of which Europe will take about 8,000,000 bus. There will probably be a fair increase in the quantity of breadstuffs on passage to the United Kingdom and to the continent. Arrivals of breadstuffs into the United Kingdom during the past week were about 2,800,000 bus.

Another liberal decrease in the wheat visible is expected Monday, but not as large as last year, when there was one of 3,192,000 bus.

Snow's crop report: Weather conditions for the last week have been highly favorable for the prosecution of all farm work and satisfactory for the steady and not too rapid development of spring crops. Temperatures have been above the normal, going as low as the freezing point Wednesday night in some sections, but tender plant growth was not far enough advanced to be injured. The continuation of moderately cool weather cannot be regarded as other than favorable from a general crop standpoint. The soil in most sections east of the Missouri river is full of moisture but the surface is drying out rapidly and spring operations are now progressing about as fast as there is man and team power to perform it. Good progress is now being made in plowing for corn, the delay not a matter of serious consequences. Only fair progress was made this week in seeding spring wheat. In South Dakota the greater part of the acreage has been seeded. In North [illegible] seeding operations are little if any more delayed than usual. Scattered returns from some of the important spring wheat districts seem to indicate a disposition to shorten the wheat acreage. Winter wheat maintains its exceptional promise and it has now reached a position where it may be assumed that the condition on May 1st will be almost, if not quite, as near perfection as it was on April 1st.

Chicago Record-Herald: The English war tax of 3½c on wheat, 1½c on corn and 25c a barrel on flour is to come off July 1. Cables yesterday announced this action had been decided upon. The news had considerable effect on the speculative markets, and the best wheat prices yesterday followed this announcement. Action of some sort on the question was anticipated, as the new government budget was to be settled April 25. While the tax is not removed until July 1, provision is to be made to hold grain in bond in the interim. No great coup has been made by anybody. Any special profit will only be made by the foreigners who have bought wheat to arrive and who had it hedged on the basis of the old prices, and who will now be able to get the wheat or corn or flour in duty free. The American sells his grain to the Englishman there can be no anticipating it except in a small way by the miller. It is also the fact the authorities have some latitude in imposing it and the tax may not be put in force January 1. I will say the new Argentine wheat over there, and there is no denying its good quality. The Germans think the Argentine supply is to last a long time. Corn—The general tone of the market was again strong, but there was enough profit-taking near the close to ease prices from the high point. The cash market is still good. It is estimated that the stock of No. 3 corn has been pretty well exhausted here and the feeling is that on a continued demand the No. 2 will be taken for shipment. This made May corn relatively the stronger option today. Snow in his report indicates nothing abnormal in respect of prospects for planting the new crop. Estimated cars, 85.

Oats—The market was up early on rain in this state and easier at the close on the prospect of fine weather. The cash

LOSSES IN STOCKS

Wavering Tendency Decided By Liquidation of Metropolitan.

Rally Due to Good Bank Statement Not Maintained.

New York, April 25.—Prices of the standard railroad stocks took a downward course at the opening. Losses were restricted to small fractions. The strength of the Mexican railroad stocks and the smelting stocks was due to the continued rise in silver. A number of specialties also showed small gains. Consolidated Gas rose 1½ and Metropolitan Street Railway fell a point.

The wavering tendency of the market was decidedly in favor of lower prices by the liquidation of Metropolitan Street Railway. That stock declined 3 points, to 129. Metropontan securities lost 2, Manhattan, 1¼, and Pennsylvania and New York Central, 1. Losses at other points were confine o large fractions, with St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading, the Pacifics, Atchison and Amalgamated prominent. Chicago Union Traction pfd dropped 10 points. Buying to cover rallied the list a fraction, but the undertone remained feverish.

The good bank statement rallied the market, but the pressure to realize met the advance and carried prices back to the lowest. Declines of a point or more for last night's level were made by the prominent Pacifics, grangers, Southwesterns, trunk lines and some minor stocks. Pittsburg, Cleveland, Columbus & St. Louis rose 2½; Pere Marquette, 1⅝, and Colorado Fuel, 1½. The closing was active and weak.

STOCK GOSSIP.

W. H. Laidley & Co.: The stck market opened slightly lower and continued to drag during the early part of the session. As expected the bank statement was very good, but was taken advantage of to market stocks and prices gradually eased off, closing at a fair decline from yesterday's figures. The franchise tax situation which is expected to be adverse to the railway companies is being used as a very bearish argument on Metropolitan. It will mean an expenditure of at least $300,000 a year, and together with the revelation regarding expenditures recently made is expected to put this stock down very materially from present figures. We do not look for prices of other securities to be very much but advise caution and purchase only on breaks.

Bache to Paine, Webber & Co.: The opening was somewhat irregular and lower and was influenced by lower prices for Americans in London. The aggressive attitude taken by Russia was looked upon with some concern. The decline of 3 points in Metropolitan at the opening had the tendency to unsettle the tractions, the selling of which was carried to the road isues. The market as a whole was largely professional and after the announcement of the bank statement which was considered very good and slightly better than expected the traders renewed their selling closing their commitments on the long side and switching over to the other. The active isues averaged a loss of about one point from last night's close and as there was no news directly affecting our railroad properties here we believe the selling emanated largely from the traders. The action of the traders in selling stocks today is ample proof of their bearish inclinations. There is no sign of any leader on the bull side and just as long as the market remains in professional hands we believe it ought to be sold on the rallies.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: The indicated increase of some $3,000,000 in cash holdings of the banks this week strengthens confidence in the future of the stock market and conservative operators last night were firm in their belief that prices will go higher. It is considered a favorable sign that the feeling among savings banks and insurance companies is much fore optimistic than for weeks, due to the favorable change in the monetary situation. Bond dealers report in this aheyance because of the expected removal of the duty. The important consumers in Great Britain have been running along from hand to mouth, so as not to be left with supplies that paid the duty. With this matter settled there is no longer need for uncertainty, and probably a large buying will begin. It is always easier to sell in a market where there is no duty, no matter how small. It is possible that, with this duty off, the American seller can share a little in the results. It is to be expected, however, most of the tax will at once come off the English price.

you are stuck with stocks at higher prices, better hold on. Where you can take profits do so. I expect no serious decline, but think you will be able to buy to better advantage next week. A pretty safe plan is to buy Union Pacific on a point up or down, and take profits when you say a point or two. Same method applies to Tennesse Coal & Iron.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Continued heaviness of Amalgamated and weakness of railroads and industrial stocks generally caused coppers to sell lower today. The report of yesterday that copper was offered a quarter cent lower was confirmed. The Metal Selling company is now offering Lake at 15⅛ and Electrolytic ⅛c lower. Another report that Lake is offered on the street at 15 cents and 14⅜ bid. We continue to think this a traders' market.

The Copper Market.

BY FRED H. MERRITT, MANAGER.

Duluth, April 25.—The Duluth market has been very active the past week, this has been especially true of copper stocks The price of the metal remains steady around 15c per pound which allows large profits to the producers. Calumet & Pittsburg, Calumet & Bisbee and Wolverine & Arizona were most largely dealt in this week. Calumet & Arizona is strong at $190@200 and judging from the specimens of its ore on exhibit at 316 Palladio Building, its stock is cheap at $300 per share. News from Chicago is to the effect that the Alaska Central Railway has disposed of its entire issue of first mortgage bonds, in which case its preferred stock would advance very rapidly during the next thirty days. This stock should sell around $40 before fall. We advise all stockholders to hold for much higher prices than prevail at present. Yaqui copper stock is favorably looked upon by investors and as soon as the unpooled stock is taken up this stock should advance to $17.50 on the first of May. No attention should be paid to parties advertising this stock for sale at ridiculously low prices as they cannot deliver the stock and are advertising for the purpose of getting in touch with investors. A few shares of this stock can be picked up around $15 and we consider it a purchase. The following stocks will advance during the coming week: Calumbet & Arizona, Calumet & Pittsburg, Calumet & Bisbee, Calumet & Cochise, Wolverine & Arizona, Alaska Central preferred, Santa Fe, Majestic, Treadwell, Crooked River, Huachuca, Mitchell Development and Star Petroleum.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 25.—The cottom market opened easy at unchanged prices to a decline of 5 points. Cables were unsatisfactory. The market later rallied a point or two, but again became weak and irregular and depressed upon shorts and pool support for business. There was considerable selling later of the new crop positions on the favorable average of crop advices, while the undertone of the future immediate market was weak by current estimates of 100,000 bales to come into sight this week against 84,797 last year.

Cotton futures closed steady, April, 10.34; May, 10.36; June, 9.93; July, 9.4; August, 9.57; September, 9.58; October, 8.65; November, 8.54; December, 8.53; January, 8.52. Spot closed, quiet; middling uplands, 10.50; middling gulf, 10.75. Sales, none.

Tug Schenck Once More at Home In This Harbor.

Obstruction In Lake Michigan to Be Investigated.

The tug Schenck of the Great Lakes Towing company arrived in port this morning. She will be stationed in Duluth during the coming season. Capt. Benson was in command and Engineer Bishop was in charge of the engine room.

The Schenck is one of the most up-to-date tugs on the great lakes. She is larger and more powerful than the Zenith, which has heretofore stood at the head of the list of local tugs, and will be a valuable addition to the local fleet. She was placed in commission almost immediately upon her arrival, taking the Selwyn Eddy to the Itasca elevator in Superior. She was in Duluth a few years ago.

The fleets of the two local companies are receiving almost more business than they can handle. The Superior of the Great Lakes fleet has been at work almost since 7 o'clock yesterday morning, her crew having but three hours' sleep during the thirty hours. There are now ten tugs in commission in the harbor, seven in the Great Lakes fleet and three in the Independent. The Record will be put in commission next week. The rush during the past two or three days has been extraordinary. The lumber boats are now arriving in large numbers and the heavy coal receipts which were due this week are fully up to expectations.

TO BE INVESTIGATED.

Obstruction In Lake Michigan That Fouled Saranac.

Lake mariners are discussing with much interest the obstruction in Lake Michigan which nearly caused the sinking of the steamer Saranac of the Lehigh Valley line last week. The accident occurred north of Racine and much uneasiness is felt among the captains who sail Lake Michigan as to the nature of the obstruction. Great care is being exercised, while passing that spot. Hundreds of vessels pass this vicinity every year and the narrow escape of the Saranac is a warning to the lake captains.

A survey will be made by the government to ascertain the nature of the obstruction. The injury to the Saranac would indicate that the damage was done by a body occupying but a small area. The government charts show a depth of seventy feet in this spot. The Saranac was drawing but 17 feet of water. The accident took place three miles northeast of the Wind Point light and as it was midday in clear weather the officers of the vessel are sure of the location.

A theory has arisen among marine men that the sunken object is the wreck of the steamer L. S. Doty.

Five years ago this steamer left Chicago in company with the schooner Olive Jeennette. In a storm which sprung up a few hours later the captain of the schooner cut the line joining the two ships. The schooner was blown across the lake and wrecked but the steamer was never heard of again. She doubtless sank with all hands, but her fate is one of the mysteries of the lake. It was long thought that she sank off Waukegan but the accident to the Saranac has given rise to the theory that she lasted until she rounded Wind Point and that her wreckage will prove to be the cause of the accident to the Saranac.

A number of vessels have passed the spot and arrived in Duluth since the accident but nothing further has been heard of the hidden obstruction. Marine captains will be relieved of a cause for serious anxiety when the government survey has been made, and the obstruction marked on the charts.

THE REAL ESTATE MARKET OF THE WEEK

Rather Weak as to Closed Sales But Much Negotiation Is Underway—Scarcity of Houses Greatly Disturbing Those Who Must Rent.

The past week has been a little quiet in local realty circles so far as actual sales have been concerned, but inquiry was good along the line of improved properties and many deals are negotiating. Numerous sales of small properties have been closed up within the past few days.

Transactions in farming lands near the city have been more active in the past ten days than for several weeks preceding and several carloads of farming implements have arrived during the week consigned to people who have purchased St. Louis county lands during the winter and spring and who are anxious to get on the ground for early work. In some localities a longer delay will be necessary owing to the fact that the ground is still too wet for active operations. A large number of prospective buyers have been in the city this week looking over farming land propositions.

Locally realty dealers are reporting some inquiry from the outside relative to manufacturing sites and it is expected that some sales of that class of property will be closed within the coming week.

* * *

The rental problem remains as great as ever. Everything in the way of available flats or houses is being snapped up as fast as a vacancy is noted. Some properties have had applicants on the lists for months. A number of cases are known where third parties have offered to take the leases off the hands of second parties in the coming fall. It is predicted that there will not be the usual amount of changing around among the people who have to rent, this season, as in former years, for the reason that those whom already have houses and flats have stood the raise in rent and signified a willingness to take a new lease rather than risk the uncertainty of getting other places. There are about twenty applicants for every house that is to be rented furnished for the summer season while the owner spends the time on the point or out of the city.

* * *

Local architects report new building propositions as coming in rather slow at present. Some of them attribute the situation to the agitation over the plumbing ordinance, while others say that the cost of plumbing is such a smal part of the cost of a house that an advance in its cost could have no serious effect on the volume of building. It seems to be the general sentiment among the builders and architects that it is a good thing to have the plumbing ordinance proposition agitated among the people and that some good will result from it.

The Boston & Duluth Farm Land company has sold from 2000 to 5000 acres of agricultural lands in St. Louis and adjoining counties during the past few weeks and has from twelve to fifteen people in the city at the present time looking over farming tracts that are for sale. Among the recent buyers is a Rev. Mr. Waldal, of Eau Claire, Wis., who has purchased a half section not far from the city. It is expected that the farm land company will bring into the county very shortly a large colony of German and Swiss cheese makers from the southern part of Wisconsin, who will establish a dairy business. Some of these colonists came up last fall and are already located.

* * *

Mr. Larson, of George Crosby & Co., reports a busy week. The firm has closed satisfactorily four loans, aggregating $10,000, the money coming from outside and local parties. It has rented six houses, sold a $3400 house at the East End, a double corner near the normal school, a house and lot near Nineteenth avenue west, and has the earnest money down on several other deals.

* * *

Mr. Lyon, of William M. Prindle & Co., reports a good business this week. The firm has sold among others a house and lot on Jefferson street, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth avenues east, for $2750; a house and lot on Mesaba avenue, between Fourth and Fifth street, for $3000; three lots on Park Point for $900, a lot on Garfield avenue for $500, and has several other sales not yet ready to report.

* * *

Mr. Craig, of C. P. Graig & Co., says that inquiry has been very good at his office during the past few weeks. The firm has made a number of sales, including two properties in West Duluth, for $700 and $1500 respectively; three lots on Minnnesota Point for $1500; a residence property at 1027 West Second street, five acres and a cottage at Pike Lake and three properties on Duluth Heights. Other deals are practically closed for property in block 22, Duluth Heights, for $1000, and another in block 31, Duluth Heights, for $750. Mr. Craig believes conditions are very satisfactory at the present time.

Thomas S. Wood has sold to H. F. Williamson this week a residence property, with 100 feet frontage, at the corner of Twenty-fourth avenue east and First street, for $4500.

Carrie McDonald purchased from the Granite Savings Bank and Trust company, for $4500, fractional lots in Portland division and East Fifth street, Duluth proper, First division. The same property was again sold to Alice H. Field for $4500.

* * *

Among he larger sales of recent date was the property described as lot 63 and the westerly half of lot 61, on West Second street, Duluth proper, First division. The selling price was $15,000, and the property belonged to Mr. Fletcher. The deal is the closing of a five-years' option.

* * *

H. A. Wing & Co. has disposed of lot C, block 31, Portland division, to Lena Edman, the consideration being $2200.

Sarah Mosher has purchased from F. H. Judd, lot 3, block 76, Trigg's rearrangement, Duluth proper, Third division, lot 11, block 12, West Duluth, First division, and two lots on East Fourth street, Duluth proper, First division, for $4225.

* * *

Among the sales of the week running from $1000 to $2000 were the following: Lot 9, block 41, East Duluth, from D. F. Burdick to H. M. Burdick, for $1000; lots 322, 324, 326 and 328, Minnesota avenue, Lower Duluth, from J. D. Ensign to A. J. Ellman, for $1700; lot 320, block 127, Duluth proper, Second division, from Jeremiah Callahan to A. F. Goetz, for $1200; lot 7, block 8, Harrington's addition, from J. A. Johnson to C. J. Sunden, for $1125; lot 5, block 86, West Duluth, Sixth division, from Fannie Burris to A. J. Carlson, for $1000; lot 268, block 58, Duluth proper, Second division, from George W. Himberly to Albert Johnson, for $2000; lot 66, East Fifth street, Duluth proper, First division, from Jacob H. Drumadero to Catherine McGraw, for $2200.

S. D. Allen has sold his home at 1610 East First street to John McAlpine, the consideration being $9250. The property is described as lot 3 and the easterly 15 feet of lot 2, block 59, Endion division.

* * *

Architect Austin Terryberry has plans out for a 6-room two-story brick house for John Helmer, to be erected on Second street near Sixth avenue east. The house will have birch interior finish. Mr. Terryberry has plans out for figures for a two-story brick store and flat building to be erected near Nineteenth avenue west and Superior street for R. C. Sloan, agent.

* * *

John Housfelt is to erect a 4-flat building at 608 Garfield avenue to cost about $8000.

The Duluth Golf club is figuring on plans for a new $15,000 country clubhouse to be erected at the site of the present small clubhouse.

* * *

Ramstad & Todd have been awarded the contract for the foundation of Capt. J. H. Pearce's new residence for himself and for a double dwelling adjoining, at Twenty-first avenue east and Superior street. The residence is to cost about $12,000.

CARPENTERS MAY STRIKE

Fifteen Thousand Men Would Be Affected In Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, April 25.—Local unions affiliated with the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America have rejected the compromise offered by the master carpenters relative to the new wage scale to go into effect on May 1. It now seems probable that unless the latter agree to the demands of the brotherhood before next Friday a general strike will be ordered. If a strike shall be ordered, nearly 15,000 men will stop work.

The action of the brotherhood has been supported by the Amalgamated Association of Carpenters, which is affiliated with the council of Allied Building Trades, and the support of the latter is assured.

The brotherhood's demand is for 50 cents an hour after May 1. The master carpenters offered a compromise at 45 cents an hour after July 1. This has been rejected.

Efforts will be made by the district council of the Brotherhood of Carpenters to bring about an amicable settlement of the differences.

A special meeting of the conference committee will be called next week.

The 8-inch guns are designed to fire once every 50 seconds and the 6-inch guns are expected to fire three times a minute. The contract price of the Colorado was $3,789,000.

MILWAUKEE ARCHITECTS

May Design the Federal Building at Superior.

Washington, April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—The probabilities strongly point toward the selection of Messrs. Ferry & Clas, of Milwaukee, as the architects who will be given the work of drawing the plans and the supervision of work on the new public buildings at Superior and Green Bay. Under the Tarsney act the treasury department is authorized to seek the aid of outside architects for plans and working drawings of public buildings under a competitive system, and it is understood that Messrs. Ferry & Clas, who are competing, stand a most excellent chance of being chosen for the buildings at Superior and Green Bay.

SUFFERED SEVERELY.

Thousands of Jews Are Destitute at Kishineff.

St. Petersburg, April 25.—The Novosti today, without giving the exact figures, indicates that the Jews at Kishineff, capital of Bessarabi, during the Anti-Semite riots there April 20, suffered even more severely than admitted officially. The papers says scores of Jews were shot or beaten to death and several hundred were wounded. Their houses were wrecked and their shops were sacked. Thousands of Jews in the district are homeless and destitute.

RUNNING FIGHT

Between Citizens and Burglars at Ferguson, Mo.

St. Louis, April 25.—Three men blew the safe in the postoffice at Ferguson, a suburb of St. Louis, at 2:30 this morning, secured $120 in cash, $18 in stamps and escaped after a running battle with citizens head by Mayor Reed, in which many shots were exchanged, but no one was injured. The explosion was of terrific force, awakening nearly every resident of the village and completely wrecking the interior of the postoffice and seriously damaging the walls of the building.

LITTLE FALLS PREPARING

To Entertain the State Federation of Labor.

Little Falls, Minn., April 25.—The State Federation of Labor will hold its annual convention in this city Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, June 8, 9, and 10. It is expected there will be something over 300 members of labor unions, representing all classes of trades in all parts of the state, at the meeting, and the citizens are laying plans to entertain its visitors in a royal manner.

There are at present three organizations of union labor in the city. The local branch of the International Retails Clerks' Protective association has something like six members. The millworkers organized a union, under the name Millworkers' union, allied with the Lumbermen's association, last August, which has over 300 members. The teamsters of the city organized a strong union recently.

The bodies of union labor, together with the Commercial club and citizens, are cooperating to handle the city's guests in June. At a joint meeting it was decided to appoint three members of the Millworkers' and Clerks' unions and Commercial club and three citizens to constitute a committee on general arrangements. The committees are as follows: Citizens, Crawford Sheldon, F. F. Turner, Frank E. Hall; Commercial club, T. C. Gordon, F. A. Nelson, Charles Sylvester; Millworkers' union, A. W. Johns, B. G. Bradley, E. M. Snow; Clerks' union, Robert Carley, Nels Peterson, William Raymond.

HELD THE FORT

Miss Gibbs In Charge of Itasca Park Shows Grit.

Lumber Company Tried to Intimidate Her But Failed.

Assistant Attorney General Charles W. Somerby, of St. Paul, arrived in Duluth this morning on his way back from Itasca park.

While at that place he successfully routed 100 armed men and a faulty injunction secured from the judge of the Bemidji district, who were pitted against Mary H. Gibbs, who is acting as commissioner of the Itasca state park.

The cause of the whole trouble at the headwaters of the Mississippi was that the Mississippi-Schoolcraft Boom company desired to keep the dam up, so that the lake would overflow, permitting it to float its logs, and incidentally destroying large amounts of standing pine on the state lands.

The commissioner of the park, Miss Gibbs, who has been acting since the death of her father, declined to permit the dam to remain long enough to back up the water to an extent that it would injure the state's standing pine.

The state owns the park, the dam and the pine, and the lumber company, with consummate nerve, proposed to do as it pleased with the state's property. This Miss Gibbs could not quite understand, not having been brought up in the Pennsylvania coal mines and having the proper respect for corporations, and she committed the cardinal sin of trying to protect state property against a corporation.

For her nerve and decision at the trying moment she inspired fear among the lumbermen so generally that 100 of the men were armed to the teeth and sent to guard the dam, and once when she went with the sheriff to order the dam taken out, some of the men pulled a gun on her.

She subsequently had Sidney Cornell and Joel Belmore arrested, charged with resisting an officer.

When the lumbermen saw Mr. Somerby appear, clothed with the authority of the state and bearing the personal authority of the governor, with a demand that that dam be opened and quickly, they quailed. They were not dealing with a young miss, whose father lived no longer, and Superintendent M. E. Thurston pulled in his bluff, at the vision of state troops and other unpleasant things, and before Mr. Somerby left the dam was taken out, and it was understood that Miss Gibbs would be "it" around there the rest of the season, and that the state of Minnesota was behind her.

Miss Gibbs displayed great grit and determination to do her duty. When she saw the water was overflowing the banks and the state's property was in danger, she made a visit to the dam with the sheriff, but although she kept within the bounds of the law and her office, she could not get the dam opened.

Then the company caused an injunction to be issued against her personally, and not as a state official, preventing her from interfering with the dam. This injunction was issued by the new judge of the Bemidji district, and was secured by Attorney L. H. Bailey, of Bemidji. It is asserted that the injunction had no summons or return order, was practically a permanent restraining power, and was not a legal proposition; also that no date for appearance was set showing when the writ was returnable.

Mr. Somerby only needed a short time to talk before he explained a few things to the lumbermen, who now promise to let the state park alone.

Mr. Somerby went to Itasca Thursday and returned this morning. He goes to St. Paul this afternoon.

The controversy is over a dam at the outlet of the lake which has been used by the lumbermen to float logs. The piece of land connecting the dam was condemned last fall by the attorney general and is now the property of the state. The attorney general could have torn out the dam, but desired to dissuade the Brainerd lumber company from cutting the timber from certain tracts purchased from the Pillsbury estate.

At that time there was no available money with which to buy the tracts, and the company was about to cut them. It was agreed not to do so, with the understanding that the dam be allowed to stand when the ice went out in the spring, to float other logs cut near the park. The understanding was that if the water overflowed the bank of the lake the dam should be taken out, and Miss Gibbs was so instructed. She made no move until the lake went over its banks, and then she started, with the result that state officers were required to aid her.

The tracts wanted are now available, as the legislature set aside $20,000 for their purchase.

WILLED PHANTOM ESTATE.

Consists of Pawn Tickets and Unpaid Bills.

New York, April 25.—An eccentric will disposing of a phantom estate was filed in the surrogate's office yesterday. It was executed by Louis Howard Dassel, who died Feb. 11, at the Hotel Hanover, of heart disease. Rassel was connected with a fire-proofing company, and lived expensively, making money on commissions and spending it faster than it came in.

Dassel directed the executive $10,000 each to Imogen Pearl Leonard, his divorced wife, and Leonard Howard Dasel, his 7-year-old son, who is living with an aunt, Mrs. J. A. Duggan, of Chicago. Two more legacies of $5000 each were to be paid to his friends, Robert D. Bristol and David D. P. Rhearn.

Dassel then directed that out of the remainder of the proceeds of his German estate, $25,000 was to be given to Miss Terry Potter.

The estate consists chiefly of pawn tickets and unpaid bills.

St. Louis and Return $22.30.

The Northwestern line, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, will sell excursion tickets to St. Louis, Mo., April 25 to May 1, inclusive, at $22.30 for the round trip. Tickets limited to May 4 for return passage. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

BIRD WAS A THIEF.

Bluejay Makes Away With Uncle Sam's Mail.

Springfield, Ohio, April 25.—For several weeks letters have been stolen from an old-style mail box on rural route No. 4. Carrier Edward P. Funderburg reported the matter to Postmaster E. C. Miller, of New Carlisle and an investigation was made. After going over the ground thoroughly in that vicinity, it was discovered that the missing letters had been scattered over a plowed field. In the mail box was found a blue jay's nest. The bird was the mail robber. The bird had objected to the letters being poked into the box and carried them away and dropped them in the field. As a result of this investigation, new style boxes have been ordered.

MAY BECOME A MAJOR.

Capt. Chittenden to Be Examined For Promotion.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 25.—Capt. H. M. Chittenden, chief of engineers for the Missouri river and Yellowstone park, who has been ordered to report in the Philippines, will be asked to report at New York for examination by the board of promotion for advancement to the rank of major. He is seventh in line for captains and his preference is evidence of the department's high opinion of his ability.

There are but twenty-three majors in the service of the engineering department of the army. If given the title of major, he will be one of the three majors having charge of the work in the Philippine islands.

Sues For Damages.

Charles V. O'Hara has begun an action in district court against the Duluth & Iron Range Railroad company to recover $15,250 damages, claimed to be due for injuries which the plaintiff received while in the employ of the company. In his bill of complaint the plaintiff alleges that while standing between the engine and caboose while the former was taking water at Waldo, Jan. 5, 1903, another Iron Range train ran into the standing vehicles, causing an accident in which he received injuries consisting of several broken ribs and a broken collar bone. John Jenswold, Jr., is attorney for the plaintiff.

PROSPECT BRIGHT

Outlook For Industrial Exposition In August Is Fine.

Eighteen Stalls Reserved For Horses That Will Enter.

Arrangements for the Northern Minnesota fair, which it is proposed to hold in Duluth during the week beginning Aug. 17, are progressing well and rapidly, and the promoters are receiving support and encouragement that makes the outlook seem very rosy to them.

The sale of membership certificates is particularly gratifying to those who are arranging the fair, and the list of purchasers that is being published weekly grows apace.

The outlook for the race which it is proposed to hold daily during the fair is good. Work on the track will be begun just as soon as the weather is favorable, and it would have been in progress today had it not been for last night's rain.

Eighteen stalls have been rented by those who want to put horses in training for the races, and there are several out at the fair grounds now. It is expected that by the first of the month there will be twenty-five horses in training.

Secretary Hill is now corresponding with a view to securing attractions to present during fair week, and he has several lively things in view to interest patrons of the fair.

OFFICERS OF THE W. B. I. M.

Elected and Austin Chosen as Next Meeting Place.

The annual meeting of the Minneapolis branch of the Woman's Board of Missions of the Interior closed its three days' session yesterday by a meeting largely devoted to business. Sawyer, Minneapolis; corresponding secretary, Mrs. W. S. Dickinson, St. Paul; assistant corresponding secretary, Mars. Harlow Gale, Minneapolis; recording secretary, Mrs. H. G. Webster, Minneapolis; assistant recording secretary, Mrs. A. B. Upham, St. Paul; treasurer, Mrs. H. A. Scriver, Minneapolis; auditor, Mrs. W. W. Morse, Minneapolis; secretary of Y. P. S. C. Nevens, Brainerd; Mankato conference, Mrs. W. J. Richardson and Mrs. H. K. Painter, Fairmont; children's work, Mrs. Nelson Steele, Mankato; Minnesota Valley conference, Mrs. D. T. Wheaton, Morris; Miss Rose Schumaker Ortonville; children's work, Mrs. A. A. Crosby, Morris; Northern Pacific conference, Mrs. L. A. Huntoon, Moorehead; Mrs. O. M. Cass, Pelican Rapids; children's work, Miss Stalley, Hawley; program committee, Mmes. A. W. Wood, W. A. Sumner, and C. F. Ricard, Minneapolis.

Austin was chosen as the next place of meeting. Mrs. Harlow Gale made the report on the plan of work and recommended the raising of $7000 this year to meet the apportionment, and of $1400 in addition to pay the debt of the society. Pledges were taken and over $100 secured for the payment of the debt. As a means of helping out the finances it was voted to ask the auxiliaries to buy the published report at ten cents a copy. It was argued that paying for them would increase their value in the eyes of the purchasers. Money raising received much consideration and a report was made recommending that the society should try to increase its annual receipts 25 per cent and secure a pledge from every member of the church. There was much of this tenor in Mrs. Luella G. Muddelking's address on "Minnesota's Opportunity."

Great interest was shown this week in the production of "Carmen," which was given Thursday evening, by the pupils of George Tyler. All society was interested in the event, and it really was the only large event socially or theatrically of the week. The principals of the opera as produced here Thursday evening were chosen from among the people well known socially, and the interest of the work that would be done at this opera was manifest in the large audience. The work was splendid, and it has been said repeatedly that it was the best amateur production of opera ever given in the city.

IF THEY'RE BURROWS' SHOES THEY'RE PROPER

The Smart and Exclusive in Footwear.

It is a well established fact that there are no shoes which possess the characteristics of Burrows' footwear—that distinctiveness of style and smart elegance demanded by the world of fashion.

Every style here has the certain charm of individuality—a point missing from the ordinary footwear seen elsewhere. Ours are the newest and smartest creations of the world's best shoemakers—Hanan & Son and Laird, Schober & Co.—the artists who create all shoe fashions.

Dress and street shoes for spring and summer wear are ready—a showing by far the best and most comprehensive to be found anywhere in Minnesota.

The greatest variety of footwear for brides, for the trousseaux as well as for traveling and all dress wear. What other store renders such admirable service?

We devote a large section to Children's Footwear, showing a stock by far the greatest and best seen in Duluth. New styles in Children's Footwear for May Balls and Parties—as elegant and smart as the "grown ups."

Clubs and Musical.

The third and last chamber concert of the series will be given by the Beethoven club, consisting of Fred G. Bradbury, violin; Mrs. Marie Geist-Erd, 'cello, and Gerard Tonning, piano, at the Unitarian church next Wednesday evening. The club will be assisted by the Orpheus quartet, composed of William Cleland, David G. Black, Claude H. Hare and Gilbert H. McCarthy. For the first time in the history of chamber music in Duluth a work by Johannes Brahms, a trio in E, will be played, and the club takes great pleasure and pride in presenting to its patrons an important work by this highly interesting but exacting modern master. Brahms is considered by the musical world the only worthy successor of Beethoven, and demands from his performers the utmost skill and musical intelligence. Besides the trio, some of his Hungarian dances will be played. The following is the program in full:

Johannes Brahms (1832-1897) Op. 8. Trio for pianoforte, violin and 'cello.

The interest of the club women has been given this week to the question of beautifying and improving the city. The lecture along this line which was given Monday evening by Mrs. Conde Hamlin, a prominent club woman of St. Paul, roused considerable more interest among other than club women. Those interested in the question were delighted in securing Mrs. Hamlin to lecture here on the ways and means for Duluth to treat the subject.

The Matinee Musicale held the last meeting of the year Monday afternoon at Temple Recital hall. The music of Russia was studied and Mrs. Wilson G. Crosby and Mrs. Mark Baldwin were in charge of the meeting. A charming program was given and after the regular meeting the officers for the next year were elected. Mrs. John Millen was elected president; Mrs. J. A. Stephenson, vice president; Miss Carlotta Simonds, corresponding secretary; Miss Bernice Crowley, recording secretary and Miss Winifred Holmes, treasurer. The report of the treasurer for this year shows the club in good financial standing. The plan of work for the coming year will later be decided upon by the board of directors.

A fitting climax to the musical season, which has been a remarkable one in many ways, will be the appearance here of Madame Schumann-Heink, the great contralto of the Grau Opera company, at the Lyceum, May 13. It is not always that a great dramatic singer such as Mme. Schumann-Heink is, is as successful in recital, but she is remarkably so. Recently she appeared in a recital in Chicago and the Record-Herald said of her:

"As an example of the highest type of lieder interpretation Mme. Schumann-Heink's work was as notable as her rendition of the dramatic roles in which she has won fame. She was heard in a group of Schubert songs, Schumann's 'Frauenliebe und Leben' cycle, three Brahms compositions and an aria from Saint-Saens' 'Samson and Delilah.' The singer was thus afforded an opportunity for demonstrating her mastery in every department of her art, and of proving that in addition to being an admirable vocalist she is a thorough musician.

She was en rapport with poet and composer, no matter how widely the sentiment of the songs varied, and she showed that she could carry her auditors with her. The great power of the singer's voice was used to excellent advantage in Schubert's 'Die Allmacht,' which was in marked contrast with the emotional turbulence of 'Die Junge Nonne.'

In Schumann's 'Heavenly Dream' the tone was delicately poetic, and the singer's mood was introspective. In the 'Bridal Day' and 'Love's Delights' there was a glad outburst, which quickly changed to a tragic tone, in 'The Forsaken.' The encores were Schubert's 'Wohin,' Herman's 'Strampelschen' and the 'Brindisi' aria of Donizetti."

The last meeting of the Unity club for this season will be held at the Unitarian church Monday evening, April 27. Mr. Wilson G. Crosby will read a paper on "Maurice Maeterlinck."

* * *

The Lester Park Literary club will meet Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Storer. The lesson for the day will be "Awakening of a Nation," first four chapters. Leader, Mrs. Allen.

A PROTEST TO BE MADE

By United States, England and Japan to Russia.

London, April 25.—The Associated Press learned that there is in contemplation a forcible joint protest on the part of Great Britain, the United States and Japan against the Russian demands in the matter of the sovereignty of Manchuria.

Sir Ernest Sato, British minister to China, in a dispatch to the foreign office, confirmed the synopsis of the note addressed to China by M. Planchon, Russian charge d'affaires at Pekin. Further official advices regarding the intentions of the Chinese government and explanations from St. Petersburg, are awaited axiously.

In the meantime the British government is not taking active measures, although intends to circulate pour parliers looking to point action from Washington, London and Tokio, provided further information sustains the present abstract of the Russian demands.

The Associated Press is authorized by the foreign office to state that if the Chinese government correctly represents Russia's claims, these claims constitute an absolute berach of all the undertakings given in connection with Manchuria and utterly abrogate the principles of the open door territorial division and international comity to whicr the British government constantly and publicly has committed itself.

It is added that in these principles Great Britain has always acted with the United States and it is presumed tht similar feelings exist at Washington. Nothing, however, is definitely known, with the exception of the British minister to China. No British ambassador has yet reported.

It is pointed out that Russia's explanation may throw a different light on her demands, although in official circles here there is a frank expression of the belief that Russia has no intention of evacuating Manchuria and that she hopes after demanding the maximum to secure a compromise.

Has Encountered Many Difficulties at Levant.

New York, April 25.—The American Bible society's annual report of its Levant agency was made public today. The report says the agency has been subjected to harrassing influences, due to political and social conditions in the East. In Macedonia the movements of the colporters have been restricted and they have gone about only at the risk of personal danger. The demand for the Bible is increasing in the countries of the Levant agency, and while in the greater part of the territory there has been no marked movement among the evangelicals, says the report, there has been a most remarkable quickening in the territory of the Central Turkey mission. Attenion is called to the "marvelous changes in hearts and lives of ignorant, superstitious people," made by mission schools in Palestine and Syria.

THE PIAZZA GOWN, ITS COMING GLORIES

This Year It Is the Custom to Build Two Skirts to One Waist—It Is the Day of Fluffiness and Flying Ends.

New York, April 25.—It is time to dream day dreams of summer time! Time to think of the cool, sweet mornings and their gowns of crisp-figured lawn; time to think of the drowsy afternoons with their hammock dresses of volle taffeta, mull and batiste; time to think of the summer evenings, and their veilings, their silvered chiffons, their wonderful tissues and their transparencies. Time to think of summer dress!

Once upon a day there walked through the city streets a woman on summer gowns intent; and in a shop window she saw that which seemed to her the embodiment of summer coolness. It was only a summer etamine, but it was in a pale coffee shade and its texture was very silky and its durability pronounced. It was one of those new etamines that neither full up nor fade, but keep their delicacy and shape forever.

Purchasing this gown she made it up on lines that suggest the shirt waist suit. The waist was quite plain, with only one wide Gibsonian plait in the middle of the front. But this one plait was so wide that it covered almost the entire front of the waist. The border of the plait—each edge of it—was trimmed with very narrow white braid, and the uppers of the sleeves are also braided.

The gown, as looked at from the front, shows sleeves which bag below the elbow and are fitted with a big puff of Bruges lace, that heavy Bruges which is so popular this season. The cuffs themselves are deep and are made entirely of Valenciennes lace, so delicately becoming to the hand! and, thus, two styles of lace are worn.

The skirt is plain as to the yoke, but there are tacks upon each side, below the hip yoke, which are released to make a great foot flare.

And then there is the touch of black which is observed in little black velvet bows upon the sleeves and in a belt which is made of alternate rows of black and white braid. The gown is ready for summer, and the beauty of it is that it can be worn in the lap of spring, while yet the cooler winds blow, for with etamine you can do so much!

And then there is the story of a woman who wanted a gown for summer afternoons. But, being not very well fixed in this world's goods, she desired that it be suitable also for wear in the house in winter time; one of those dresses which you can put on in the evening for nice.

A gown to meet all requirements was found in a cement gray goods, greatly resembling veiling. You would almost have called it a new edition of nun's veiling, for in certain lights it looked so substantial, yet in other lights it was quite transparent.

This gown was made up in a wholly delightful way by being provided with two skirts. One skirt was very long, immensely long; a veritable skirt for dinner or for one's best reception wear. When trimmed with a little lace and a grea deal of shirring and ruching it was a model skirt, lovely quite beyond the words to tell.

The other skirt was a piazza length, just sweeping upon the floor, with 4 or 5 inches to spare. It was trimmed with shirrings which were laid on very flat around the hips and then stitched down to make them still flatter.

The waist, whic hwould go with anything, had a lace yoke, and there were elbow sleeves, to be fitted with deep melon-shaped puffs to the elbows; and it had a cunning arrangement of lace straps which were attached to the yoke and allowed to hang down in a very clever fashion. The two skirts made a nice change for the gown.

When two skirts are made to one waist—and this year it is the custom to bulid two to one—it is ordained that one skirt shall be semi-pedestrian and man looks like a much-beruffled morning glory? This box-plaited skirt stitched to the knees was brought over by Mrs. Paget from London.

Another style of skirt, and a very popular one, is made to simulate the overskirt. Deep plain flounces are put upon the skirt, so as to look like the semi-skirt; and one of these falls over the other. The flounces rise at the back, after the manner of the Spanish flounce, and so the skirt is trimmed front and back.

If you want the trimmed skirt take a very wide panel of lace and set it down the front. Let it be eight or ten inches wide, if you have the lace, and let it reach right from the belt down to the floor. Now, take a length of lace, and travel around the skirt with it, select a knee height and, with due regard for the Spanish tendencies, let it rise at the back and dip in the front. Follow this row of lace with another and similar strip and you have a skirt that is trimmed precisely like one which Mrs. Arthur Paget wore the other day at a farewell luncheon given in her honor.

With the summer gown the summer hat will appear and this will be one of the hats of the season, flat and trimmed in becoming ways, all in accord with fashion's decrees in the matter of hats.

And one of these is a piazza hat for nice wear, yet so simple that any one might imitate it. The whole trimming consists of a veil or scarf, bordered with lace and rather longer than wide. This is laid around the hat in a swirl and is shaped with the fingers until there are many folds over the a border of lace, which falls over the brim of the hat, and this border consists of lace points, which just hide the face a trifle without obscuring it.

The hat that is trimmed with lace and which has a large border, is not new with this season. But it is still the vogue, and so pretty that it will be worn a great deal. One requires, in order to make it, only a lace scarf, or a scarf of chiffon, with a border of lace, and then the hat is trimmed, for any one can put on the scarf, it requiring no skill.

It is the day of fluffiness and flying ends, and the young girl of society finds herself fitted out with everything that is becoming to her. But the matron can also wear the floating ends, the streamers at the back of the neck, the sash and the loose, airy things of dress; and, therefore, she should rejoice that they are in, for they are becoming, inexpensive, and they always create an effect. So, what more could any one want?

Belts that are made in girdle form, pointed in the front and as deep as the figure will permit, are finished in the back with flying ends. Bishop stocks, demure in front, with the tabs hanging under the chin, are made fluffy in the back by a big bow of tulle, which is as soft and delicate as it can possibly be.

If a woman has any talent for light and pretty dressing, this will surely be the season of her deep content, for the devices of the winter offer her peculiar opportunity for the very styles at which she is an adept. hTe choux, the tufts, the rosettes, the tassels and the ruffings are all right in her line.

But let the woman who is not good at fluffy fixings beware, for herein she will meet her doom. Bows of tulle, if worn at all, should be worn accurately at the back of the neck or directly under the chin, not put on under one ear, in reckless style. And the sash ends should float gracefully, not loosely and uncertainly, as is their wont upon those who do not know how to wear them.

The debutante who looks sweet in anything can take liberties with dress, but let not the matrons do so.

Paris, April 15.—I am wondering if all of our great contouriers have young daughters to be brought out this spring. In looking over the new models it seems to me the young debutante has the greater share of attention as to her needs in the matter of dress, and well have they been provided for both as to dainty fabrics, and in delicate colors, as well as in the soft fluffiness of make-up, which is displayed in the forming of her new gown. There seems to be no rigid stiffness in all the realm of fashion today. Materials which have for years agone stood for extreme dignity and were worn only by those of middle age have been transformed into the most supple of stuffs. The new velvet mousseline is the latest achievement in the softening of materials, and this is wonderfully pretty and becoming when combined with the pretty soft clothes, now so fashionable.

Among the new gowns displayed at Worth's this week, I was particularly pleased with one especially designed for a fair young dubutante, which was made of tea-colored cloth and trimmed with silver embroidery. The skirt portion of material formed three shaped flounces to the knee, each flounce trimmed upon the hem with an original design of mingled silver silk and tea-colored chenille. The bodice portion of material displayed a deep yoke of dark green velvet mousseline, embroidered in silver, upon coarse net, the long tabs continuing into a shaped belt of dark green velvet mousseline, crossed diagonally with silver braid.

The little sack coat made to go with this pretty gown was cut in the new round corners in the front and finished all with three bands of dark green velvet mousseline, the two inside ones being crossed with tiny bands of silver braid, the gracefully drooping collar about the shoulders finished to match. The sleeve of material fitting the top of the arm widened gradually to the elbow, there forming two box plaits beneath a tea-colored chenille and silver dangling ornament, finishing at the wrist to match the collar and jacket, while four dangling ornaments, matching the one upon the sleeve, decorated the front of the sack.

While there is nothing startlingly new in the spring styles, still this season finds the evolution of the full skirt complete and the combinations of color more harmonious than ever before. White and black, while still a fashionable combination, must have its somewhat glaring contrast softened and subdued by a touch of one or the other of the new shades, such as citron, delft blue or palest buff. Fortunately the full skirt does not fall straight from the waist, but is gauged or pleated to fit the hips, thus retaining all of the grace ever found in the uncomfortable sheath skirt, while adding greatly to the artistic effect of the new soft cloths as well as diaphanous materials.

At a fashionable afternoon tea party on Tuesday I was charmed with the dainty effects of the young ladies' toilets. A pretty costume in citron silk had the blouse bodice of material tucked to form a deep yoke, outlined by white guipure lace applique in grape design. The sleeve of material was finely tucked to fit the arm to the elbow, there forming a full sleeve and ruffle of white chiffon, headed by white guipure lace applique to match the bodice, the full chiffon sleeve gathering into a closely fitting cuff of similar lace at the hand. The skirt portion of this pretty gown was gauged from the waist to several inches below the gauging, crossed at intervals by tabs of guipure applique to match the bodice portion, the skirt falling thence in simple fullness to the floor, finishing in a plain hem.

A charming gown in plain lavender mousseline de soie over pale lavender soft silk had the skirt portion of material finely tucked to several inches below the waist, where it joined the kilted skirt of material inlet with white Valenciennes lace. The blouse bodice portion of material formed a small, finely tucked yoke in the front, from either side of which the cape collar of material inlet with Valenciennes lace was finished with a frill of material edged with similar lace, while the square-cut neck finished with a flat band of Valenciennes lace insertion headed by a row of tiny pearls. The sleeve of white chiffon was finely tucked over pale lavender chiffon to the elbow, whence it flared into a gracefully drooping puff gathering into a close-fitting cuff of Valenciennes lace.

Her Life Might Have Been Saved

Two-thirds of the inmates of our hospitals are women. They are in most cases either for treatment or for an operation, made necessary by advanced stages of female troubles which have resulted in ovaritis, a tumor, or displacement of the womb.

"AN OPERATION NECESSARY."

How these words after the examination strike terror to a woman's soul, and with what regrets she hears them, when she considers that the operation has become necessary through her own neglect. Female derangements cannot cure themselves, and neglecting the warnings of nature only means putting it off until there is no cure. The woman who lets her trouble make headway pays the penalty of a dangerous operation and a lifetime of impaired usefulness at the best, and the operation often proves fatal when her life might have been saved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

When women are troubled with irregular, suppressed or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, bloating (or flatulence), general debility, indigestion and nervous prostration; or are beset with such symptoms as dizziness, faintness, lassitude, excitability, irritability, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholy, and "want-to-be-left-alone" feelings, and the blues, they should remember that there is one tried and never-failing remedy; Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound at once removes such troubles.

READ THE FOLLOWING LETTERS.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I cannot tell you how much good you have done me and how thankful I am to you for it. For five years I have not been free from pain for a day. I have had backaches, headaches, and those awful dragging sensations with leucorrhœa, and when menstruation appeared I was in such a condition I could hardly sit up. I doctored all the time, but nothing helped me, and I was told that an operation was necessary.

"Two months ago a friend suggested that I try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. No one knows what it has done for me and how thankful I am for it. It brought me the first well days I have had for five years. It did for me what doctors could not do, and I want every suffering woman to know about it."—Louise Nauer, 751 E. 166th St., New York City.

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—I wish to thank you for what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I had terrible hemorrhages, being lacerated from the birth of my child. The doctor told me that if I would have an operation I would be well and strong. I submitted to it, but was worse than before; no one knows what I suffered. Finally a friend advised me to try your Vegetable Compound; I did so, and commenced to feel better; I continued its use, and it has done for me what doctors could not do. I am strong and well. If women with any kind of female troubles would only consult you before submitting to an operation they would be spared many hours of pain and suffering. I cannot thank you enough for what you have done for me."—Anna Kirchhoff, 156 E. 100th St., New York City.

Evening Gown of Chiffon and Lace.

Use The Oiled Feather For A Quiet House.

In one of the quaint English story books of the last century, where the moral looms larger than the tale itself, there is an account of a man who went through life with an oiled feather in his hand. By its magic aid creaking joints, stiff hinges and rusty bolts were vanquished one by one, and these jarring physical discords silenced. The moral atmosphere following in the wake of the oiled feather became one of smiling peace and sweet content for all concerned.

To the modern housekeeper the oiled father may still be commended.

Nothing is more uselessly aggravating or more productive of "nerves" than the thousand and one unnecessary noises that rasp and irritate one, when the oiled feather, or its equivalent, might give surcease of trouble.

Accordion Pleated Negligee.

Take the creaking door. If the hinges seem rusty, wipe first with kerosene to cut the rust, then apply the oiled feather, using any oil that does not become gummy. Tallow is excellent for all metals, and vaseline may often be used to advantage. Graphite, from a lead pencil or stove polish, is also a good lubricant. For table leaves or any wood joint, a bit of hard soap applied on the point of a lead pencil will usually cure the stiffness and silence the creaking. A bureau drawer that protests every time it is opened and shuts only after hard pushing can generally be made all right by soaping the sides. A bed slat that groans every time the sleeper turns over may be relieved by covering the ends with felt or a large rubber band. The noise of a sewing machine may be materially lessened by putting rubber under the feet of the machine, while the running gear must be kept well oiled.

A rattling shutter frequently can be tightened so as to keep silence by the simple expedient of driving in a match or toothpick where the slat is loosened. If the slats rattle, a large spool pushed under the rod that goes through the middle will hold them still.

A vine or branch of a tree swaying against a window makes an eerie sound that may be obviated by judicious pruning, if it cannot be tied back securely. A creaky board in the floor can usually be tightened by hammering more securely to the joist. If this does not avail drive thin wedges into the cracks to tighten.

A loose window casing also requires splinters driven in to tighten until the carpenter comes to "make a thorough job of it."

A whistling sound from the burning gas indicates that unconsumed gas is escaping through the burner. Turn the key until the sound ceases. Burners should be frequently cleaned and renewed when they do not work well, and a loose key that does not indicate to a certainty whether gas is turned on or off should not be tolerated for a day.

The cogs of a wringer or an egg beater should never be allowed to get wet, as that takes off the oil. If they have been wet, and stick and squeak, oil them.

Oil or tallow on metal and soap or paraffine on the wood grooves of a dumb waiter assist in keeping it "dumb," while soap or vaseline will do the same for a creaky chair.

For squeaky shoes try first soaking the sole in oil. Pour a small quantity of linseed or sweet oil upon an old plate or flat dish and allow the shoes to stand in it over night. In this way they not only usually lose the squeak, but being saturated with oil become proof against damp.

In extreme cases the only thing known as a sure cure for creaky shoes is French talc, and in this case the services of a cobbler must be called into requisition. Pry apart the leathers of the sole and blow in the talc using an insect-powder bellows or a tube in the mouth. Then sew up the sole. Or a shoemaker for five cents will drive a little wooden peg through the sole which will hold the pieces of leather of which it is composed together. In case of sickness the noise made by throwing coal on the fire may be obviated by putting the coal in paper bags, then laying it on the fire.

The Banshee wailing that often comes through the speaking tube in windy weather may be laid low by a temporary plug of wood or soft paper.

Cheese Bisque.

Into a pint of milk put a pinch of soda and bring to the scalding point. To this add a cup of mutton stock in which an onion has been boiled and a cup of water in which rice has been cooked. Cook together in a good-sized saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and two of flour. When they are thoroughly blended and bubble pour on them the white soup and stir until it thickens to the consistency of cream. Now beat in a half cup of grated cheese. Have ready in a bowl two well-whipped eggs, and on these pour a little at a time, a cupful of hot soup, beating steadily to prevent curdling. Return the cup of soup, with the eggs, to the soup on the fire, beat for half a minute, season with salt and pepper, and serve. Odd, but very good when properly made.

Paris Modes, Spring Costumes

THE QUESTION OF SHORT SKIRTS AND LONG.

Such a multiplicity of styles as are now being placed before the public has rarely been seen before, and it requires cool judgment to know what to choose among the many bewildering pretty materials and designs that are furnished for gowns for morning, afternoon and evening. There is an unusual variety of fashions for spring gowns; that is, for the first gowns that are put on for the street after the heavy winter ones are impossibly warm. The war still rages on the question of short skirts and long, and, as is usual, the question is being settled in the most expensive manner—that is, every woman must have both.

The cloth skirts that are made short clear the ground about one-half an inch, not more; the really short walking skirt is reserved entirely for rainy day gowns and for golf skirts and the long skirt still trails many inches on the ground. Checked black and white and blue and white in shepherd's plaid or in the larger plaid gowns are smart for the moment. They have jaunty little coats much trimmed with black and white braid or with black or white braid. While the sckirts are plain, the jackets are elaborate, short as a rule, but with long, straight tabs in front and not in the least on the tailor order, although with supposedly tailor finish. The nine-gored skirt with a good flare is a model that meets with general approval. The pleated skirts are, in addition to the pleats, trimmed with straps and bands in long lines or around the skirt. If the pleats are fastened down to a certain part of the skirt where the pleats flare, there are ornaments of passementerie or braid at the top. Checked silk shirt waists matching the cloth are worn with these gowns; also plain-colored ones or white ones. There is rarely a waist made of the same material, and sometimes the entire gown is of silk made exactly on the lines of the cloth ones.

The light weight vicunas, camel's hair and zibellines are used in street gowns, trimmed with mohair braid; that is, the silk finished, that gives a very glossy look. The colors are of different shades of blue, purple, green and brown, and there is a chiffon waist and a silk waist of just the same color. The coats are short fancy jackets, or three-quarter length, but made with the belt and the blouse effect in front and with much trimming of the glossy braid. The sleeves are large, but above the elbow are of medium size; below they are bell-shaped, gathered into a cuff of the shiny braid again. All these gowns have the short skirt, and also to be included among the short-skirted costumes must be those of veiling and etamine made with the coat and skirt style. It is rather a new idea within the last few years to have materials so thin as these made up in coats and skirts, but they have been satisfactory, and consequently are again in fashion. There are mohairs and pongees made in the same way. The mohairs are fascinating in coloring and in design, for this year there are more of the fancy mohairs than have been used for a long time.

Anything more absolutely impracticable for daily wear than the light cloth costumes that are turned out has never been seen. For midsummer (when they will be quite too warm) they might, in the country, retain their freshness for a while, but in the cities these gowns seem most inappropriate. However, they are fashionable, and are included in every smart wardrobe. The lightest possible tans and grays, and, above all, white, are made up in long trailing skirts, trimmed with the usual lace medallions and insertion or braiding, and with coats that are smart enough for evening wraps in themselves, long and covered with ornaments of braid, passementerie and lace. There are many costumes, to be sure, which have the short coats, but, as a rule, there is a blouse waist to match the skirt, and then a long coat which is in reality a wrap.

The all-one-tone color scheme is seen in these costumes of cloth and lace or in the veilings and laces. The smartest are in mauve or the light tan or green; the latter will never be too popular, for it is very trying and just a little conspicuous, but there are some shades in it that are on the turquoise that are exquisite, but always in the palest shade. These skirts are long, not only at the back, but in front and at the side, so that it is impossible to hold them up, but then they are not expected to be held up. They are for carriage wear or for reception wear, although they are classed under the head of street gowns.

Dainty negliges, tea gowns and matinees are simple in design, but not necessarily inexpensive. Accordion pleated effects are fashionable in silk, light wool, crepe de Chine and muslin, as well as chiffon. It would seem as though a chiffon garment of this kind would be most perishable, but it is not, especially when made up with a lining of albatross cloth or light India silk, for the light silks make good linings in anything intended for summer. Many of these negligе garments have no lace at all on them; others are a mass of lace, but they are all loose and apparently shapeless, fitting close only over the shoulders, and from there hanging in long lines. The sleeves are graceful if they hang loose from the shoulders, and are quite long. For practical purposes there are some veilings that are good for these garments, inexpensive and durable.

Evening gowns of chiffon and lace are trimmed with quantities of ruchings of chiffon, as well as medallions of lace. The lines are much the same as they have been for a year or two, with the exception of the ruffled skirts, of which not many have yet been seen. The fancy models now have the upper part of the skirt fitting close in tucks and entre deux and then a wide flare around the foot, made flaring with pleated ruffles of chiffon or mousseline de sole and an inside flounce of taffeta, all of which helps to keep out the material, and chiffon and lace require considerable holding out after they have lost their first freshness.

There is a variety in the shape of the low waist intended for evening wear. The square neck is not so fashionable now as the round, with the gown cut well off the shoulders and so perfectly fitting that it does not need, except for appearance sake, a strap of embroidery, lace or jewels that holds it over the shoulders. Below the top of the arm the real sleeve begins, and has rather a large bow of chiffon or net caught with a jeweled ornament or a band of lace, from which hang pleatings of chiffon or net ornamented with medallions of lace, or whatever trimming is used on the gown itself.

For Beauty And Health.

The longing to be beautiful is in the heart of every woman, kept down, perhaps, by the most austere, yet never extinct; regnant in the lives of most women. Instinct and history teach the value and the power of beauty, and everything that tends to foster or preserve it is seized upon by those who fear to lose or who desire to add to their good looks. In the effort to obtain beauty many foolish things are done, and sometimes permanent injury results. Here are some recipes that have been tried and have been found simple and harmless:

Cold Cream.

This formula for cold cream is used by one of the prettiest actresses on the stage. It prevents wrinkles if used every night. Rub some on the face when retiring, and wipe off with a cloth, and you will be surprised at the dirt that will be on the cloth. Then rub a little more on and leave till morning, when it will be absorbed. After bathing, put on a small quantity of the cold cream, then dust the face lightly with powder. Do not buy the ingredients in a cheap drug store. The difference in price will be fully made up by the difference in the quality of the materials. Five ounces almond oil, two ounces lanoline, three ounces rosewater, half-ounce spermaceti, half- ounce white wax, pinch of borax.

Put oil in an earthen bowl and put the bowl in a pan of boiling water and set on stove. When the oil is very hot break in the spermaceti and wax; when that is melted put in lanoline, and stir constantly until it is thoroughly incorporated. Put in the borax, then pour in the rosewater, take off the fire and lift bowl into another pan with cold water in it, and beat until it is a white, creamy mass. Do not stop stirring it until it is all done. Use a wooden paper knife or a small wooden spoon. Have your jars ready, and when the cream is thoroughly beaten put in the jars, leave until cold, then cover. The cream should leave the sides of the bowl perfectly free from stickiness. It will cost from 90 cents to a dollar for the ingredients.

The Teeth.

To whiten the teeth dissolve two ounces of borax in three pints of hot water, and before it is cold add a teaspoonful tincture myrrh and a tablespoonful spirits of camphor. Bottle it. Use a wineglassful to a glass of tepid water. If used daily it whitens the teeth and arrests tartar. A good toothpowder is made from half an ounce Peruvian bark, powdered, quarter of an ounce of pulverized chalk, quarter of an ounce of orris root.

The Hair.

A good wash for the hair is made from an ounce of borax, half-ounce camphor, dissolved in a quart of boiling water; when cool bottle. Use about half a cupful in a bowl of warm water. The white of an egg beaten lightly and a very little water added to it. If rubbed into the scalp and then rinsed off thoroughly, leaves the hair soft and silky.

A Little Woman Party.

The little women party is an entertainment which would be suitable for a circle of friends who are well acquainted and fond of laughing.

The bright hostess of such a party was a little woman coming well below the five feet mark. She asserted that she had suffered so much from her lack of stature that she determined, for one evening at least, to make the lot of the little people enviable—to put a premium on lilliputianism.

On entering the drawing room each invited guest found herself seized upon, placed against the wall and measured with a footrule. Every man or woman was subjected to this treatment. When all had arrived the tallest man took as his partner the tallest woman, the man next in size took the next tallest woman, and so on. A procession was then formed, led by the smallest woman and man. Other couples followed, graduated as to size.

A Graceful Bodice for Evening Wear.

The procession marched three times around the room to the tune of "See the Conquering Hero Comes." The smallest woman received a pretty lace pin. This was presented with the suggestion that "best goods come in small packages." Her partner was given a small pocket dictionary, because, it was explained, it "contained much valuable matter in small bulk."

Each member of the party was forced to mount a weighing machine. When the weighing had been done, accompanied by bursts of laughter and applause, a second, triumphal procession followed, led by the woman and man of lightest weight. Again the piano struck up a lively and appropriate air, and the procession circled the room. At the termination of this march the victorious woman received a silver pin tray in the design of a feather. Her partner was given a sofa pillow filled with down.

A blindfold game followed. To play it the men of the company are blindfolded one by one. When the first man has been bandaged the women sit in a row facing him. He is then allowed to choose one woman from the row, the object being to choose the one of fewest inches, whose height the previous measuring has, of course, revealed. He does not choose her by name, but by her chair. Thus he may say: "I choose the lady in the second chair on the left hand," or "I choose the lady first in the row on my right hand." He can choose but once. If he should be lucky enough to select the smallest woman he receives a prize. Each man has his turn in this way, the women changing places after each round. Those occupying the chairs should keep up a lively conversation, in order that their voices may direct the guessers.

Then comes the turn of the women, each one being bandaged in turn, and endeavoring to pick out the smallest man. The men change places between the guessings.

LUNCHEON CLOTHS IN SIXTEENTH CENTURY SPANISH STITCHERY.

These luncheon cloths may be used in various ways—for small table-covers, centers over cloths, teas, or on polished tables for luncheons, for fruit luncheons, salad, Dutch, chafing dish or course luncheons. This Spanish couching and lace stitchery is very effective in the Oriental colorings—of old sorrel greens, oyster grays, burnt orange salmons, iridescent blues and greens blended, golds and blacks. This Oriental embroidery is in Oriental stitch mostly (couching the lying down of threads), and a dark-colored seam stitch bands each part, bringing out the colors most effectively. This is also in gold thread when white and gold embroidery is used, as in the horse chestnut or buckeye design. Then this corded frame to the lace stitches and couching is formed by the use of wash gold thread stitched on, pinning the frame to the design. In this lace and Oriental Spanish work a good deal of labor is saved and a pleasant flat stitch obtained all in surface work, and is durable for wear.

No. 1 shows the whole of the design in this Oriental couching stitch in the old colorings, outlined with a hunter's green. This is on a plain round thread linen, and the ornament of the design is all in this couching stitch, which is the lying down of threads; that is, threads extending from tip to base in even, close rows until a thick, smooth surface of silk is formed, all on the surface and keeping the form; then, with two single threads of floss, this is banded at intervals in the opposite direction; then, beginning at tip, catch down these long, last made over stitches by tiny stitches in rows forming over the whole little squares, one stitch being directly over the other, edges quite even, and stitches also, producing a flat, beautiful, glossy stitch, effective and sure to wear well.

Nos. 3 and 4 represent Florentine work of the seventeenth century. Both of these are wrought in finest of fancy stitches on Japanese linen. This is the most silky and sheerest of the filmy linens, most durable, as there seems to be no wear out to it. It is commonly called pineapple linen or gauze. No pains have been spared in bringing these delicately fine linens to perfection; they are really made in the Philippine Islands and are taken to Japan to be woven, where a more beautifully fine and even weave can be obtained, and they are even more silky after laundering. These Florentine fancy stitches seem just suited to this filmy linen, and n No. 3 the palest of pastel or opalescent colorings are used, palest of salmons, blues, grays, browns, pinks and white, graduated in the disks, and the drawn work forming a hem is carried out in corresponding colors, all exquisitely dainty.

A beautifully bound volume of "Poems and Verses," by Carol Norton, has just been published by Dana, Estes & Co., which is justly entitled to recognition as a work of exceptional merit. Mr. Norton shows a keen sympathy for and understanding of the needs of humanity. Human need is the same in all places, and the great strength of Mr. Norton's poems lies in the spirit of hope and immortality pervading them all. The first poem, 'A Song of Life," in its very title, expresses the joy and peace of immortality, and the last verse rings with assurance:

"O earth that blooms and birds that sing,
O stars that shine when all is dark!
In type and symbol thou dost bring
The life divine and bid us hark
That we may catch the chant sublime,
And, rising, pass the bounds of time,
So shall we win the goal divine,
Our immortality!"

There is a high moral tone running through all the poems which will elevate character and be a regenerating influence for good. They not only teach lessons of patience, meekness and love, but tell us how to attain this condition. They will bear peace to the tempest tossed, comfort to the sorrowing and a quiet fearless attitude amidst darkness and doubt. The poem "Be Fearless" gives a strong sense of courage attained by the writer:

"Give to the winds thy fears;
Rise in thy conscious strength;
The mountain heights of love are thine—
There thou can'st hear the song divine,
The song that to thy heart brings peace
And from all fear the mind's release."

The following lines from the poem called "Ascension" is a gem and leaves one better for having read it:

"One by one, pure thoughts and holy
Lift us out of self and sin:
One by one bright gleams of glory
Show the goal we all would win."

Through all runs the song of the triumph of good, the peace of overcoming, the sure reward of honest endeavor, mercy and justice. So optimistic is the keynote of each poem that one feels instinctively the certain knowledge which must have prompted the expression. Perhaps 'The End is Light" expresses most clearly Mr. Norton's spiritual optimism. In illustration:

"Some day all clouds shall vanish,
All battles will be won;
The question of our lives be solved,
All currents, God-ward run."

The child-like simplicity of the poem "A Prayer" is expressed most clearly:

"Oh, make me trusting, guileless, pure,
And let my path be straight and sure,
Then, as a little child in heart,
Will come to me life's better part."

Such a prayer must help each nature striving to better human conditions, living and loving.

These illustrations give a general view of the nature of the "Poems and Verses," each one bearing a spiritual message born of experience and showing the imprint of a nature at once sincere and convincing. They enlarge spiritual insight and teach a lesson of power to mold life after a higher pattern. They communicate joy and optimism and are most musical in rythm and feeling. Mr. Norton rises to prophetic vision in the poem entitled "Love's Nobility." There may be confidently predicted for this first book of poems which Mr. Norton has had published an increasing welcome, which will grow as the pems are known and studied. Wherever human experience is deepest, there will the welcome be most sincere.

William Farquhar Payson is a young author who has already written three or four novels, notably "John Vytal," but none of them, strange to say, showed signs of the remarkable power, knowledge of life, humor and deep feeling which distinguish his novel, "The Triumph of Life," just published by Harper & Brothers. It is a story of modern American life, its scenes laid for the most part in the neighborhood of Madison and Washington squares, New York city. The central character, a literary Jekyll and Hyde, is drawn with searching analysis, and the two women, Celeste and Marion Lee, his good and evil geniuses, are wonderfully alive. The character of Celeste especially is portrayed with candid realism. Matthew Steele, "the richest publisher in America," and purveyor of cheap literature for the million, is a striking modern figure. Mr. Payson's home is at Bristol, R. I., where some of the scenes of his new novel are laid.

An interesting literary comparison is made between A. J. Dawson, whose remarkable novel "Hidden Manna" is attracting so much attention, and Pierre Loti, author of "An Iceland Fisherman. Loti has been valled a master of exotic literature from his power of picturing life in foreign lands, and a similar power has been proved by Mr. Dawson in the intimate and absorbing revelation of the strange life of Morocco, which he presents under the title of "Hidden Manna."

That historical novels have not lost their voge is apparent from an examination of the spring list of fiction. Upwards of forty titles fall under this head, there being romances of the Old World, stories of the good old colonial days, revolutionary war stories, novels which have the war of 1812 for a historical background and romances of the civil war. Some, like William R. A. Wilson's "A Rose of Normandy," concern both hemispheres—France and Canada in the title of Louis XIV. The war of 1812, however, appears to be almost slighted, but one romance representing that important event, "Love Thrives in War," by Mary Catherine Crowley, whose "A Daughter of New France" and "The Heroine of the Straits" have made her name a familiar one with readers of historical fiction.

Mrs. Margaret Doyle Jackson is already at work on a second book. One or two critics of her first story, "A Daughter of the Pit," have suggested that it sounds as though she had familiarized herself with Zola's "Germinal" and Mrs. Burnett's "That Lass o' Lowrie's." It is a matter of fact that Mrs. Jackson has never read either of these books. Indeed, she was under the impression that no one had written of a mine or of mining life from quite the same standpoint as that of "A Daughter of the Pit." Of course, descriptions of the same things are liable to be alike in some respects, but she simply wrote of the people she had seen, and not from any previous representation of them by others.

L. Frank Baum, the famous author of fairy tales, declares children should have no suggestion of love or marriage in their literature therefore in all his stories that ancient idea of the princess marrying the prince, "to live forever and die happy," is conscientiously eliminated, and a plot of simple though stirring adventure is relied upon to hold the attention of the childish reader. "Love, as depicted in literature," says Mr. Baum, "is a threadbare and unsatisfactory topic which children can comprehend neither in its esoteric nor exoteric meaning. Therefore it has no place in their storybooks." Another curious thing about Baum's stories is that no person is ever killed, or even painfully injured, in any of them, and only pleasantly exciting themes are utilized. The new Baum book for this year is to be called "The Enchanted Island of Yew."

Mrs. Humphry Ward has given to the editor of the Century some further particulars in regard to the medallion portrait of her father, Thomas Arnold, which is pictured in the May number of that magazine. The portrait is the work of Mr. Derwent Wood, a rising young sculptor, and it has been placed in the Catholic University church, Stephen's green, Dublin, on the same wall as the bust of Cardinal Newman, Dr. Arnold's old colleague and friend. These are the only monuments in the church, which Mrs. Ward says is "a small but beautiful building, lined with marbl in the Italian style. It was built when Cardinal Newman was head of the first Catholic university, and was the work of several men of pure and beautiful taste." The article in the May Century on "Thomas Arnold the Younger" is written by Arnold's son, William T. Arnold, an English journalist and a brother of Mrs. Humphry Ward.

"Marjie, of the Lower Ranch," is the attractive title which has been given to the story which has hitherto been announced as "A Ranch Romance by a Real Ranch Girl." The C. M. Clark Publishing company will issue this book in September. Miss Carro M. Clark, who is at the head of this remarkably successful house, will be the guest of Miss Frances Parker, the author of "Marjie," on her father's ranch in the Bear's Paw mountains, Montana, in May.

At least one publishing house celebrated Shakespeare's birthday April 23. Doubleday, Page & Co. selected this date for the publication of the first volume of the Elizabethan Shakespeare, which is ready after four years of continuous preparation. The edition is edited along new lines to make the plays better understood to modern readers. It is of unusual interest in more ways than one. Many of the highest authorities consider the first volume is the most beautiful book ever printed in this country.

In Frederic S. Isham's "Under the Rose," a story of the days of the motley, the sayings of Triboulet, the court fool, recall certain noteworthy remarks attributed to other jesters. When Anaxarchus, fool of Alexander, was in the power of Nicocreon, the latter put him in a mortar, to kill him in a novel manner. "Pound away!" said the poor jester; "it's only my body; you can not pound the soul." Timocreon, of Rhodes, a heathen jester, wrote for his epitaph, one more suitable, perhaps, than the average flowery tribute on marble: "Having drunk much; eaten much; spoken much evil: here at last lie I!" Many of the remarks attributed to Triboulet in the story, "Under the Rose," are actually taken from old chronicles and made to serve their purpose by Mr. Isham, under new conditions.

John Lane is about to publish a nature book, under the title "Walks in New England," by Charles Goodrich Whiting, who is already well known as associate editor of the Springfield Republican, where Mr. Whiting has for many years written a quantity of essays and verses descriptive of nature and her seasons. His writings in the presetn volume have, together with breezy atmosphere, a considerable infusion of philosophy. His essays are of the pleasant, gossipy kind of Gilbert White's "Selborne," and his verses are those of a true disciple of Wordsworth. This may sound dangerous comparison, but the publisher feels that it is nevertheless a fair one, and is confident that the critics will remark the permanent value of Mr. Whiting's nature book.

George W. Jacobs & Co. announce the early publication of "The Peril and the Preservation of the Home," by Jacob A. Riis. In this volume Mr. Riis sets forth the great and serious peril that besets the American home, especially in the slum districts of our large cities. He does not simply tell us of the peril; he makes us see it. He takes us with him directly into the heart of the New York slum; there we see for ourselves the terrible effect of overcrowding, the elbowing of tenement house against tenement house, the dividing up of rooms until buildings that were meant to house five families are made to do for ten or a dozen, the forcing of children upon the street to take care of themselves as best they may, the lack of all home ties, all home teaching, all home influences—for the home itself is being destroyed. This destruction of the home, Mr. Riis justly contends, is today the most serious menace threatening our national life. If the home is destroyed, American citizenship goes with it; if the home can be preserved, our nation is safe. It is a direful evil that threatens us, but this man who has practically spent his life in working for the betterment of the slum tells us how that evil may be met, and suggests how it may be finally overcome.

"What Shall I Do to Be Saved?" is the title of a new book by E. E. Bynum, which has just been published by the Gospel Trumpet Publishing company, Moundsville, W. Va. This volume fills a long-felt need in the line of salvation work, and ministers and gospel workers will find it just what they need to place in the hands of many who are seeking the way of the Lord. "What Shall I Do to Be Saved?" is the first thought of the sinner who is fully awakened to his spiritual condition, and this book tells what to do. It contains 200 pages, 33 chapters and 19 full-page original illustrations, which vividly portray the thoughts which the words express. The illustrations were specially drawn and engraved for this work and will prove a source of profit, pleasure and inspiration to those who study them. The little book will richly repay the one who "reads it through carefully, examines every subject thoroughly, scrutinizes every position rigidly, weighs every argument fairly, decides every point impartially, and acts upon the whole matter honestly."

As an appreciation and critical review of the popular young Russian's writings, E. J. Dillon's "Maxim Gorky: His Life and Writings," will be read with interest, for Mr. Dillon treats Gorky with fairness, praising his strong points and making no attempt to whitewash his weaknesses. A long article based on this book appears in the Argonaut for April 20, and will give a good idea of this Russian tramp-author to those who know little of him.

LEE BEFORE JURY.

The Lieutenant Governor Appears at St. Louis.

St. Louis, April 25.—Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee, who returned from Chicago last night, appeared before the grand jury yesterday, when that body resumed the investigation of charges of boodling in the general assembly in connection with baking powder legislation. Attorney General Crow, who is conducing the Jefferson City end of the inquiry, was present and assisted Circuit Attorney Folk in questioning the witness. Several indictments were returned by the Cole county grand jury, as the result of Mr. Lee's testimony at Jefferson City, and it is predicted that a number will be handed down here.

Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee says the question of his resignation is in the hands of Attorney General Crow and that he will probably do as that official recommends. Lee says, however, that he has reasons for wishing to retain his office. One of these, he says, is that he is a poor man and needs the salary attached to the office.

TEN "GET RICH QUICK"

Were Raided By the Police of Chicago.

Chicago, April 25.—Ten alleged "get-rich-quick" concerns were raided yesterday by the police and a wagonload of stationery and literature was taken to the Harrison street police station. The raids followed complaints of alleged victims to Chief O'Neil. The following places were raided: Kendall Specialty company, Curtis Novelty company, Sporting Novelty company, Gem Art company, Curtis Remedy company, Leslie Novelty company, Home Industrial company, General Supply company, Textile Manufacturing company and the Era Manufacturing company. H. W. Curtis is said by the police to have control of all the concerns, and his offices at 90 Wabash avenue were the ones raided.

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Modern Fable of the Attempt to Spruce Up the Family and Give It a Standing.

(Copyright, 1903, by R. H. Russell).

Once there was a Happy Family that began to get a few hard Bumps when Ma bought a Work on Etiquette. Up to that time the Outfit had not tried to throw on any Lugs.

The Male Contingent slouched around the House in their Shirt Sleeves, while the Girls often came to Breakfast in their Balloon Wrappers and never thought of primping until about 3 p. m. Father had an assortment of Rube Table Manners, left over from his early Experience on the Farm.

He never saw the sense of changing Knives when he hacked into the Butter and as for using the side of the Spoon, he never could get the Hang of it.

Up to the Time that he married and became House-broke, he had been a Sword-Swallower in a $1 Beanery. For years he up-ended his Soup Plate, so as to get all that was coming to him, and cooled his Coffee in the Saucer and concluded his Exhibition of Barbaric Sports by using a large, limber piece of Bread as a Mop.

His Wife worked on him for twenty years and finally had him so civilized that he no longer tucked the Napkin inside of his Collar, although he still put both Elbows on the Table and groaned a little just before tackling the Pie.

HIS RUBE TABLE MANNERS.

Ma belonged to several Clubs and began to meet the Lady Managers of Society. It was her Ambition to lift her own Family out of the Skate Division and get the whole Bunch into the local 400. That is why she bought the Volume containing this year's League Rules for cutting into High Life.

She wanted the Boys to forget their corn-fed Origin and do the Reginald Act and learn how to act in the Presence of Ladies. They were mostly Hands and Feet and had no Ambition in Life except to play Baseball, but still she went to work on them hopefully, knowing that our most Exclusive Circles are more or less clogged up with Counterfeits whom Nature intended for the Hay-Fields.

The Girls were a Sad Lot when Ma lined them up and decided to transform them into the Drawing-Room Queens. They were Gum-Chewers of the most abandoned Type and what they did to the English Language it would be a shame to tell. Each of them was more or less stuck on some chinless Percy who wore his Watch Chain high up and rubbed himself with Eau de Cologne. They had read Popular Novels until they were a trifle Moony. Their conception of Romance was to eat Pickles and write Notes on Blue Paper.

Ma's purpose, on studying the Book of Etiquette, was to remove the Kinks from this array of Raw Material.

She wanted each of the Boys to be a Chesterfield, while the Girls were expected to brace up and follow in the footsteps of Mrs. Shorwood.

As Director of the Training School she had to call them down about 1000 times per Day. When she had Company the Boys always forgot to arise when a Lady entered the Room. When Dinner was announced, they were always first at the Table. In stead of conversing with the Persons seated next to them, they humped over and got busy with the Vittles.

As for the Girls, they usually flocked in a Corner and had a Whispering Bee. At the Table they would get an Attack of the Giggles, without letting any one else in on the Good Thing, thus making it very enjoyable for the Guests.

To cap the Climax, the Male Parent would usually try to lift the Gloom by springing some ancient Wheeze, outlawed by Haverley's Minstrels as far back as 1880.

Ma had a proud Chance ao win a Social Standing so long as she was handicapped by that Band of Yokels. Just when she would be talking Art with a Massachusetts Accent, one of the Boys would break in with a Demand for a Second Helping of Cauliflower. Or else the Prize Blacksmith, in a well-meaning effort to be Hospitable, would urge the Lady Opposite to pitch in and Eat some more.

After Dinner it often happened that Ma would tout the Accomplishments of the Young Ladies. Accordingly they would be urged to Play Something. At which, they would hang back and snicker and do a Sis Hopkins Specialty.

While they were killing Time, Father would usually fall asleep with his Mouth open or else one of the Boys would upset something in trying to do a Sneak from the Room.

IN THEIR TOURING CARS.

As soon as the last unhappy Guest had escaped into the Night, there would be a large-sized Roast waiting for the whole Tribe. Ma would sit up until 1 o'clock reminding them of all the Horrible Breaks they had made. She said that sitting around in the Kitchen cracking Hickory Nuts was about their Size when it came to playing the Society Game. She allowed that they would be more at Home if they moved out to some Ranch and associated with the Live Stock. When Ma got rilled she forgot her Culture Club training and handed out a very Tabasco Line of Conversation.

She said she was good and tired of trying to make Ladies and Gentlemen out of a Flock of Yaps who took after their Father.

At this, she would get a rise out of Father. He said he didn't propose to strain himself being Polite to a lot of Four-Flushes who owed him Money. That was the Trouble with Father. He was President of the Company and seemed to think that his Official Position gave him a Right to break Crackers into his Soup. He refused to wear a White Tie with his Evening Clothes just because some cheap Department Manager had set the Style.

As for the Offspring, they were too mullet-headed to get wise to Ma's magnificent System of doing the Heavy. When it came to a toss-up between a Pink Tea and a Variety Show, they put their Spending Money on the Coon Song. Any time that Ma dressed them up and took them out to meet the Elite, they hung back.

At last Ma saw that the only Hope lay in shipping the whole Pack away to high-toned schools in the East.

For several Years the Rising Generation put a terrific Crimp in Father's Income, but at last they came home all speeded up and then they were so Fly that Father could not travel in the same Class and even Ma could get a few Pointers from them.

At present they are tearing up the Scenery in their Touring Cars and they have the Nerve to tackle any kind of Society.

When this is set, fill with a mixture prepared in this way:—Rub the contents of a medium sized jar of foie gras through a sieve, mixing with it two wine glasses of sherry. All of the jelly will not be required for lining the mould, and what is left you whip well until frothy and then add to the foie gras. Whip this again till spongy, add a gill of rich cream whipped and a bit of salt and pepper if it seems necessary to do so. Set the mould away on ice for a few hours, and when unmoulded for serving garnish with small cubes of foie gras and thin slices of lemon.

Toursedos of Beef, Parisian Style.—Cut two or three pounds of fillet of beef into neat rounds and saute in a little oil. Arrange in a circle, each slice overlapping another, and in the centre put some whipped cream having in it a generous amount of grated horse radish. French Mousse.—To one-half pint of strong black coffee add one-half a cup of sugar, a tiny grain of salt and the yolks of three eggs. Heat this till a bit thick, then when cool add one pint of rich cream. Pour into mould to stand for four or five hours before serving.

Alexandra Canapes.—Have small rounds of toasted bread and spread with butter. On each piece put two anchovies, and over them scatter chopped hard boiled eggs, capers and olives chopped.

Stewed Endive with Cream Sauce.—Cut the outer leaves from the desired number of heads of endive and wash the endive thoroughly. Drain and then boil in salted water for about fifteen minutes. Remove, put into colander and let cold water run through them. Chop and put into a saucepan with a considerable amount of butter. Cover and let cook for twenty minutes. Uncover, moisten a bit with cream, sprinkle paprika over and turn out on to fried slices of bread. Those who have favored endive as a salad will be agreeably surprised at finding how subtly this way of cooking it appeals to them.

OLD HOUSES MADE NEW

One need not be discouraged if he find himself with a house far out of date or of intolerably bad style on his hands. If he has taste he can transform it into something that will represent his own individuality and express his personal taste. Unless it is absolutely decayed an old house is by no means useless. There are many unsightly buildings that can be picked up cheaply by the discriminating purchaser and made into beautiful homes.

It need not cost so much, either. Mrs. William J. Brown, of Brooklyn, has converted an uninviting looking farm place into an attractive summer home, as shown in the accompanying illustration, at an expenditure of $200.

Mrs. Brown says:

"Because of the dilapidated condition of the farmhouse we bought it cheap.

"We added the two bow windows to lighten the rooms and also to hide the cellar door and ugly stonework and mortar under window nearest road. The windows cost $40 apiece, complete. The front rooms had no entrance from street, so we built a front piazza, put in door at cost of another $40, continued the lattice work underneath to hide rest of foundation and make it uniform with front end under bow window.

"Building a wood shed on rear, 20x10 feet, cost $50 more.

"Then to make the two rooms on the third floor pleasant we built a balcony, 10x4, at a cost of $30, with entrance door; so at a cost of $200 we made a pretty home of the dilapidated old one. The two pictures show the house before repairing and the house as it is now."

The illustrations here presented do not do justice to the changes effected by Mr. George N. Morse, of Meriden, Ct. The heavy foliage on the trees in front of the house partially conceals the upper story. This house was much more thoroughly remodeled than was Mrs. Brown's, and more money was spent on it. The original cottage was built in 1880, and its general plan was preserved, although the modifications and additions have changed its appearance entirely. The hall was enlarged and carried out to the front line of the main house. The partition between hall and front parlor was removed practically, as will be seen by the photograph, throwing the two into one room with Corinthian columns as a dividing line. There is an arch with similar columns between the front and back parlors; and also a wider archway between the rear parlor and the dining room. The north side of the house was carried out six feet, from basement to attic, thus increasing in length the dining-room on the first floor, the library on the second floor and a bedroom on the third floor. All of the rooms were covered with one-half inch quartered oak flooring, laid over the old floors, and the walls were decorated with various colored burlaps.

On the northeast corner, in rear of the dining room, an addition was built, which makes a commodious butler's pantry, as well as a breakfast room. It is finished in yellow pine. The size of this addition is 12x17 feet, and being two stories in height it furnishes a fine bedroom on the second floor leading from the library. The dining-room has quartered oak floor, the walls are covered with light green burlap, having Roman wreaths of solid cast brass. The veranda is eight and one-half feet wide, with ceiling of yellow pine and Doric columns nine inches in diameter.

Some Facts About The Egg.

April finds the domestic fowl at the zenith of her activities and high tide in the egg market. There are few who do not like eggs and with whom they do not agree. Some, biliously inclined, aver that they cannot eat them freely, but their digestibility is largely a matter of cooking. The Navajos shun them, having a prevalent superstition that he who eats eggs or chickens is bound to crow like a rooster in the night. Rigid vegetarians taboo them on principle; but these are the exceptions, not the rule. Like milk, eggs contain all the elements needed to support life, and those in the right proportion. Being highly concentrated, however, they need to be served with bread, potatoes, rice or other cereals in order to make the bulk necessary to keep the digestive organs in perfect condition. Eggs should not be served at the same meal with meat, unless it be with crisp slices of breakfast bacon or a tender, juicy bit of broiled ham.

While the digestibility of a fresh, properly cooked egg is almost perfect, there is nothing more indigestible than the fried or hard-boiled egg turned out by the ordinary ignorant maid.

At the cooking schools the proper treatment of the egg, with all the whys and wherefores, is one of the first lessons taught. It is explained that the albumen of the egg belongs to the proteid or nitrogenous division of food principles; the yolk to the fats or fuels. In cooking an egg the albumen coagulates at 158 degrees, while water boils at 212. If an egg is plunged into boiling water and kept at a high temperature the albumen becomes tough and consequently indigestible. The best way to boil eggs hard is the paradoxical one of not boiling them at all. Instead, drop the eggs to be cooked in a vessel of boiling water, cover closely and take at once from the fire. In six minutes the egg will be soft-boiled. In eight minutes the egg will be medium cooked. Twenty minutes, with the water just below the boiling point, gives the hard-boiled egg. Another method that insures a creamy and delicious soft-boiled egg is to put the egg in cold water and allow it to just come to a boil. Eggs that are perfectly fresh have the finest flavor. After 24 hours an egg steadily deteriorates.

Should you wish to examine into the freshness of your eggs before breaking hold each one before a strong light and look directly through it. If fresh the white will be clear and the yolk round. In the Paris egg market the eggtester sits with a lighted candle before him and passes upon every egg brought into the market. Another test of eggs is dropping them into water. The fresh ones being heavy will sink and the bad ones will float.

While a few years ago the appellation "bad egg" was equivalent to absolute good-for-nothingness, it is interesting to know that in these days even the "bad egg" has found its place.

When eggs are examined to go into cold storage all the small, dirty or cracked eggs that are still fresh and of good quality are canned, the whites and yolks being put up separately. These "airtights," as frontier men call them, have proved a great convenience, especially in hot climates.

The cloudy or rotten eggs are also canned and sold to tanners for glossing leather, while the shells are used as fertilizers. Thus eggs formerly a dead loss now bring from three to five cents a dozen.

May Day Observances

The fair maid who the first of May
Goes to the fields at break of day
And bathes in dew from the hawthorne tree
Will ever after handsome be.
—Old English Song.

Up the Hudson, around Nyack, Yonkers, Ardsley and Irvington, society girls hold to the old tradition, and each May Day morning finds a bevy of them out in the fields in search of the dew cosmetic that gave their grandmothers indubitable claims to beauty.

In large cities conditions are not favorable for bathing in dew. Neither the backyard nor the public thoroughfares are adapted for the carrying out of beauty recipes and the custom of celebrating May Day is more often honored in the breach than in the observance. Cold, drizzling rains, water soaked turf, often a dirty smudge of left over snow in some of the park ravines, are suggestive of influenza and rheumatism rather than of beauty. The children still hang May baskets on each other's doors, a few of them march to the park in straggling phalanxes from nearby schools with their May pole, but there is no longer on the part of "grown-ups" any attempt at going out to welcome the summer. Not so, however, in Mormondom. There May Day is more generally observed than most of the other holidays.

Care sits lightly on the adopted children of the American prophet. They revel in merrymakings of all sorts, and any excuse to take them out in the open, always en famille, is seized upon with avidity.

Weeks before May 1 the Mormon girl bends all her energies to the furbishing up of her limited wardrobe, meanwhile learning "a piece to speak," a song to sing, a part in a play or in the May pole dance. Every night the young people meet in the village hall of amusement, when they rehearse their parts for the elaborate programme that precedes the dinner, the latter being what the cowboys term "a mortal gorge."

The responsibility for this feast rests upon the older women, and from each two family house or communal dwelling the plop of the eggbeater, the swish of the churn or ice cream freezer, the savory and commingled odors of frying chicken and baking pie and cake float out upon the air—blissful suggestions of gustatorial delights to come.

On this "maddest, merriest day" in the Mormon calendar the family is early astir without the formality of calling. The "chores" are performed with dispatch, the big baskets and buckets packed with eatables and lemonade (the Mormon diet book, "The Word of Wisdom," prohibits tea, coffee and alcoholic beverages), and then, all gayly dressed in their holiday garments, they crowd into the great farm wagons or "prairie schooners" and turn their faces toward the village plaza or the appointed picnic ground. The elderly women all wear sunbonnets, but the young girls go forth resplendent in hats trimmed with flowers and ribbons of vivid and outre combinations.

Every face is wreathed in smiles, salutations cordial and jocose fly broadcast and happiness reigns supreme. The Mormons take their pleasures gladly. The girls are not pretty, as a rule, but they are strong, well built, erect and muscular. Dressed in white (and hard lines it is if a girl cannot have a white dress or one of thin light muslin for May Day), with a bunch of roses or scarlet pomegranate blossoms in the hair and on the breast, a bevy of Mormon maidens on May Day morning is a pretty sight.

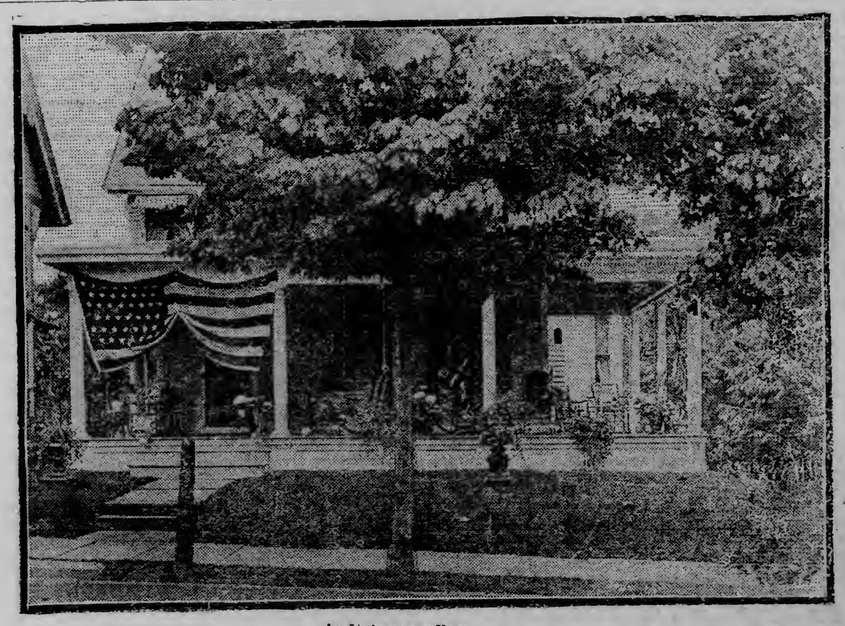
No description of a country girl's costume would be complete without reference to the edge of embroidered petticoat that is carefully kept in evidence, infinite pride being taken in that stiffly starched feminine garment. At the picnic grounds a platform has already been erected by the young men, and the May pole, gay with fluttering ribbons, set in place. There is much buzz of conversation, much adjustment and kindly comparison of the butter-ball-like babies who form a most generous part of the assemblage, and then the Queen of the May, surrounded by her court beauties, rustles in and seats herself in state in the forefront of the admiring audience.

Introduced by a prayer from the president of the State of Zion, the May Day program of recitation, song and dialogue unfolds itself for the delectation of the public, who applaud vociferously and between each number file up to the side of the platform, where tubs of water and tin dippers invite to copious libations.

Then comes the dance, the music furnished by a coterie of bovine looking youths, who draw their musical bows very much at a venture. After the May pole dance, given by the Queen and her ladies in waiting, the floor is open to all, the elders and other church dignitaries participating. At one o'clock dinner is served, the company partaking of it in relays and the young men acting as waiters. As fast as one battalion finishes dancing is resumed until the sun, low dipping in the west, proclaims the fact that "chores time" is again near at hand and the festivities of the day must be brought to a close.

The Mormon women are exceedingly superstitious, and May Day is a favorite time for divination. On May Eve the elves and witches are supposed to be specially frolicksome and mischievous, and great pains are taken to thwart their designs. If the butter fails to come a hot iron is dropped into the churn to oust the evil spirit, while mulberry buds are eaten as a sovereign remedy for their much dreaded influence.

The superstition against May marriages is as prevalent among Mormons as among the Gentiles, and while May is a great month for courting, weddings are far more rare than in June.



As It Appears Now.

DULUTH TEAM IN NORTHERN LEAGUE

Will Be a Fast One If the City Gives the Management Good Support—Jack Root's Victory Over "Kid" McCoy.

Duluth will have an exceeding fast team in the Northern league, if the people of the city support it right.

This support is just as essential as an all-star-phenom' battery or a stonewall infield, and it is something that has been deplorably lacking for the past four or five years.

The players which will wear the green hosiery and maroon togs are to be just what the town will support. If the patrons want a pennant-winning aggregation, it is up to them. Root violently and contribute liberally, but first of all contribute.

At the start Duluth is handicapped. The Northern league proposition, first supported by The Herald, was not taken to very kindly, and as a result much valuable time was lost, when such teams as Winnipeg, Grand Forks and Fargo were scouring the country for all available fast men.

Manager Van Praagh deserves considerable credit for getting the men that he has at this late date. He has lines out for others that will certainly put Duluth in the running if they are signed, and in view of the fact that he landed such a man as Mueller, the Wisconsin pitcher, who will certainly be one of the best twirlers in the league.

But more than fast players the team needs united support. In the past fandom has been divided in cliques, with the heavy "knockers" of each working to improve their "batting average" with an industry worthy of a better cause.

The Winnipeg and Fargo teams are already out in practice, thus giving them about a two or three weeks' start over Duluth, and that advantage will show up in team work more than individual playing during the early part of the season, so the fans should withhold the hammer and suspend judgment, even if the Maroons should lose the first few games or make a poor start.

Hugh McMahan, of Chicago, won a fast 10-round prize fight at Virginia on Thursday evening. Many Duluth sports saw the mill and say it was good.

Jack Root, the Chicago boxer, pride of the Bohemian colony, won the most important battle of his career at Detroit Wednesday, whipping "Kid" McCoy in hollow fashion. The victory of Root was about the most painful surprise the Eastern sporting fraternity has sustained since McGovern was knocked out at Hartford, and was so joyous a thing for Westerners that the echoes of the celebration will be heard for weeks to come.

McCoy, absolutely confident in his own ability and fine condition, figured himself an easy winner, and begged his friends to back him heavily. The Root men got 10 to 6 and even 2 to 1 for their money. It was the old, old story—giving the older fighter a big price just on his reputation and slighting the vigorous youngster till it was too late. Now that the fight is over, everybody can see just why Root won, and why McCoy never had a chance, just on youth, habits and rugged strength—but they didn't figure those things out till it was ended.

McCoy was expected to go round and round Root like a cooper round a barrel. He didn't, because Root incessantly attacked him, kept him off his balance and never gave him a chance to set himself or exercise his fancy footwork. It was also supposed that Root could not hit the agile Kid about the head, while McCoy's middle would be entirely out of reach under the clean-break system. Root found McCoy's waist line continually, and crossed to the sconce at least fifty times. As for the clean-break rule—well, both men calmly ignored the fact that it had ever existed.

Of all the popular idols of the ball field, "Billy" Sunday has undoubtedly gained prominence in the most widely different fields. His step from baseball player to evangelist, asking all to make a "home run for heaven," caused wide comment throughout the country some twelve years ago, and when he was ordained as a Presbyterian minister last week he was again brought prominently before his old-time friends, and the incident has brought out many a discussion among the fans regarding his baseball career.

The same forcefulness which now characterizes his evangelistic work was prominent in Sunday's career on the diamond. He was always conscientious, painstaking and aggressive and a brilliant outfielder, but it was his wonderful speed in running the bases for which he was particularly noted.

It was in the early '80s that "Cap" Anson discovered young Sunday in Marshalltown, Iowa. Anson was visiting his old Iowa home at a time when a fire tournament was in progress and in this meet the wonderful fleetness displayed by Sunday attracted the attention of the Chicago baseball manager.

At this time Sunday was employed driving a hearse for an undertaking establishment at Marshalltown, but after a talk with "Uncle Adrian" the young man was soon convinced that he could make more money playing baseball. He came to Chicago and was made a member of the famous team which won the National league championship for Chicago in the years 1885 and 1886.

On this team were Flint and Kelly, catchers; Clarkson, McCormick and Flynn, pitchers; Anson, Pfeffer, Burns and Williamson, the 'stonewall infield," and Dalrymple, Ryan and Sunday in the outfield. This was fast company, indeed, but Sunday was admittedly the fastest man on the team, and "Cap" Anson still maintains that Sunday was the speediest baserunner who has ever played the game of baseball in the National league.

His fleetness of foot was also given tests off the diamond. A special match race was once run between Sunday and the famous and fleet-footed 'Arlie" Latham at St. Louis, and again quoting Capt. Anson, Billy simply ran rings around Latham." On another occasion Sunday defeated several famous sprinters on the West Side ball park.

In fact, Anson, wherever the ball team went, was always on the lookout for matches in which he was invariably willing to back Sunday against the best runners the city could produce. Some of these races were not only run for money, but on the Sabbath, and now in his pulpit talks Sunday often mentions the same. Anson both won and lost on these races.

Sunday's greatest fault as a ball player, according to Anson, was his inability to bat as well as some of the hard-hitting outfielders. He was a fast and brilliant fielder, a good thrower, and once on first he could steal more bases than any of his team mates, but in hitting he was comparatively weak.

In telling of Sunday in his baseball book, Anson says: "The first thirteen times that Sunday went to bat after he began playing with the Chicagoes, he was struck out, but I was confident that he would yet make a ball player, and hung onto him, cheering him up as best I could whenever he became discouraged.

"As a base runner his judgment was at times faulty, and he was altogether too daring, taking extreme chances because of the tremendous turn of speed that he possessed. He was a good fielder and a strong and accurate thrower, his weak point lying in his batting. The ball that he threw was a hard one to catch, however, it landing in the hands like a chunk of lead. Sunday was in my opinion the fastest man in the profession on his feet and one who could run the bases like a scared deer."

In commenting further on Sunday's peculiarities, Anson continues: "I have said that Sunday threw a remarkably hard ball to catch, and this is true. To explain the reason for this is a difficult matter. He was not as swift a thrower as Williamson, Pieffer or Burns, all of whom sent the ball across the field with the speed of a bullet and with the accuracy of first-class marksmen. In spite of the extreme speed with which they came into the hand, however, they seemed to sort of lift themselves as they came, and so landed lightly, while the ball thrown by Sunday, on the contrary, seemed to gain in weight as it sailed through the air and was heavy and soggy when it struck the hands. This is strange, but a fact, and one perhaps some scientist can explain."

Sunday played several years with the Chicago team, and later was with the Pittsburg and Philadelphia teams of the National league. About twelve years ago he left professional baseball to begin his work as an evangelist. His record in baseball is decidedly unique. He never played except in a major league, and he left the game of his own accord because he choose another calling.

His experience in baseball was brilliant yet placid. His well-known speed gained fame for him, but, on the other hand, while always a good ball player, he was not enough of a star in general ability to make a lasting reputation along any particular line except that of speed in base running.

Sunday's career has brought honor to baseball, and despite his success in his new line he has never had anything but praise for his old-time profession.

Many of the baseball players of today are using their diamond salaries as a means to establish themselves in other professions, and the students of law and dentistry are numerous on almost all of the teams. There are several other instances of ball players who have been theological students—notably Ted Lewis, the old Boston pitcher—but Sunday's sudden jump from the ball field into the evangelist's work still stands out the most unique of them all.

Sunday graduated from the high school at Marshalltown before entering professional baseball, and once in his evangelistic work he rose rapidly, and for the past seven years has been well known throughout the country as one of the strongest men in the land in this calling.

When he first entered baseball, however, while he was always gentlemanly and well behaved, he would not have been selected as a candidate for clerical honors. Later in his diamond career he began to look at things from a different viewpoint, however, and he sometimes then took his fellow players to task for their shortcomings, thus making the real beginning for his work in the new field.

He is now in his 51st year, and apparently has the best of prospects for a successful career in the Presbyterian ministry.

Ever since the close of the racing season of 1902 one of the most alluring prospects for that of 1903 has been the tremendous possibilities of the 2:04 pacing classes, due to the fact that there is or has been a veritable galaxy of eligible horses which promised to renew the sensational struggles of half a dozen years ago, when Robert J., John R. Gentry, Joe Patchen, Star Pointer and Frank Agan were the stars of the grand circuit. But the situation is now considerably changed by the dropping out, for the early season at least, and probably until very late, of the two horses about which the most interest centered—Audubon Boy (2.03¼) and Direct Hal (2:04¼).

During the last winter's campaign on the track around the stove no subject was more hotly debated wherever interest in the harness races ran high than the question of supremacy between these two great stallions. Both were unbeaten last year, and so far they have never met. As is well known, Direct Hal was the champion money-winner of last year's grand circuit, with $25,500 and and a string of thirteen consecutive victories to his credit. He began a perfectly green horse and ended with a record of 2:04¼, which is the world's record for a green pacer in the first season.

Audubon Boy had raced through the grand circuit in 1902, when he won ten of twelve races and made a record of 2:06. Last year he won six straight races, and was then suddenly retired at midseason—not because he had gone wrong, but because he had showed his record to be 2:03¼, and it was obvious that he could go no farther without reducing it still more, which would put him in the company of Dan Patch, Prince Alert and Anaconda for 1903. While his people believe him the coming pacing champion, they were not quite ready for this, so they retired him to keep him in the 2:04 class.

As Direct Hal and Audubon Boy progressed along the line last summer, winning every week, a strong party formed around each, and the rivalry was pronounced. But Direct Hal was racing in the so-called "slow" classes, and Audubon Boy in the fast ones, and there was no chance of their coming together unless in a match. There seemed a chance of this for a moment at Providence, but it did not come to anything.

It is at Providence that the greatest pacing stake of the year—the $10,000 Park Brews—is given. In 1901 Audubon Boy won it ispressively in 2:03¼, 2:06 and 2:06½. Last August it went to Direct Hal in the most spectacular fashion. While he started favorite, the Tennessee-bred mare Twinkle, a mate of Audubon Boy's in the Hudson-Gatcomb stable, was backed for thousands to beat him. She had been winning a series of fast and very game races, and her people figured out the time was at last ripe to clip the wings of Geers' unbeaten black wonder.

In the first heat Twinkle broke and was laid up, and Direct Hal won in 2:06½. As the mare had shown a long race of split heats to be her forte, this merely increased the play on her. Shortly after the word was given in the second heat Direct Hal made a standstill break, and dropped far to the rear, while the mare rushed forward and raced out in front with the midget whirlwind, Prince Direct. It was known that she could handle him, and her backers were beginning to howl when she forged to the front past the half. Then there was a sudden transference of the storm center. When Geers had got Direct Hal straightened out, after his break, he was so far back that it was the general expectation that he would only try to save his distance. Consequently there was an earthquake of amazement in the stand when it was seen, at the half, that Geers was preparing to drive for the heat.

Horsemen looked at each other, and asked if the prospect of possible defeat had caused the supposedly imperturbable "silent man' to lose his head. It seemed crazy to think that Direct Hal could come from where he was and catch such a mare as Twinkle. But the fact was that Geers alone knew the horse he was driving. Direct Hal paced the last half in 1:00, flat, and the last quarter in 0:28½—a 1:54 gait—and beat Twinkle a neck on the post, in 2:04¼. The excitement was intense.

However, the Twinkle party were still hopeful. They reasoned that after such a fearful heat under his belt, the Hal horse would come out crimped and the older seasoned mare would yet beat him. But the heat had killed the mare instead of the stallion. She broke early in the third mile and was last at the finish, while the horse won as he liked in 2:05.

"It affords me great pleasure to add my testimony to the wonderful virtues of Paine's Celery Compound. My system being completely run down, I was advised to use your remedy, and after use of eight bottles I am better, have a ravenous appetite and sleep well every night. BASEBALL SEASON PROMISES WELL

High School Players See Brighter Prospects Than at Any Time Before—Other Athletes Are Laggards—Fergus Falls Wins Out In Debating League.

Prospets for the baseball season are brighter this week than they have been for some time. The offer of Manager Van Praagh of the Duluth legue team to play an exhibition game with the high school men, on May 9, was gladly received by the members of the team and others who are interested in the men.

Interest in the first game of the league team runs high all over the town, as the fans are anxious to see what sort of a squad they are to be expected to support during the coming season. The high school men will have a large following at the contest, too, and the largest baseball crowd that has gathered in Duluth for some time should be present at the game.

The contest will not be pulled off at the new grounds of the Duluth team, as they will not be finished in time, but it will be played on the old diamond at the Driving park. This is in good condition, and a half hour's work will fix it up in good shape for a game.

Manager Van Pragh has generously offered the high school the entire proceeds of the game, and the high school athletic treasury, which badly needs replenishing, will probably be put on a much sounder basis by the game, and the athletic exhibition which the association is to give on May 22.

A practice game with the board of trade team was planned for this afternoon, if the weather was warm enough to permit comfortable playing.

May 9, the date of the game with the Duluth league team, was at first given to the Blaine high school of Superior, but as no other date was available for the game with the league players, the Superior game will probably be played a week from today, if the men on the other side are agreeable. The local management tried all day yesterday to get in communication with Manager Anderson of the Blaine team, but was unsuccessful.

Bad weather has interfered considerably with the practice of the team during the last week, but the boys are in pretty good shape and are fully able to render good account of themselves at any time they are called upon to do so.

Track men have not been doing any effective work as yet, and Capt. Whipple is finding some difficulty in getting the men out as they should be.

Interest in the entertainment which is proposed to be given by the students for the purpose of raising money for the athletic association seems to be lacking among the students, and there has been considerable difficulty experienced by Professor Alletzhauser, who volunteered to do the extra work for the school in getting men enough together to carry out his plans.

The entertainment and the track and baseball work interfere with each other, as the men cannot be working at both at the same time. President Kane of the athletic association urges that all boys, who are not members of either the baseball or track squads, take hold of the thing and push it along, as that means of getting money for the treasury of the association is too good to be neglected.

Nothing new has turned up in the plans for the track team. It will be impossible, however, to have a quadrangular meeting, as the Blaine high school, of Superior, has no team. The Nelson-Dewey is said to have a strong aggregation though, and a three-cornered meet between Duluth, Superior and Cloquet will probably be accomplished in good style.

Musical Rehearsals.

Next week the musical seniors will begin their training for the class and commencement night music. Rehearsals will be held twice a week by Mr. Custance. Work will also be begun on a chorus which will assist St. Paul church at its Ascension day exercises on June 21.

FERGUS FALLS WINS.

Debaters That Defeated Duluth Win In League.

The Fergus Falls debating team, the one which defeated the Duluth talkers on the event of their second debate, won the championship of the state debating league by defeating the St. Paul central trio at the University of Minnesota chapel Wednesday eevning.

Hans A. Hanson, of Fergus Falls, was the star debater of the evening, with Charles S. Bayley and Caleb C. Hogan, of his own team, pushing him hard for recognition. The vote, as in practically all of the close debates of the year, was 2 to 1.

Fergus Falls upheld the affirmative and St. Paul the negative. When Duluth met Fergus Falls that team had the negative, so that their adaptability to either side is unquestionable.

The champion team is composed of mature debaters, who have had more experience under the lime light and working together than any other team in the league. They have had more debates this year than any other team, and they have won every one.

At the end of the debate, when the judges had rendered their decision, Governor Van Sant spoke a few words to the young men and presented them the cup trophy of championship and a gold medal to each member of the winning team.

The governor said:

"Young men, as chief executive of this state, I am proud of you. We are all proud of you. I wish that every member of the state legislature could have been here and heard you tonight."

Le Seuer won the cup last year, which was the first year of the existence of the league. Though the Duluth team failed in its ambition of winning the championship it will enter a team in the struggle next year. The men who met defeat this year were all new as debaters, none having been members of last year's team.

Sophomore Hop.

The sophomore hop was held last evening at the Masonic Temple, and it was a success in every way. The little hall in the Temple building was crowded with happy couples. The music was good and a very successful affair was the result in every sense. The class of 1905 is rapidly building up a reputation for successful social affairs among high school students.

Seniors to Entertain.

At a special meeting of the senior class on Friday afternoon it was moved that the class give a senior hop before its graduation. The objection that there was already so much doing now that there was hardly time for it in the weeks that remain was raised, and the motion was laid on the table indefinitely and will probably die a natural death there.

The class made over $200 out of its play last Saturday and there is great elation over it among those who are to graduate.

"IPHIGENIA AMONG THE TAURIANS"

For the first time in America Euripide's Greek drama, "Iphigenia Among the Taurians," will be brought out in the original Greek by the undergraduates of the Greek department of the University of Pennsylvania. There will be two evening performances, Tuesday and Wednesday, April 28 and 29. Preparations for this unique production have been in progress for more than a year, the reproduction of the play having been suggested by Professor Harrison in the spring of 1902. The suggestion was acted upon shortly afterward at a meeting of a committee consisting of Professors William A. Lamberton, William N. Bates, J. C. Rolfe and Dr. W. B. McDaniel. At this meeting the "Iphigenia Among the Taurians," of Euripides, was selected as the most suitable play to bring out, it never having been produced in this country, and has not been played anywhere since the performance given in the original Greek by the students at Oxford, England, twenty-three years ago, which at that time attracted scholars from all over the world. Three years later Harvard brought out, for the first time in America, a drama in original Greek Sophodeo's "Oedipus Tyrannus." At the performance of this drama, even men who knew no Greek were moved to tears by the terrible tragedy presented. It was impossible to make room for the crowds that wished to attend this performance. The same was true of the "Acharnians" of Aristophanes, brought out by the students of the University of Pennsylvania seventeen years ago in one evening and one matinee performance at the Academy of Music. So succesful was the the latter play, that, at the special request of the many scholars who visited the production from New York, another performance was given in New York city the following fall. The "Acharnians" was the first Greek comedy produced in this country and is entitled to the same honor for comedy as Harvard's "Oedipus" remains the most celebrated production of ancient tragedy. Since these two plays were first brought out by the students of Harvard and the University of Pennsylvania, several other Greek plays have been given throughout the United States with more or lass attempt to reproduce ancient conditions.

Realizing the enormous task before them, the committee in charge of "Iphigenia," which will be given by the University of Pennsylvania next week, selected the two principal characters almost a year ago. These were Mr. Frank V. Slack, who was chosen for the part of "Iphigenia," and William Otto Miller, to play the part of Orestes. These two students were chosen principally on account of this voices, which are exceptionally musical, the characters which they represent being obliged to sing as well as recite many of their lines.

The caste consists of seven characters; the other five were not chosen until last fall, and were selected in a series of competitive trials, all students in the Greek department having been invited to compete for speaking parts. The men chosen were: Thomas E. Robins, as the Herdsman; Robert S. Moore, as Pylates; Milton B. Stallman, as Thoas, the barbarian king; Robert Burns, as the Messenger, and George W. McClelland, as the Goddess of Athens.

Besides the principal characters there is a chorus of fifteen students who will represent Greek captive maidens who are attendants upon Iphigenia. The leared of this chorus is Charles W. Gaul. The other members of the chorus are: E. P. Hitchcock, L. H. Deck, G. C. Fonst, R. S. Dickson, C. C. Silvester, E. W. L. Pound, J. L. Nields, F. W. Prichett, M. R. Van Cleave, P. R. Stockman, A. A. Glesecke, W. J. Nelson, F. C. Stifler and W. S. Watson.

There are also many silent characters, which are introduced into the play at various intervals, such as herdsmen, soldiers to the king, attendants at the temple, and in one scene the populace is called in, the entire caste consisting of thirty-eight students besides those included in the populace.

The difficulties incident to carrying out a play in original Greek is known to but few besides those who have borne their share of the enormous amount of labor involved in the preparation. While the learning of the lines in an ancient and dead tongue, is in itself no easy task, the preparation of the stage, scenery, costumes, music, dances, etc., to conform as nearly as possible with ancient condition, involve months of careful study and continuous labor.

For the coming production of "Iphigenia," the costumes were prepared by Fisher, the celebrated Philadelphia costumer, under the immediate direction of Dr. W. N. Bates. All the Greek characters will wear Greek costumes. The herdsmen, the king's soldiers, the messengers, the king himself, will wear barberian costumes and will be dressed like the ancient Sythians. This will make a striking contrast when compared with the simple and artistic dress of the Greek. Many vases have come down to us from ancient times upon which are painted actual scenes from Greek dramas. From the paintings on these vases and from various literary sources, Dr. Bates and Dr. Lamberton obtained sufficient information to design the costumes, which they are reasonably certain are exact reproductions of the costumes worn by Greeks on the stage.

The music which was composed for this production was written by Dr. H. A. Clarke, of the university, and is necessarily modern, no attempt having been made to reproduce what may have been the manner of setting their chorus. The resources of a modern orchestra will be employed to give a musical setting that will be an adequate expression of the poetry. For the purpose of preserving intact the rich variety of the metres of Greek poetry, musical phrases with unusual numbers of bars have been employed. The chief musical part is that of "Iphigenia," but the other six characters also have considerable work along this line, and the leader of the chorus, Mr. Gaul, has some singing by himself. William Otto Miller is an excellent actor and has a fine voice, but, unfortunately, has no opportunity to show it. The dialogue in recitative between King Thoas and Iphigenia is very well done. Those in charge feel that the cast is a good one and is doing conscientious work, and that every member has taken hold in a way which is exceedingly gratifying.

Another difficulty which had to be overcome was in designing the dances. In regular choral songs, the chorus danced through certain set figures as it sang. This work was put in charge of C. Elwood Carpenter, who was busily engaged for many weeks in making this feature of the ancient Greek tragedy as effective as possible. Much information and many suggestions for the designs for these dances were secured from ancient vase paintings and Greek statuettes, from which it was discovered that the dances were all circular, and that they advanced through certain fixed movements.

The dances of the ancient Greeks, which Mr. Carpenter, with the aid of Doctors Lamberton, Bates and Clarke, of the university, has tried to reproduce in the present Greek play, resemble the astronomic dances of the Egyptians, which were executed in circular measures at the sound of instruments, from right to left, to express the astronomical motions from east to west, and reversing these movements to represent the motion of the planets. How to teach the members of the chorus to sing, dance and remember their lines at the same time, besides moving their arms and hands slowly and not in time with the music, was one of the most perplexing problems with which the authorities had to cope in the rehearsals.

The determined effort of the chorus to become master of all their movements in the rehearsals of the last two weeks has resulted in overcoming almost every awkward movement, and there is no longer any fear that the chorus will not do everything that is expected of them.

Ancient Greek theaters were open to the sky, with seats rising in tiers around a circular dancing place, which was in front of the stage buildings, all the acting and dancing taking place in the orchestra. This could not, of course, be entirely overcome in the Academy of Music. The stage setting, fortunately, is simple. In the background is a Doric temple with some of its architectural members painted brilliantly with red and blue. The country round about is wild and barren, and a bit of the sea is visible. In front of the temple is a blood-stained alter. This is all the scenery and it does not change. No curtain was used by the Greeks and all their plays were produced in one act. The scenery was painted by New York artists under the direction of Dr. W. N. Bates.

The progress made in every stage of the preparation for this production of "Iphigenia," while necessarily slow, has been most satisfactory, and if hard work and perseverance counts for anything, the productions of "Iphigenia" by the students of the university of Pennsylvania next week will eclipse any thing of the kind ever attempted in this country.

Worse in the Morning

That's the trouble with bad backs.
Night brings no rest—lying down, or standing up, the ache is there.
Morning comes, and it is worse than ever.

Kidneys are to blame. They're sick—Can't do the work nature intends them to do—
There's no end to the backache until the kidneys are made well—And there's only one way to make the kidneys well—

DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS

That's the secret of well kidneys. Hundreds of Duluth people will tell you so. The Little Conqueror of Kidney Ills has been making conquests in Duluth for years. Your own friends and neighbors have been cured—Could you ask any better proof than their testimony?

DULUTH PROOF

Mrs. C. M. Bradley, of 109 West First street, says: "For two or three years my kidneys bothered me a good deal and the usual home remedies gave me but very temporary relief. I had a heavy aching pain across the small of my back, and it was painful for me to stoop. I could not rest comfortably nights and in the morning rose tired and unrefreshed. I was also bothered a great deal with nervousness. The kidney secretions were irregular and unnatural and deposited a sediment. I went to the Duluth Drug company's store and procured a box of Doan's Pills. I had taken only a few doses when I felt better and by the time I had finished the prescribed course of treatment it was unnecessary to continue taking the remedy.'

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale at all drug stores. 50c per box. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

IN COPPER CIRCLES

Small Amount of Copper on Wharves of Lake Mines.

Activity In Floating Arizona Copper Propositions Continues Unchecked.

Houghton, Mich., April 25.—(Special to The Herald.)—When the sap rises in the trees, labor grows restive, and the Lake copper district is no exception to this rule. There is no widespread discontent among the 16,000 men employed in the mines of the district, but there are sporadic strikes, which in most cases are being settled by compromise. The trammers at the Kearsarge branch of the Osceola mine obtained their demands and the trammers of the Wolverine were given an advance to $60 per month, and are holding out for $58, but will probably decide to accept the lower figure. The mine employes can scarcely be blamed for wanting more money as the cost of living is very high—sufficiently so to render previous advances in wages scarcely enough to offset the increased cost of provisions, fuel and clothing. There may be other small strikes in the district within the next few weeks, but there is nothing to indicate any general disaffection. The mines have dealt fairly by their workmen for many years, and in return the employes have been loyal to the companies and strikes, while occasionally noted, are remarkably free from bitterness, and there has been nothing approaching violence in any labor disputes of the district for some years past.

The opening of navigation, this week, found an exceptionally small amount of copper on the shipping wharves of the local smelters, as rail shipments were continued to within two weeks of the going out of the ice. The production of the Lake mines is now at the rate of about 4000 tons per week, which is much the largest ever known, but 20 to 25 per cent under the output of Montana.

The activity in the flotation of Arizona copper mining propositions by local capital continues unchecked, though where all the money comes from is a mystery to the best-posted financiers. The bank deposits continue to increase, notwithstanding the millions in cash put into western mines and prospects. Careful scrutiny of the sworn annual reports of the leading copper mining companies operating in the Lake district shows a decrease in the holdings of Lake people, in the case of most companies, which indicates that local men are deserting their home investments to some extent. It is also true that some of the western stock originally owned at the Lake has been sold to outside investors, at very handsome profits. A considerable amount of Calumet & Hecla has been sold by Michigan people and the proceeds invested in Calumet & Arizona. Of the phenomenal value of the latter property there is no longer a shadow of doubt. The smelter now has two furnaces running and a third, to be used as an auxiliary, will be blown in within a few months. The Calumet & Arizona is making copper at the rate of nearly or quite 36,000,000 pounds yearly, and should secure a production of about 30,000,000 pounds of blister copper this year. The mine is at present earning about $250,000 per month, net, which puts it well to the front among the profitable mines of the globe.

The Superior & Bisbee, a local development company, has located twenty-three mining claims to the northwest of Bisbee, and will make a determined effort to develop a paying mine under the heavy gossan capping noted near the contact of the line and porphyry in that section. The company is not a stock-jobbing affair, but includes some shrewd and successful mining men and scientists, who are of the opinion that there is at least an even chance that the big copper lenses concentrated in the limestone near the porphyry are not confined to Bisbee and the southward. There are several apparently excellent reasons for the holding of this belief and the location of the Superior & Bisbee claims has led to considerable activity in the way of staking out lands by prospectors in that vicinity. Should paying copper ore bodies be discovered in the district four or five miles northwest of Bisbee it would double the productive area of the camp, and render Bisbee perhaps the world's most promising copper camp. Of one thing there is no question—the Lake Superior people, from the oldest copper mining experts down to the clerks in the groceries are absolutely convinced of the greatness and permanence of Cochise county, Arizona, as a copper camp, and will back their faith with their cash. What this means for Bisbee is not even yet quite fully understood. It means, among other things, that the Bisbee district has the largest backing of ready cash and skilled copper mining experience ever accorded any district outside of Lake Superior and Butte. With such unlimited backing the district will be given every opportunity to develop under circumstances of exceptional favor.

The amount of exploratory work in Keweenaw county will be greater this season than for many years past. The southern end of the county affords a number of exceptionally promising prospects, some of which are almost certain to develop into paying prospects, some of which are almost certain to develop into paying mines. There is still considerable snow on the ground in most places, and it will be May before exploratory work can be prosecuted to advantage.

Eastern writers upon copper mining matters are prone to fall into the too common error of judging the value and prospects of the Osceola Consolidated Mining company from the old Osceola mine proper. The old mine is a valuable though low-grade property, making the highest-grade refined copper produced anywhere. It can be worked, by economy, on a 10-cent copper market, and at good profit with copper at the present price. The Tamarack Junior mine of this company is practically worthless. The South Kearsarge is a new and rather small mine of great richness, and the North Kearsarge is an old mine made over, of great size and wonderful richness—in short, one of the best mines of the district. In writing or speaking of the Osceola Consolidated, Boston investors think of the old Osceola mine, with its long and but fairly bright record, while Lake people have in mind the Kearsarge, with their magnificent present and even more brilliant future. This brief explanation may make apparent the reason for the remarkable discrepancy between the views Osceola held in the East.

The Lake Superior Concentrating company, which holds a lease of the old Franklin sands, is preparing to resume work on a much larger scale then formerly. It is apparent that these sands hold very great values in the aggregate, though the percentage of copper is low and the metal difficult to save. The only way in which a sludge mill or tailings plant can make money in the Lake district is by the operation of not only an efficient, but a very large plant, with close attention to every detail and under a management that is economical as well as skilled metallurgically.

The Mohawk's March output of 397 tons of mineral was a highly satisfactory product, and indicates that the mine and mill are beginning to run with the smoothness that comes only with experience. The rock is harder than that of the Wolverine, and at present is not so rich in copper, though up to the Wolverine average of a year or two ago. With four stamps in commission the Mohawk should be able to make about 900 tons of mineral monthly, eventually, and with a continuance of 15-cent copper can net an annual profit of one to one and a quarter millions.

The Michigan is to use one stamp at the Mass mill. This will probably be put at work on rock from the Calico amygdaloid. The advent of the Michigan to the ranks of the regular producers will be hailed with satisfaction by the many old-time mining men of the Lake district who have always maintained great faith in the value of this property, which, when known as the Minnesota, in the early days of Lake copper mining, shared with the Cliff mine the honor of paying the largest dividends of any copper mines in the Lake district or elsewhere.

The Baltic mine is now making copper at the rate of better than 10,000,000 pounds yearly. The Tri-Mountain is steadily increasing its milling facilities, and the Champion continues to expand. The "South Range" mines will rank well to the front among the Lake producers when the figures of output for 1903 are printed next year.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Trade Has Responded Promptly to Better Conditions.

New York, April 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says: Trade responded promptly to better weather in many sections of the country, notable activity appearing in seasonable lines of wearing apparel, yet wholesalers report conservatism as compared with earlier months this year, although business is more active than it was a year ago. Some branches are still backward, and there is more or less complaint regarding collections, while renewals are frequently asked. Outdoor work is vigorously prosecuted, agricultural communities endeavoring to make up lost time and structural undertakings call for large quantities of lumber and building materials, sustaining quotations. Labor problems are being solved with encouraging results. Lake navigation is having favorable effect on reducing rates, and shipments are more prompt, yet there is no diminution in the splendid increase of gross earnings, which show a gain of 13.1 per cent for railroads over last year's figures for April thus far, and 25.3 per cent over 1901.

Three facts are especially noteworthy as to the situation in the iron and steel industry. Scarcity of coke is no longer cause for complaint. On the contrary, in some cases deliveries are so large as to threaten accumulation and predictions as to the permanence of high prices have ceased.

Ample supplies of fuel make it possible for blast furnaces to turn out pig iron in abundance, as this was the only drawback and a new high water mark of production may be expected for the month of April. Augmented stocks of coke and pig iron, however, fail to result in sufficient steel as yet, billets being in urgent request. A rail mill has commenced work on billets and other similar changes are contemplated, which indicates the pressure, as steel rails are more readily marketed than any other product.

Settlement of structural labor troubles has renewed activity on bridges and buildings, which revives interest in steel. Billets will be brought from abroad at the earliest possible date, but there is difficulty in securing sales as foreign producers are also holding large contracts. Pig iron is still unsettled as to price, with buyers placing contracts conservatively.

While the dry goods markets have enjoyed a better spot demand because of fine weather, conditions at the leading textile mills have not materially improved. Increased orders are chiefly confined to specialties. Until cotton can be purchased more cheaply there is little prospect of generally lower quotations for goods, and on the other hand, purchasers exhibit no inclination to advance bids or even buy freely at present prices. Last week's slight improvement in heavy woolens has been barely maintained. Clothiers complain of tardy deliveries of samples, which may effect subsequent business.

New England manufacturers of boots and shoes report seasonable lack of new business and further contracts from jobbers are not expected during the next fortnight. Sole leather is more active at unchanged quotations. Increased activity and strength has come in Chicago packer hides with the advancing season. Fluctuation in quotations of the great staples have been less extensive during the past week, with a slightly higher level as the net result, and only a fair degree of activity.

Failures were 166 in the United States against 212 last year and 15 in Canada compared with 18 a year ago.

EXPLOSION OF GAS

Brought Death to Four In Nova Scotia Mine.

Glace Bay, N. S., April 25.—A gas explosion brought death to four men and probably fatal injuries to another in the reserve colliery yesterday, while fire damp overcame a score or more of men who are now in St. John's hospital. The dead:

MICHAEL S. McNEIL, miner.
HENRY JACKSON, leader.
JOSEPH KING, helper.
WILLIAM KING, driver.

Probably fatally injured: —— Whilsway, miner.

The explosion took place in the French slope of Reserve mine. Some gas had acumulated in the level, but had been partially removed. On this level it is customary ao work with naked lamps. Yesterday the five men were at work when the gas ignited from a lamp and the explosion followed. Whilsway was found alive, but was frightfully burned. A rescue party went into the mine and brought out the bodies, the work being dangerous owing to fire damp and a large number of men suffering in consequence. There is no fire in the mine and work will be resumed at soon as it is cleared of gas.

TO ALL CATARRH SUFFERERS

Hyomei Guaranteed to Cure By S. F. Boyce or Money Refunded.

The popularity and increase in the sales of Hyomei are unique in the annals of medicine. Such astonishing cures have been made by this remarkable remedy that the proprietors have authorized S. F. Boyce to sell every package of Hyomei under an absolute guarantee that it will cure catarrh. If it does not the purchaser can have his money refunded by S. F. Boyce.

Hyomei is no ordinary remedy. It is the only method of treatment that sends by direct inhalation to the most remote part of the air passages a balsamic air that destroys all catarrhal germs in the breathing organs, enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone, and makes permanent and complete cures of catarrh.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00 and consists of a pocket inhaler that can be easily carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper, and a bottle of Hyomei sufficient for more than a month's treatment.

Breathe through the inhaler for a few minutes four times a day and your catarrh is cured. That's all.

If not cured S. F. Boyce will refund your money.

OUR YOUNG FOLKS

THE YOUNGEST EDITOR IN THE COUNTRY.

The Gratz Park News, the smallest paper in the world, is published in Lexington, Ky., the editor in chief being Brownsell Berryman, nine years of age. The ages of the associate editors—Irving McClure, Lucien Fishback and Eddie Bruce Morgan—range from nine to eleven years.

There is no age restriction for the would-be reporter on the paper, a good nose for news being the only qualification necessary, and many of the items are gathered by youngsters scarcely out of dresses.

The Gratz Park News is a weekly publication and has about three hundred subscribers. While most of these reside in Lexington, there are on the list subscriptions from the New England States. The exchange desk is each week piled high with other juvenile papers, and letters find their way to the editor in chief of the News telling how much the paper is enjoyed and offering suggestions for improvements. These are carefully considered and acted upon if decided good.

"It's mighty hard work, you know," he remarked. "We have to have men right on the spot when anything big occurs, and sometimes it's a little hard to get the fellows to stick at it, especially when there's swimming or a picnic. Our best man is out sick now—got the mumps—and I had to go interview 'Ben' Scholl myself this morning. He gave a party and we had to secure a list of the guests. I wasn't there myself; there were too many editorials to be got off. The News goes to press tomorrow.

"A friend of mine, who is a newspaper man, gave me a printing press a year ago last Christmas, and we started the News.

"Our first copy was a success. There were only thirty-six sheets run off that issue; now we turn out over three hundred, and could dispose of nearly as many more if we had time to print them. We only work after school hours, and three hundred copies are about as many as we can manage. As soon as we can see our way clear we are going to get another press and enlarge the staff. We have a bank account of $150, and our weekly earnings amount to $2 or $3 over our expenses.

"Our ads. bring us in a good sum. Five cents a line is our rate, and sometimes we have had to run an additional sheet of advertisements.

"We don't get any help from our parents. Each boy has his place on the paper, and he has to work hard to hold it down. Craig writes the poetry, McClure does the society stunts, McDowell does the 'Town Topics,' Fred Leonard runs the printing press, 'O. K.' the articles and write the editorials, and our reporters all have their particular districts.

"See those rules over my desk? They must be followed to the letter."

In front of Master Berryman hangs the inscription:—

"Rule I.—When the editor speaks, jump and follow instructions.

"II.—Hats Off in the Office.

"III.—No Swearing in the Presence of Ladies."

Gratz Park News: Editor and Staff.

Under the heading of "Society" are found such paragraphs as "John Yarrington stayed up till one o'clock Monday enjoying his sister's party." The town talk columns contain such articles as: "Roller skates are the things to have just now." "Watch the girls; they are getting ready to dazzle you with their spring hats." "Henry Schange is about ready to open his circus. We trust the dogs won't run the cats up a tree this time."

The boys had at first a hard time to secure a suitable place in which to establish their "offices." The principal of the grammar school was appealed to, and when the matter was put before the board it was unanimously voted to give over an unused room in the school house to the Gratz Park News, for it was decided that this paper would be almost as important an educational organ as the school house itself. Of course, the boys accepted, and now "Business and Editorial Rooms of the Gratz Park News" is the sign which swings from the front door of the school house.

Here it was that Editor in Chief Berryman was interviewed recently.

THE GAME OF MAGIC MUSIC.

Any number of persons may play this amusing game, and no preparation is necessary. One player having been sent from the room, the others arrange something for him to do when he returns.

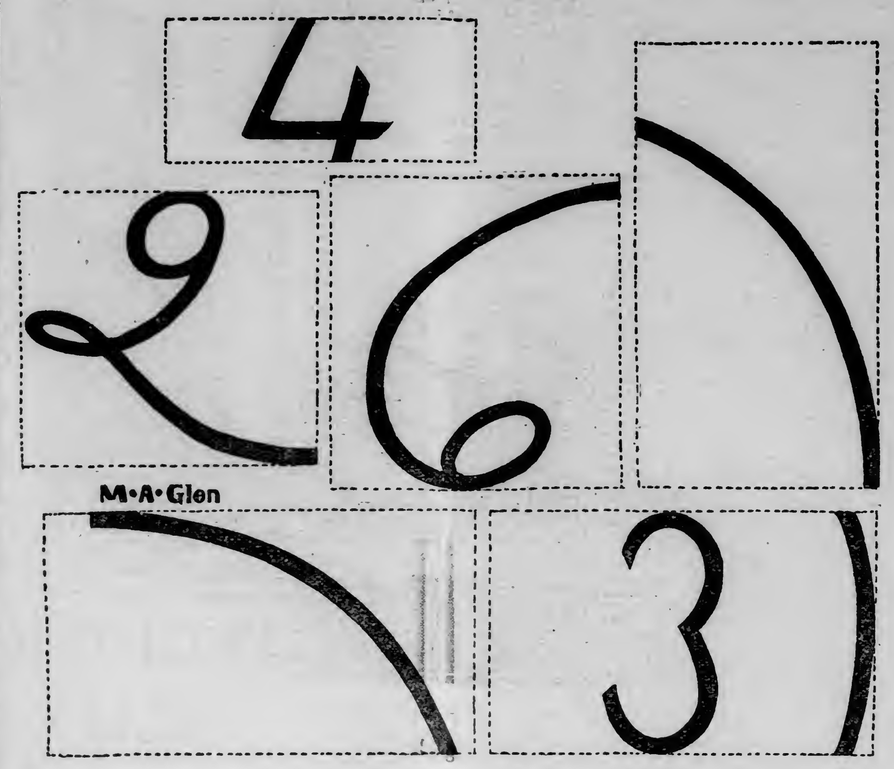
When everything is ready, he is summoned to the room by the magic music, which is made by tapping a poker with a large key. The player must perform the appointed task as he is guided by the musician, who so regulates the music that the sounds are loud and noisy when the player does what he ought not to do, and soft when he begins to do anything like the task.

Suppose, for example, that he is to take a sofa pillow and put it behind a certain girl's back. When he enters the room he is somewhat confused by the loud clatter of the music, a clatter made for the purpose. If he walks toward the sofa the music grows soft, which tells him that he is going in the right direction.

But he touches a chair and pauses, perhaps, when the music becomes loud again. Then he touches the sofa, and the music becomes soft, and when he touches the pillow it ceases altogether. This tells him that he has to do something with that pillow, and he tries various things, all of which are greeted by loud music, showing that he has not discovered the right thing.

Finally, he puts the pillow behind one of the girls, but not the right one. The music now grows so faint that he knows he has discovered what he has to do with the pillow, and he puts it behind one girl after another, until he finds the right one.

Other players go out of the room in turn, but the musician keeps his place during the whole game.



Four figures and a few curves will make a head in profile. Cut out the blocks containing them, cutting just within the dotted lines, and fit them together to form the head.

THE SWEET MISS PEAS.

We're a rainbow band
With sun bonnets gay:
We're nodding and smiling
The whole summer day.

We are white with terror,
'Cause naughty boys steal
Away our sweet sisters—
Just think how you'd feel!

Some are purple with rage,
When rude people dare
To say we are common,
Or not at all fair!

Then others turn yellow
At hearing men cry:
"Miss Rose is the beauty,
For her we would die!"

And all pink with blushes
Are those when 'tis said,
These are the sweetest,
These we would wed.

But how mixed we appear
When folks want to know
How so many youngsters
In one bed can grow?

We're often quite rakish,
And sometimes in weeds;
But we never sow more
Than a few little seeds.

A "CHUTE THE CHUTES."

John and Austin were getting pretty tired of farm life, that is, milking the cows and bedding horses, or digging potatoes and cutting corn. They wanted more fun.

One day they were sitting in the barn trying to think how they might liven things up a little; they hit upon the plan of building a chute the chutes, and asking other boys to use it for a cent a ride. "Of course, we can't have the water for the car to run in, but that need not make any difference," said John. "When we were at Coney Island last year I examined the thing pretty closely, and I think I know how to make one. Anyhow, we'll try, but don't say a word about it to the boys. They'll steal our ideas and get ahead of us."

The next day the boys started in to work. They chose the open field back of the barn, because they could get full sweep. There was plenty of boards about that were good and strong, and which their father said they might use. First they built a platform about fifteen feet high. At the back they put the long hay loft ladder. Then they began putting posts in the ground about ten feet apart. These were in pairs about three feet apart, each pair growing less to make the incline. After it reached the ground they put in another set of posts the same size as the last and the same distance from where the track was to touch the ground as the others. These were put in to send the car up a little after its race down the incline, and bring it to a standstill.

When the posts were in the boys started to build the track. They examined pretty closely the railroad tracks and copied them carefully. The ties of the track they formed by nailing the posts together by stout boards. The tracks they made by nailing pieces of board together a little wider than the car wheels were to be.

Now, the track was made; next came the car. They measured their track, then hunted for a box to fit it. The one they found being too high, they cut it down to the right height, about a foot, and strengthened it by putting a narrow board band around it. The wheels they got the carpenter to make for them. These had to be good and strong to bear the weight of a person, and be broader than most wheels. Then they painted it red and put bells on it. Inside of two weeks the whole thing was finished, and as John said when he took his first trip down, "Not such a bad job, after all."

HELEN BARRY

LITTLE DOGGIE'S VIEWPOINT.

"My mistress uses all her art
To paint a useless bunch
Of daffodils, while I, who wait
Without a bone to munch,
Use all my art—worth how much more—
To say it's time for lunch!"

THE MAGIC PENNY.

There is not a boy who would not like to know how to make a penny go through the top of a wooden table and drop into a basin or a cup held underneath. A trick, of course, like the thousand and one tricks that you see the magicians perform.

Before you go to a party sew a penny neatly in one corner of a handkerchief, then fold the handkerchief and put it in your pocket.

When you are ready to perform the trick have a small table placed in the middle of the room and on it a medium sized book and a tin basin or cup.

Now say to the company that you are going to borrow a penny from some one and after wrapping it in your handkerchief you will cause it to pass down through the top of the table and drop into the basin.

Having obtained the penny, you ask the lender of it to put some little mark on it by means of which he may know it again; then you pretend to wrap it in the handkerchief that you take from your pocket, but you really conceal it in your right hand, wrapping the handkerchief around the penny that you have already sewed in it. A little practice will enable you to do this in a way to escape detection.

You must do the wrapping so that the spectators, to whom you offer the handkerchief for examination, may feel the penny and be sure that it is there. Then lay the handkerchief on the table and on it place the book, which should be large enough to conceal it entirely.

All this time you have been holding in your right hand, tucked away between two of the fingers, the penny that you borrowed. Now take the basin, or cup, in that hand and pass it under the table, holding it right under the book. Take care to hold it so that your fingers may readily release the penny; make two or three passes over the book with your left hand, say "Presto!" and at the same time let the penny drop from your right hand into the basin.

Of course the company will hear it fall, then you bring the basin into view and place it on the table, and as the company is looking at it, you take the handkerchief from under the book and, holding it by the corner in which the penny is sewed, you shake it and show that the penny is no longer in it.

Glow Worms For Light.

Here is a curious discovery in regard to glow worms which has been made by a Frenchman. He caught several of them and fed them for a few days, after which he let them loose in his garden.

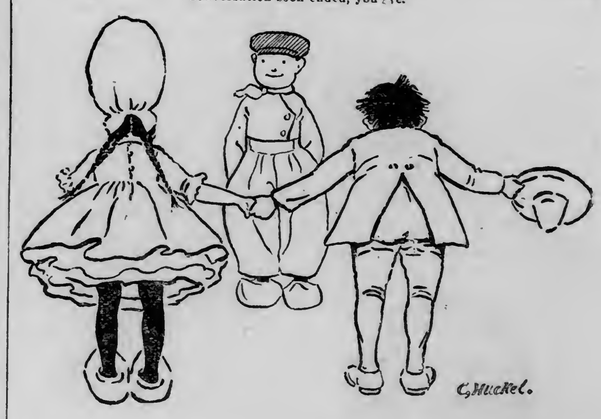
When night came he invited some of his friends, and vastly surprised they were when they saw his garden illuminated in various colors. They could not account for it until he caught a few glow worms and showed them that from one came a red light, from another a blue light, from a third a yellow light, and so on.

How he produced such a wonderful result no one knows, for, while he admits that the various lights are the direct result of the food which he supplied to the worms, he will not tell what he gave them to eat.

He considers his discovery of great importance, and claims that it can be used to advantage in optical telegraphy and for fishing at night.

BOYS AND GIRLS FROM ABROAD.

A broth of a boy from Tralee
Met a p'tite demoiselle from Paree.
Babette said, "Bon jour!"
Said Mickey, "Why, sure!"
Conversation soon ended, you see.



A fat little Dutchman, named Pete,
Was the next our friends happened to meet.
"Guten morgen," said he,
And Babette, she said "Oui,"
While Mickey's low bow was a feat.

WHY CATS WASH AFTER EATING

"A cat caught a sparrow and was about to devour it, but the sparrow said, 'No gentleman eats until he washes his face.' The cat, struck by the remark, set the sparrow down and began to wash his face with his paw, but the sparrow flew away. This vexed puss extremely and he said, 'As long as I live I will eat first and wash my face afterward.' Which all cats do even to this day."

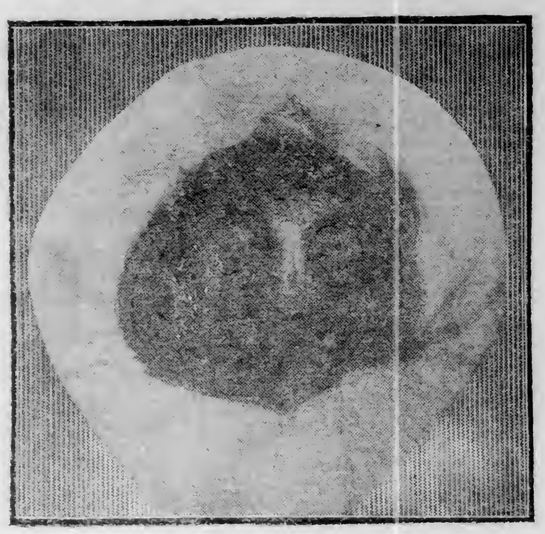
NEW THINGS STRANGE & CURIOUS

SEE THE FACE IN THE WOOD!



We all know that there are wooden heads in the world, and, indeed, we often hear men referred to as wooden. Yet it is seldom that we find a wooden face so full of interest as that which attaches to the freak of which a photographic reproduction is given above. While it has the semblance of a face, still it is not—pine knot—for this unique thing in wood growth is no more than a knot cut from a two-inch plank.

No coloring was used to heighten the effect of the almost perfect face; no pencilling, carving or paint. It is simply the handiwork of nature, which includes any number of odd and unusual things. This one is in the possession of Mr. J. W. Merritt, of New Britain, Ct.

TANNING HUMAN SKIN.

Happening to come across the other day the catalogue of a book auction in 1864, when a book on the Constitution of the French Republic, bound in human skin in the year 1793, was offered for sale, a book lover was prompted to inquire whether the human skin had ever been put to such a use before or since.

The inquiry led to a number of surprising revelations. It was not merely during the excesses of the French Revolution that such things were done, but as long ago as the thirteenth century he found there were in existence several such books, including a Latin Bible very handsomely engrossed upon a woman's skin. In 1765 the "French Encyclopedie" gave a recipe for tanning human skin, and stated that M. Sue, a surgeon in Paris, had presented the King with a pair of slippers made of human skin according to this prescription.

During the reign of Napoleon III. a copy of the Decretals, written on human skin, was found in the library of the Sorbonne, and transferred to the Tuileries. John Ziska, the one-eyed chief of the Hussites, ordered in his will that his skin should be tanned and made into a drum. "The noise which my skin will make," said he, "will frighten away all our enemies and put them to flight."

It was, however, at the time of the French Revolution that this art was developed to its greatest extent. A man presented himself one day at the bar of the Convention and announced that he had devised a simple and original scheme for procuring leather in abundance. The Committee of Public Safety granted him a concession of the Castle of Meudon, where he carried on his work with a certain amount of secrecy. In return for the concession the members of the committee were privileged to be among the first to wear top boots made of human skin.

This tannery of Meudon acquired considerable notoriety. A great number of books were bound with the leather turned out there, and Philippe Egalite, Duke of Orleans, encouraged the tannery by wearing a pair of breeches made there with human skin at a ball in the Palais-Royal. The republican General Beysser, who made himself a name by his ferocity in the wars of La Vandee, set the fashion of wearing similar trousers in the army, always wearing a pair at battles and at reviews.

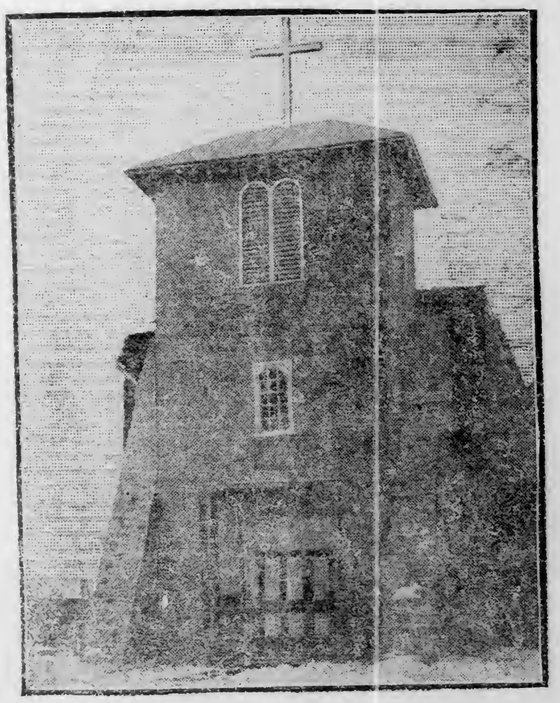
An old soldier who had taken part in most of the campaigns of the French Revolution, told a writer of memoirs in the middle of this century that he had owned a specially fine garment of this kind, made entirely of one piece. An architect, who was one of the leaders of the infamous Black Band of France in 1823, which for a long time terrorized the country districts in the West of France, wore a jacket made of human skin, comely and exceedingly comfortable.

The infamous Saint-Just, when at the height of his power during the Reign of Terror, caused a young and beautiful girl, who had refused his advances, to be arrested and sent to the scaffold. After the execution he obtained possession of the body, flayed it himself and had the skin tanned and made into a waistcoat, which he wore till the day of his death. The tannery of Meudon and its imitators carried on the process on an extensive scale, and must have made a good deal of money by tanning the skins of the victims of the Revolution for every sort of commercial purpose.

Oil extracted from human bodies was also placed upon the market and sold.

Since those days the process has naturally become much rarer, but Dibdin relates how at a comparatively recent date a collector possessed a treatise on sport bound in stag's skin; a copy of Fox's "History of James II.," bound in fox's skin, and a book on anatomy bound in human skin. In 1837 the narrative of the adventures of a highwayman was bound in his own skin at Boston, Mass., with the inscription in Latin outside, "This book was bound in the skin of Walton."

A VERY OLD CHURCH.



The Church of San Miguel, at Santa Fe, is claimed by New Mexicans to be the oldest in the United States. There is much dispute over the exact date of its erection, but it was certainly built between 200 and 300 years ago by the first Indian converts, under the direction of the Spanish padres—some say as long ago as 1545. Inside it is like a vault, black and crumb-ag, with cracked adobe walls and roof, and a gallery whose woodwork still shows traces of the figures painted there by the Indians—designs like those they put upon their pottery today.

But the most interesting thing in San Miguel is the old bell, St. Joseph. Black with age, it looks like a mass of old iron in its dim recesses. But strike it and it gives forth a mellow note of silvery clearness, echoing with marvelous sweetness through the bell-like old church. The quality of the bell metal makes the richness of the note, and there is a tradition that it was made of the gold and silver ornaments of the Spanish as a thank offering for a victory over the Moors.

At any rate, the old Spanish padres brought the bell, already ancient, across the seas from Spain, and over mountains and plateaus from Mexico. The Moors are gone, Spain's great empire of the West has vanished, and still the old bell stands there, older than American civilization.

OUR OLDEST GOVERNMENT BUILDING.

The "Governor's Palace," which bounds one side of the plaza in the center of the old town of Santa Fe, is the oldest building in the United States which has been continuously used as the seat of government since its erection. First the viceroys of the King of Spain lived there for many years, when New Mexico was a crown colony of Spain. When Spain was driven out it became a province of Mexico, and the Mexican governors lived there. And since New Mexico became an American territory, in 1850, the territorial governors have lived there. Since 1680 the executive power of New Mexico has been lodged in this building, and it is still in daily use, while the early government buildings of Jamestown, New York and Boston have long since passed away.

"Palace" may seem a grandiose term for a building of such modest appearance, but it was a palace when it was built. Its adobe walls are four or five feet thick, and it has suite after suite of rooms stretching through its great length. In one of these the latter part of the famous book "Ben Hur" was written, its author, Lew Wallace, being then territorial governor. In a letter on the subject General Wallace tells how he used to go into this rear room to write, because, separated from the noises of the street by its thick adobe walls, it was silent as the tomb; and how the room will always be associated in his mind with the scenes of the crucifixion, the description of which he wrote there.

Once in the early days of the Spanish occupation there was a general uprising of the Indians of New Mexico. The Spanish were driven out, and the Pueblo chiefs installed themselves in the governor's palace. But they had been used to living in houses without doors and entered through a hole in the roof. So they cut a hole through the roof of the old palace, and went in and out by ladders, and the place where the hole was blocked up after the Spanish came back can be seen to this day.

Musical Automaton.

This automaton belonged to P. T. Barnum at the time when his New York museum burned. It was saved from the wreck and later secured by Mr. Frederick Stearns for his collection of musical instruments, and is now in the University School of Music, Ann Arbor, Mich.

Its essential parts are a bellows for producing the wind, a drum for operating the levers connected with the fingers, and another governing lever which sways the body to and fro. When in successful operation it is a weird sight.

Four Legged Bird.

Nothing in the realm of natural history in late years excelled in interest the announcement of the discovery in British Guiana of a bird with four legs. The crested hoatzin, opisthocomus cristatus, the only survivor of a race of birds several of which are known as fossils, inhabits the most secluded parts of the forests of South America, and it is probable that it is owing to its retiring habits it has outlived its congeners as well as to the fact that feeding as it does upon wild arum leaves its flesh acquires so offensive a smell and flavor as to have gained for it the name of stink bird, and to render it entirely unfit for food. It is a large bird, almost as large as a peacock, in fact, but is very seldom seen. Oftener its loud, wailing cry is heard.

The chief peculiarity of the hoatzin, says J. Carter Beard, in telling of it, consists in the fact that when it is hatched it possesses four well developed legs, the front pair being of a reptilian character. The young birds leave the nest and climb about like monkeys over the adjoining limbs and twigs, and act and look more like tree toads than birds.

After hatching the modification of the fore limbs begins, the claws of the digits falling off, and the whole of the claw like hands becoming flattened, changes into wings. After this modification has taken place feathers begin to grow, and in a short time not a vestige remains of its original character. As Professor F. A. Lucas, in an admirable monograph on "Spurs and Claws," in a bulletin of the Smithsonian Institution, says: "The adult birds not only have no claws upon their wings, but their thumbs, even, are so poorly developed that one would hardly suspect that in the nestlings we have the nearest approach to a quadruped found among existing birds."

Mr. J. J. Quelch, who studied them in British Guiana, tells us that soon after the hatching the well developed claws on the polax and index, being constantly in use for hooking and holding on to surrounding objects, the nestlings when quite small are frequently found far away from any nest, climbing by the help of their clawed wings after the parents birds during feeding time. One curious feature noticed with a nestling which had been upset in the river was its power of rapid swimming and diving when pursued. As soon as the hand was placed on it it dived rapidly in the dark water, in which it was impossible to see it, and arose at distances more than a yard away. Owing to this power the little creature managed to evade all efforts to secure it, taking refuge eventually under the bushy growth, where it was impossible to pursue it.

A Trick Horse.

The accompanying picture is that of Redmond P. Kersey, a member of the mounted police, New York, and his inseparable companion, Pompey. The latter's accomplishments are many and varied. He shakes hands with debonair grace, responds affirmatively or negatively, as the case may be, to pressing inquiries as to the state of his health, puts many a student of mathematics to blush by pawing instantaneously correct solutions of arithmethical problems and performs all sorts of wonderful feats that prove his education not to have been neglected.

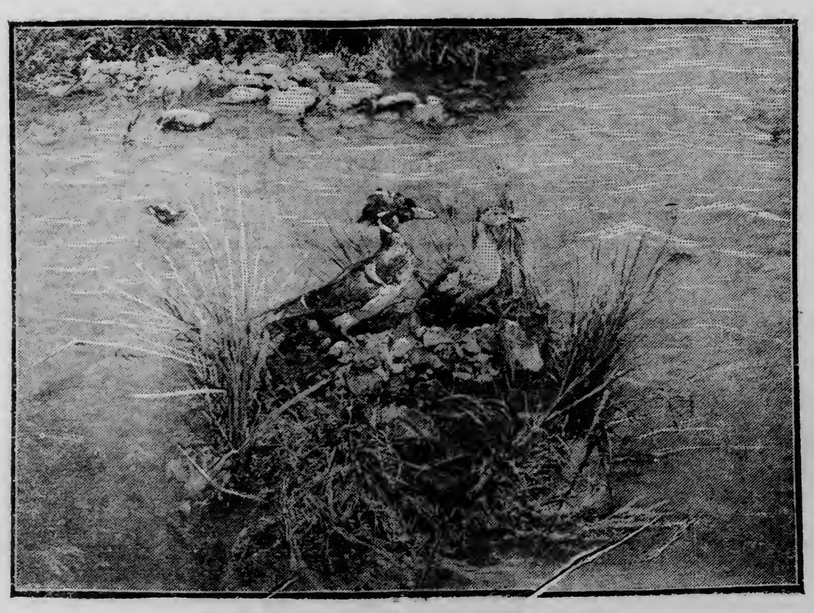
When the fire of a heating apparatus is lighted for the first time at the beginning of the cold season one sometimes notices a most unpleasant smell of ammonia and the like. It seems that large numbers of microbes gather in the pipes during the season of rest, and the warmth causes the organisms to vegetate, and thus a quantity of ammonia is produced.

In the past 20 years the receipts of the United States Postoffice have increased from $40,000,000 to over $125,000,000.

AN ORNITHOLOGICAL FAKE.

It is hard to tell what is real and what is bogus nowadays. Anybody would naturally suppose that this was a lucky snapshot of a pair of wild ducks, taken from the bank of a stream. But the fact is that, though the stream is real, the ducks are stuffed. They were put on the rock in midstream for the purpose of photographing them, and that is why the picture is such a good one. It was not a snap, but a time exposure.

The distance between the knots on a log line is 50 75-120 feet.



VENEZUELAN TOE FISHING.

During the blockade of La Guayra, Venezuela, by English and German men-of-war, the native fishermen were an important factor in supplying food to the inhabitants of La Guayra and Caracas, which were cut off from the rest of the world. The little fishing canoes were allowed to pass up and down the coast by the blockading vessels, because they were insignificant small fry. Every day at earliest dawn the fishermen may be seen going out to their favorite fishing grounds, adroitly paddling with a short, broad-bladed paddle.

Trailing behind each boat is a line with a small fish on the hook for bait, the end of the line being made fast either to the fisherman's hand or to one of his big toes, the latter method being preferred, as the hands are then left free to paddle. Spanish mackerel and similar tropical fish are more likely to snap up the bait when it is trolled rapidly through the water.

During the summer months, when the sun beats down with fiery intenseness, these men wear only an old straw or felt hat and a pair of trousers, girded around the waist with a piece of cord or strip of leather. The sun cannot hurt their dark, well-tanned, weather-beaten skins, and a shirt would be too warm. However, when winter comes on and the thermometer sometimes goes down to 73 degrees they always wear a woolen shirt tucked into the trousers in order to keep out the moist and cool air, for that is cold weather for them.

When the sun gets high in the sky and the fish will bite no longer the canoes make their way back to the landing at La Guayra, coming in in twos and threes at a rapid pace and often racing with each other for a half-mile or more. Just before reaching the wharf the fishing lines are hauled in, most of the fishermen preferring the method of sitting with the left foot across the right knee and coiling up the line around the big toe and the thumb of the left hand.

STRANGLING A TREE.

The vegetable python, which can strangle a forest monarch, furnishes tragedies as intense as those born of flesh and blood. James Rodway, who traveled extensively in Guiana, says woe betide the tree giant when he falls into the clutches of the clusia, or fig. Its seeds, being provided with a pulp, which is very pleasant to the taste of a great number of birds, are carried from tree to tree and deposited on the branches. Here it germinates, the leafy stem rising upward and the roots flowing, as it were, down the trunk until they reach the soil.

At first these aerial roots are soft and delicate, with apparently no more power for evil than so many small streams of pitch, which they resemble in their slowly flowing motion downward. Here and there they branch, especially if an obstruction is met with, when the stream either changes its course or divides to right and left. Meanwhile leafy branches have been developed, which push themselves through the canopy above and get into the light, where their growth is enormously accelerated.

As this takes place the roots have generally reached the ground and begun to draw sustenance from below to strengthen the whole plant. Then comes a wonderful development. The hitherto soft, aerial roots begin to harden and spread wider and wider, throwing out side branches which flow into and amalgamate with each other until the whole tree trunk is bound in a series of irregular living hoops. The strangler is now ready for its deadly work.

The forest giant, like all exogens, must have room to increase in girth, and here he is bound by cords which are stronger than iron bands. Like an athlete, he tries to expand and burst his fetters, and if they were rigid he might succeed. The bark bulges between every interlacing—bulges out, and even tries to overlap, but the monster has taken every precaution against this by making its bands very numerous and wide.

As the tree becomes weaker its leaves begin to fall, and this gives more room for its foe. Soon the strangler expands itself into a great bush almost as large as the mass of branches and foliage it has effaced. If we look carefully around us we see examples of entire obliteration—a clusia, or fig, standing on its reticulated hollow pillar, with only a heap of brown humus at its base to show what has become of the trunk which once stood up in all its majesty on that spot.

MARCHING PLANTS.

Several years ago attention was called to the fact that the Eastern plants of America were marching westward across the continent, keeping step with the advance of human settlement, and conquering the native plants as they proceeded. It was predicted that in time there would be a return of the Western plants sweeping eastward and overcoming their conquerors, and it is noted that that return seems already to have begun.

At present Australia presents, perhaps, the best example of this spreading and conquering tendency of those plants that follow the advance of man. The weeds that have found their way from Europe to Australia are crowding out the native weeds in many places, and especially in the more fertile lands. In some of the more rocky soils the native plants have the advantage in the contest.

A curious fact, brought out by observation in Australia, is that some imported plants, particularly ornamental garden varieties, cling to the neighborhood of their human friends as if they felt themselves to be strangers in a strange land, needing protection. Although they spring up vigorously within the limits of the gardens, self-sown, year after year, yet they never gain any footing outside.

But the Scotch thistle does not show itself so timid. It has been introduced into both Australia and Tasmania—in the latter island, it is said, by an enthusiastic Scotchman who wished to see his national flower blooming around him on the other side of the earth, and it has taken advantage of its opportunities without fear and without favor.

AN ODDITY IN BERRIES.

The Department of Agriculture has undertaken to cultivate the blueberry, and such success has been achieved that fruit half an inch in diameter has been obtained. Hitherto, of course, the crop has been wholly wild, the main source of supply being the famous "blueberry barrens" of Southeastern Maine.

The bulk of the crop, which has an annual value of $100,000, goes to canneries, which employ large numbers of pickers. Indeed, the business of harvesting the wild blueberry may be said to have been absorbed by a trust. The cultivated variety has been obtained by selecting the finest plants from the barrens and by reserving the biggest berries for seed.

Happy Homes

One of the essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a fund of information as to right living and the best methods of promoting health and happiness. With proper knowledge, each hour of recreation, of enjoyment and of effort may be made to contribute to that end and are of not less value than the using of the most wholesome foods and the selecting of the best medicinal agents when needed. With the well-informed, medicinal agents are used only when nature needs assistance and while the importance of cleansing the system effectually, when bilious or constipated, has long been known, yet until within recent years it was necessary to resort to oils, salts, extracts of roots, barks and other cathartics which were found to be objectionable and to call for constantly increased quantities.

Then physicians having learned that the most excellent laxative and carminative principles were to be found in certain plants, principally in the leaves, the California Fig Syrup Co. discovered a method of obtaining such principles in their purest condition and of presenting them with pleasant and refreshing liquids in the form most acceptable to the system and the remedy became known as—Syrup of Figs—as figs were used, with the plants, in making it, because of their agreeable taste.

This excellent remedy is now rapidly coming into universal use as the best of family laxatives, because it is simple and wholesome and cleanses and sweetens the system effectually without disturbing the natural functions and without unpleasant after effects and its use may be discontinued when it is no longer required.

All who would enjoy good health and its blessings should remember that it is the one remedy which physicians and parents well-informed approve and recommend and use and which they and their little ones alike enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all reliable druggists, at the regular price of fifty cents per bottle, in original packages only, having the name of the remedy—Syrup of Figs—and the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

"The Manxman" is one of those stories which tear the heartstrings, somethink like "Enoch Arden," or "The Blacksmith's Story." It tells of how Peter Quilliam, the man of all work, at the "Manx Fairy" inn fell in love with Kate Cregeen, his master's daughter, a pretty, frivolous little doll, who had about as much stability and honesty as the girl "Ostler Joe" married. When Pete proposes for the pretty barmaid's hand, Caesar Cregeen reminds him that he is far too poor to aspire to be his son-in-law, and orders him off the place. Pete accepts the situation and resolves to seek the riches which shall make him more worthy at the diamond fields in South Africa. Before departing, however, he enjoins Philip Christian, the companion of his boyhood, to watch over his darling and keep her from harm until he shall return. Philip swears before God to do so, and before Pete has been gone a year ruins the girl he has sworn to protect. Pete returns. He has been fortunate at Kimberley, and can boast himself the richest man on the Isle of Man and Kate, being jilted, marries him. Then a baby is born and she confesses that the child is not her husband's. Womanlike she screens her seducer and the blame is laid on the Demmister's brother. Remorse, however, seizes Philip Christian, and snatching the mask from his face, he tells the hideous story and begs Pete to kill him. Quilliam, however, for thes ake of the woman, restrains his passion and the end of the story sees the three principal actors of the drama separated never to be united.

Those who know Mr. O'Neill's ability will realise the opportunity offered for the intense work of which he is a grand master. The supporting company, according to the program, should be adequate. May Buckley, who will play Kate has an unusual record. Now only 23 years of age, she has been a leading woman of note for over five years. When only 15 years of age she created the star role of "The First Born" in San Francisco. Belasco took her to New York, where she captured the metropolis and in two years more she was the talk of London and Paris. George Edwardes secured her for the production of "San Toy" and she returned to America as a prima donna of comic opera. In "The Price of Peace" she again returned to emotional work, after which Liebler & Co., secured her to play Rhoda in "The Honor of the Humble." The cast of "The Manxman" furnished an identical role, and, of course, she was retained. The star is the presence in the company of three well-known and distinguished leading men. Charles Kent, Joseph Kilgour and Frank Conor have for years alt held positions which give them the top line of the program and three-figure salaries. Annie Wood, the character old woman, is often spoken of as one the three famous Annies, the others being Annie Yeamans and Annie Ward Tiffany. Mrs. Wood supported the biggest stars of the world from Forrest down and has mothered James O'Neill many times. Thirty years ago she was the famous Stelacta of "The Black Crook."

there will be given next week an indoor vaudeville circus, which will comprise some very sensational and exciting features. It will be a very big show, one of the largest ever given by any similar organization in the country. Chief among the attractions will be the original Madison Square Cycle Dazzle, which is one of the most marvelous of feats. There will be no increase in price, it remaining the same as heretofore. Owing to the extreme length of next week's performance, the curtain will rise promptly at 2:15 at the matinees and at 8 for the night performances.

The Ferris comedians' run at the Metropolitan has been an exceptionally long one, and the patronage has been liberal throughout the entire engagement, which has encouraged Mr. Ferris in his efforts to give to his Duluth friends and patrons the best and latest plays obtainable.

HI HENRY'S MINSTRELS.

Hi Henry's Minstrels will appear at the Lyceum on Thursday, April 30, matinee and night.

This organization claims to be the oldest and largest in the world, the present season constituting its thirtieth annual tour. It has appeared in all the leading cities East and West, from coast to coast.

A new spectacular first part will be given, presenting six bright comedians, twelve gifted singers, a double orchestra of twenty pieces, which includes their popular Saxaphone quartet.

Among their comedians is the premier, Billy Clark, and the character comedians, John Dove and Jimmy Corrigan; their singers embrace J. P. Moore, tenor, for several seasons a feature with Vogal's minstrels; George S. Van, for several seasons a vocal feature of Al G. Field's minstrels; the gifted tenors, Joe Lyons and E. J. Bronilette, and master Sam Edwards, and two talented quartets. During an interlude which follows the first part Mr. Hi Henry will appear with his gold cornet and render some of his best selections. Following this will be the appearance of Professor J. Probst, imitations of birds and animals; Corrigan and Dove, in black-face act; Billy Clark, in monologue; the Lotoy Brothers' volugems extraordinary, and the famous Renzeatta troupe of acrobats.

Scene From "The Manxman" to Be Presented at the Lyceum By James O'Neill Next Week.

INDOOR CIRCUS

Great Feature of the Metropolitan Next Week.

The Ferris comedians will produce for the last time tonight the play that has scored such a success at the Metropolitan the past two nights, "A Soldier of the Empire," a beautiful romantic drama.

For next week Mr. Ferris has selected two meritorious plays for his patrons, and for the first half of the week, beginning Monday night, the company will present on an elaborate scale the society drama, "An American Girl," a play that is full of strong dramatic situations, and that will show Mr. Forbes and Miss Carrington to the full height of their abilities.

For the latter half of the week, beginning Thursday night, a most sensational comedy drama will be presented. It is from the pen of the celebrated author, Lew C. Parker, and has been one of the season's successes in the Eastern states. It is "For Home and Honor." Both plays will be elaborately scened and costumed.

In addition to these two strong plays there will be given next week an indoor vaudeville circus, which will comprise some very sensational and exciting features. It will be a very big show, one of the largest ever given by any similar organization in the country. Chief among the attractions will be the original Madison Square Cycle Dazzle, which is one of the most marvelous of feats. There will be no increase in price, it remaining the same as heretofore. Owing to the extreme length of next week's performance, the curtain will rise promptly at 2:15 at the matinees and at 8 for the night performances.

TO REPEAT "CARMEN."

Second Performance at the Lyceum Monday Evening.

The splendid success of the production of "Carmen" at the Lyceum Thursday evening has led to a great demand for another performance by a large number of people who were unable to be present that evening. The weather interfered to a considerable extent with th attendance of many who wished to go. Mr. Tyler has therefore decided to accede to the requests, and the opera will be again sung Monday evening. The production will be the same throughout, and as it has been freely pronounced the best operatic production Duluth amateurs have ever given, the second performance will undoubtedly be greeted by a larger audience than the first.

"UNCLE JOSH SPRUCEBY."

"Uncle Josh Spruceby," a well-known New England comedy drama, will be at the Lyceum Friday and Saturday next, with a matinee on the latter day. It is a comedy of a very pleasing type, with a down-East farmer as the principal character, and has some strong dramatic situations. The company is composed of about twenty-five people, and a special feature is a rustic band of ten pieces that gives a novel street exhibition.

"KING DODO" IN CHICAGO.

"King Dodo," presented by Henry W. Savage's company, will open at the Studebaker theater, Chicago, on May 11, for a spring and summer run. The production has been greatly strengthened on the men's side, while the excellent women who appeared with the show in Duluth are retained. There will be twenty men and thirty pretty girls in the chorus. Frank Deshon will appear as the king, Charles W. Meyers as the court historian, Ivan Anderson as the court chamberlain and Arthur Wooley as Dr. Fizz. Maude Williams is sure to make a hit as Piola, and Leslie Leigh and Ruth Peebles will please the Chicagoans. The production will be under the management of Arthur E. Miller, and B. J. Reilly is still the efficient promoter of publicity.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

The Clara Morris Benefit Was a Disappointment.

New York, April 25.—The Clara Morris benefit was a disappointment in more senses than one. The amount of money realized was something less than one-fourth of what had been expected, being only $6000, but more than this was the failure of most of the prominent volunteers to appear on the stage. It is quite true that the weather was enough to excuse almost any one from appearing, but when Pete Dailey claimed that he did not dare go out in it for fear of hurting his voice, some suspicion is naturally aroused. By long odds the feature of the afternoon was the balcony scene from "Romeo and Juliet," as rendered by Ned Harrington and Annie Yeamans. It had been kept for the last number, and almost everybody remained until 6 o'clock to see it. Harrigan was given a remarkable ovation, and when he and Mrs. Yeamans quit Shakespeare to come to the footlights and sing one of their old songs, the house went wild with applause. One of the amusing incidents of the afternoon was the receipt of a cablegram from Sara Bernhardt conveying her congratuiations to Miss Morris and her sincerest wishes for her health and prosperity. Unfortunately it was written in French and nobody behind the footlights could translate it properly. For more than an hour there was scurrying all over Broadway for some one to put the message into proper English, and only at the last moment was the discovery made that a diminutive young chorus lady could fill the bill. With her assistance Miss Amelia Bingham took the center of the stage and read the message, which was applauded with rapture.

If there ever was a lucky young woman on the American stage it is Miss Elfie Fay, who is to become a star next season. Some two years ago Miss Fay broke into the theatrical game in the chorus of one of Alf Aaron's short-lived successes. She did a dance, the principal feature of which was that her hair intense amusement of the audience, and in one day Miss Fay was famous. Before she had time to recover she came into a little forune left by her father, and proceeded to blow it in such a fashion that the Tenderloin was at her feet. Her next move was to the other side of the ocean, where she did great things on the London vaudeville stage. Then she came back to us and repeated some of her London triumphs, at least enough of it to induce Weber and Rush to give her a contract to appear at the head of her own company in a musical comedy.

The biggest success of the present week has been the appearance of George H. Broadhurst's new play, "A Fool and His Money." It is the brightest comedy that has been seen here this season, and won its way to the heart of New York the very first night. One of the features of the performance was the remarkable work done by Miss May Vokes in the role of a slavey, played only as she can do it. Arnold Daly and Jameson Lee Finney carried off the male honors in capital style. The book is filled with bright lines, and practically the performance is one continuous laugh. Among the best hits of the performance are these:

"Is it true what the evening papers say about you?"

"If it's in big headlines it isn't."

"People who live in glass houses should pull down the blinds."

"Aren't you ever serious?"

"Yes, once a month, when the bills come in."

Rehearsals were begun last week for the Liebler & Co. production of "Romeo and Juliet." In order that this might be accomplished the road tours of both "Audrey" and "A Gentleman of France" were brought to a sudden close and Miss Eleanor Robson and Kyrle Bellew hurriedly made their way to this city. The opening will take place in Albany, N. Y., on the evening of April 27, and then the tour will include the following cities in this order: Utica, Syracuse, Detroit, Toledo, Columbus, Milwaukee, St. Louis, Indianapolis, Cincinnati, Lexington, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, New Haven, Hartford, Providence and Boston.

Miss Jessie Millward is in quite a state of mind over her blue satin knickerbockers, which seem to have made more of an impression on the public than her really fine acting in "The Taming of Helen." Miss Millward's most serious objection to her costume is that it should overshadow her art, for she has been used to that style of dress for many years, and cannot comprehend why her audiences take such an interest in it. "Why," she said, "I wore tights, which is a good deal worse, when I played with Sir Henry Irving about twelve years ago. I was cast for the role of Jessica, and the part demanded tights. They gave me the costume, and I didn't know how to put the things on, for I had never worn them before. I finally ascertained that they were rolled up like very long stockings, and so with some hesitation I fixed them the way I thought they ought to be worn. I arranged them like leggings, wearing them only as high as the knee and using one of Jessica's short skirts. Sir Henry threw up his hands in horror when I appeared in that costume. He stopped the rehearsal and called me to one side. 'You will please appear in the proper costume for your role, Miss Millward,' he said, somewhat severely. 'Of course you know what you should wear. Go and change immediately.' I was so confused that I think he guessed I had never worn tights before, for he added: 'Jessica is supposed to be dressed as a boy, Miss Millward. Surely the wardrobe mistress supplied you with tights, didn't she?' 'Oh,' I answered, suddenly understanding. 'Why, I wondered why those stockings were so long.'"

Frankie Bailey is nothing if not statuesque. She is the only woman on the stage who can keep her mouth closed and draw a talkative salary. She is always serene and more than ordinarily amiable. But she lost her poise and her good nature one night last week. In one of the center stage rushes of the Weber-Fields chorus one of the girls accidentally gave the favored Frankie a push that nearly made her a part of the audience. Frankie fumed after the manner of an iceberg in a warm sun, and some of the girls giggled. One of them rushed over and gave her a playful poke, which capped the climax, for Miss Bailey promptly retorted with a slap that was so thoroughly in earnest that it brought down the house.

Souvenir time is approaching at the Belasco theater, and Blanche Bates in "The Darling of the Gods" will be shown in book form in as handsome a souvenir as was the one given away on the opening night of the theater with "Du Barry." The new souvenir will be a complete story of the play handsomely illustrated, and the book will be beautifully bound.

When Mrs. Langtry sails for England she will take with her a monologue and a one-act play written by the young American authoress, May Isabel Fisk. Mrs. Fisk was selected for this work after Mrs. Langtry heard Mrs. Fisk give one of her monologue at a reception last winter at which they were both guests. Mrs. Fisk was presented to Mrs. Langtry in the afternoon and the actress asked her if she would write for her a monologue expressly suitable for the English drawing rooms where Mrs. Langtry frequently appears at charitable entertainments. It was at a recent interview with Mrs. Langtry that Mrs. Fisk accepted another commission from her to write for her a one-act play. Mrs. Fisk is a frequent contributor to the magazines, and a series of her monologues is now being published in one of the leading monthlies. Mrs. Fisk has also written many short stories.

According to the gentlemen who promotes publicity for Stuart Robson, the veteran actor has become an enthusiastic chaffeur. Recently he purchased an automobile capable of developing a power of twelve ponies, and when he is in New York Mr. Robson spends much of his time scorching and twiddling his fingers, the accuracy of the twiddling directed by an application to the nose, at the folks who locomote with less celerity. He carries his machine with him on "the road," and now promises to avoid railroad travel as much as possible, making short jumps in the self-propelled travel wagon.

Contracts have been signed for the production on May 25 of a new opera, "The Wood Witch," music by Albert Mildenberg, libretto by Williard Holcomb, with Miss Helena Frederick, late prima donna of "The Emerald Isle," in the title role. Mr. Mildenberg has heretofore been known as a concert pianist, having been a "pet" pupil of Rafael Joseffy, and as a composer of songs which have found great favor in concerts, as well as in operas in which they have been interpolated. He has also figured as musical director. His collaborator, William Holcomb, is best known for his metrical version of "Gringoire," music by Julian Edwards, which was successfully produced in London last spring, and his comedietta, "Her Last Rehearsal," which has been played for five seasons. Among Mr. Holcomb's claims on fame is the recurrent fact that he is older than he looks.

The three-act comedy now being written for Vesta Tilley will include Mr. Edgar Smith of New York, among its collaborators, and this fact will furnish a guarantee, if any other be needed that the plot and dialogue will be lacking in nothing to supply this, the greatest of all protean actresses, every desired opportunity. Mr. Smith, who has prepared all matters for the Weber and Field's productions for years, is thoroughly familiar with Miss Tilley's peculiar line of work, and knows precisely what is required to best enable her to exercise her fascination upon an American audience.

It is reported that one of the objects of Henry W. Savage's present trips to Europe is to have a conference with Frau Wagner regarding the great composer's "Parsifal," the one remaining work by the master of the tone drama that has never been presented on this side. Frau Wagner has ever adhered to her policy of retaining this as the special feature of the annual festivals at Bayreuth, but it is not impossible that Mr. Savage may think of an inducement that will secure the permission to produce "Parsifal" by his Castle Square Opera company next season. Should the dauntless impressario return with contracts both for "Parsifal" and Puccini's "Mme. Butterfly" it will do more to make his famous English singing organization a true rival of the Metropolitan Opera company than anything else he could possibly do.

* * *

So repeated have been the efforts of Signora Duse to reopen negotiations with Liebler & Co. for another American tour that it is quite possible a contract may be signed with her when Manager George Tyler goes to Europe in the latter part of May. He has made arrangements to visit her in Florence, and will, if possible, make arrangements to bring her back to the United States under conditions that will do away with all the trouble he had during her recent tour. One thing which he will insist upon is that she shall make radical changes in her repertoire, doing away with all the plays she was seen in here this season. He will also insist that she present as her principal feature Bellew's version of Tolstoi's "Resurrection," which is a vastly different thing from the American version now being presented by Miss Blanche Walsh at the Victoria. Signora Duse has recently declared that her version, which is now being played in the French capital, is the most remarkable play she has ever attempted, and it ought to be the strongest feature of her tour if she comes to this country again.

* * *

Leonard Grover, the famous old manager and playwright, has recovered from his illness. He was the author of "Our Boarding House," which was Robson and Crane's original success. But a luckier play he wrote, to the people concerned, was "Cad the Tomboy," which enabled Miss Carrie Swain, under the management of Frank Gardner, to get to Australia and make their first money. From that Gardner has risen to immense wealth, and Miss Swain is also a very rich woman. It was M. B. Leavitt who paid their fares, and Gardner is now repaying it by backing Leavitt's South African tour, just started.

* * *

It is by no means settled, at the last determination, that David Warfield will after all appear in a new play next season. "The Auctioneer" has been doing such a big business the whole of the season now coming to an end, and the demand for its repetition is so widespread, that it undoubtedly will be indefinitely continued. He favors this plan himself.

* * *

Channing Pollock is the gentleman who is to make the dramatization for William A. Brady of "The Pit," in which Wilton Lackaye will star next season. A good deal of money is to be spent on the material presentation of the play, and Mr. Brady will return from Europe early so as to stage it himself.

* * *

It has been found impossible this season to open the engagements of Mrs. Carter in "Du Barry" in each new town before Tuesday of each week. This did not so much matter where she played seasons of six and eight weeks in each place. It was owing to the heaviness of the stage setting. To obviate this difficulty for next season, when she will play week stands, two sets of stage mounting will be completely built, so that one may always be sent ahead, thus gaining a night, and incidentally, about $2,500 in each place.

* * *

Mr. Beerbohm-Tree writes that he has definitely given up all idea of a starring tour in America next season. He states frankly that he has nothing to offer sufficient to carry him through a season, and, then again, he wants to act personally in London the part in "The Darling of the Gods" that George Arliss acts here—the war minister.

* * *

David Belasco is now taking a genuine rest after two years of constant and harassing work. He has now nothing to bother about next season, excepting the Belasco theater proper and the production of a new play of his own there. Everything else in his purview is settled for, and there is nothing to worry him, an unusual sensation in his case.

* * *

J. V. Jordan, the theatrical angel who backed George Lederer's latest outputs, "Sally in Our Alley," that has gone to a peaceful rest, and "The Jewel of Asia," that is rumbling along to a weekly deficit of $1000, even if James T. Powers is in the cast, says he is through with "angel" business. At a hearing before Justice Davis in New York last week Jordan's attorney said his theatrical experience had cost Jordan about $20,000, and all he has to show for it is the debts of two failures, Nixon & Zimmerman have offered to take "The Jewel of Asia" off Lederer & Jordan's hands for $5000, but the deal has not been closed as yet.

* * *

"The Wizard of Oz" celebrated its 100th performance in New York recently without having shown any signs of losing its hold on the favor of Metropolitan theatergoers. Managers Hamlin and Mitchell are organizing a second company for next season, which will tour the cities not to be visited by the original organization.

* * *

J. H. Stoddart is booked for an early appearance in "Beside the Bonnie Brier Bush" in Halifax, N. S., and recalls that it will be his first appearance there since 1856, when he was the youngest member of a traveling company that included in its list such well-known players of the time as the older Sothern, J. T. Raymond and others.

INJUNCTION ASKED

Against an Alleged Spanish-American War Veteran.

Lancaster, Pa., April 25.—A preliminary injunction was granted yesterday on the petition of the National Association of Spanish-American war veterans, against William C. Liller, of this city, "restraining him from selling goods and chattels, badges, blanks and papers as the alleged adjutant general of the association of Spanish-American war veterans."

The petitioners set forth that Liller was appointed adjutant geenral in 1901, and failed to furnish a bond of $1000, as required, and that charges were preferred against him prior to the Indianapolis encampment in September, 1902. It is asserted that Liller resigned before he could be tried by court-martial. It is further alleged that after the adjournment of the convention Liller, without authority, issued a call for a convention in Washington, and in compliance with the call, "had himself elected adjutant general."

The petitioners aver that he had otherwise improperly used papers and records of the organization.
